"WE ARE THE BEST"—The team of Eric Murray and Sam Kehela, both Toronto bridge players, are the best going to Dallas, Texas, this fall, says Eric Murray. They will compete for positions on the North American team to play in the 1965 world championship. Murray, shown here pondering his cards, says teammate Kehela knows all the mathematical probabilities and plays them. Murray feels, however, the bluff and daring of poker adds to the game. Hurricane Cleo Leaves 14 Dead On French Island

Races Toward Jamaica With Severe Force

A SANTO DOMINGO, Domini can Republic (AP)—Cleo, the worst hurricane of the season, raged across the Caribbean toward Jamaica today, leaving behind a path of death and destruction.

The storm swirled past southern Puerto Rico Sunday after battering the Guadeloupe islands. Officials blamed Cleo for at least 14 deaths, 100 injuries and $50,000,000 in damage to the French possession.

Cleo will probably strike Jamaica tonight with hurricane force, the weather bureau said.

Gale force winds and heavy rain pounded the southern coast of the Dominican Republic early today. Small but powerful Cleo, with 140 - mile centre winds, pressed onward south of the island of Hispaniola, which the Dominican Republic shares with Haiti. Severe lowland flooding was predicted.

The weather bureau said that Cleo's 125-mile wide mass of hurricane force winds appar ently would miss Hispaniola's heartland. But the storm was headed toward Haiti's southern peninsula, where thousands were killed last year by hurricane Flora.

MAY STRIKE CUBA

Cleo also might strike Cuba with its fury intact, the weather bureau said. However, it was too early to say whether it would pose any danger to the U.S. mainland.

Military leaves were cancelled in Santo Domingo. Civil defence and Red Cross units were placed on alert. Residents were asked to remain indoors.

In Basse Terre, capital of Guadeloupe, authorities said Cleo was the worst storm to strike there since 1928. They reported more than 1,000 persons homeless, hundreds of homes demolished and thousands more badly damaged. Electricity was disrupted in most areas and roads were blocked.

Cleo bypassed Puerto Rico by about 100 miles to the south Sunday night. It lashed Guadeloupe Saturday night with winds

Liberal Supports Red Ensign

By STEWART MacLEOD

OTTAWA (CP)—The lengthy flag debate, not noted for its variety in the first 12 days, will have a slightly altered routine when it resumes today.

The oft-repeated Conservative charges that Prime Minister Pearson's Liberal government is trying to ram the three-leaf flag down the throat of Parliament under the threat of an election no longer applies. The prime minister announced Friday that votes on the flag would be free of party discipline and the government wouldn't stand or fall on the result.

Another new twist scheduled for today involves the first speech by a Liberal Red Ensign supporter. Ralph Cowan (L—York Humber), a strong advocate for retention of the ensign, is due to enter the debate as it goes into its 13th day.

Until now, all Liberal speakers have stoutly supported the government's proposed new flag design, and the Conservatives, almost to a man, have established themselves as firm Ensign supporters.

NO END IN SIGHT

While some Liberal members have expressed the view that the free vote will speed the discussion to a conclusion, Opposition Leader Diefenbaker says the change comes too late to alter things. Since the debate started, he told the Commons Friday, there has been a freezing of attitudes that a free vote cannot change.

Several Conservative backbenchers say Friday's announcement will not result in any weakening of the party's position.

Like last week, the flag de-

Beatles Leave Several Injured, Scores in Hysterics in Vancouver

VANCOUVER (CP) — This city won't soon forget the Beatles.

The four singers spent less than six hours here Saturday—29 minutes of it on stage—and left behind several injured youngsters and scores in hysterics.

The Beatles' appearance before some 20,000 at Empire Stadium was plucked into a day that began in Seattle and ended in Los Angeles.

Thousands more youngsters lined up for a glimpse of the singers entering their downtown hotel, but the entire show observed for them was never occupied because they arrived here late.

Tension, which built up during the day, exploded when the quartet, the idols of all the fussing, ran on stage about 9:15 p.m. The screaming and squealing drowned out the singers as they moved into their performance.

Meanwhile, about 500 non-paying fans outside stormed a 10-foot wooden gate. Policeman and Pacific National Exhibition workers put their shoulders against the other side. Both groups backed off when it appeared certain the gate would collapse.

A group of youngsters outside the stadium finally succumbed to emotions and stormed a gate, toppling the structure over on themselves. No one was injured and police managed to cordon off the section after several dozen spectators ended there.

Later the group moved to another fence and successfully smashed it down, but no one was able to enter.

The surge on the field toward the stage pinned many youngsters against a restraining fence. Screaming and crying girls were carried off by first aid workers to a stadium concourse.

The final tally showed six youngsters taken to hospital and later released, several ribs taped and another required stitches. About 50 were treated at the stadium for "exhaustion and hypertension."

MP's Can Vote As They Like

By JAMES NELSON

This, in the 16th century vocabulary of English fox hunting, is the effect of Prime Minister Pearson's announcement Friday that the whips will be called off in any vote in the Commons on the flag.

The whips are those MPs nominated by the various parties in the Commons to keep backbench members informed of party positions and to keep tab on their whereabouts when crucial votes are being taken in the House.

Calling a free vote on the flag means that members may vote as they wish, according to their personal convictions, without regard to party discipline.

The word "whip" as used in parliamentary affairs is an abbreviation of "whipper - in," those who keep the hounds from straying from the pack in fox hunting.

In the present case, however, there is considerable embarrassment among some backbenchers on the free vote decision.

PROPOSAL ACCEPTED

When the government unveiled its design last may of three red maple leaves on a white field with blue sides, there was wide general acceptance of the proposal among MPs.

As the issue developed, however, and as strength gathered among defenders of the Red Ensign, some members — particularly among the conservatives — turned their support away from the maple leaf flag.

It is not known how many of the MPs who have since committed themselves in support of the Red Ensign were, on the basis of their first impressions, in favor of the maple leaf flag.

Nor can it be predicted now how many of these will, when the vote is taken, go back in support of the maple leaf flag after having stated their opposition to it in the printed record of Commons debates.

One saving feature, at least, for those who change their minds is the fact that their early first impressions were not recorded.

CAN CROSS FLOOR

Although more rare in Canadian parliamentary life than it is in Britain, it is not unprecedented that a member of parliament should change his mind or his party allegiance.

In fact, in switching party allegiance the most distinguished record is held by Sir Winston Churchill, who was first elected a Conservative MP in 1900. He quit the Conservatives in 1904, crossing the floor to the Liberal party, and rejoined the Conservatives in 1924.

As Sir Winston himself has said: "The act of crossing the floor is one that requires serious consideration. I am well informed on the matter, for

It seldom makes a headline. On the whole, it is moving so unobtrusively that few Americans fully realize how far it has gone in a relatively few years, north and south. Yet the quiet revolution is everywhere. Random examples—

In Alabama, the cities of Birmingham, Florence, Huntsville, Anniston and Gadsden implement the civil rights act without incident.

In Chicago, 18 Negro families move into white neighborhoods without trouble. In Baltimore, Negroes now live in 161 of the city's 168 districts. "Exceptional," says Edward L. Holmgren, executive director of Baltimorre neighborhoods, incorporated, an organization formed to "work on stabilizing communities affected by racial change. . . .

In Florida, a Negro leader says "the Miami Negro has attained human dignity and the opportunity to take advantage of these good new things as he can qualify for them."

In San Francisco, employers attend a reception for 200 members of Kappa Alpha Psi, the country's largest predominantly Negro fraternity, in the interest of improving job opportunities for Negroes.

In Virginia, in recent council elections, two Negroes are elected in Richmond and Petersburg. It is about 13 years since Richmond had a Negro councilman.

In southern and border states, 93 more school districts are scheduled to desegregate this fall, the Southern Education Reporting Service says. The organization says 71 of these are public school districts.

Examples of the quiet revolu-

Protest Food Prices

NEW DELHI (Reuters)—Fifty - one Communist demonstrators were arrested today as their national party began a massive five - day protest throughout India against rising food prices.

Police throughout the country moved into a full state of readiness in anticipation of the well-publicized protest.

The three - month - old regime of Prime Minister Lal Bahadur Shastri faces its first major confrontation with the Communists as plans call for picketing of banks, stock exchanges, grain dealers and government offices.

Some 100,000 Communists, including party Leader S. A. Dange, will court arrest in pre-

Burn Buildings, Stone Barracks In S. Viet Nam

Increasingly Anti-U. S. Tone Seen in Riots

By MALCOLM W. BROWNE

SAIGON (AP) — Youthful mobs in Saigon, Hue and Da Nang sacked and burned buildings today in the worst outbreak of organized rioting since last summer.

However, several hundred students supporting the government sacked and burned the student union building in Saigon in a counter - demonstration.

A grenade exploded at the height of the riot, seriously injuring a U.S. demonstrator. There were no American casualties. Another blast a short time later killed a Vietnamese woman.

The 30 or more Americans in the barracks fired shots into the air to scare off the demonstrators as rocks smashed windows.

ATTACK VILLAGE

The mob then attacked a nearby Roman Catholic village and set a house afire. Villagers moved out of their houses to defend themselves while their women carried children and belongings to a waterfront pier.

After the fire, mob leaders called for a withdrawal. But some rioters slipped back into the village and set two more houses aflame.

Another grenade exploded as the rioters pulled back. A maid working at the enlisted men's barracks was wounded and died soon afterwards.

More Americans are stationed in Da Nang, on the South China Sea, than anywhere else in the country, except Saigon.

They waved banners and shouted pro - government slogans, pelted the building with rocks and then set it afire. Most of the students were Catholic refugee. from North Viet

Showdown On Issue Promised

By ARCH MacKENZIE

ATLANTIC CITY, N.J. (CP) A showdown on the key civil rights issue was promised for the opening round of the Democratic party's national convention tonight as the pro-segregation Alabama delegation spurred a loyalist demand from the credentials committee.

By a vote of 33 to 3, the Alabama voting delegates heeded Governor George Wallace's wishes and said it will take the case to the convention as a whole.

The credentials committee deferred until today a decision in the other civil rights fight—whether the pro-segregation delegation from Mississippi should be replaced by a largely-Negro rebel group.

It was not known just when the convention will be asked to vote on the seating of most of the Alabama group for refusing to sign a pledge that they will support the national party and its policies including civil rights.

Several of the Mississippi matter, which is regarded as a more fundamental threat to party unity, indicated continuing efforts to achieve some sort of compromise.

SUMMONED TO WALLACE

The Alabama matter hinges on the fact that the delegates originally were committed to Governor Wallace, an ardent segregationist, who is believed likely to support Republican Senator Barry Goldwater in the Nov. 3 presidential election.

The Mississippi people have postponed until Sept. 9 a decision on whether they will decide to continue the Southern United States' traditional Democratic support or bolt to the Republicans.

It was felt likely that the two cases might be tossed to the

Two U. S. Colonels and Diplomat Safe After 50-Mile Congo Hike

LEOPOLDVILLE (AP)—Two tough United States colonels, missing for three days in the mountains of rebel - infested Kivu with a young American diplomat, told here of a 50-mile hike to safety after the rebels shot up their jeep.

Hiding by day and marching by night, they lived on bananas and bananas and water scooped from a stream.

Col. William (Wild Bill) A. Dodds, 50; Lt.-Col. Donald V. Clapp, 41; Lt. Jon R. Nad, 25, and American Vice-Consul Louis D. McFarlane ran into a rebel truck column Wednesday about 35 miles west of Bukavu, the capital of Kivu, where last week Congolese soldiers fought a desperate street battle.

"The first thing we saw was a green Chevrolet pickup heading for Bukavu," Dodds said Sunday. Seconds later, a burst of rebel machine gun fire had knocked out the Americans' jeep.

Dodds and Ratian, both paratroopers and counter insurgency experts, had been taking a look at a Congolese army outpost on the road. McFarlane, who speaks Swahili, had gone with them to interpret.

Dodds and Ratian are members of the military mission to the Congo and had been sent to Bukavu as observers. Abandoning the jeep, the three Americans and Congolese Army Capt. Shimanga sought cover. They tried to rejoin soldiers manning the outpost over the hill but were driven off by machine-gun fire because the government soldiers thought they were rebels trying to outflank them.

McFarlane had to leave his papers behind in the jeep. These were picked up by a rebel "colonel" who was later slain in Bukavu. Congolese soldiers found the papers, and there was fear that the American had been killed.

For the next three nights they hiked over Kivu's rugged mountains guided by the stars.

On the second day, they stumbled on four Bashi tribal warriors armed with spears and machetes. When they burst in on them, yelling "jambo" (Swahili for "hello"), and showing their empty hands, three of the warriors fled.

"The other one was too scared to move," Dodds said.

This warrior agreed to guide them toward Bukavu after being promised 40,000 Congo francs (about $400).

The three were flown back to Leopoldville Saturday night.

Cabin Cruiser Trip to Norway Discontinued

TORONTO (CP) — Towering Atlantic seas and pounds of hard luck forced two Toronto men to give up their attempt to travel to Norway in a 22-foot cabin cruiser.

Norwegian-born Haakon Sven drup, 46, owner of the craft and Danish-born Otto Pedersen, 29, arrived in Toronto last week with tales of 30-foot waves and repeated engine breakdowns.

But they vowed they will get a new engine in their little craft and make another try next June.

"We were about 200 miles off Labrador coast headed for Greenland when we ran into a storm with 30-foot waves on Aug. 16," Mr. Pedersen said in an interview Saturday. The engine slopped because of valve trouble and they didn't have the equipment to repair it.

They drifted for several hours before they were taken in tow by a biological research boat and taken back to Cartwright, Labrador, where they left the boat and flew back to Toronto via Goose Bay and Montreal.

Their luck started shortly after they began the voyage when the viking struck a shoal on the St. Lawrence River near Gananoque, 13 miles from Kingston, July 22.

Bad luck struck again near Cornwall when the propeller was replaced a second time after it became entangled with a water ski tow rope.

CRASH KILLS THREE

WASHINGTON (AP)—Three U.S. Air Force officers were killed Saturday when a small air force plane crashed in flames on Andrews Air Force Base in nearby Maryland shortly after take-off. The three were Brig.-Gen. Lawrence F. Loesch, a passenger; Lt.-Col. James Leroy Tyson, the pilot, and Col. Howard J. LaBrese, co-pilot. The plane was a two-engine U-3 utility craft.

Moscow Beer Supplies Are Drying Up

MOSCOW—There used to be a little place in Pushkin Square where you could buy beer, but they sell only milk there now.

It's almost as tough in Sverdlov Street and just as bad in Zhdanov Street. Along these two drags there are only three places where you can buy the stuff.

The newspaper Moskovskaya Pravda came up with this thirsty fact Sunday after a reporter made the equivalent of a pub crawl through the capital. He painted a pathetic picture.

"People are sauntering around town looking for beer," he reported.

They go into cafes that should sell beer and they are told there is no beer. They get onto the end of a beer queue and then they are told: "It's no use staying in the queue, the beer's almost run out."

"Where is all the beer going?" the newspaper asked. "It's not being poured into the Moskva River."

There are two reasons for the shortage, the paper found.

Moscow's four breweries are not brewing enough and cafes and stores do not take all the supplies breweries offer to them.

The four beer drinkers it is a sad story.

Two years ago, Moskovskaya Pravda said, breweries were producing 21 different varieties of beer and now there are only eight, and some of those are of very insignificant quantities."

There are 9,500 places in Moscow where you can buy drinks of various kinds, but only 92 sell beer. In addition there are 105 street beer wagons. Moscow really needs 300 or 400 stores that stock beer, and beer pavilions if the thirst of the population is to be quenched, the paper declared. It added:

"We need bars as well, places where you can meet friends and eat the food you see in cook books."

Plan Service In Old Hay Bay Church Aug. 30

Members of Old Hay Bay Church at Adolphustown will hold their annual Pilgrimage Service on Sunday, August 30. Guest speaker will be Rev. Robert E. N. McLean, B.A., B.D., president of the Bay of Quinte and pastor of Cambridge Street Church, Lindsay, Ont.

The Honorable Leslie M. Frost, former Premier of Ontario and His Honor, Judge Gerald Smith of Napanee will be taking part in the special service.

Rev. D. M. Smith of Campbellford will also be present.

Mrs. A. Orne At County Home 100 Years Old

A little lady born when the Fathers of Confederation were getting set to talk nationhood at Charlottetown, is celebrating her 100th birthday in Belleville.

It was there, yesterday afternoon, that a small family gathering hailed the momentous personal milestone for Mrs. Orne.

Born in 1864 in Elzevir township, the daughter of Mr. and Mrs. John Kleinsteuber, Mrs. Orne has been resident at the County Home since October, 1950.

Her bright personality is a source of comment for those now caring for her.

"Physically, she is amazing," said Mrs. Kenneth Yorke, wife of the home's superintendent.

"She loves to sing—she eats and she sleeps well."

Man Missing Police Decline To Give Name

A boat was rented from a Marina at Crowe Lake by a man on Aug. 22 and 23. The boat was found later on the lake unoccupied.

Police declined to release the man's name.

Road Safety Clinic Will Again Operate

The clinic — operated by city police and under the supervision of Sergeant Sam Cook — is designed to promote safety by simple tests and examinations.

Participation is voluntary and since its organization several years ago, it has attracted a steady stream of volunteers.

Laotian Heads Plan Tripartite Talks in Paris

PARIS (Reuters) — Tripartite talks between leaders of the Laotian political factions, originally scheduled to begin here today, have been postponed due to a delay in the arrival of two deputations.

Premier Prince Souvanna Phouma flew in Saturday to hold preliminary discussions with French ministers and representatives of Russia and Britain—co-chairmen of the 1962 Geneva agreement on Laotian neutrality.

He said the opening date for the talks, designed to iron out internal differences, would be set when the other two leaders arrived.

Disc Jockey Claims Record

CINCINNATI (AP) — A 29 year-old disc jockey claimed a record for Ferris wheel riding Sunday night after going round and round for 166 hours at the Coney Island amusement park near Cincinnati.

Morton Downey Jr., son of the popular radio singer of the 1930s, climbed off the wheel shortly after 6 p.m., tired but happy. He had started his merry ride to nowhere at 8 p.m. the previous Sunday.

He got a five-minute break every five hours.

The record was riding the wheel without a break for recently belongs to 16-year-old Patricia Jonas of Sidney, Ohio, who spent 142 hours, 30 minutes, on a wheel at Zanesville. Her ride ended Saturday night.

Screams Echo OverHollywood, Beatles There

HOLLYWOOD (AP) — The hills were alive with the sound of screaming Sunday night as the Beatles made their local debut at Hollywood Bowl.

It was a wild scene, man.

The Beatles, sometimes accidentally the home of symphonies under the stars, was packed to the brim—and overflowing with emotion - wracked adolescents. In addition, clumps of free-loaders sat on the hills in the surrounding hills, looking the pilgrims in a Cecil B. DeMille edition.

The crowd of amost 19,000 sat restlessly through preliminary acts of rock 'n' roll personalities. Finally, the Beatles appeared, jaunty under their mop of hair, on the Bowl's pedestal-mounted stage.

The quartet breezed through their famous songs with scant regard for the shrieks that sounded almost continuously. The biggest reaction came for the number sung by Ringo Starr, the sad-eyed drummer.

In exactly half an hour, their performance was over. They are reported to have earned $50,000.

Says Conditions In Turk Sector Worse Than Ever

NICOSIA AP) — A Turkish spokesman said here today night that despite the promised stalling of the Greek-Cypriot blockade, conditions in Turkish quarters of the island are worse than before.

Since Greek-Cypriote government agreed in principle to ease the blockage Aug. 18 further negotiations with the United Nations have been largely bogged down over details such as calorie levels for proposed rations.

In that time, one emergency shipment of foodstuffs has been allowed to the northwest coast enclave of Kokkina. water has been restored to the enclave town of Klima and one shipment of kerosene for cooking has been allowed into the Turkish quarter on Nicosia where 33,000 Turkish - Cypriots are crowded.

The Turkish spokesman also accused Greek-Cypriot forces using fire Sunday, without causing casualties, at a refuges camp at Hamit Mandros.

Two Suspects In Burglary Are Arrested

Hectic police chase after a burglary was discovered in Frankford ended with the arrest of two suspects early today.

The chase started when an automobile evaded a police roadblock at Stirling and ended after a high-speed pursuit through the Oak Hills.

Two men, Ernest Stirling, arrest and theft are Gordon Cowdrey, 22, of No. 10, Peterborough, and 22-year-old David Eeson Hanrahan, John Street, Trenton.

Police say the alarm was raised when a nearby resident spotted a burglary in progress at the Oasis Restaurant on the east side of Frankford bridge.

Police chief Ed McGeachy hurried to the scene but by that time the thieves had fled with the restaurant's cash register.

Soon Stirling, local police chief C. E. Hicks was called out at 3.45 a.m. to set up a roadblock. As he drove to the south end of the village he noticed an automobile headed toward him on Highway 2.

Chief Hicks again caught up with the fleeing suspects on the Oak Hills where he cut it off once more, finally forcing it to a halt.

Ten Arrested Outside Plant In Brantford

BRANTFORD (CP) — Ten men were arrested today after clashes with police outside the Canadian Steel Wheel Company Limited plant where about 300 workers have been on strike since Aug. 10.

D. A. Currie, personnel manager at the plant, said the trouble began when a car tried to drive through the picket line to work. His car was pushed back 20 feet and after trying to clear a way for him, met with resistance from a crowd of about 100.

After police reinforcements were called the car got through but its windshield was cracked by a "flying object."

The union's A. J. A. Sherman also had difficulty getting through the picket line.

The 10 men have been charged with obstructing police.

The strike followed the collapse of negotiations between management and Local 555 of the International Union of Electrical, Radio and Machine Workers (CLC) for a new contract.

The old agreement expired Feb. 5. The union is seeking a general 20 - cent - an - hour pay increase with 30 cents for skilled labor. The company has offered six cents an hour.

Police Used Cruiser to Guide Plane

SUDBURY (CP) — Constable Albert Treits of the Neelon-Garson police department used his cruiser to guide a light single-engine American plane into fog-shrouded Sudbury airport Saturday night.

"It was quite an experience," said Const. Treits. "I had to travel at speeds up to 100 miles an hour while the pilot whisked the plane along about 50 feet above the road."

Occupants of the plane were pilot H. J. Jones of Arizona and two unidentified Saul Ste. Marie residents.

Const. Treits said he first noticed the plane was in trouble when he saw it flying low, disappearing and reappearing in a fog bank about four miles south of the airport.

He said when he saw the plane dip into an old gravel pit in the area, "I knew he was really in trouble."

Const. Treits said he turned on his rotating light on top of the cruiser.

"He must have got the message because he came over the cruiser and I started up the highway with him flying over me."

The policeman said he then radioed his office which notified the department of transport radio station. The department officials made radio contact with the plane and arranged a rendezvous with the cruiser near the airport.

GEORGE ELLARBY

The funeral of George Ellarby was held Friday afternoon from the Thompson Funeral Home with service in the chapel and at the graveside in Belleville cemetery, conducted by Major B. Bernat and Captain J. Tuckaberry of the Salvation Army.

The bearers were Harry Semarck, Ross Jamieson, Garnett Marshall, Steven Stepp, Vernon Hookings and Alfred Woodhouse.

Thursday evening members of Branch 99, Canadian Legion and Ladies' Auxiliary held a memorial service at the funeral home. The service was conducted by Legion chaplain Frank Humphreys. Others taking part in the service were Jack Rashotte and Harry Grovier of Madoc.

Family of 11 Loses Home In Tornado

MILWAUKEE (AP) — "The worst is over; we're going home." So for Mrs. Francis Winnemuller of Port Washington there was no home of her own.

She, her husband and their nine children were treated at hospitals after their home was destroyed by a tornado, one of three that slammed southeast Wisconsin Saturday.

Twisters hammered Port Washington, Fond du Lac and the Milwaukee suburb of Oak Creek. Destructive winds pounded Beaver Dam and Stevens Point.

Police Chief Vernon Labbs, whose own home was destroyed, estimated total damage to the town at $2,000,000. He had more than 200 houses were damaged, 30 beyond repair.

Major problems were the cleanup, the restoration of power and shelter for occupants of damaged homes.

The Winnemullers were scattered in the homes of relatives Sunday night. The father and two of the children were treated for shock. Mrs. Winnemuller suffered an injured leg.

Both of the children were cut. The children range from nine months to 16 years.

At Fond du Lac, a city of 30,000 about 40 miles northwest of Port Washington, Police Capt. Gustave Schmitz estimated that 200 houses were damaged by the twister. There were no injuries.

At Taycheedah, about three miles northeast of Fond du Lac, two persons were injured when their house trailer was toppled by the winds.

Fourteen homes were damaged in Oak Creek. Authorities estimated damage at $100,000. There were no injuries.

Nine Killed After Vehicle Rams Into Tree

SCOTLAND NECK, N.C. (AP) — Nine persons jammed into one car were killed near here Sunday when it left a rural paved road and smashed into a tree.

The toll brought to 17 the number of persons killed in two North Carolina traffic accidents this weekend.

Denies Tshombe Again Recruits Mercenaries

LEOPOLDVILLE (Reuters)—A Congolese government spokesman today denied foreign press reports of an influx of white mercenaries into The Congo.

The spokesman, Emmanuel Sende, Prime Minister Moise Tshombe's chief aide in the ministry of information, said the reports were "wrong," and added:

In an interview with reporters, Sende refused to make any statement about the landing here Saturday of a South African Air Force C-130 transport plane, except to say the government would make a statement about the plane later.

"We will fight against the rebels with our own forces," Sende said. "We have enough soldiers.

NEED ADVISERS

"But we could use some military advisers and we are at present negotiating with the Belgian government about this."

The denial came as rumors circulated in Leopoldville that the Congolese authorities had recruited a white mercenary "shock brigade."

One report said more than 100 mercenaries have been flown into Kamina military base, in north Katanga, for military training.

One South African who fought for Tshombe's Katanga secessionist forces, and claimed to be highly placed in the new operation, said the new brigade would be about 1,000 strong.

Operating "completely outside the framework of the national Congolese army" it would be composed of nationals from Britain, South Africa, Southern Rhodesia, and whites (British) from Kenya, he said.

Diplomats here agreed today that Saturday's arrival of the South African plane here would further alienate the rest of Africa from The Congo.

They said even if the plane carried food and medical supplies, as its crew said, the other African governments would not support any link between South Africa and members of the Organization for African Unity.

LAUNCH THREE MORE

LONDON (Reuters)—The Soviet Union has launched three more of her Cosmos scientific satellites, the Soviet news agency Tass reported Saturday night. They were number 41, 42 and 43 in the series, and the latter two were launched from one rocket.

One Woman In Course With 300 Men

CHICAGO (AP) — Co-eds who are wont to calculate the male - to - female ratio might envy Virginia Rakocinski's situation: 300-to-one and she's the one.

But the subjects she studies are a far cry from the usual co-ed fare—jujitsu, narcotics, criminal law and pistol shooting.

Miss Rako.inski, 24, of suburban Evanston is enrolled in the Chicago police training division's 13-week course with 300 men.

The attractive brunette is the first woman to go through the course with men. Women trainees usually attend the school in a separate class. But Miss Rakocinski was the only girl candidate this time and it was judged impractical to set up a special class for her.

Despite the ratio, she hasn't been dating.

"I'm not too interested in dating," she explained. "I'm here to study.'

Miss Rakocinski, a shapely five-foot-five, 120-pounder, said she decided to become a policewoman "because I wanted to do something very different and challenging."

She has already met one challenge: She topped 42 applicants to win a policewoman's job on the Skokie police department. Stokie is a suburb served by the Chicago police training school.

Beatles Accept Offer to Play In Kansas City

KANSAS CITY (AP) — Charles O. Finley, owner of the Kansas City Athletics Baseball Club, announced Sunday the Beatles had accepted his offer of $150,000 to appear in Municipal Stadium Sept. 17 for a concert.

"We're going to be able to seat 37,500," Finley said, "with some seats on the field. It will be the biggest arena they'll perform in on their tour here."

Finey said all profits from the show would go to charity.

"It is something I want to do for the kids in Kansas City," he was quoted as saying. "Today's children, or Beatle fans, are tomorrow's baseball fans."

The Athletics owner said he heard the singing group for the first time in San Francisco's Cow Palace.

"I thought they were terrific. I've been a fan of Bing Crosby, Frank Sinatra and Elvis Presley. Now I'm not ashamed to say that I'm a Beatle fan."

DEADLY DUEL?—Not really, although Carol Armstrong and Jim Reid were among contestants in a friendly challenge match between local pistol marksmen and archers at Ameliasburg Township target range yesterday.

Ottawa Team Wins Title At Kirk Kove

A team consisting of Peter Roos, of Galt, and Jerry Brown, of Ottawa, won top honors in the Kirk Kove canoe jousting competition held on the weekend.

Belleville was represented by three teams, consisting of six members of the YMCA, but the local jousters lost out in the heavy going. Members of the Belleville teams were: Mildred Perry and Graham Geldart, Bill Jury and Bob Murdock, John Ter Haar and Tony Ter Haar.

'Delta Force' In Cyprus Puts On Parade

By RUSSELL PEDEN

NICOSIA (CP) — The special United Nations "Delta force," a unit of armored infantry group commanded by a Canadian, flexed its muscles for the third consecutive day Saturday with an hour-long parade along the green line between warring Greek- and Turkish-Cypriots.

Force commander Maj. John Beament of Ottawa, an officer in the Royal Canadian Dragoons, led the parade in a jeep which bears the insignia of Canada, Denmark and Finland, the three countries whose troops were involved.

More than 150 men participated in the "show of force" and later at an exercise at a Finnish camp on the outskirts of Nicosia.

Both Cypriot factions got a look at the Delta force as armored columns with mounted escorts wound through the walled city and the northern suburb of Trakhonas in stifling mid-day heat that reached almost 100 degrees.

In the exercise were four ferret scout cars of the Royal Canadian Dragoons, four Danish scout cars, 10 "Pigs" — armored personnel carriers—carrying Finnish troops and two recoilless anti-tank rifles mounted on jeeps.

There were also three or four trucks which were used Thursday to carry away sandbags when the force made its first surprise move by clearing down three Turkish-Cypriot positions near the UN Nicosia zone headquarters.

Asked about the significance of the daily manoeuvres of the Delta force, a UN spokesman said: "This is just to show them we are around."

Kayak Experts Stage Race

PETERBOROUGH (CP) — Thousands of spectators dotted craggy slopes at Lock 22 Sunday to watch fleets of canoes and kayaks perform in the watery theatre below.

It was the annual Ontario kayak slalom race sponsored by the Ontario Voyageurs Kayak Club.

However, more than half of the 70 contestants were from the United States.

While hundreds of people lined the dam stretching across the Trent River, the kayaks and their riders would shoot between them, down the chute and battle their way through the turbulent waters.

Some of the craft flipped over, submerging their riders. But with expert handling, the riders would spin the kayaks rightside up again and continue through the choppy waters.

The riders were required to manoeuvre their craft through a series of "gates"—formed by two poles hanging from overhead wires—along the course.

Two Members Of Union Will Be Tried

PETERBOROUGH (CP)—Two members of the United Steel Workers of America (CLC) will be tried for attempting to undermine the negotiating committee of Local 5141 during recently completed negotiations here with Raybestos - Manhatten (Canada) Limited.

Gerry Reeda, president of the local, said Saturday the two men, whose names he would not release, would be tried by a union court Aug. 29.

The union charged the two men, in collaboration with a third, sought to destroy the confidence of the membership in the negotiating committee. During negotiations the membership voted the committee the power to call a strike if attempts to gain a settlement failed.

Union and management came to terms Aug. 5 on a new three-year contract.

Meanwhile, Joe Wirtz, area representative for Local 500 of the Internations' Union of Electoral, Radio and Machine Workers (CLC) here, charged that one union member leaked secret information to the Canadian General Electric management during negotiations for a new contract.

Mr. Wirtz said some union action will be taken against the man.

Out-Patients In July at Hospital 1,190

TRENTON — A new high in out - patients treated was reached at Trenton Memorial Hospital last month, with 1190 persons being treated in the out-patients' department. Emergencies treated numbered 818.

During July, 336 adults and children were admitted to the institution, and 67 babies were born. Average daily population, (children and adults) was 94.4; newborns, 9.8.

During the month, 47 major operations were performed; 28 minor operations.

With the opening of the hospital's new pathology department, many tests formerly sent out to other laboratories, are now done in the hospital, and, during July, 12,676 such tests were done, with only 310 tests being sent out to other hospitals with special equipment.

July's report was released today by hospital administrator Miss Hazel Neudert.

RECORD YEAR

Although most of last week wasn't conducive to travelling by boat, Lock No. One went over the "top" in lockage, and the weekend's count of 13 sent the total lockage for the year thus far soaring up above the 1,000 mark. To be exact, 1,005 boats have passed through the lock since May 16, making 10-04 the record year.

NOT INJURED

Only one minor accident occured in Trenton over the weekend. At Kerman's Landing, around 5 p.m. Sunday night, Arnold Alvin Ray of R.R. 1, Hilton, lost control of his car and rolled the vehicle, over. The car was damaged to the extent of $500, but Mr. Ray was not injured. OPP from the Brighton detachment investigated.

WALLOPS STATION, Va. (AP) — Some of North American's leading amateur rocket-makers sent hundreds of missiles skyward in perfect precision at their launch meet here. More than 500 model rockets were fired by the 70 enthusiasts. The peak altitude was 3,000 feet.

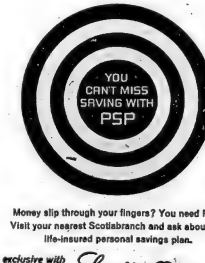
Post Commander American Legion To Be Speaker

TRENTON—Master Sergeant James McKinley of Midland Park, New Jersey, will be the guest speaker at a meeting tonight in the Trenton Legion Hall. He will address the meeting following the showing of parts two and three of the National Film Board film, "Canada At War".

Sgt. McKinley has been visiting friends, Mr. and Mrs. Harry Leeman of R.R. 3, Frankford, and agreed to address the Trenton Legion on the request of legion president Kenneth Craddock.

Sgt. McKinley has seen a long and distinguished war record, having enlisted in 1940, served in the European theatre of war, in the Philippines, Japan, China, Guam, Saipan and in the Korean war in China and Korea.

Sgt. McKinley is a past commander of the American Legion, and is connected with a number of national and community groups, including the Boy Scout movement.



No admission will be charged to tonight's showing of the film and the public has been invited to attend. The film is scheduled for 8 p.m.

Elmwood Acres Seems Haven For Lost Cats

TRENTON—Elmwood Acres, in east Trenton, is a haven for lost cats. Big cats, small cats, tough cats, gentle cats, all gravitate to Elmwood Acres, once they have been abandoned by their owners, or wandered away from their happy homes.

Mrs. R. Wilton of 7 Nelles Ave. in the sub-division, has a special fondness for cats, has two cats of her own, and has become known in the neighborhood as an animal lover. Or maybe the hobo cats mark her gate post.) Anyhow, arrives a stray cat in the neighborhood. Gleefully, the children pick it up and appear at Mrs. Wilton's door. This means the cat must be taken in, fed, and found a home.

Right now, Mrs. Wilton is looking for a home for one orange and white cat and a black kitten, about eight weeks old.

Diving Horse Subject of Talk At Convention

By JIM BECKER

ATLANTIC CITY (AP) — One stirring debate is already raging in this convention city.

It concerns the white horse which jumps off the steel pier every night with a little lady in a bathing suit sitting on its back.

All along the boardwalk, even in front of Convention Hall where hundreds of tooting lots stand all day and were their bands in the hope that a television camera is pointed their way, people are talking about that horse.

"What do you think of the convention, madam?" he asked one perchee.

"I think it's terrible."

"You think the convention is terrible?"

WORRIES ABOUT HORSE

"No, the way they make that poor horse jump off the pier every night. I don't mind that little snip of a girl who rides him, and besides she gets paid for it, but around practically undressed. But I worry about that poor horse."

"Is that who they are?".

"Yes, madam. They're here to nominate President John son. Are you a supporter of the president?"

"What does he think about that horse that jumps off that pier every night?"

"I don't know."

"Well, ask him. I should think he'd put a stop to it."

"Well, we're not voters, I say, madam. You can lead a horse to water but you can't make him jump."

The horse has been trained to five, jumping from progressively greater heights. As a colt, it dived for food, but press agents for the pier now insist that it jumps for the joy of it.

Soviet Farmers Will Witness Football Game

REGINA (CP) — Similarities of farming areas in the Soviet Union and Canada could be turned to the advantage of both nations, I. P. Volovchenko, Soviet agriculture minister, said Sunday while signing increased exchanges of technical information.

He told a small group of Saskatchewan and Soviet officials at a dinner that much of the research work done in Saskatchewan would be applicable in Kazakhstan and western Siberia.

Mr. Volovchenko and a party of Soviet agriculture, trade and economic officials arrived in Regina Saturday night after spending three days in Ottawa at the start of a three-week tour of Canada.

He added in an interview Sunday that while the Soviet Union would not be buying large quantities of Canadian wheat this year, "we will be buying some. Most of it will be seed wheat."

Today the Soviet officials were to visit grain farms in the Regina area and tonight were to take in the Calgary - Saskatchewan football game.

Births Studied By Researchers

TORONTO (CP)—Three British Columbia researchers have found in a study of births in the province that women over the age of 33 are in greater danger of having mongoloid children than younger mothers.

Women over the age of 39 run a greater risk of giving birth to children with congenital heart disease, their study, covering the years 1955-1960, also reveals.

Their results were published in an article in the last edition of the Canadian Medical Association Journal.

The researchers discovered the average age of all the mothers of mongoloid children was 33.7 years, compared with the average for all mothers of 27.

The article adds that a "significant relation" was found between the age of the mother and babies who are born with heart abnormalities when the mother is over 38.

Russian Trade Proposal

Soviet Agriculture Minister I. P. Volovenchko, arriving in Ottawa, confirmed an earlier report that Russia may continue to buy Canadian wheat in spite of the fact that she does not need it.

Far from being the product of a sneaky bit of communist economic pressure, this is the result of the possible application by the Soviet Union of sound capitalistic principles.

Russia's good wheat crop this year, he says, is expected to be adequate to fill all her own needs—but it would be cheaper to send wheat to eastern Siberia by ship from Vancouver than by rail from the wheat fields of the Ukraine.

Therefore, it is possible Russia may sell part of her own wheat crop, probably to neighboring Eastern European countries, and buy Canadian wheat to meet Siberian needs.

By reducing transportation costs everybody would profit by such a deal. Volovchenko, though, seems to be looking for an extra bonus. He implied that Russian purchases of Canadian wheat would be conditional on Canadian purchases of Russian industrial goods and possibly Siberian oil. This is not unreasonable. If you wishes to sell abroad, one must also be willing to buy abroad.

But, because any sales of Canadian wheat for use in Siberia might reduce the purchases of Canadian grain made in recent years by Eastern European countries, we need to look twice at this Russian proposal.—Otherwise we might end up selling no more wheat but accepting more Russian goods, a smart deal for the Russians but not so smart for us.

Murder by Movie Stars

Two French employees of the United Nations have been hacked to death in the Congo.

Savage murders have been almost routine in that wild land for years past.

What distinguishes the latest killings is that they were the work of movie stars.

The Watusis are those giants who have been shown dancing in almost every safari picture for a couple of decades.

They are not true Negroes—there is a Nilotic cast to their features which suggests that they must originally have come south from the valley of the Nile in Egypt.

In their journey they lost none of the ancient Egyptians' fondness for slaves. They made the Bahutu tribesmen their serfs.

The anti-colonial tide spoiled that sinecure. The same flood which pushed the British, Belgians and others out of their African territories left the Watusi giants as a minority in a land ruled by votes rather than spears. Outnumbered in Rwanda by their former serfs, the Watusi fled to the Congo.

And there the one-time stars of Hollywood adventure films fell upon two unfortunate Frenchmen and vented their anger at the way in which time and change has treated them.

The Bare Facts

A blonde nudist attending an Eastern Canadian Sunbathing Association meeting at Aurora was asked by a reporter what she thought of topless bathing suits for women.

"They are obscene," the nudist replied. "People like that are trying to be sexy. Total nudity is so natural."

If total nudity is natural and half-nudity is sexy, the sexy element must lie in the covered portion.

We agree with her.

It would be an over-simplification to suggest that the more voluminous the clothes, the sexier they are. But the purpose of all fashionable, as distinguished from utilitarian, styles is to add to the sex appeal of the wearer.

The question now is whether an attempt to be sexy involves obscenity, or whether it is merely the creation of a pleasing illusion.

On most of the everyday issues of life, on the day dreams and fantasties, on subjects of political and other religious beliefs, on a hundred and one matters of taste, it is not difficult to detect the influence of prejudice. I need hardly remind you that our philosophers and art critics would cheerfully cut each other's throats in support of a preconceived system of thought or art expression.—Dr. Edward Glover.

The secret thoughts of a man run over all things, holy, profane, clean, obscene, grave, and light, without shame or blame.—Thomas Hobbes.

The Story of Ice Cream

—National Geographic Society—

On a sizzling summer day at the 1904 St. Louis world fair, an ice cream vendor found crisis — no more serving chalices. But R. M. Hassel, a Syrian concessionaire was sold crisp sugar waffles, quickly came to the rescue.

He slapped his penny confections into cones to hold the ice cream. The portable eatable combination was an instant success.

Americans lick away more than four billion servings of ice cream cones each year. More than half are consumed during the hot summer months. Once restricted to vanilla, chocolate and strawberry, ice cream cones combine with some 200 flavors ranging from bubble gum and blueberry cheesecake to pumpkin, lemon, sunflower seed, raisin, rhubarb and root beer.

• • •

Ice cream is no mere hot weather delight, either. Eskimos like it so much after long hard earned trapping money to buy it. A company in Alaska flies supplies to 200 trading spots as Nome, Teller and Lost River.

Ice cream is popular in Russia, in Japan, tempura restaurants serve fried ice cream, made by dipping frozen cream in batter and frying them quickly in fat.

Ice cream has been enjoyed in one form or another since Roman times. Nero Emperor kept his slaves busy running snow for confections from the nearest mountains to Rome. Rome, when a royal shipment of snow arrived in a state of slush on a blistering summer day Nero peevishly executed the general in charge.

• • •

Some three centuries ago, Charles I of England introduced to hi... subjects a dessert made of frozen milk and cream at state banquets. It was so successful that Charles commanded his French chef to keep the recipe a royal secret and gave him a handsome yearly pension. But by the time Charles was beheaded by pellicle opponents in 1649, his secret was out, and every nobleman was serving ice cream.

George Washington loved ice cream. In the summer of 1790, Washington bought more than $200 worth of cream in New York, then the federal capital. There were two porter "ice cream pots" at Mount Vernon.

Dolly Madison served ice desserts at the White House, so delectable that they were described in the newspaper detail in Washington social columns.

Early ice cream making was an exhausting task, however. Servants spent hours shaking a container of whipped cream mix to and fro in a wooden bucket of ice and salt.

Invention of the hand crank ed freezer and later wholesale production methods swiftly took ice cream from the realm of the wealthy to the workman's table. A New York newspaper reporter wrote in the 1851:

"When the heat drops down like a burning pall, when the sky is as brass above and the ocean heaves in the offing on Manhattan's edge, New York especially panting, gasping, sweltering reaches for ice cream, throws itself like a thirsting lion upon the ice cream freezer."

U. S. Policy In Viet Nam

London Observer

What is so worrying about American policy in Indo-China? Vietnam is not so much its present militancy—which is politically and diplomatically understandable—but its apparent failure to consider ways of extricating the U.S. from a hopelessly untenable position. Seen as an attempt to achieve a better negotiating position, the Paris policy makes sense. But seen as an attempt to win a righteous war, it is frankly alarming. All this is how it is being presented to the American people, whatever the private reservations of some of the policymakers.

There is a further reason for disquiet. American military power has increased in proportion to Russia's withdrawal from the scene in South-eastern Asia. The Administration no doubt calculates that, whatever the backing of Russia, China is in no position to risk up-grading the war in South Vietnam into a genuinely struggle to a full-scale conflict —in which her lack of modern arms, let alone of atomic weapons, would put her at a severe disadvantage.

But, no matter how much Mr. Khrushchev might secretly want to see China humiliated, could Russia afford to let this happen? If she did, China's theis—that Khrushchev is simply another white-skinned imperialist, no better than the capitalists of Wall Street — would appear to be vindicated in the eyes of organizations among the Communist parties of the whole world, for whose allegiance Moscow and Peking are contesting, would be immeasurably strengthened.

It should be the aim of American foreign policy to avoid putting the Soviet Union into such a position. Russia's partial disengagement from South-east Asia may, on the face of it, have given America greater freedom of manoeuvre—though it may also have removed a restraining force in that part of the world. But, unless that freedom is used with great discretion, Washington could yet force the Russians to change their policies and hand an unexpected victory to Peking.

The New Immorality

Milwaukee Journal

Of course, Britain's traffic experts, Prof. Colin Buchanan, calls the conduct of his country's motorists the "new immorality."

These drivers wouldn't steal money, Buchanan told a conference of British police officials, but they insult other motorists, break the traffic laws and congratulate themselves for having more traffic tickets than their neighbor. In part he blames the makers of noisy, fast motor cars, because the cars are "so inviting to acts of discourtesy."

Gay Custom From Europe

Stratford Beacon-Herald

A resident of Stratford who grew up in Copenhagen, Denmark, tells us of a Danish custom called "refusjelde."

The Danes say it something like r-r-r-a-s-h-e-r. The emphasis on the first and third syllables and pronouncing GEE as in geese.

In the construction of a home or a commercial building, there comes the time to put on the last rafter or beam is laid in place. We do not refer to the time of completion, which is when the job is ready for occupancy. We speak of that moment when the last key stone is fitted into place atop the structure: when it can be said that the building is "up."

This is the time for refusjelde. An evergreen tree is bolted aloft to crown the rooftop. Then all the workmen quit the job and join in a really hearty party.

Refusjelde is not a party staged by the owners of the building with promising the workmen guests. It is a simple rollicking celebration by the workmen of the achievement of their own skill and sinew.

Often there is a variation of the tree as a centrepiece. On the rooftop a pole is set up and held in vertical position by guys and fastened at a steep angle. Over this the workmen place a wreath made of evergreens. From the wreath being large enough to nestle snugly outside the guys at the base progressively smaller wreaths are laid on, and the final result is a majestic cone of greenery.

The other day Michael Barkway, the erudite editor and publisher of Montreal's Financial Times, wrote that he was "bewildered by the wide range of the highest concrete building in the world sprouting a spruce tree from its roof." The tree was on top of the Place Victoria, new home of the Montreal Stock Exchange, and it was the final touch in preparation for a ceremony called "topping off."

Baffled several times in a search for the origin of the ceremony, Mr. Barkway finally settled for the following explanation offered by the German information office: "Richtfest' (topping off) means festivities in which neighbors, relatives, visitors, and church dignitaries take part. In the north a wreath is normally hoisted to the top of the building. In the south it is a decorated spruce. In either case, it is normally handed to the workers by young girls."

The Ontario Department of Agriculture said today in its monthly dairy report for July that the output of creamery butter was down in every section of the province. A reduction of 12.2 percent from the same period last year is reported.

Space in one of Belleville Exhibition buildings has been specially fire-proofed for patriotic organizations of the city, and will be allotted them free of charge upon application to secretary Erle Denyes.

Public Utilities officials today warned parents and youngsters as well, that kite-flying near power lines is a dangerous practice. The youngsters, flying kites in the vicinity of the Stewart Street power line, became entangled in the wires causing a short circuit, and blowing out the fuses. Had one of the boys had the lines in their hands when they contacted the high tension lines, serious results might have occurred.

Canada Fixes Fish Problem

Financial Post

Take the problem in Uganda with the antediluvian Njeje fish. These small fish infested Lake Victoria and were slowly eating all other species right out of the lake.

The people of Uganda were unable to catch the Njeje in economical numbers. Also these fish were so bony and hard to process that there was no consumer demand for them.

Dr. Stanley Beatty, recently retired from the Department of Fisheries, was asked by Canada's External Aid office to go to Uganda. He set to work on a simple wired run machine that would seize and prepare the Njeje catch automatically and is began training local labor in fish preparation.

Walter Steen of Vancouver, another Canadian Fisheries man was sent by External Aid to look into ways of improving fishing techniques. He recommended using the "purse seine" method to catch the Njeje. External Aid then sent a specialty designed $22,000 boat as a gift from Canada. Ottawa also sent nets worth $6,000 Uganda has set up a canning plant and is now laying plans for a major new fishing industry.

Not much, perhaps, this Njeje story when compared to the Aswan or other glamorous projects. But all the small ones together and they mean something that could end up being more important.

Gall Bladder a Storage Tank Below the Liver

By JOSEPH C. MOLNER, M.D.

Dear Dr. Molner: What about the gall bladder and reasons for its removal? You explain better than our family physician because he uses big words that I don't understand.—Mrs. M. F.

Well, I admit that after 20 or 30 or more years of thinking of medical terms, it is easy to use words that are expressive and precise to us as doctors — but may not mean as much to the average person.

I have an easier time of it than other doctors, because I can go over what I've written, and change things around if I see that I've been using too many technical terms.

Let's start with the liver, which produces a very useful digestive juice called bile. This is stored in the gall bladder, which is just below the liver. Then when needed, the stored bile is discharged, through what we call "the common duct," into the intestine. This "common duct" because it carries bile from the liver and the gall bladder.

The most frequent (but not the only) gall bladder problem is the formation of gall stones. Bile, in the gall badder, is a thick fluid, and sometimes the materials it contains will crystallize, just as sugar sometimes crystallizes in a jar of jelly. These crystals are the gall stones. There may be few or many; big or so small they look like sand. (Often called "gravel.")

A small particle may get into the common duct and slide right through and cause no pain. Others are too big to get into the duct. Sometimes one is by eating at other species right out of the lake.

The people of Uganda were unable to catch the Njeje in economical numbers. Also these fish were so bony and hard to process that there was no consumer demand for them.

Dr. Stanley Beatty, recently retired from the Department of Fisheries, was asked by Canada's External Aid office to go to Uganda. He set to work on a simple wired run machine that would seize and prepare the Njeje catch automatically and is began training local labor in fish preparation.

Dear Dr. Molner: Would you go on a trip to Lake Titicaca, about 10,000 feet altitude, at the age of 78? Just say no if you think it is indicated. — P. S.

I don't say "no." If a man feels like making the trip at that age, I'd say go ahead.

Strictly Personal

Our Values Contract Or Expand

By SYDNEY J. HARRIS

A gentleman asked me the other day if, after writing a daily column for almost 20 years, I find that I'm repeating myself. I gave him my favorite answer to most questions, which is "Yes and no."

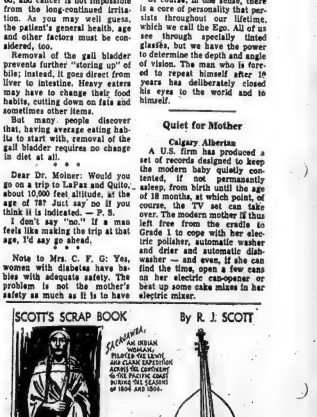
Heraclitus, the ancient philosopher, said that we never step into the same river twice, meaning that the stream is constantly changing and renewing itself. What he neglected to add is that it is never the same person who does the stepping twice, either.

Two years ago, I looked at a picture of Giotto's and wrote about it; if I looked at the same picture today, I would write a different piece, for my mental vision changes, just as our physical vision does; our values contract or expand, our hearts may get swollen, or our hearts may shrink.

All this is obvious; what is interesting, I think, is that we never really repeat ourselves, any more than history really does. In fact, all experience forces the person personally to adjust to its outlook—or else to block it if it is to survive and flourish.

Take a typical example. Parents will say that they treated their second child exactly the same way they treated their first child — and yet the second responds quite differently to the treatment.

This is never the case. It is impossible to treat the second child because the first did, or because the situation is entirely different. The first child was not competing, the second child is, for the affection and attention of the parents.



The science of the sort is good, so long as it is recognized and taken into account. If my reactions to the word "Negro" always begins with a G, were precisely the same as they were a decade ago, it is the only be worried about my job, but myself as well. Hardening of the mental arteries is a condition of the emotional responses, and the most serious ailment of middle age.

Of course, in one sense, there is a core of personality that persists. Throughout our lifetime, which we call the Ego. All of us see through specially tinted glasses, but we have the power to determine the depth and angle of vision. The man who is forced to repeat until after 12 years has deliberately closed his eyes to the world and to himself.

Quiet for Mother

Toronto Stocks

TORONTO (CP) — Stocks were mixed and price changes narrow in light trading on the stock market today.

A handful of speculative mining issues attracted some attention with Raglan improving nine cents to $2.06. New Calumet, Friday's favorite, was ahead six to 85 cents and Joburke one to 20½ cents. Wiltfall, the stock which collapsed recently from above the $3 mark and has failed to impress anybody since, dipped five to 51 cents and Magnet three to 14 cents.

In the main list, Rothmans, the cigarette maker, was up ¾ to a 1964 high of 15. Gaiety ¼ went to Algoma Steel at 74⅝. Aluminium at 31¾, Canadian Imperial Bank of Commerce at 69¼ and Trans - Canada Pipe Lines at 40¾.

Western oils were easier. Calgary and Edmonton was down ¼ to 20½, Husky ¼ to 10¼ and Central Del Rio 10 cents to 38.10. Hudson's Bay countered with a ¼ gain to 18½.

Base metals drifted lower in quiet dealings. Geco eased ¼ to 30¾ and East Sullivan 15 cents to $3.60.

On index, industrials were up .07 to 159.35, golds .04 to 134.44, and the Exchange index .04 to 148.81. Base metals were down .14 to 87.69 and western oils .14 to 99.19. Volume at 11 a.m. was 737,000 shares compared with 1,230,000 shares traded at the same time Friday.

Typhoon Kathy Losing Some Of Its Punch

TOKYO (AP) — Typhoon Kathy, losing some of its punch, churned through Japan's Island sea today after leaving seven persons dead and two missing in Kyushu, the country's southernmost island.

Twenty were injured.

Police said landslides caused most of the casualties as the typhoon rampaged through Kyushu Sunday accompanied by rain storms.

Up to 28 inches of rain was recorded in Kyushu's mountainous regions and many cities had an average four inches.

Seven Doctors Are Disciplined By College

TORONTO (CP) — Seven Ontario doctors have been disciplined by the College of Physicians and Surgeons of Ontario in the last year, the annual report of the college says.

Action ranged from reprimands to erasure from the registers. Four of the doctors are from the Toronto area. The report was released Friday.

Dr. Robert Kingsley Graham of Palmerston was erased from the college's register effective Friday. He was found guilty on seven charges of professional misconduct involving care of 24 patients.

Dr. Ira Timothy O'Neill of Kingston was found guilty of professional misconduct and his privileges under the Narcotic Control Act were withdrawn. He was placed on the college's temporary register.

Dr. Denis Francis Docherty of Ridgeway was found guilty on a similar charge. He also was placed on the temporary register.

Dr. Charles Edward Baker of Port Arthur was reprimanded when found guilty of improper conduct for submitting excessive accounts to the medical welfare plan.

The report said an investigation is under way into the Hett Cancer Treatment and Research Foundation in Windsor. The inquiries seek evidence to take action against the foundation under the Medical Act.

John E. Foote, a Peterborough podiatrist, was convicted in magistrate's court of administering anesthetics and performing surgery contrary to the Medical Act, and was fined $50. The conviction is under appeal.

Father, Four Children Die In Accident

ELYRIA, Ohio (AP)—A convertible went out of control Sunday on a straight stretch of highway and slammed into a concrete bridge abutment, killing a recently divorced father and his four children.

Authorities said the man was taking the children for a ride under visitation rights granted him when he got his divorce three weeks ago.

The accident occurred six miles west of this northwestern Ohio community.

Main Street at Wellington In Process of Being Rebuilt

WELLINGTON — Two blocks of trees are down on the Main Street, the street itself is a sea of mud and the merchants are losing much of their summer traffic in this village of 1,050 people, but there are no complaints. Even when brides muddy their wedding dresses on the way to Wellington United Church, the mud is accepted as a necessary evil, a part of the area's development.

More than a mile—5,100 feet, to be exact—of Main Street is being ripped up and replaced with new pavement. Extra lanes are being paved, along three blocks through the centre of the village, storm sewers are being installed and curbing is being laid along the new roadway. And it isn't costing the villages a cent, the province is paying the whole shot, the street being a connecting link on Highway 33.

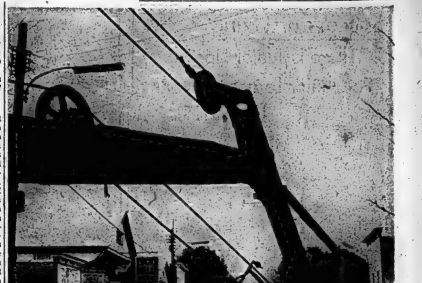
The project is part of a redevelopment of the village, which last year installed a waterworks system, supplied from three wells on Wellington Beach.

STARTED IN JULY

Lightfoot Construction of Belleville is doing the work. Harold Lightfoot is the general superintendent. He started at Belleville Street, at the east end of the village, four weeks ago with three crews, totalling about 35 men, and has worked on to Wharf St. Pavement has been stripped, the roadway excavated to a depth of about three feet, and a sand cushion put in place. Storm sewers are being started in Orchard, steel weeping tile is run along beneath the edges of the road, trees are cut down where necessary and fire hydrants are being moved back to the new curb line.

One crew working under Don Herrington has some of the curbs poured now, another crew working under Henry Horsten plans to pour a culvert today, over a nameless creek just west of Wharf St., and the third crew working under George Hopkins is working on the grade. Plans are to start laying asphalt by the end of September or early in October, and to have the paving completed about mid October. The crews are working from 7 a.m. to 7 p.m., six days a week.

TREES LOST



Most of the regrets — and there are a few — are for the maple trees that used to line all but one block of Main Street. The village has always been proud of them, and of the trees lined approaches from either end. Even after the first out of town trees were cut more than five years ago, to make room for highway improvements, a village bylaw required that permission from council be obtained before any of the trees could be trimmed within the village. Improvements to Main Street, however, have required the removal of the trees from two more blocks downtown, and the villagers are more or less resigned to seeing them go.

There are regrets for the lost business too. The village has always depended on summer visitors for a large part of its yearly income, and this year the visitors are being scared away from, or detoured around, the main business area. Construction this week is right in front of most of the stores in town, and the visitor who wants to do some shopping must do it on foot.

MUD IS PROBLEM

And the mud. The sand for the pavement cushion is being placed almost as fast as the excavation is completed, and is being laid almost as fast as it is being placed, but mud is inevitable on a construction site. Customers bring it into the stores, children bring it into the homes and even brides, sometimes, bring it into the church.

All the hazards, inconveniences, lost business and even the lost trees are accepted though as the price of progress. The village needs a new main street, and Main Street is being rebuilt.

THEY'RE DIGGING UP MAIN STREET in Wellington, and repaving it. These stores in the downtown section are cut off from vehicular traffic. Culvert in front of the stores is being poured today.

There Is Junior Lipstick For Junior Ladies to Wear

DEAR DORIS — How old do you think a girl should be before she is allowed to wear a little lipstick? I was allowed to start wearing heels a month before my 14th birthday, but am not allowed to wear lipstick. — FOURTEEN.

DEAR FOURTEEN — There's no set day and hour. Mothers are interested in what's being done where you are. Did you know that there is a junior lipstick for beginners? A delicate shade suited to youthful lips!

DORIS CLARK

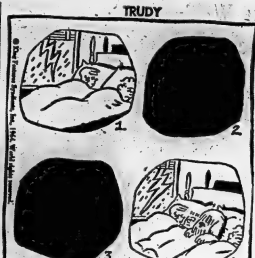
DEAR DORIS — One of our daughters is engaged to be married to a divorced man with a family and old enough to be her father. He is Jewish while we are Catholics. He wants a rabbi to marry them.

Does this mean that she has to turn Jewish and her children if they have any? She said that to have a rabbi marry them does not mean that she's turning to his faith. Can they be married by some other minister? — BROKEN HEARTED MOTHER.

DEAR MOTHER — A rabbi will hesitate to perform a ceremony unless both parties are Jewish. If a Catholic girl wishes to turn Jewish in order to marry a Jew, the rabbi will make every effort to talk her out of it.

If the Jewish man is willing to be married by a Catholic priest, his church will then require that he give up his Jewish faith. The Catholic church will require that he contract to raise his children as Catholics. If they seek to be married by a Protestant minister or by a justice of the peace, the marriage will be recognized by neither the Catholic nor the Jewish faith.

As if these weren't enough problems, your girl's fiance is "old enough to be her father." Such a union has far too many strikes against it.



DEAR DORIS — Recently my parents and I (I am in my early 30's) moved to the small home town of a boy I went with for two years, during which time we've had an innocent relationship. He says if I break off with him, he will ruin my reputation. — DISTRESSED.

DEAR DISTRESSED — It would distress him if he found he himself being sued for libel. Which you could do. Isn't it ludicrous that someone who is supposed to be fond of you would use such a threat as a way of keeping your regard? I'd quit him — fast!

CONFIDENTIAL TO HEARTBROKEN CHILD — Your mother cannot know what she does to you when your friends report her affairs with other men. See if you can get that fine father of yours to talk things over with you and with a social worker. He should have taken action long ago towards opening your mother's eyes to what she is throwing away.

TRUDY

SPEAKING OF MANNERS

BY PATRICIA LEWIS

GIFTS FOR THE HOSTESS

The term "hostess gift" often sends a guest, about to depart for a weekend, into a frenzy of misgivings.

Should he or she bring a gift along? If it's a married couple, should he bring a gift to the host and she bring a gift to the hostess? Suppose there are children in the family. Should a guest bring a gift to each or just one present for the group? What sort of gift is appropriate? Should it be personal, or something for the house? One question leads to another.

Actually, there's no reason to get into a decline when "hostess gift" is mentioned. Bringing a present to a hostess is a gracious custom and one that shouldn't be overlooked. Frequent visitors don't have to bring gifts each time, but it's polite to bring something occasionally.

A guest visiting for the first time, or the first time in the season, should bring a gift. It can either be for the hostess or for the children, if there are any in the family. Often a hostess prefers the latter.

When a married couple is visiting overnight, the wife usually brings along a gift, which she gives to the hostess. The husband may bring a special present for the host, as well, if he wants to.

GIVE USABLE GIFT

Regardless of whether the gift is for the hostess, the host and hostess or the children, the important thing is to make sure it is usable. If the hostess, for instance, is known to be a cook book collector, then a gourmet book to add to her collection would be a "right" choice. Her husband might be an avid golfer, so golf balls, tees or a good book on the subject would be the type of gift he'd really appreciate.

A hostess gift can also be something for the house. If it's a beach house, for example, an oversized beach towel for lounging on the sand would be appropriate. Hostess aids, such as casseroles, decorative bowls for cocktail nibbles, large ashtrays and the like are other good bets.

If you decide to bring a gift for the children instead, remember their ages when you make your selection. A record album would be a good choice for teenagers. A word, place or skill game would be an appropriate gift for youngsters of elementary school age. If the children are younger, then it's wise to bring each a separate toy, according to age and particular interest.

The important thing is to make sure the gift is tailored to the individual. Don't, for instance, bring bridge cards and score pads to a family that does not play the game. When you go shopping, ask yourself if the gift you have in mind is something you or your own family would like to receive. If the answer is yes, then you're on the right track.

CWL Members Told to Take A Good Look

CHARLOTTETOWN (CP) — Members of the Catholic Women' League of Canada have been advised to take a searching look at themselves and the work of their organization.

The advice came Sunday night from the Most Rev. M. A. McEachern, Bishop of Charlottetown, as he spoke at a church service attended by delegates gathering for the annual convention which opens here tonight.

Calling the CWL members "the cream of Catholic women in Canada," he told them: "I hope you will take a good look at yourselves, as the church is doing today, to see how you can improve your good works."

Before the formal opening, about 300 delegates from across Canada are expected to register for the national convention which continues until Friday. They will represent the league's 150,000 members in about 1,800 local groups from coast to coast.

Among the main topics scheduled to come up are CWL projects for International Co-operation Year in 1965 and the 100th anniversary of Canadian Confederation in 1967. The women are also expected to vote on about 20 resolutions on a wide variety of issues, including censorship and television programming in Canada.

The league, founded in 1920, carried on a continuing campaign against pornographic literature and is expected to discuss resolutions urging provincial authorities to tighten censorship regulations.

The league's national director, Most Rev. Thomas J. McCarthy, Bishop of St. Catharines, is to address tonight's opening ceremonies.

Applesauce Cake Moist, Flavorful

by Mary Moore

"I hope you are going to tell your readers how to make this applesauce cake, Mother" Pete said between bites.

Like all summer cottagers we had to make do with what we had on hand, or what we could buy at the small Hitchting Post.

When I was scanning the cupboard shelves my eye lit on a tin of applesauce brought for 6-month-old Douglas. I pinched that. There was a little molasses left in a jar I had brought to use in baked beans.

These two items plus Margy's box of spices plus a recipe I had harbored in a pocket in my purse for weeks added up to

MONDAY

Dinner Menu

Beef and kidney pie, carrots Julienne, tossed greens with shredded raw cauliflower, apple Betty with lemon nutmeg sauce, coffee.

APPLESAUCE CAKE:

2¼ cups sifted all-purpose flour, 1 teaspoon salt, 1½ teaspoons baking soda, ¾ teaspoon cinnamon, ½ teaspoon nutmeg, ¼ teaspoon cloves, ¾ cup Sultana raisins, 1-3 cup chopped nuts (optional), 1 cup well-packed light brown sugar, ½ cup shortening, 2 tablespoons molasses, 1 teaspoon lemon extract, 1 beaten egg, 1½ cups canned applesauce (see note below).

Sift the measured sifted flour with the salt, soda, cinnamon, nutmeg and cloves. Mix ¼ cup of this flour mixture with the raisins and nuts (if used). Cream well together the brown sugar and shortening. Beat in the molasses, extract and egg. Add the remaining flour mixture alternately with the applesauce in 3 additions. Add floured raisins and nuts. Turn batter into 8¾ x 8¾ x 2" pan which has been lined on bottom with buttered wax paper and buttered on sides. Bake at 325 deg. Fahr. for 40 to 50 minutes. Look at cake in oven after 35 minutes and turn it around if necessary. When it tests done remove from oven, let stand 5 minutes and then turn out on rack to cool. Peel off bottom paper.

When cake is cold frost top and sides with Lemon Icing: Two tablespoons soft butter, 1¼ to 1¾ cups icing sugar, 2 tablespoons lemon juice. Mix well until of spreading consistency.

NOTE:

If you want to make your own applesauce do so but do not sweeten it too much and pass it through a sieve to make it smooth and to cool it if necessary.

Computers Will Be Used In Homes

MONTREAL (CP) — Americans adapt personnel with them. Canada uses them for defence. They can write poetry and sell newspapers. "They" are computers.

Maureen Maguire of Montreal, an educational computer specialist, looks forward to the time when computers are widely used in the home, too.

At 26, she visits offices, factories and laboratories in Montreal and eastern Canada training companies' personnel in computer systems and programming methods.

Miss Maguire says that only the uses of human intelligence in applying functions for computers limits their application at all.

If a machine was fed the rules of "rhyme and metre and vocabulary, it could even turn out a poem. It might not be good poetry, but it would be a poem nonetheless," she says.

"It could edit your newspaper at the rate of 100,000 words every five minutes. Again, you would have to feed it the dictionary for spelling and the rules of punctuation and grammar. This would be quite a job, but the computer could handle it."

Miss Maguire foresees the use of computers in the home—but at present costs it would be too expensive for domestic uses, she says.

Ann Landers

One Must Become Involved In Cases of Child-Beating

DEAR ANN LANDERS — The people next door drink a lot. For two years we have put up with their endless fighting and hollering.

ANN LANDERS

My husband and I don't care what the adults do to one another but we are deeply concerned about their four young children. Last week while working in the yard the 7-year-old girl came over to talk to me. She was wearing a short sleeved blouse and I saw bruises and strap-marks on her arms. I asked her what had happened. She said, "Mama hit me because I was bad and took two extra cookies".

Last night the 17-month-old boy was taken to the hospital with a cut on his hand. This morning the mother told me he had fallen out of the high chair. This hardly seems likely at midnight.

We believe these parents come home drunk and beat their children. What should we do about it? My brother (who is a lawyer) advised us not to get involved and to mind our own business. How about it? — A MOTHER, TOO.

DEAR MOTHER, TOO — One of the symptoms of the sickness of our society is the way people are "minding their own business" these days. It is appalling, shocking and inhuman.

You and your husband should report the neighbors to the juvenile authorities at once. They will investigate and determine whether or not the parents have been abusing the children.

Thousands of little ones are maimed and crippled every year by brutal parents because neighbors (like you) who could put an end to the brutality continue to "mind their own business".

* * *

DEAR ANN LANDERS — Our daughter Penelope was invited to an elegant party which took place last night. She was terribly excited about it since it was her first formal.

This morning she came to the breakfast table with a long face. I asked what was the matter. She said, "There were four gowns at the party exactly like mine — two in other colors, but it was horrible. Lots of the girls whispered and giggled about it".

Penelope's gown was not inexpensive. The price was $35. What should I have said to my daughter? Frankly, I was stumped. — WORDLESS.

DEAR WORDLESS — You should have told your daughter that in tense or embarrassing situations a sense of humor can be a life-saver.

A few years ago Mrs. Henry Ford and the Duchess of Windsor appeared at the same affair in identical gowns — both fabulously expensive "originals". If it could happen to them it can happen to anybody. And so what?

* * *

CONFIDENTIAL TO SHOULD I OR SHOULDN'T I? — It's your nose and your life. It's how you feel that counts and you don't feel good about it, so go ahead and make the alteration.

* * *

CONFIDENTIAL TO FULL OF HOPS — If your friend finds comfort and strength in the philosophy, why ridicule it or attempt to "open her eyes to reality?" Maybe it isn't rational to you but if it helps her, it's good.

Playground Activities

BAYVIEW SCHOOL

At Bayview school playground August 21, a Bicycle Rodeo was held. The events included: safety inspection; various balance tests; a slow motion race; a coasting race; ¼ miles race; obstacle course; balloon burst relay contest; turning contest.

Each contestant was allotted points for his efforts at each event and the winner was to receive the medal of Mr. Boop for having the safest bike and being the best driver on the playground.

The top five contestants were: 1, Jim Gillespie, 122 points; 2, Mike Marino, 111 points; 3, Steve Terry, 103 points; 4, David Ives, 102 points; 5 Grant Gwene, 99 points.

Prizes were awarded to each.

The supervisor wishes to thank Janet Lambert for her help in the event and all the children who participated, making the Bicycle Rodeo a big success.

McMechan Family Enjoys Annual Reunion Picnic

About 70 were in attendance and enjoyed both dinner and supper.

Visiting was enjoyed by all throughout the afternoon and evening, and some of the younger crowd enjoyed games and races. For the evening, slides were shown by Mr. and Mrs. William McMechan and scenes of the trip they enjoyed overseas last year to England, Scotland and other European countries.

Among those in attendance were: Mr. and Mrs. A. Newton, Peterborough; Mr. and Mrs. S. McMechan, Oshawa; Mr. and Mrs. A. Nicholson, Oshawa; Mr. and Mrs. R. MacFarlane, Belleville; Mr. and Mrs. R. Hall and family, Maynooth; Mr. and Mrs. J. Garvin and family, Belleville; Mr. and Mrs. D. Masters and Stephen, Oshawa; Mr. and Mrs. D. Belleville Girl Guide Enjoys Five Week Tour of Britain

"Lady Baden-Powell is wonderful," is the opinion of 16-year-old Girl Guide Lynne Neill, who had the honor of meeting the famous founder of the Guide movement, during a recent tour of Great Britain.

Lynne has just returned from a five-week trip for Ontario Girl Guides, for which 36 girls are carefully selected by headquarters annually to represent this province. Also from Belleville, Miss Dorothy Cameron, a teacher and Guide leader from O.S.D. travelled in groups of twelve to see all the sights and to spend one week camping with British Guides.

The trip, planned especially to promote international good will did just that. Lynne met Guides from Norway, Denmark, Belgium, Israel, Mexico, Australian Brownies, American Girl Scouts and even German Boy Scouts.

At Lady Baden-Powell's residence Lynne met the Brownies from Australia and the American girls. The chief Guide continually receives International travellers, serves her visitors tea and after a chat they are conducted through her home at Hampton Court Palace.

Staying at youth hostels, YWCA's and the occasional hotel the Guides travelled mostly by train and bus to visit the many interesting centres. While in Stratford the girls saw the play Henry VI and enjoyed viewing the 400 Shakespearean anniversary displays.

From her conversations with the English girls Lynne says Stewart and family, London; Mr. and Mrs. L. Murray and family, St. Catharines; Mr. and Mrs. H. McMechan and family, R.R. 1, Shannonville; Mr. and Mrs. C. McMechan and family, Belleville; Mrs. Grace MacFarlane, Belleville; Mr. and Mrs. F. Pringle, Belleville.

The picnic next year is to be held at the home of Mr. and Mrs. Jack McFarlane, R.R. 1, Shannonville.

the ways of the teen-agers are very similar to that of the Canadians; as for dancing, the twist is going out and in music the Beatles are tops. She just missed seeing the famous quartet by five minutes but heard all the fans screaming. The girls wear short hair styles while the boys favor "Beatle cuts."

Lynne is a Gold Cord Guide with Company 9, and the daughter of F/Lt. and Mrs. C. S. Neill, 524 Victoria Ave. This fall she is thinking of joining the Land Rangers.

A sensible idea for a buffet supper is to serve the casseroles or molded salads in two or more dishes instead of one large one. A fresh dish replacing the first service keeps the buffet attractive, say the home economists at Macdonald Institute, Guelph.

U.C.W. Meeting

MELROSE U.C.W.

Mrs. Clare Weese was hostess for the August meeting of Melrose U.C.W.

During the business session, under the leadership of president Mrs. Newton Demille, it was decided to send a donation to pay shipping charges on the bale of used clothing previously forwarded. Mrs. Demille concluded her part of the meeting with a reminder of the promises each made when they became church members.

Mrs. Grant McLaren and Mrs. William English gave a most interesting report of the day they spent at the school for United Church Women held at Albert College recently.

STUDY INDIA

The program, under the leadership of Mrs. Clare Weese, was the third in the series of the study on India. Her topic was "From Bullock Cart to Bicycle", a review of the problems in rural India, and what is being done to better the living conditions both by the government of India and the missionaries.

Some of the points brought out were that there are many opportunities for the people in India—the Community Development Plan; Boodan Yatra Land Distribution in which the rich give some of their land to the poor; Government 5-year plan for development; co-operative societies; a sudden interest in education (school attendance has only been compulsory for 3 or 4 years); the opportunity for technically trained missionaries to teach the people of India skills they do not have; and an opportunity for the church to co-operate with the government.

MANY OBSTACLES

However there are many obstacles in the way of realizing the promises held out by these opportunities, such as apathy and interia of the rural people; their skepticism; the caste system, which though legally abolished still lives in their minds; primitive agricultural methods; lack of training; system of land ownership; and the population increase.

In spite of these obstacles there have been many achievements - - a few being the Allahbad Agricultural In s ttute where they are training in modern methods; home industries sponsored by the Christian church; work camps for young people, rural training projects; the homes of Christian laymen; and the Mysore Project where research is underway like the preservation, storing and transportation of foods. We of the United Church of Canada will be asked to donate towards this research in the near future.

Mrs. Weese was capably assisted in the presentation of her program by Mrs. Thomas Howard, Mrs. Jack McFarlane and Mrs. Ernie Pascoe.

Two Vehicles Badly Damaged In Collision

PICTON (Staff) — At 12.10 a.m. Saturday two cars were involved in a accident on Bridge Street in Picton. There were no injuries but heavy damage was reported by investigating police.

An automobile owned by Alfred A. Jacklyn of Westburn Street, Picton, was parked on Bridge St.-facing west with no occupants in the vehicle when it was struck in the side by an auto driven by Cpl. Percy M. Geringer, who was driving east. The Geringer auto a 1959 Mercury sedan swung completely across the street striking the Jacklyn auto on the left, driver's side and carried it across the street to the opposite curb so that it ended up facing east. Both cars were damaged on their two left front corners with the major damage being to the Jacklyn car. Mr. Jacklyn was nearby visiting at the time of the accident. There were no injuries and damage to the two cars is approximately $800.

PC Women Hold Picnic at Provincial Park

PICTON (Staff) — The Provincial Park at Lake on the Mountain was crowded Sunday evening, despite threats of rain and a strong breeze. The Ladies Progressive Conservative Association of Prince Edward held a family picnic. The picnic was designed as a social get together rather than a political meeting. There were no formal speeches however a few words of thanks were expressed by Douglas Alkenbrack M.P. for Prince Edward - Lennox in the federal government. He expressed his appreciation for such a good turn out and said that this strength will always show, when conservatives are called upon to perform duties. Mr. A. Anderson, president of the Prince Edward Association introduced Mr. Alkenbrack and also Mr. Norris Whitney, MP Prince Edward in the Provincial legislature. Also present were a number of Lennox members including Miss K. McFarlane of Napanee.

NO INJURIES

An accident on the Redners-ville Road shortly after 11 a.m. Saturday caused approximately $450. damage to the two cars involved. Driving the first car headed west was James Light-foot of R.R. 1, Carrying Place. The second which was following, a Sedan driven by Wm. Bedford, R.R. 1, Belleville. Lightfoot was slowing down his vehicle to make a left turn into his driveway, when the car driven by Bedford slid on the wet pavement and crashed into the left side of the car driven by Lightfoot. There were no injuries.

Eel Production In P. E. County Unusually High

PICTON (Staff) — Catches of fish are light in waters surrounding Prince Edward County this year. Jack Christie, chief biologist at the Glenora Research Station, says that the absence of whitefish, the industry's mainstay, is because the reproduction of the whitefish has not been right for several years and this lack of small fish now means lack of larger fish.

Eel production is, however, unusually high. Mr. Christie thinks that this is due to an increased demand from the Netherlands whose production has been low this year, and also because of the increased interest in the eel due to the scarcity of other fish.

Fishermen ten years ago could have been paid 5-10c per pound for eels. Today, however, fishermen receive 20c plus per pound of eels.

INTEREST SHOWN

Much interest is being shown in the Marysburgh Museum, with the visitors' book showing over 400 names from Vancouver to the East Coast, and many American visitors over a period of three weeks.

The old Rose homestead is a good example of an early settler's home of the period between 1820 to 1850, and the committee hopes to furnish it as the first type of Loyalist home after the log cabin. There is no charge, but a voluntary contribution is greatly appreciated in order to carry on the work of restoration.

HONOR J. F. KENNEDY

MEXICO CITY (Reuters)—Mrs. Jacqueline Kennedy will attend dedication ceremonies on Sept. 17 of a housing development bearing her late husband's name, informed sources here said Sunday. The development will house graphics arts workers.

Crucial Decision

How to Promote a Red-Bloc Break-up?

By JOHN M. HIGHTOWER

WASHINGTON (AP)—One of the foreign policy questions to be decided by the next administration is what strategy the United States should follow to promote the further break-up of the once powerfully-centralized Soviet Communist bloc.

One question debated by diplomatic officials in private conferences at the state department is how far the eastern European countries can loosen their ties with the Soviet Union without the risk of triggering Soviet counter - action. Another issue is whether there is a point at which assistance to countries still in the Soviet orbit tends to become "appeasement" of communism.

On the basis of information gathered by U.S. diplomatic and intelligence agents, the Soviet Communist bloc is caught up in the grip of a slow-moving but significant crisis.

This crisis is compounded of issues of resources, unworkable doctrinal theories, excessive central control and other mistakes which are slowing badly needed economic growth and which have turned food surplus countries into food importing countries.

BREAK-UP ISN'T NEW

The roots of the problem go back into the post-war history of Europe, when the monolithic Communist empire of the late Joseph Stalin began breaking up just as it achieved its highest peak of centralized Communist control.

That was in 1948, when President Tito of Yugoslavia rejected Stalin's efforts to take over his country's economy and infiltrate its government. The United States, Britain and France began pouring millions of dollars into Yugoslavia to keep it alive as a symbol of independence from Moscow's authority.

Today, the policy of President Johnson's administration, evolved out of United States encouragement given other nationalistic hopes in eastern Europe, is defined generally as a policy of flexibility.

But in Congress the expenditure of money in aid, the expansion of trade and other actions flowing from the policy have been challenged.

Against this background—and the fact that U.S. allies are rushing headlong into all kinds of trade arrangements with Russia and the eastern European countries—political argument is sharply defined.

STATE VIEWS

Johnson, in new York April 20, having stressed a need for both military defences and diplomatic probing to improve relations: "Our guard is up but our hand is out."

Rusk, in a February speech defending different policies toward different Communist countries: "It is our policy to do what we can to encourage evolution in the Communist world toward national independence and open societies."

Khrushchev, speaking at Warsaw in July, accused the Western countries of fanning nationalism in eastern Europe and employing economic resources for political purposes. He said "All this is intended to undermine our unity, to divide our countries."

Senator Barry Goldwater, accepting the presidential nomination at the Republican national convention: "We must make clear that until its goals of conquest are absolutely renounced, and its relations with all nations tempered, communism and the governments it now controls are enemies of every man on earth who is or wants to be free."

The Republican platform, in a paragraph calling for firmness toward communism: "It is accommodation, not opposition, that encourages a hostile nation to remain hostile and to remain aggressive."

Senator J. W. Fulbright, Democratic chairman of the Senate foreign relations committee:

"If we are willing to re-examine the view that all communist regimes are alike in the threat which they pose for the West—a view which had a certain validity in Stalin's time—then we may be able to exert an importance influence on the course of events within a divided Communist world."

ECONOMIC AID

Over a period of 15 years the United States has invested at least $3,000,000,000 in encouraging Communist governments to take and hold nationalist positions either in spite of Moscow policies or to the fullest extent Moscow will allow.

In both Yugoslavia and Poland, the pulling away from Moscow was accompanied by specific steps which United States applauded. The Poles abolished collectivization, stopped jamming U.S. radio broadcasts and allowed the Roman Catholic Church a greater degree of recognition and autonomy. The Poles also permitted increased freedom of discussion among the country's intellectuals and began whittling down police power.

Hungary's moves toward greater independence were dramatized by Soviet tanks in the streets of Budapest in 1956. Since then, however, the Hungarian government, taking advantage of Khrushchev's more relaxed policies, has embarked on some confiding measures in some ways comparable to those in Poland.

The latest radical change in U.S.-Soviet bloc relations developed in the case of Romania. Talks with the United States and other Western countries this spring led to the Romanians emerging with a preferred position in economic relations with the United States as compared with other eastern European bloc nations except Poland.

How much freedom the Russians will tolerate within eastern Europe is complicated because Khrushchev's choices are limited by his split with Communist China as well as by his peaceful co-existence policies toward the West.

U.S. officials believe, however, that Khrushchev will tolerate a great degree of eastern European independence provided it does not jeopardize Soviet security.

Quiet

tion multiply on all sides.

This is the meaning behind the statement of Attorney-General Robert F. Kennedy who said, speaking of the Civil Rights Act, "while there have been isolated instances of resistance . . . hundreds and even thousands of communities and businesses are accepting the law."

The Civil Rights Act was passed July 2.

"Compliance with Title II has been much more widespread and more complete than I would have expected. I can count more easily the places where we've had trouble than the places where we haven't."

(Title II provides for "injunctive relief against discrimination in public accommodations.")

Roy Wilkins, veteran Negro civil rights leader, said that in his opinion the law is being carried out better than many expected.

Some whites, north and south, fear the Negro "is trying to go too far too fast" and "demanding privileges without accepting responsibilities."

And some Negroes feel that what has been done has been little and late. They speak of "tokenism" in desegregating the schools and of white indifference to their problems of housing and job opportunities.

Yet, today contrasts sharply with the recent past.

Before 1960, for example, Kansas City had no Negro bus drivers. Now, about 25 per cent of new employees are Negroes. Only recently, Negro mannequins have appeared in the display windows of New York city stores. New York designers are employing them as models in increasing numbers now.

Last year, Alabama's Governor George Wallace was standing in the doorway of a building attempting to bar the enrollment of two Negroes in the University of Alabama. This year, reports Rex Thomas, AP correspondent in Montgomery, "the atmosphere has changed. Community leaders have spread the word that violence will accomplish nothing."

SEIZE RECORD SUM

WASHINGTON (AP)—A record $1,200,000 in counterfeit currency was seized during the fiscal year which ended June 30, chief James J. Rowley of the United States secret service reported Sunday. The secret service uncovered 44 counterfeit plants and arrested 727 persons during the year. The total of fake currency seized in the previous fiscal year was $2,800,000.

Pinch Hitting

By GARRY ALEXANDER

Inactive except for an exhibition or two since the end of July, Trudeau Motors swing back into action here tomorrow night in the opening round of the OASA "B" playdowns.

Supplying opposition for the locals will be a group of Kingston's top softballers, playing under the colors of the Telephone Answering Service. The visitors are known as the "T.A.S. Men," and according to all reports should prove tough opposition for "Shaker" Baker's Trudeau squad.

It is difficult to say whether the layoff will help or hurt Trudeau's. The club started the season by whacking everyone in sight, then fell into a mid-season slump that knocked them from top to bottom of the Belleville and District Softball League ladder. They appeared to snap out of the losing habit near schedule's end but not by enough to get past Blaine Healey and his Tweed Lombards in the loop semi-finals.

Trudeaus did give Tweed a good, tough battle and Baker feels that the layoff may be just what the club needed to renew that early-season spark. The team has good pitching in rightander Doug Ellis and lefties Ken Simpson, who always hands a best ball in the playdowns, and newcomer Jim Clarke.

With hitters and fielders like Bert Faulkner, Rick Locke, Bob Wannamaker, Claude Carr, Paul Zakos, "Shiner" Murray, Cliff Duggan, Billy McGuire, Ralph Plane, Ab Wright and "Pug" Keller, the team has, at least on paper, the ability to make the playdown trail a long one.

A strikeout artist by the name of "Bubs" Van Hooser, who caused no little sensation while hurling exhibition games for Bloomfield this summer, is said to be Kingston's pitching ace. He will face either Green or Ellis in tomorrow night's series opener here. Ellis Juniors recently clubbed Van Hooser 9-0 in an exhibition game so he can be beaten. Second of the two-of-three set is slated for Kingston Thursday.

* * *

Meanwhile, there's plenty of top-notch action on the local scene this evening.

The red-hot final series for the Belleville and District Softball League championship and the Bill Ott Trophy continues at the CNRA Park at 8.30 sharp.

Ellis Juniors and Tweed Lombards will supply the action and plenty of it there should be. The clubs are presently deadlocked at two games each in the four-of-seven set and every game is a must for both sides from now on. It boils down to a 2-of-3 series at this point so tonight's loser faces the task of winning two in a row—or finishing second best.

Blaine Healey and Bob Ethier are expected to continue their strikeout duel tonight. They claimed 28 between them in the fourth game, won by the Juniors 5-3, with Healey getting 15. Ether claimed 13 victims and never looked better.

Elsewhere, the Commercial League semi-finals continue on two fronts.

Lightfoot Construction, leading Point Anne 3-2 in games on the strength of George Young's no-hitter last week, travel to the Point where the Cementmen will be looking for revenge.

Here in the city, Barrage Landscapers, with a similar 3-2 record, go against City Hotel in the other half of the semi-finals. That game is slated for the Alemite field.

* * *

* * *

In senior baseball, we have heard nothing from Joyce's since their defeat in Brockville a week ago Saturday. The Oshawa paper claims Bellefonte travelled a league semi-final game there last week but if such is the case, Joyce's are keeping that, as well as any other news, a deep, dark secret.

Graves Pots One

English Soccer Opens

LONDON (AP)—The English soccer season kicked off Saturday and goal-poacher Jimmy Graves celebrated the start with a goal for Tottenham Hotspur's 2-0 victory over Sheffield United.

A total of about 720,000 fans turned out—and 43,000 of them were at Tottenham.

Graves, one of the finest goal stealers in the world, got his score three minutes before half-time. He made it himself, even so, as Graves swept across the ground, held off one opponent with a shoulder and then swung the ball out to a teammate.

Graves was in the goalmouth for the return and hit it home from 10 yards.

Liverpool, the defending champions, defeated Arsenal 2-2 after a rally by the once famous London team, and West Ham United, the English Cup holders, defeated Fulham 2-1 on

By MURRAY CHASS
Associated Press Sports Writer

It's odd, but Brooks Robinson is at his best in even-numbered years.

This year he's better than ever and has a better than even chance of being named the American League's Most Valuable Player—if Baltimore Orioles win the pennant.

Robinson tried to see to that, sparking the Orioles to three victories in four weekend games with Chicago White Sox. Baltimore won its third straight 7-3 Sunday before the White Sox salvaged the second game of the doubleheader 3-1.

Robinson batted three hits in Sunday's opener, scoring two runs and drove in the Orioles' lone run in the second game.

Robinson reached his best rbi mark in 1960 when he drove in 88 runs. He dipped to 71 the next season but rose to 86 in 1962 when he also hit 23 homers and batted .303, his best mark in those categories prior to this season.

But the oddity struck again as he plummeted to a .251 average in 1963 with only 11 homers and 67 rbi.

Robinson was named the most valuable Oriole in 1960 and 1964, the first player to win the honor twice.

YANKS EDGE BOSTON

In other American League games Sunday, New York Yankees edged Boston Red Sox 4-3, Cleveland Indians trounced Angeles 6-4 and 3-2, Minnesota Twins topped Detroit Tigers 6-5, then lost 5-2.

Saturday, Baltimore edged Chicago 4-2, Kansas City defeated Washington 5-4, Cleveland defeated Los Angeles 1-0 and 5-1, New York and Boston split 7-3 to Boston in the first game of a doubleheader but won the second 6-0. Minnesota and Detroit were rained out.

One of Robinson's three rbi in the opener was a key angle in the Orioles' four-run outburst in the fifth inning. It was another Robinson homer in six innings in two of the runs. The rally helped rookie Wally Bunker, his 13th victory against only three defeats.

Gary Peters pitched the White Sox to the second game of the split, scattering seven hits for his 14th victory in 21 decisions. Chicago scored its only run in the seventh. Floyd Robinson triggered the rally with a single as Jose Cardenal collected a 6-0 wild throw to Sam Bowens.

Johnny Blanchard and Mickey Mantle each drove in two runs as the Yankees continued their recovery from a six-game losing streak. Blanchard connected off Roger Maris with sacrifice flies in the fourth and eighth while Mantle unloaded a three-run homer in the third.

Bob Tillman doubled and scored for Boston in the seventh and homered in the ninth.

Cleveland swept its second straight doubleheader from the Angels. Rookie Luis Tiant pitched a six - hitter through seventh victory in nine decisions in the opener. Bob Chance belted three hits and drove in two runs for the Indians.

John Romano singled across two runs in Cleveland's three-run third in the nightcap. The rally was aided by pitcher Dan Osinski's throwing error. Vic Torres homered for the Angels.

Jim Kaat shackled the Senators to their second shutout victory over the Athletics, lashing a two-run single in a five-run fourth inning and slamming a solo homer in the seventh.

John Wyatt preserved Diego Segui's victory in the 10th inning, striking out pinch hitters Don Zimmer and Chuck Hinton with the tying runs on base in the ninth inning. Bill Bryan homered for the Athletics' decisive run in a two-run fifth.

Hank Aguirre won his third game of the season as the Tigers since July 1, stopping the twins on five hits in the second game. Bill Freehan hit his 20th homer and Gates Brown and Don Demeter one each for the Tigers.

Tony Oliva's run-scoring single in the ninth inning won the opener for the Twins after Don Mincher tied the game in the eighth with a grand-slam homer. Jerry Lumpe and Dick McAuliffe clutched 2-run homers for Detroit.

U.S. ENTRIES TOPS

WESTBURY, N.Y. (AP) — Speedy Scot and Sir Mac led off the United States made a shambles of the sixth $50,000 international Speedway stakes, finishing first and second before a crowd of 50,113 at Roosevelt Raceway.

TORONTO (CP) — Egyptian Abdel Latif Abou Heif didn't make it all the way in the 25-mile Canadian National Exhibition swim Friday, but he still got a fair chunk of the prize money.

Heif, a 37-year-old army major who was dragged out of the freezing water four miles short of his goal, was awarded $4,400 Saturday as the ONE sports committee split up $12,425 of the total purse of $17,500.

It was the largest prize any of the 18 starters received, but it was still considerably less than the $7,000 Heif would have received had he finished.

The committee decided to spread the money among the swimmers, none of whom finished.

They gave $2,850 to Hollandborn Judith de Nys, 20, living in London, Ont., who was pulled out of the water within sight of Toronto Island pier when she was running second behind Heif.

George Park of Toronto, a 1956 Canadian 100-metre Olympic representative who came out of the water 10 minutes after Miss de Nys was handed $1,425 for third place and Charles Grover, 46, of Boston the last swimmer to leave the water $850.

Gene Anderson of California received $775, Ken Jensen of Vancouver got $650 and Mohamed Zalloom of Egypt received $425. The other 11 entrants each received $100.

Leafs Split Pair With Jacksonville

By THE CANADIAN PRESS

If Jacksonville Suns hadn't been in the International League this season, John Anderson probably would have a better record.

But Anderson has a 5-10 record and the 27-year-old pitcher is responsible for five of the losses.

The fifth defeat came in the second game of a doubleheader Sunday in which the Suns responded, after losing the opener 9-2, to shutout Toronto Maple Leafs 4-0 and collect the split of three Toronto hurlers, Anderson was the starter and the loser.

Don Dillard had clouted a two-run homer in the opener to give the Leafs the 9-2 victory.

In Sunday action Buffalo won the opener 7-1 but lost the second game 2-0 as Atlanta, Columbus edged Rochester and Syracuse dropped the second 11-4, and Richmond trimmed Richmond twice, 9-5 and 5-2.

Saturday, Syracuse edged Richmond 4-3 and Rochester downed Columbus 2-1. All other games were rained out.

Buffalo's weathered the three-homer barrage to pick up his 15th decision at Syracuse strengthened his hold on first place in the opener Sunday. Art Lopez, Fred Hopke and Mike Maddaleno reached him for homers.

A five-run uprising in the fifth inning featuring Ray Oyler's second two-run homer of the day and Mack Jones' three-run homer won the nightcap for the Chiefs.

Don Cardwell won the opener for the Jets, outpitching Bill Short before the Red Wings romped to an overwhelming victory in 2nd game.

Cho-Choo Coleman belted two homers in Buffalo's 7-1 victory, one with the bases full.

Leamington Wins Title

Tom Barrie struck out 11 to pick up the victory with help from Bill Hall, who singled in the fourth inning to score both Leamington runs.

Mosport Race Held Despite Heavy Rain

The pair completed 101 laps of the 2½-mile track in four hours, one minute and 26.4 seconds for an average speed of 62.1 miles per hour.

Albert Hoogenboom and Rolly Stinson, both of Toronto, completed 99 laps to bring their Volvo P-1800 home second, three laps ahead of Bob Leitch and Tom Moore, both of Montreal, in their XK-E Jaguar.

The four-hour race, a mix of sunshine, then the first ever held at night Mosport, began shortly before 7 p.m. in a steady downpour of rain. The deluge continued throughout the race, soaking drivers and turning the track into a greasy ribbon of asphalt.

CURETON IN HOSPITAL

HAMILTON (CP) — Hamilton Cureton, offensive and defensive linebacker with Hamilton Tiger-Cats of the Canadian Football Conference, underwent surgery Saturday to repair ligament damage to his right knee. He is not expected to return to action this season.

Nick Weslock Shades Cowan One-Up

Retains Golf Title

By JOHN SHORT

SASKATOON (CP) — Veteran Nick Weslock successfully defended his Canadian amateur golf title Saturday by edging Gary Cowan of Kitchener two-up in 36 holes final at the Saskatoon Riversido Golf Club.

The win for the 46-year-old Burlington, Ont., veteran was his third Canadian Amateur crown and his second in two years—and assured him of a chance to compete in the Masters tournament at Augusta, Ga., next spring.

Weslock ran into trouble early, three-putting five greens but managed to stead his game to edge Cowan, 26, who won the title in 1961.

Although he appeared to have command of the match, sinking putts of 40 and 70 feet during crucial moments on the 6,525-yard, par-70 course, Weslock admitted afterward he "choked into a cold sweat" several times.

Weslock has represented Canada in several international competitions and has been a member of the Ontario Willingdon Cup team 16 times.

MISS APPLAUDED

His commanded steady strain on two occasions. On the 11th hole of the morning round, which he lost to Cowan, he had a spectator applaud a missed putt.

"In future," he said, "I could appreciate no applause when I miss."

The outburst installed Cowan as favorite with the gallery as nearly 1,500 but Weslock led two-up after the morning round and held on.

It was the first time Weslock and Cowan had met in the championship final. Weslock defeated Ted Homenuik of Winnipeg in the semi-final to win first championship and downed Bert Heckhurst of Vancouver last year. Cowan has been runner-up three times.

Weslock's approximate medal score for the holes was 142, two over par. Cowan had an approximate medal score of 146. Weslock had par in the morning and Cowan matched it in the afternoon.

Weslock won the first and sixth holes with birdies in the opening round but the margin was chopped on the 11th when Cowan three-putted. Weslock managed a par four on the 14th to restore the two-hole edge.

He followed with his magnificent 70-footer for a birdie three and three-up lead on the 15th but three-putted again on the 16th. On the short 17th, Cowan drove his tee shot beyond the green and then chipped to within and was three down at the turn.

After lunch, Cowan pulled even quickly with wins on the 19th, 22rd and 24th holes. Weslock went one up on the 28th and then up on the 32th. The 20th was halved before Cowan birdied three successive holes to wipe out the margin.

Cowan drove the front edge of the green on the par-four, 316-yard, 14th hole and jammed a seven - iron shot within three inches of the hole on the long par-four 31st.

BIRDIES - BOTH

Weslock also birdied the 30th, but observers noticed Weslock that he probably won the tournament there. Cowan faced a seven-foot birdie putt but Weslock stepped up to hit a 21-footer. The putt went directly into the cup.

Cowan went one over par on the 32rd when he pushed his drive to the right of the fairway and had to loft a seven-iron over trees. The match was all square on the 34th when Weslock pulled his tee shot to the right and hooked his second beyond the green.

For the second time in the match, Cowan had difficulty on the 17th hole and lost the match. His tee shot packed off the green, he chipped into heavy grass and he approached weakly.

When came the 36th, when Cowan's putt caught a piece of th. hole but stayed out and Weslock coolly sank his short putter one last time.

Cowan played brilliantly in the morning round but "I couldn't get the ball in the hole. That was my trouble."

Richie Allen Shoots For Twin Honors

By MIKE RATHET
Associated Press Sports Writer

Richie Allen, Philadelphia's hard - hitting third baseman, wears orange shoes, four-button suits and sports jackets with buckles in the back. Now he's trying to stick a couple of feathers in his cap.

A leading contender for both Rookie of the Year and Most Valuable Player honors, the standout dresser and outstanding third baseman batted two homers and a single, driving in four runs Sunday as the National League leading Phillies walloped Pittsburgh Pirates 9-3

The performance lifted Allen's batting average to .313, gave him 23 homers and 66 runs batted in, and once again shot him front and centre as a district possibility to become the first rookie in major league history to win the MVP award.

Allen, whose chief competition for MVP honors might come from teammate John (all-star hero) Callison and Jim (Perfect Game) Bunning, hit a two-run homer against the Pirates in the third inning, hit a solo homer in the fifth and toggled home a run in the eighth.

Bunning, who went seven innings, toggled from the top sport bringing his record to 14-4 with a 2.17 earned run average despite being tagged for homers by Roberto Clemente and Donn Clendenon.

STRETCH LEAGUE LEAD

The victory boosted the Phillies lead to 7½ games over Cincinnati Reds and San Francisco Giants. The Reds lost to Los Angeles Dodgers and Phil Ortega's three-hitter 1-0, while the Giants edged St Louis Cardinals 3-2 in 10 innings.

In other games, New York Mets swept a doubleheader from Chicago Cubs 2-1 in 10 innings and 5-4 in nine innings, the Milwaukee Braves 7-1 in a night game.

On Saturday Cincinnati edged Los Angeles 2-1, Houston defeated Milwaukee 5-4, Chicago gained a 3-2 win over New York, San Francisco defeated St. Louis 4-2 and Pittsburgh walloped Philadelphia 9-4.

Ortega, who hadn't pitched a complete game since May 10, brought his record to 6-5 by keeping the Reds in check. The Dodgers, meanwhile, got all their only run against Jim O'Toole, (13-6) in the second inning on a double by Nate Oliver and Dick Tracewski's single.

ALOU BREAKS TIE

The Cardinals pulled into a tie with the Giants on Lou Brock's homer in the eighth but lost it in the 10th when Jesus Alou scored from third on Dal Maxvill's error.

Allen started the inning with a single, moved up on a bunt, raced to third on Tom Haller's long fly and scored when Maxville let Harvey Kuenn's grounder get away from him.

The Mets won the opener in the 10th after George Altman led off with a double and took third on a grounder. Ron Hunt and Joe Christopher then were walked intentionally, setting up a force at any base, but Ed Kranepool ruined the strategy with a well-placed single to left.

The Cubs tried the same thing in the ninth inning of the nightcap and again lost while the Mets won their seventh in eight games. Bobby Klaus singled with Christopher on third with one out. Christopher and Altman were walked purposely, but one Cubs scored their third straight over the Braves.

Peewees Split Twin-Bill

Peterborough Peewees got only one hit in the second game of their OBA playdown series here yesterday against the Belleville Merchants but it was enough to give them a split in the doubleheader.

Belleville won the series opener at Park Dale 4-1 while Peterborough avened it in the second tilt with a 5-3 decision.

Third and deciding game of the Eastern Ontario finals series will be played in Peterborough on Wednesday night, at six o'clock.

Meanwhile here tonight, Peterborough and Ellis Printers clash in the second game of the OBA Bantam playdown set, at Park Dale at 5.30. The visitors lead the series one game to none.

Belleville appeared to have Peterborough on the ropes, leading 3-1 going into the bottom of the sixth yesterday. Darryl Demers, on the Belleville mound, then hurled each ball when the trouble started. Walks and an error got the home team to within one of the score. B. Starr then rapped Peterborough's lone hit, a two-run single, in the sixth and Demers 5-3 win. Jim Wood had taken over from Demers one inning earlier. They fanned two and walked four in all. three of the latter in the sixth.

D. Richardson set Belleville down on four hits, tanning six batters and allowing the same number.

Merchants had scored once in the third and snapped a 1-1 tie with two in the fifth and one in the sixth inning. The losers' four hits were shared by S. Moore, Jim Meagher, Paul Hall and Ron Jury.

In the opener, Belleville used a three-run rally in the sixth to break a 1-1 tie which had existed since the first frame.

Jim Wood pitched five hit ball for Belleville and Mike Healey got the loss for defeat. Wood whiffed one and walked one, Healey getting eight on strikes and passing five.

All the game's hits were singles with no player getting more than two. Belleville's safeties went to Steve Moore, P. Hall, Jim Craig Adams and Jim Blatchford.

Parsons Win 2-1 Thriller

Belleville Parsons avenged an earlier defeat by downing Kingston's Flying Dutchmen 2-1 at the RCAF Trenton grounds on Saturday in Kingston District soccer action.

Parsons tried hard to get on the score tied. J. Hasenta hit the cross bar with a long drive and another shot hit the Dutchmen goalkeeper only to rebound across the goalmouth to strike the post.

However, on a break-away the Dutchmen scored first, a low shot by inside left Vanmulekt left Vanguren in the Parsons' goal helpless. The Dutchmen scored again within a couple of minutes but this was called back by the referee for offside.

At half-time Parsons again took control of the game and a very close call for the Dutchmen came when T. Roman hit the post from close in. At this time the Belleville club did everything but score, and their forward Roe worked smoothly, although the shooting was very erratic.

During a skirmish in the goalmouth Parsons were awarded a penalty shot because the Dutch men centre-half handled the ball and Tim Kling made no mistake to tie the score 1-1.

J. Issacs, who had played an excellent game at left wing for Parsons, picked up the ball about 15 yards out and shot through a packed defence into the corner of the net to put Parsons in the lead.

In the last ten minutes the Dutchmen fought hard to equalize but the Parsons' defence fences under pressure. However the closest they came to scoring was when Brinkman, Parsons centre half, misjudged the ball and forced Bob Vanguyan into making a spectacular diving save.

A mention should be made for two big defensive lads who had been playing some good soccer for Parsons in the last few games, Jack Roman and Max Valyear.

Parsons have three players selected for the Bay of Quinte All Star team which will be playing in the near future. They are Bob Rutherford at centre-forward, R. DeGenova at left back and B. Vanguyan, goalkeeper.

Next Saturday, Belleville Parsons Cleaners meet the league-leading Kingston Italia team at McGaffin Stadium in Kingston. Kick-off is 6.30 p.m.

Quinte Trap, Gun Club

Cy Gardner fired 50 consecutive hits to lead a big field at the Quinte Trap and Gun Club's regular weekend shoot yesterday morning.

Bill Bliss and Doug Johnston registered scores of 24 out of possible 25's to chase Gardner in second place.

Other good scores were: Tom Blue 22, Dick Rosatte 23, Garn Hart 22, John Wykes 22, Don Fordham 22, Jack Dodson 22, Paul Henry 21, Bill Kemp 21, Bob Bellamy 21, Jack Blue 21, Bill Blue 21, Bob Peake 21, Jack Warchaugh 20 and Gord Bates 20.

It was announced that the annual club shoot, for members only, will be held on Sunday, September 13.

The club has also extended an invitation for all district hunters to come out to the club in order to sharpen their eyes for the approaching hunting season.

Yachts Vie For Right To Challenge

NEWPORT, R.I. (AP)—Two British yachts, almost identical in construction, enter the final round today of their competition for the right to challenge for international sailing's most prized trophy, the America's Cup.

Meanwhile, the final trials to choose the cup's U.S. defender go into their second week.

The selection committees of the New York Yacht Club and the Royal Thames Yacht Club are working against a Sept. 6 deadline. They will make their decisions, if not sooner.

In the British trials to date, Sovereign picks a slight edge over the Lionheart as the score was 4-2 during the recent observation trials and the current is blowing at 13-11, including informal trials held earlier both off Newport and in British waters.

In the U.S. final trials, Constellation has yet to lose in American Eagle. In the earlier observation trials, the two yachts met 19 times, American Eagle winning seven.

Cannifton Blanks Foxboro 3-0

In the South Hastings League finals, Plane's Concrete of Cannifton refused again to be subdued and edged Foxboro 3-0 for their second victory in a row, with Foxboro leading the best-of-seven series 3-2.

The next game is scheduled to be played Tuesday night at Foxboro. Game time is 6.30.

Butch Clapp allowed only six hits in going the distance for the winner. He struck out one and walked one.

Gary Little was tagged with the loss, allowing eight hits, striking out four and issuing two passes.

The Canpey rapped three singles to lead the Cannifton attack, while Pat O'Connor hit a pair. Leading hits for the winners were Ron Urch, Hugh Petrie and Butch Clapp.

Gets $1,000 For Quebec Swim Win

TROIS-RIVIERES, Que. (CP) Jean Lacourisere of Montreal, won Trois-Rivieres' annual 10-mile international marathon swim Sunday, his fourth victory in the seven-year history of the event. He was one of only 18 starter who failed to complete the CNE Lake Ontario swim Thursday and Friday.

Lacourisere won in four hours, 15 minutes, 55 seconds, ending at least a 20-minute lead he established in the race by Herman Willemse. of The Netherlands.

Robert Reta of Argentina was second in the CNE and Willemse third in 4:21:01 in the event held in an outdoors pool.

The first three times the race was held, Lacourisere was the winner. Then Willemse came on to take the next three.

The win meant $1,000 for the Montreal swimmer. Second place is worth $500 and third $400.

Handgunners Nip Bowmen In Competition

The Quinte Handgun League (shooters) matched their skills against the Belleville Bowmen (archers) and won the contest by a close 528-500 score, after a hard struggle between the two extremes.

The individual scores were:

Belleville Bowmen: Floyd Armstrong 124, Geoff Calvert 122, Mike Calvert 99, John Smith 95, Gord. Gregory 69. Total 500.

Playground Track, Field
Belleville Places Second

A Belleville team travelled to Peterborough on Saturday to compete in the First Annual Central Ontario Playground Track and Field championships, and came home with second place in the team standings.

The performance of the Belleville team was surprisingly outstanding with the young, 2nd, broad lads and lasses from Oshawa, Peterborough, Cobourg, Trenton and Colborne, and experienced track club people, particularly from the larger centres.

The excellent showing of our kids should add impetus to the formation of a Belleville Track Club early in 1965, provided the facilities at one of the local high schools can be used for this purpose.

The team standings were as follows: 1st, Peterborough with 137 points; 2nd, Belleville with 125 points; 3rd, Oshawa with 107 points, and 4th, Trenton with 32 points.

Individual placings for the Belleville boys and girls were as follows:

ATOM BOYS

PEEWEE BOYS

Bill Buchanon, 3rd, high jump; Bob Carter, 1st, broad jump; Bill Buchanon, 3rd, 100-yard dash; Bill Buchanon, 1st, 100-yd. dash; Belleville team, 1st, 4x110 relay.

TEAN BOYS

Hornung Sparks Packers

NEW YORK (AP) — If Jim Taylor of Green Bay Packers is as much as Paul Hornung figures to hurt them, National Football League followers can expect another wire-to-wire due, in the Western Conference once between Packers, champion Bears and Hornung - hypoeo Green Bay Packers.

Hornung hope Arnett, one time all-pro halfback whom they acquired Sunday in a trade-for-one deal with Los Angeles Rams, will add a breakaway threat to their lightweight and tricky attack. Arnett ended last month by the death of Willie Galimore.

Chicago's offensive shortcomings were pinpointed Saturday night when the Bears and Hornung wrecked the Bears 21-7 in an exhibition game at Milwaukee. Hornung ran for two touchdowns, caught a scoring pass and kicked three extra points for a 21-14 lead.

Cleveland Browns ripped Pittsburgh Steelers 42-7; Washington Redskins topped New York Giants 27-24; Minnesota Vikings stayed unbeaten with a 24-21 victory over San Francisco 49ers; the Rams defeated Dallas Cowboys 25-17 and Detroit Lions topped Philadelphia Eagles 17-13 in other NFL weekend tilts.

New York Jets nipped Boston Patriots 21-20; San Diego Chargers defeated Dallas Chiefs 26-14 and Oakland Raiders outscored Buffalo Bills 34-31 in American Football League action.

K. Venturi Wins Classic Golf Title

AKRON, Ohio (AP) — Ken Venturi breezed to a five-stroke victory and first-prize money of $7,500 Sunday in the $50,000 American Golf Classic. He had a final round of 35-34—69 and a 275 total.

The U.S. Open champion started the closing round with a two-stroke lead over Mason Rudolph, stretched it to four at the turn and wrapped it up with a birdie two on No. 12 while Rudolph was taking a one-over-par four.

Rudolph closed with a 37-35—72 for an even-par 280 to finish second, one stroke ahead of Arnold Palmer who had a 36-36—72 and 281.

Rudolph picked up $4,000 and Palmer $3,300. Jack Nicklaus finished fourth with 37-36—73 and 285 for $2,800.

Revenge In Mind

Stampeders Tackle Roughriders

REGINA (CP) — Calgary Stampeders tackle Saskatchewan Roughriders tonight with revenge on their mind but a valuable halfback who could spell the difference is missing.

Stampeders have never gotten over the disappointment of their elimination from the Western Football Conference playoffs last season when they were defeated by the underdog Roughriders. Also, in their first clash this season Saskatchewan took a 19-4 victory.

It's also a battle for second place where both teams are presently one point back of British Columbia Lions.

Stampeders are without the services of halfback Jim Hilliard, a speedster who can run, block and is an excellent pass receiver. He suffered an ankle fracture Aug. 17 against Edmonton Eskimos and is expected to be out for two months.

Garth Woods will replace Dillard. Calgary coach Bobby Dobbs says Woods "is a good ball carrier and blocker but we can't expect him to be the pass receiver Dillard was."

Woods is doubtful starter for the Roughriders, slight favorites, to end Martin Fabi, still recovering from a groin injury.

The Tracks

FORT ERIE, Ont. (CP)—Canadilla charged through the deep sticky turf Saturday to win the $29,450 Prince of Wales Stakes, second jewel in Canada's triple crown.

Jockey Avellino Gomez drained the last ounce of speed out of the son of Canadian Chief, owned by Viscount Hardinge, of Montreal, to defeat the fast-closing Langcrest Fast Answer was third.

Jockey Nick Shuk, on fourth place Nacuba, later lodged a foul claim against Gomez and Canadilla. Shuk claimed Canadilla interfered with his mount midway through the last turn.

Two days of heavy rain made this mile-and-three-eighth race over the grass course a muddy affair for most in the field of 10. The time of 2:33 was about 18 seconds off the track record.

In the co-featured $13,700 Vandal Stakes a six-and-one-half furlong affair for two-year-olds, Good Old Mort, purchased at a yearling at the Canadian Thoroughbred Horse Society sales for $4,500, handily outlasted Sharon Market and Flyalong.

AT THE PARK — Drag Racing excitement comes when Don Rickles (left) meets Frankie Avalon (in wig and fire suit) while Annette Funicello (in bow) and Deborah Walley (centre) look on in scene from American International's "Bikini Beach" held over at the Park Theatre, Belleville for three days more. The color and Panavision musical comedy also stars Martha Hyer, Harvey Lembeck, John Ashley, Jody McCrea and Candy Johnson, with Keenan Wynn as special guest star. Fabian Makes Good in Films, Has Not Sung in 3 Years

By BOB THOMAS

HOLLYWOOD (AP)—Take a Philadelphia boy, give him the handle of fabulous Fabian, make him a big singing attraction. Then expose him to the screams of frantic females, put him into the big-time entertainment world.

What happens afterward?

In the case of Fabian, it is a wonder that he didn't end up shattered as a person and forgotten as a singer. Actually, now 21, he seems to have survived.

Fabian had just finished a role with James Stewart in Dear Brigitte (formerly Erasmus with Freckles.) The lad was preparing to leave on a tour to plug Ride the Wild Surf, in which he starred for Columbia.

It was to be his first extensive meeting with the public in three years, during which he has striven to escape the anonymity that threatens all teen-age idols.

MILLIONS KNEW SAGA

The Fabian saga was etched in the hearts of millions of young girls—how he was discovered in front of his own home by the mentor of Frankie Avalon, how he was manufactured into a star in a great selling campaign.

His memory of those early days: "I don't remember anything about the performances. I got on the stage, did the songs and got off without the slightest recollection of what had happened.

"Every time I had to go before the public I was terrified. It's a numb feeling to find suddenly that wherever you go there will be girls creaming and trying to get at you.

Often the scene became violent: fire hoses to control the mob in front of the Paramount; Fabian's clothes ripped to shreds; a girl went to the hospital in Baltimore. When Fabian arrived at his hotel in Atlanta for a movie, hysterical girls clambered over his limousine; one girl banged through the window and scratched the white of his eye.

THE BIG QUESTION

But how long would the notoriety-loving teen-agers go on buying? Fabian was to find out when he gave the matter some thought.

"The first time I thought that I might have a future in the acting business was when I did North to Alaska with John Wayne," he said. "I got the first good reviews I had ever received."

He decided to make a clean break. He paid off the contract with his discoverer - manager. He started serious study of drama and he stopped singing. He hasn't made a record in three years.

"But producers told me they were buying Fabian, not an actor named Fabian Forte," he said. "That's all right with me—as long as they keep buying."

DRIVER KILLED

SPRINGFIELD, Ill. (AP) — Bill Hornsmeyer, 34, of Madison, Wis., was killed instantly in the flaming wreckage of his racing car which flipped over in front of the grandstand during the 100-mile feature of the Illinois State Fair. While an estimated 25,000 fans watched in horror, his machine flipped end over end entering the straightaway and burst into flames. A. J. Foyt of Houston, Tex., winner of the Indianapolis 500, won the race.

News Broadcasters Busy Before Convention Opens

By CYNTHIA LOWRY

HOLLYWOOD (AP) — CBS had a sort of sneak preview Sunday of its new format of political convention anchormen, Robert Trout and Roger Mudd.

The "break-in performance, as Trout called it, came from a booth overlooking the auditorium where the Democratic national convention opens today. But the two leads who have succeeded Walter Cronkite in the network's news lineup cannot be evaluated on the basis of Sunday evening's appearances. They merely presided over a news program and there was really no chance to see either in ad lib operation.

However, Trout, a silken-voiced man whose saturnine face belies a quietly droll manner, seems slated to handle the lighter side of the convention goings-on. Mudd, good-looking and on the serious, incisive side, is perhaps happier with hard-news approach.

There are about two broadcasting days remaining before the convention for every five delegates, and it seemed that all of them were busy Sunday. An agile-wristed viewer could have kept his eyes almost constantly on either the Convention Hall or the Atlantic City boardwalk for most of the time, until bedtime.

With only a few subjects or any real suspense to the president's choice of a vice-president, the candidates, and the seating of two southern delegations—all networks were put to a test in drumming up interest in the events of the next few days.

NBC's Sunday had the network convention floor reporters sprawled in adjoining chairs on the beach chatting informally about the issues, and Perle Mesta on a boardwalk bench describing the recipe for throwing a good party.

REDS GET COKER

CINCINNATI (AP) — Cincinnati Reds' bought catcher Jim Coker from Denver Sunday for an estimated $35,000 and sent rookie infielder Tony Peres to San Diego on a 24-hour recall basis. Coker will report to the Reds for Tuesday night's game with the New York Mets to help Don Pavletich with the catching chores while Johnny Edwards remains out of the lineup with a dislocated finger.

'Won't Back Umpires'

Maury Wills Raps Giles

LOS ANGELES (AP) — Dodger shortstop Maury Wills accused the National League office Sunday of intimidating umpires to avoid going so far as to take money away from them—to keep them from enforcing the balk rule.

"One umpire lost his Christmas bonus because he enforced the rule," Wills charged. "And I believe one also was cut in salary for the same reason."

National League president Warren Giles, reached at home in Cincinnati, said: "If Wills has a complaint, he should make it in writing. And he should get his facts straight before making public statements."

Giles declined further comment.

Wills, who set a modern major league record by stealing 104 bases for Los Angeles in 1962, said enforcement of the balk rule will drive base-stealers into extinction.

FAILED TO UMPIRE

He said he talked to an umpire on the last Dodger trip "and he was over everything and told me the whole story."

"The fault does not lie with the umpires. Every umpire out there knows what a balk is and is qualified and competent. The fault lies with the National League office . . .

"I say the league office. It's gotta be Warren Giles. The league president.

"The league does not back the umpires and they know this and feel it."

"I don't ever expect to steal 100 bases again. I'm not trying to kid myself and I'm not crying the blues. I think I can steal 50 no matter what they do. But I think they're hurting other players and I think they're hurting the game."

Spare Leads Ontario To Golf Win

MONTREAL (CP) — Ontario, sparked by a 65 from one of its spares, downed Quebec for the second straight time in the interprovincial professional medal play championship Saturday.

The 65, shot by Frank Whibley of Kitchener, helped keep the Ontario team-score down to 272 while Quebec finished the one-day, two-team tournament with a collective 807.

Bob Brunet of Woodridge, shot a 70 over the 18 holes for Ontario as did Bill Kozak of Niagara Falls Jr. of Bob Rose of Toronto.

Whibley, 25, took away a $300 bonus as well as the $400 share that comes for membership on the winning team. Members of the losing squad each got $300.

THREE OTHERS SPLIT

Breen, Kozak and Rose split another $300 bonus for the second-best score in the competition.

Whibley's score was six-under-par for the course but it wasn't the best round of his career. In 1957, he shot a 64 in Buffalo.

He went into action to help fill the big gap left by the absence from the Ontario ranks of Al Balding, George Knudson and Moe Norman. The star trio did not appear because of other commitments.

Whibley said his putting was a key factor in his victory.

"On five greens I sank putts from 15 to 20 feet," said the handsome professional from Kitchener's Westmount Golf and Country Club.

"Only three times was I in some kind of trouble, but luckily I came out of them."

The Trots

TORONTO (CP) — Timely Knight had to wait out a claim of foul from driver Ralph Allwood to claim the Queen City Stakes pace for three-year-olds for his 10th consecutive victory this year at Greenwood Raceway Saturday night.

Eagle Armbro, a 13-1 chance, took the place position by half a length over Pick Highland Girl, a filly owned and driven by Hugh McLean of Port Elgin.

Yesterday's Stars

By THE ASSOCIATED PRESS

Batting—Richie Allen, Phillies, drove in four runs with two homers and a single, leading Philadelphia's 9-3 walloping of Pittsburgh and a 7½ game National League lead.

Pitching—Juan Ortiz, Dodgers, three-hit Cincinnati 1-0, ending the Reds' winning streak at six games with his first complete game since May 19.

WIN IN COBRA

WATKINS GLEN, N.Y. (AP) — Ed Lowther and Bob Nagel piloted their Ford Cobra to victory Sunday at the Glen International Track in the first 500-mile endurance race in the United States for production sports cars. Lowther, a Mc for ray, Pa., house builder, and Nagel, a pilot at Pittsburgh, Pa., averaged 86.93 m.p.h. in the rain-swept 2.3-mile track.

Fabulous Wardrobe in Shirley MacLaine's "What a Way To Go" is Big Screen Color

In "What a Way To Go," Shirley MacLaine has two wardrobes for each of her five husbands.

Shirley MacLaine wears the most costly wardrobe in "What a Way To Go" at the Belle today and Tuesday at the Belle Theatre. With 72 costumes designed by Oscar-winning Edith Head at a combined cost of more than $500,000. She has a matching coiffure for each wardrobe change designed by famed hair stylist Sydney Guilaroff.

In addition Miss MacLaine wears $3,000,000 worth of jewels from the Harry Winston Inc. collection of furs valued at an additional $200,000.

Co-starring with Shirley MacLaine in "What a Way To Go," at the Belle Theatre are Robert Mitchum, Paul Newman, Dean Martin, Gene Kelly and Dick Van Dyke.

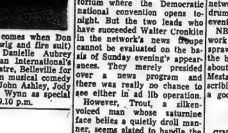
FOSSIL PACHYDERMS



AVELEY, England (CP)—The fossil remains of two mammoth bulls have been found embedded in the ground here in Essex. Experts excavating the site said they must have been there for at least 6,000,000 years.

Astrological Forecasts

By SYDNEY OMARR

For August 25

Aries (Mar. 21 to Apr. 19): Cycle up. You gain most by pushing forward. Be confident, expand. Many are attracted to your opinions. Watch personal appearance. Utilize your dynamic qualities.

Taurus (Apr. 20 to May 20): You can make discoveries which brighten immediate future. Key is taking the initiative. Don't wait to be told. Exhibit confidence. Display originality . . . present ideas.

Gemini (May 21 to June 20): Friends impart meaningful information. Be perceptive. Utilize powers of intuition. Investigate. Find the reasons why. You can please loved one today. Do so!

Cancer (June 21 to July 22): Prestige on the line. You succeed by being versatile. Don't try to buck the odds today . . . go with the tide. Obey rules — but be willing to experiment. Reveal your finest qualities.

Leo (July 23 to Aug. 22): Good lunar aspect highlights journeys, attainment, verification of beliefs. Check details. Get thoughts on paper. You may be called upon to demonstrate theories. Be ready!

Virgo (Aug. 23 to Sept. 22): Listen to proposal by marital or business partner. Price, expense must be considered. One who scrolls at cost is not fully informed. Stress practical approach.

Libra (Sept. 23 to Oct. 22): Take time to view situation as it exists. Pressure indicated from outside sources. You will gain through charm. You lose if you attempt pushing, forcing methods.

Scorpio (Oct. 23 to Nov. 21): Be of service to work associates. Be co-operative. Stress good will. Time when friends may prove helpful. Refuse to antagonize anyone — even if provoked. Get sufficient rest.

Sagittarius (Nov. 22 to Dec. 21): Favorable lunar aspect coincides with romance, pleasure, entertainment. Your creative urge is sharply honed. You are able to give form and substance to ideas. Day to produce.

Capricorn (Dec. 22 to Jan. 19): If you step too quickly . . . you "trip." Day to be deliberate. Be sure before moving. Many may urge you to bypass one in authority. This is not good advice. Think!

Aquarius (Jan. 20 to Feb. 18): Obtain hint from today's Taurus message. Display sparkling personality. Be willing to laugh at your own foibles. Write, visit — get around. Fine evening for entertaining.

Pisces (Feb. 19 to Mar. 20): You have chance to collect debts. Does not mean only material debts. You can receive praise, payable income. Aspects plainly indicate that past efforts are due to pay off.

If today is your birthday . . . you are analytical, deeply attuned to needs of fellow men — are attracted to work aimed at helping others.

Bulletins From Birdland

By WINIFRED E. WILSON

BLUE HERON

Moving objects certainly catch the eye much more readily than stationary ones. Thanks to Mother Nature, most wild birds are well aware of this and use the "freezing" method to advantage. Although the responsibility for this purpose is practiced by all birds, certain kinds are more adept at it than others. Members of the family which includes herons and bitterns are stock examples.

A great blue heron, long neck stretched to its fullest extent and long dark bill pointing, can stand motionless on a sandy shore and fool a dozen people 75 yards distant who take it for a weathered stake sticking up on the beach. If the need arises, it will hold this pose for very long period, finally giving in when the supposed enemies are almost within touching distance. Then the tall, blue grey bird will turn and stalk slowly and sedately into the protecting bushes.

An American bittern standing perfectly still in its territory among reeds is truly invisible and blends with the dried brown and white plumage. When shown a photograph of one it is sometimes impossible to see where the bird is 'til it has been pointed out.

SONGBIRD

A songbird on its nest frequently remains there at our approach hoping to escape notice. Although they generally fly before we actually touch them, a few birds will stay put and allow us to stroke them. Do not imagine they are tame and fearless. Probably they are frightened but are attempting to protect their nestlings.

Probably but a few days old will often freeze when we go near. If a parent is close by it will give the signal for the babies to keep silent and motionless. In early autumn when mother ruffed grouse (erroneously called "partridge" by Lend Lease hunters) takes her large brood for a walk they often encounter enemies, such as sly boreal foxes. Their lives depend upon the lesson they have been taught. Each little ball of down remains perfectly stop running and crouches down. The variegated plumage is then sufficient camouflage.

When you come to think of it, owls are seldom seen, yet they are present in the daylight hours sitting quietly on some branch, sleeping peacefully because they have successfully used the "freeze" method.

We are often puzzled because we cannot find a particular bird when we know it just flew into a certain bush. However, we are probably looking directly at it. Our eyes see it, but because there is no movement our brain is not notified.

DESERONTO

Rough Schedule for Chief, Visits 19 Indian Reserves In 21-Day Stretch on Road

DESERONTO — Visiting nineteen Indian Reserves in Ontario within twenty-one days could be a tough assignment for any hockey player.

And add some number of speeches, question periods, and empty-tine autographs and it's evident you'd think twice about his chosen profession.

Last Thursday night he made speech number 19 to an eager crowd of young and old at the Tyendinaga Mohawk Reserve just east of Belleville.

The Council House wasn't full. And George arrived late. But that didn't bother Chief Shoo-Pack-Armstrong or his audience.

"I just came on Indian time," said George. "Any old time. That's a time you understand but not Punch Imlach. He notices, unfortunately, time. If you're a minute late at training camp he fines you."

HOW TOUR STARTED

The Chief went on to explain that he being an Indian himself, couldn't be carried. Friends of his in the Department of Lands and Forests had asked that hockey captain to speak on TV and attended all sorts of functions in the white man's world before he was carried their message to the Canadian Indian Reserves.

"They suggested that I visit you people and talk about hockey. And that sort just fine by me. But I'm on contract with the Maple Leaf organization so I had to get permission."

George not only got permission from Harold Ballard, vice president of the Leaf organization but got his promise to attend fifty per cent of the expenses as well.

That figures to be a lot of money since the Chief's itinerary has included such places as Moose Factory in the north and Fort Frances on the Manitoba border.

The Maple Leaf Captain points out that Indians are poorly represented in the NHL.

"There are only two of us, Jimmy Nelson of the Rangers and myself. Yet the Indian should be as capable as the white man in this sport. He has good legs and possesses common sense. They are the best ingredients."

One thing the champ was definite about: he doesn't think much of people who complain about lack of equipment or a place to play.

LEARNING SIMPLE

"You don't need the Maple Leaf Gardens to learn how to play. You need a Cadillac to learn to drive. If you have skates, a ball and stick, plenty of ice you have all you need."

George tells of how his father got him started at age of 4 and had to wear was a pair of girls' skates. But that didn't stop him. I played my first league games that year and was in my first playoffs."

"We played in 28 below zero weather. It was so cold no one came to watch but my Dad. And they had to use him as a goal judge. In those days they stood behind the net. So after a while my Dad and the opposing goalie got talking about our team.

"I'm not worried about most of those guys," says the goalie, "but when that big fellow stood down the ice I'm a little scared." What fellow is that?" says Dad." "That big Chinaman down there", says the goalie, pointing it me. So you see, I wasn't always an Indian.

REWARDS GOOD

"But I am now, and I want to point out that hockey has been very good to me. And it can be good to you, too. Do you know that a rookie with the Leafs last year earned a salary of $8000 plus bonuses of over four thousand dollars? That kind of money is worth shooting at."

"Money playing hockey bought me that. Besides a good salary you get expense money for meals. Lots of players save for that. Take Johnny Bower for instance. He gives his son a dollar a week allowance, and his son is pretty good. But he saves so much of what he earns that he's only guy I know of that has a smaller weekly allowance than his son."

Armstrong was quick to point out that you don't get the good things in life for nothing work for them.

"You don't get anything for nothing that is good. You pay for it, not with money but with work. So make up your minds to work now, and hard and at school and then you will be able to enjoy which your work will bring you."

It may not seem to the Aristotle talking. But it makes sense. And the Chief should. He's worked hard to make the Leafs and knows that from now on any year could be his last. So he continues to work hard.

PLAY TO WIN

His challenge to the Indian was a clear one.

"Whether you win or lose it takes the same amount of time to play the game. You might as well play to win. It's the same in living. We might as well make the best use of what is being given us.

George leers because he has no weaknesses.

What about some of the deals that have been made by Mr. Imlach?

"I've said they've been wrong in the past, like in the Morrison-Stanley deal. But where's Morrison today? You can be sure that Punch Imlach knows what he is doing."

How long can you expect to stay in the NHL?

"Until you reach your peak, which is usually at about 30 years of age. After that it depends upon how fast and slowly you fall off. Sid Smith scored 34 goals one year, 4 the next. It's a game. But look at Bower. He's 74 and still playing."

74 Fatalities Across Canada During Weekend

BY THE CANADIAN PRESS

At least 74 persons died in accidents across Canada during the weekend, 65 of them in traffic accidents.

A survey by The Canadian Press from 6 p.m. Friday to midnight Sunday, local times, showed that besides the 65 killed on the roads, three persons were drowned, two died in fires and four in unclassified accidents.

Ontario led the toll with 27 fatalities. Twenty - three died in traffic accidents, one person was drowned, one died in a fire, one child was shot to death in his home and a man was crushed to death beneath a train.

In Quebec, where there were 14 deaths, 13 were in traffic accidents and one person died in a fire.

Saskatchewan had 10 fatalities, nine in traffic mishaps and one man crushed under his car when an auto jack slipped.

EIGHT DIE IN ALBERTA

Alberta had eight traffic deaths and in British Columbia five persons died, three on the roads, one in a drowning and one in a fall. Manitoba had four traffic deaths.

Newfoundland and New Brunswick had two traffic deaths each while in Nova Scotia there were also two fatalities, one on the roads and one in a drowning.

Protest

independence style "satyagrahas," or peaceful demonstrations, in all major cities. They hope to gain the support of 1,000,000 Indians.

All police and military leave affecting units based near the cities was reported cancelled. Leading police officials from across India, were conferred here recently, were assigned a central control room where police moves could be co-ordinated.

A series of one-day general strikes in three states kicked off the Communist campaign three weeks ago.

Serious clashes occurred at the cotton mill town of Ahmadabad, western India, where six persons were killed and Allahabad, northern India where 30 were arrested and more than 50 injured.

The protest leaders have based their hopes for general support on popular discontent with the rising cost of living in India.

The government has entered a critical period with six weeks remaining before harvest of winter crops. Rice and wheat are already scarce and food lines have begun appearing at grain shops in several parts of the country.

Some 200 were arrested in midnight swoops by police in town in southern India before they could launch their demonstrations.

The others were arrested when they picketed wholesale grain markets and state legislative assembly gates in New-Delhi, Lucknow, Bombay, Calcutta, Madras and other centres.

Sixty Communists were arrested while picketing the Uttar Pradesh state legislature in Lucknow and another 31 were arrested in Jaipur as they picketed the Rajasthan state legislature.

Nam, now living near Bien Hoa, 15 miles outside the capital.

The demonstrators passed out leaflets denouncing student leaders who "create division in our ranks and who play into the hands of the neutralists and Communists in this time of emergency."

As in the earlier disorders, police stood by without interfering. Firemen doused the flames before they could wreck the building but the interior was ruined.

Troops are reported on call outside Saigon, ready to move into the capital if the demonstrators begin using firearms or grenades. Intelligence reports indicated the Communist Viet Cong may smuggle grenades to the students.

Leaders of the university students union claimed that the majority of students in Saigon do not support the demonstrators.

DAMAGE SCHOOL

In Hue, 400 miles north of Saigon, about 1,000 students attacked a Roman Catholic high school run by French priests, smashing windows and furniture. Several priests stayed behind to protect the school.

A mob of about 500 invaded the United States information ministry in Saigon, breaking glass and furniture, in a predawn raid. Government employees remained at their desks at the order of the government.

Student and Buddhist opposition has increased in the last week since Nguyen Khanh's military junta elevated him from provincial president and promulgated a constitution giving Khanh extraordinary power in a national emergency.

FORM COMMITTEE

A student clique announced formation of a "fight" committee and threatened violent demonstrations in Saigon's central market place, in front of the presidential office building and elsewhere if Khanh does not accept a student ultimatum for his resignation by Tuesday.

The students are demanding the formation of popular government. Khanh told them in a direct confrontation Saturday that a pop ular election couldn't be held until the Viet Cong has been defeated.

The lack of solid leadership, meanwhile, announced the formation of a new movement for "Buddhist solidarity against danger." A similar League for Protection of Buddhism was the key organization in the Buddhist fight last year to overthrow the regime of the late president Ngo Dinh Diem, a Roman Catholic. Khanh is a Buddhist.

Buddhists said they would support Khanh's government "if it really respects freedom and democracy, including freedom of religion."

On a street near Saigon Airport, a 53-year-old man set himself afire Sunday in the style of the Buddhist suicides that last year after telling his daughter he was angry with the government. He was taken to hospital with severe burns.

A Grave for 500,000 Warriors
Verdun - The Slaughterhouse of History

BY RODNEY ANGOVE

VERDUN, France AP)—One can still get a fright in the fields of Flanders, where some of the First World War's bloodiest battles were fought.

Not long ago a lone tourist was quietly surveying the trenches. Suddenly shouts and gunfire echoed from a neighboring wood. Terrified, the tourist jumped into a trench and splashed through water toward a shelter. A rusty British helmet crumbled under his foot.

He found himself in a tunnel about four feet deep with dripping walls. He sloshed along in the stream—20 yards, 50 yards before daylight showed.

There the shooting was louder, but the tourist was reassured—what had sounded like a ghostly battle turned out to be a Flemish hunting party near one of the ragged scars of the war.

It was in August, 1914, the first month of the war, that a mighty - locked mass of more than 1,000,000 men moved in a giant arc from the Belgian border toward Paris. The huge German army was pushing back the French, Belgian and the British forces of the British Expeditionary Force.

ATTACK MAIN TACTIC

The German command believed that the only way to make war was to attack, attack and then attack again. It had no tactics against the terrible new weapon, the machine gun, nicknamed the "coffee mill" because of the way it could cut down whole fields of riflemen.

The French backed barbed wire and their own machine-guns to throw up a defensive line. Behind the grenades believed Frenchmen didn't fight well in trenches.

The Germans planned to sweep just east of Paris and double back toward Verdun enveloping the French army. But the French foot soldiers, mostly farm boys, clung stubbornly to their positions and would not break.

The Germans were 17 miles from Paris when French headquarters noticed their right wing was beginning to pull away from the capital. The Germans thought they had won the game and could turn to mop up the encircling French. This was a major mistake. The time was ripe for a counter-attack on the exposed German flank.

TROOPS RODE TAXIS

It was ordered by Gen. Joseph Simon Gallieni, commanding the troops in Paris. This was the battle in which he rushed 6,000 reserves to the front in Paris taxicabs.

The Allies pushed the foe across the soft, grassy Marne Valley and might have won a decisive victory except for the prepared German defences along the Aisne River, 50 miles north of the farthest advance.

Frustrated, the Germans attacked Ypres, Belgium, trying to cut through Flanders to the channel port where British reinforcements were coming in. The Belgians opened the sea gates and drowned men and mules by the hundreds north of Ypres. It was in the Ypres area that Canadians made a great stand.

The Germans dug into the halfmoon of low hills south and east of Ypres and shelled the prosperous, picturesque town of 17,000 into a pile of rubble.

Uncounted monuments and 170 military cemeteries today testify to the horror of the trenches around Ypres. Local historians say nearly 500,000 men of both sides died in the Ypres area. "Blown to bits" say the records.

Commanders could think of no way to break the stalemate of the stinking trenches, where only the new medicines of the day prevented epidemics from wiping out both sides.

On bitterly-disputed Pusschendaele ridge in Flanders, the Germans released gas for the first time. The French suffered 20,000 casualties.

CANADIAN STRONGHOLD

Hill 62, a Canadian stronghold, reflects the story in ghastly trenches, underground shelters and shell holes preserved as a tourist sight. A frightening collection of photographs of the epoch can be seen in the nearby private museum.

On Hill 60, neither the rich grass nor the poppies of Flanders can hide the craters where engineers, tunnelling as far as a mile at a depth of 100 feet, blew up whole hilltops.

On the long French front, commanders adopted reckless tactics to break the trench deadlock of 1915, 1916 and 1917. The tanks, which Leonardo Da Vinci envisaged centuries ago, could have cut through and put the war back into motion, but unimaginative military men—the same who pooh-poohed airplanes resisted such new-fangled devices.

The only assault weapon remained masses of running men. But they couldn't punch through and tens of thousands fell without changing the outcome of the VEW YARDS APART war in any way.

At Vimy ridge in northern France, the Canadians held

Civil rights and the South remained the basic problem for the four-day convention whose 5,280 delegates and alternatives streamed into this gaudy boardwalk city Sunday.

Today's agenda called for an 8:30 p.m. convening, traditional opening rites and the keynote speech by Senator John Pastore, a fiery little orator of Italian descent from Rhode Island.

The formality of nominating President Johnson comes Wednesday night when — unless he chooses to break the secret earlier—it will be known whom he has selected as his vice-presidential candidate. Hubert Humphrey, another liberal favorite from Minnesota, continued to lead in speculation about the choice.

ISSUE REPORT

The convention's committee on resolutions and platform also started work Sunday, saying that responsible leadership from the Cuban crisis to the Gulf of Tonkin engagement against North Viet Nam had "turned the tide in favor of freedom." It emphasized that control of the use of nuclear weapons must continue and remain with the president. An slam at assertions by Republican presidential candidate Barry Goldwater that the NATO commander should have some discretion in use of tactical — or small-scale — nuclear weapons.

While the Democrats would continue to strive for further disarmament, it said, it would also "move actively to carry out the resolution of the United Nations of American States to further isolate Castroism and speed the return of freedom and responsibility in Cuba."

Some members of the platform committee also reported they are attempting to gain support for a clear and specific denunciation of extremism, naming the John Birch Society, the Communists and the Ku Klux Klan.

But others said they would oppose the specific naming of organizations in favor of a general renunciation of extremism which is a subject the Democrats say stands as a major weakness in Senator Goldwater's political appeal.

date is scheduled to continue until Friday when the Commons will devote that day to consideration of departmental estimates.

While no further meetings of party leaders are scheduled on the flag impasse after three such sessions failed to reach agreement last week, observers say it is likely there will be more attempts to reach a compromise if the deadlock continues.

Flag Debate Interrupted By Splash Of Red

Galleryite Hurls Carton Of Liquid on Floor

OTTAWA (CP) — A 39-year-old Vancouver man, who hurled a milk carton full of beef blood on to the floor of the House of Commons Monday, was fined $25 in the magistrate's court today.

He was sentenced by Magistrate Joachim Sauve to a fine of $25 plus $2 costs or 10 days in jail. In addition he was ordered to pay $50 for damages or serve an additional 15 days in jail.

Cowlishaw was not represented by counsel.

The Commons' flag debate was interrupted with a splash Monday when the carton of beef blood was hurled on to the six-foot red oak block on the floor and pointed accusing fingers at the opposition members' gallery. Moments later Commons protective staff apprehended a man in the corridor behind the chamber.

Mr. Macdonald claims he belonged to the Communist party of Canada for many years as an RCMP undercover agent but has been ignored by the party since Communist leaders found him out. He is unemployed and lives on $37-a-week welfare.

IDENTIFIES BLOOD

He was in the Parliament Buildings around the time of the incident and told reporters later that the wax milk carton contained animal blood obtained at a local slaughterhouse. The

Banks Asks $110,000 For Home

MONTREAL (CP) — Hal Banks' house is being offered for sale at $110,000, including all its labor-saving accessories.

A spokesman for a Montreal real estate firm said Monday the company was asked to handle the sale by a woman who said she had the authorization of the fugitive union boss.

"We don't know whether we can really proceed with the sale or whether we're going up a dead end," the spokesman said.

The house is registered in Banks' name, he said, and the only way it could be sold in Banks' absence would be through a carte-blanche power of attorney.

The real estate firm, which has not advertised the property in the newspapers, asked that its name not be used.

Banks, deposed head of the Seafarers' International Union of Canada (Ind.), dropped from public view more than a month ago. An attempt was made July 21 to serve a writ ordering him to jail for a month for contempt of court but he could not be located.

When he did not make a scheduled court appearance Aug. 17 on a charge of conspiracy to incite seamen to abandon ship, a bench warrant was issued for his arrest.

Doors Closed On Meet

By RUSSELL ELMAN

OTTAWA (CP) — The third Commonwealth education conference moved behind closed doors today.

Some 200 delegates representing 33 Commonwealth countries and territories began detailed committee sessions on how to solve some of the main educational problems besetting their governments and peoples.

For today's meetings they will be armed with latest report on the Commonwealth scholarship and fellowship plan—one of the key instruments to date in cementing educational co-operation among Commonwealth members.

The scheme launched following the first Commonwealth educational conference at Oxford in 1959, aimed at providing 1,000 scholarships. Canada's pledge was for 250.

The 1963-64 report, released today, shows there were 924 scholarship holders. Canada had awarded 241 and 90 Canadians had obtained scholarships from other countries.

EXPANSION CONSIDERED

It says that Canada now is seriously considering extending its plan to include visiting fellowships at Canadian universities for outstanding Commonwealth scholars.

An announcement by External Affairs Minister Martin, leader of the Canadian delegation, is expected later this week on the Commonwealth scholarship plan.

One of the conference committees will likely be discussing problems raised in the report—the difficulty of attracting applicants for awards offered by less-developed countries and the lack of graduates from certain of the less-developed countries eligible for awards.

Another problem is that of students who do not wish to return home after they have completed their studies.

The report says a number of students from the Canadian government to remain in Canada permanently. The reason given was that they felt opportunity was lacking in their own countries, or because of political changes in their own countries, or because they had married Canadians.

GET WRONG TRAINING

At a press conference Monday, Prof. Samuel Mathai, vice-chancellor of the University of Kerala in India, noted that some students have engaged in studies overseas which bear no relation to the job they will do at home. Government scholarship winners now were being

Mississippi, Alabama Groups Still Bothering Democrats

ATLANTIC CITY (AP)—Credentials committee members resume their search today for some way of seating a Mississippi delegation for the second session of the Democratic national convention.

The first night of the convention ended without a member of the mostly Negro Mississippi Freedom Democratic party or the regular Democrats, an all-white group, taking delegate seats. Both groups were barred because the credentials committee failed to resolve its most difficult problem.

The committee did give the groups guest tickets and some of the Mississippi people used them to get into the hall.

Every delegate from Alabama, those who took a loyalty oath and those who refused, took their seats. They kept

Makarios Goes to Athens To Talk of Settlement Plan

ATHENS (Reuters) — Cypriot President Makarios was expected here today from Nicosia at the invitation of the Greek government for talks on the future of the communally-split island.

Kyprianou said he was convicted the Greek government would not accept any solution to the Cyprus problem unacceptable to the Cyprus government.

According to Cypriot quarters here Makarios rejects the idea of granting Turkey a base on the island in return for enosis (union with Greece).

This was the plan reported to have been put forward in Geneva talks on Cyprus by the

Stinging Attack On Barry

By ARCH MacKENZIE

ATLANTIC CITY, N.J. (CP) A stinging attack on Republican presidential candidate Barry Goldwater brought the opening session of the Democratic national convention to life Monday night.

It also appeared to set the tone for the campaign leading to the Nov. 3 U.S. presidential elections.

"As far as I am concerned, extremism is akin to fascism," said Senator John Pastore of Rhode Island, the pinstriped politician selected to give the traditional keynote address.

He said Arizona Senator Goldwater had been captured by extremists at the San Francisco Republican convention and that "the first business of this convention is to assure our people and the people of the world that on the American political scene, reason and respect and responsibility still survive."

The president must retain full control over the use of nuclear weapons, he said in another Democratic party shaft at Goldwater's stated desire to give NATO commanders discretion for tactical—or limited—use.

REFERS TO HIKE

Without mentioning names, Pastore alluded to the labelling of former president Eisenhower by founder John Birch of the John Birch ultra-right organization as a Communist agent.

"When these fanatics dare to call a president of the United States—a Republican at that—a conscious agent of the Communist party, then I say shame shame on all their houses."

Pastore was applauded frequently by the 5,260 delegates, alternates and other party representatives on the packed hot floor on the Convention Hall.

Today, the convention was turning to more anticipated routine business. The main item is approval of the platform, last part of which was published Monday.

The convention also approved speedily the so-far successful efforts to keep down two differputes rooted in the civil rights issue in the traditionally-Democratic U.S. Deep South.

WOULD BAR DELEGATES

One involved the barring of any of Alabama's 36 delegates who refuse to sign loyalty pledges to President Johnson and whoever he finally decided to pick as his vice-presidential running mate. Some have signed.

The other—deferred again until "further notice"—has been committed to a subcommittee wrestling with the claim of the largely-Negro Mississippi Free-

Urges Municipalities Show Foresight in Urban Renewal

LONDON, Ont. (CP)—Warning that "we don't run everything from Queen's Park," Municipal Affairs Minister Wilfrid Spooner urged Ontario's urban municipalities to take the initiative in establishing urban renewal programs.

He told the Ontario Municipal Association that under a federal - provincial - municipal program the municipalities are required to pay only 25 per cent of urban renewal, but he added that projects must start with the municipality.

Also speaking before the associations annual meeting, Stanley Randall, minister of economics and development, said communities that spend all their effort to attract new industries and neglect established industries are short-sighted.

About 80 per cent of industrial growth comes from expansion of existing firms, and only about 20 per cent from new firms entering the community, he said. Expansion can come from insurance companies, tourist establishments and financial offices, as well as manufacturing and industrial plants.

Mr. Spooner said the provincial and federal governments will share the cost of studies required to make areas suitable for development

Talk of 'Improprieties' Continues Over Alberta Treasurer's Case

EDMONTON (CP) — Political rumblings in Alberta four weeks after the resignation of Provincial Treasurer E. W. Hinman have brought demands for more information in some quarters and a denial of any impropriety from another.

Premier E. C. Manning said July 28 the resignation was requested because Mr. Hinman's private association with the promotion and operation of pou government enterprises was incompatible with the minister's responsibility to his public office.

Demands by opposition parties for more details of Mr. Hinman's interests were echoed during the weekend by the provincial council of the New Democratic Party. It asked the premier to issue a complete statement giving details of the former treasurer's business associations which led to his resignation.

In a front-page editorial Monday, the Edmonton Journal, an Independent newspaper, says:

Today's Chuckle

THE WEATHER

Synopsis: A disturbance centred near Sault Ste. Marie will cross Northern Ontario today and move into northern Quebec tonight. Overcast skies and heavy rains accompany the disturbance through Northern Ontario. A cold front which will cross southern Ontario tonight will bring thunderstorms in most areas.

A high pressure over the American plains states is expected to move into the Great Lakes Wednesday. Skies are expected to clear in all regions but temperatures will remain on the low side in the cool air.

"On the basis of what we have seen, we state the following categorically:

"That there is no evidence on file to substantiate any impropriety or misconduct by any member of the cabinet, including Messrs. Hinman and Hooke (A. J. Hooke, minister of municipal affairs).

"That certain vague allegations have been made in various quarters about Mr. Hooke, but no one has come to support these allegations.

"That Mr. Hinman's resignation followed a genuine difference of opinion between himself and the premier regarding what does and does not constitute a conflict of interest, involving more. While, in our view, the premier's attitude was correct, there was no outright impropriety involved."

On Aug. 7, Premier Manning issued a statement saying that an unnamed "clique" enticed a cabinet minister into a business and exerted pressure on him to give privilge information damaging to the reputation of the government. The premier said there was a threat that, if he refused, his reputation would be endangered and his position in public life would be made untenable.

Gi. Aug. 11, Thomas O'Dwyer, an Edmonton lawyer, said he may have been a member of the group mentioned by the premier. On Saturday, he was quoted by the Calgary Albertan as saying he was at a meeting in an Edmonton home and Mr. Hooke was present.

The newspaper quoted Mr. O'Dwyer as saying allegations of ministerial misconduct were made against Mr. Hooke.

Asked for comment, Mr. Hooke said that Mr. O'Dwyer had not said anything and added: "I still have no comment on anything that man says."

Military Junta Will Be Out After New Election

Students and Buddhists Riot, Martial Law On

SAIGON (Reuters) — South Viet Nam's ruling military junta decided today to withdraw the provisional constitution of Aug. 16 and elect a new chief of state replacing President Nguyen Khanh.

Some 20,000 demonstrating students marched on the presidential villa this morning shortly after Khanh issued a five-point presidential communique aimed at pacifying the demonstrators. It promised revision of the provisionkal constitution drawn up 10 days ago; shortening of the five-hour night curfew by one hour; establishment of a press council to supervise censorship; and punishment of erring local authorities.

The noisy, milling demonstrators, however, demanded that the powerful military junta be replaced by a mixed military and civilian council.

The junta also dwelt-ed to dissolve itself after election of a new chief of state, an official communique said.

CRISIS THREATENED

These decisions appeared to be a virtually complete concession to demands formulated by Buddhist leaders who were threatening to start a new revolt—a crisis similar to that which ousted the Diem regime last November.

The communique issued by the council said the present government would continue in a caretaker capacity for the time being.

The council's decision followed four days of violent stud-

Hurricane Cleo May Hit Cuba

Jamaican weathermen said Cleo is showing remarkable similarity to last year's hurricane Flora which lightly touched Jamaica and then hit Cuba with devastating force, killing more than 1,000 persons.

Havana radio said residents have begun evacuating Cuba's Oriente province.

The Kingston weather bureau said Cleo's 140 mile-an-hour winds were slowed to 110 miles-an-hour by the mountains of Haiti, but are expected to build up again between Jamaica and Cuba.

Although the full force of the hurricane is expected to skirt this island, Jamaicans were warned to prepare for gales and possibly hurricane - force winds.

COVERS 50 MILES PATH

The weather bureau said Cleo's gales extend 150 miles to the north of her center, and about 100 miles to the south.

The distance between Jamaica and Cuba is only 100 miles.

It Takes All Kinds to Make Convention, Democrats Have Them

ATLANTIC CITY (CP) — It takes all kinds to make an American political convention and the Democrats have them for their 34th national show.

The variety is infinite both inside and outside the delegations, comprising 5,260 voting delegates and alternates.

Peek Monday over up her high-society social shop in a rented Atlantic City mansion for a series of champagne-and-caviar functions celebrating her return to the party fold.

Mrs. Peek proved good to take her hostessing talents to the Republicans during the reign of Democrats because they didn't get on.

There is seemingly one new person for every delegate and television is everywhere—camps preparing from every angle of the huge hall, on mobile boardwalk electric carts outside and on specially-built decks.

There are New Jersey state police ringing the seven-acre convention hall, because they are tourists—the Atlantic city bread and butter trade—passing in slow processions again and forth along the boardwalk.

On one side is the Atlantic, available at a newsstand against a wide and dirty beach jammed with people. On the other is perhaps the most teeming commercial area in the country joining lofty hotels, burlesque joints, ferris wheels, amusement parks, bars and other tawdry attractions in tight and gaudy row.

The hierarchy of the Negro groups are here to be the other side of the coin represented by segregationist George Wallace, Alabama governor and delegates from the south who buck

Two full-page newspaper advertisements appeared in the Atlantic City press Monday, each inserted by segregation forces opposed to a plank to be proposed by the Independent American Democratic conservative political action newspaper group based at New Orleans, and called for Democrats to back Republican Senator Barry Goldwater's race against President Johnson.

The other from the Citizens' Council of America at Jackson, Miss., quotes Thomas Jefferson in opposing integration.

Inside the convention hall is another world—from the basement fully occupied by news media to the hall itself which can hold about 60,000 and the adjacent corridors where the national party officials have been laboring. The hall resembles a huge prairie curling rink in the quonset style.

The floor is by the entrance by a soundtruck blaring a song endlessly with the main refrain: "Hurray, hurray, hurray for LBJ." The next attraction is a huge display of items from Johnson memorabilia — records and books emphasizing the Johnson name and jolitais and available at a price.

The theme throughout is "LBJ for the U.S.A." which reaches its highwater mark in the convention hall with two huge pictures of Johnson dominating the platform under like-sized ones of the late President Kennedy, Franklin Roosevelt and Harry Truman.

But Johnson himself won't be on hand until Thursday although his personal hand is evident everywhere in the convention operations.

He seems to be about the only man missing.

Playground Activities

BAYVIEW HEIGHTS

Negro's Fight For Civil Rights Main Theme

By AECH MacKENZIE

ATLANTIC CITY, N.J (CP) The American Negro's fight for civil rights hangs heavily over the Democratic party convention and U.S. national politics generally.

Inside the Convention Hall, it exists in the prolonged sweltering-filled-room struggle by committees to head off an open rift with Southern Democrats. A key aspect is the effort of a largely lily-white team from Mississippi to represent the state.

Outside, on the crowded boardwalk filled with tourists in pretty girls in bathing suits and tatty candy, it finds expression in the shouting of a few Negro spiritual sung by Negro and white civil rights demonstrators under a forest of placards.

It is represented too in the steady circling of four members of the White Party of America, of a group protesting the Vietnam war and of two daughters in schools to broaden integration in the South—and in a nearby bathtub a "Mississippi terror truck" bearing the fire-bombed evidence of anti-Negro violence there.

"And we shall have equality," the civil rights groups sing. The demonstrators who will be here until the convention ends on Thursday night stand quietly, march in orderly fashion and sometimes squat on the boardwalk—all under the eye of New Jersey state police who keep them well apart.

BACK WALLED

Karl R. Allen, 33, born in Florida, is the first party leader of the White Party of America. He and his three followers march slowly and quietly -back to back, with placards urging the election of Alabama Governor George Wallace, an avowed segregationist, as president.

Allen's platform simply is for repatriation of all Negroes back to Africa. His young organization has 1500 members, he said.

Two blocks away there are few spectators at the old truck bearing a turnout Mississippi car which had belonged to a Negro striving to rally Negroes for voting registration in the state.

Beside it is the bell from a Negro church in Mississippi burned after a vote-registration meeting was held there. The burning of people in a church by three civil rights workers just before they died at the hands of people the FBI still have not identified.

CHOOSE OFFICERS

PETERBOROUGH (CP) — Chief H. S. Knight of Saint John, N.B., Monday was elected president of the Canadian Association of Fire Chiefs at the annual convention. Elected first vice - president was Cecil Upper of Welland. Allan Clark of Lakefield, Ont., was elected secretary - treasurer.

Public Health Work Explained To Rotarians

Monday was Public Health Day for the Rotary Club of Belleville, when members of the local board of health presented a program on "The Public Health Nurse".

Addressing the club's luncheon meeting was Miss K. Abbott, Supervisor of Nurses of the local health department.

Miss Abbott explained the functions of the department and the duties that were performed by the public health nurses and their important role in the community.

Miss Abbott said that each child was given a yearly eye examination upon entering school and when the pupil reaches high school a medical examination is asked for.

"Miss Abbott said the department was involved in a considerable amount of mental health examination before children became involved in social welfare.

"Although this is not the health nurse's field, we try to co-operate with other agencies," she said.

There are six qualified nurses in the health department, the medical officer of health, supervisor of nurses, sanitary inspector and a meat inspector.

The local medical officer of health, Dr. Ross Mitchell, during his brief remarks to the club said that very few municipalities had a meat inspector and that Belleville was fortunate in that it had one.

Dr. Mitchell explained the duties of the various offices within the department.

Members of the local board of health were introduced by the chairman of the board of health, Reeve Ernest Beckwith. Members of the board include: Mrs. Wonnacott, chairman; Enos Lloyd, Mayor Jack R. Ellis, Medical Officer of Health, Dr. R. Metcalfe; Supervisor of Nurses, Miss K. Abbott and Sanitary Inspector, Bob Wellington.

Guests and visiting Rotarians were introduced by Rotarian J. B. Corbie.

Bruce Devine Hooks Into 36-lb. Lunge

The Sports Director of CJBQ will have to look to his laurels especially along angling lines if reports emanating from Wolfe Island are correct. His son Bruce Devine, 16, out fishing with his uncle, Bruce Woodman and Dr. William Watson of New York, who has a summer home at Cape Vincent, booked into the big fellow. The young angler played the fish like a veteran and after a long stretch successfully boated it. A quick trip to land to measure the lunge and the scales showed 36 pounds right on the nose.

This in one of the biggest lunge that has been boated in this area for some time and young Bruce is justifiably proud of his catch. The bass and lunge season around the island is now reaching the peak and no doubt many fine reports will be reported in the next six weeks.

Red Ensign Removed From Flag Pole

This is the second flag to disappear from in front of the local Court House. The Phantom, on one of his buddies, "hit" last Christmas and made away with the prize.

Merritt Watt, the superintendent of the Court House discovered the theft this morning and reported it to local police.

Toronto Boys Elect Trial By Judge, Jury

Breaking and entry charges against two 15-year-old Toronto boys were withdrawn this morning at Belleville Magistrate's Court. But charges of theft, of about $200 worth of clothes from the home of James Young on Station St., were pressed. Represented by Thomas Lafferty, the Belleville boys today elected trial by judge and jury.

Magistrate Phillip E. Baker of Kingston proceeded today with a preliminary enquiry into the case. Evidence was heard both for the prosecution and for the defence, indicates that the boys with two others, who were not in court were at the scene of the alleged crime.

Coastal Steamer Fails to Make Round Trip

VANCOUVER (CP)—A little coastal steamer which set out to prove that the Northwest Passage through the Arctic could be opened to commercial summer navigation has given up her attempt to travel from here to Prebisher Bay and back in one season.

Reports reaching here Monday said the Northland Princess, a 108-foot converted naval Fairmile, was turning back after getting only as far as Unga Island, one of a group of islands south of the Aleutian chain. The ship was expected back here in about 10 days after covering only about one-eighth of the intended distance.

During the gale, the ship drifted aground with her engines stalled.

There was report that unusually bad ice conditions.

The voyage was sponsored by Eldorado Mining and Refining Company and British American Oil Company, both of which have exploration interests in the Arctic. Northland Navigation Company supplied the ship.

As project was promoted by Scott Alexander, Arctic ice expert, and Gerald Wartz, an Ottawa journalist, in an attempt to prove the commercial feasibility of Northwest Passage navigation.

MONTREAL BOOMS

The Port of Montreal appears to be set for its most successful year despite the problem of world water levels. Total cargo handled to July 31 was 11,079,326 tons, an increase of 15 per cent over the same period last year. Most of the increase is attributed to the wheat deal with Russia.

DOUBLE FLOUR EXPORTS

Canada doubled wheat flour exports in the 12 months year, but fell short of a record, the board of grain commissioners reported Monday in Winnipeg. Exports for the year ended July 31 totalled $4,400,000 bushels compared with 2,200,000 in the 1962-63 crop year. The record was set in 1953 when exports totalled 79,500,000 bushels.

OFFER ANNOUNCED

Standard Oil Co. (New Jersey) has announced that it has agreed to buy Potash Co. of America, the largest potash producer in the United States, for about $73,200,000 worth of Standard stock. The proposed purchase is subject to approval by Potash Co. of America stockholders.

Trade Surplus Pared to Half Level of May '63

OTTAWA (CP) — Canadian imports rose much faster than exports during June and the month's trade surplus was pared to less than half the level of May, 1963.

The bureau of statistics said Monday the export surplus in the world - wide commodity trade was $27,800,000 compared with $62,100,000 in June last year.

However, the January - May surplus, fattened by sharp increases in exports earlier, this year, stood at $116,800,000 compared with $102,200,000 in the first five months of last year.

The five-month Canadian trade deficit in the United States was largely halved at $447,700,000 as against $765,400,000 a year earlier.

Meanwhile, the surplus in trade with Britain widened to $244,400,000 from $196,000,000, trade with the rest of the Commonwealth was practically unchanged to produce a $43,200,000 surplus, and the surplus with the rest of the world soared to $296,600,000 from $128,000,000.

In May, Canadian imports rose by eight per cent to $637,600,000 compared with a year earlier. Exports rose only 2.9 per cent to $685,400,000.

In the five-month period, imports were 17.2-per-cent higher at $3,022,000,000 while exports were up 17.1 per cent to $3,136,200,000.

Russia's Offer To Cyprus Is $30,000,000

From AP-Reuters

NICOSIA (CP)—A Soviet Union offer of aid to the Cyprus government headed by President Archbishop Makarios totals $30,000,000 in credits, an authoritative source said Monday.

The Soviet offer is conditional on continued insistence by Makarios for self - determination which would demilitarize Cyprus so far as the North Atlantic Treaty Organization is concerned, the source said.

(Another source, in the Cyprus finance ministry, told Reuters news agency that details of Russian aid for Cyprus had not yet been decided. He denied Monday that Russia had offered $30,000,000 in credits.)

Makarios is under pressure from Greece to refuse Soviet help.

Meanwhile the island's Turkish - Cypriot vice - president charged the economic blockade against Turkish-Cypriots is continuing "in full force" despite promises to the contrary. A Turkish - Cypriot spokesman said Vice-President Fazil Kuchuk made the protest against a Greek - Cypriot blockade to India's Gen. K. S. Thimayya, commander of the United Nations peace force.

An informed Turkish source also said the 650-man Turkish Army contingent on Cyprus is running out of gasoline for its 50 vehicles and also is suffering from food and spare-parts shortages because supplies from Turkey are not getting through.

Russia Has No Real Interest In Cyprus

By JOHN BEST

MOSCOW (CP) — Premier Khrushchev was quoted Monday as having said that there was no danger of the Cyprus crisis developing into a "big war."

Publisher Lord Thomson said Khrushchev made his statement in an interview with him six days ago. Portions of their three-hour talk already have been published in the Soviet and Western press.

Lord Thomson, a Canadian born millionaire who has extensive newspaper holdings in Canada, met the Soviet leader at Tselinograd in the virgin lands territory of Kazakhstan.

He told The Canadian Press he got the impression that Russia doesn't have much real interest in Cyprus — that its reason for its recent involvement is to hit the Soviets' hostility toward Turkey.

ASKED FOR HELP

President Makarios had appealed to the Soviet Union for help against "aggression" by the Turkish-Cypriots, and the Soviet leader replied:

"Khrushchev is always willing to take the other attitude from us," Lord Thomson remarked.

In a statement Aug. 18, the Soviets warned that the Cyprus situation was "fraught with complications" and pledged to defend the Greek-Cypriot island against invasion.

Lord Thomson said Russia would be willing to bring about a British withdrawal from Cyprus, and the dismantling of the military base which Britain maintains there.

Lord Thomson flew back to London Monday following a two-week visit to the Soviet Union during which he visited Georgia, Armenia and The Ukraine in addition to Kazakhstan and the Russian Federal Republic.

Injunction Restricts Number Of Pickets

BRANTFORD (CP) — Management of the Canadian Westinghouse Company Limited obtained a temporary injunction Monday limiting to three the number of pickets at their electrical plant here—scene of violence and 10 arrests earlier in the day.

The injunction, signed by Mr. Justice E. L. Haines, was obtained at the Ontario Supreme Court, Toronto, and imposes restrictions on Harold Robbins, Louis Sowa, Murray Thompson, Alvin Ryan and John Mahalchuk, all of Brantford, are instructed to desist from watching, besetting, picketing, attempting to persuade, encouraging or assembling on or near the Westinghouse property. It also orders the accused not to intimidate, threaten, harm or in any way interfere with the servants, agents, employees, suppliers, patrons or customers of the company.

The injunction followed violence at the plant when between 150 and 200 pickets swarmed around an executive's car and ten persons were arrested.

The 10—one of them Fred Jennings, president of the Brantford Labor Council—later were released on bail till Sept. 10 on charges of obstructing police.

TOLL RISES

HOUSTON, Tex. (AP) — The number of suspected encephalitis cases reported to 179 Monday as the geographical spread of the disease widened over this city of more than 1,000,000 residents. Free inoculations are to be distributed to all citizens of the city's fire stations beginning today. A U.S. Coast Guard helicopter dumped thousands of pounds of insecticide dust along city bayous Monday in an effort to eradicate encephalitis-bearing mosquitoes.

Mechanization Avoids Paying Higher Wages

LONDON, Ont. (CP)—While average farm wages have risen six times since the end of the Second World War, workers have been leaving Ontario agriculture at the rate of 1,000 a month over the same period, Dr. L. H. Patterson, director of the farm economics and statistics branch of the Ontario department of agriculture said Monday.

Speaking to the rural section of the annual convention of the Ontario Municipal Association, Dr. Patterson said the result of higher farm wages has been a "scramble" to avoid them by as much mechanization of farm production as possible.

Very small farms can not support the increased wages, he said, and many of them have been abandoned as full-time farms, he added.

The swing to mechanization has decreased the need for hired help in livestock areas of farming and has increased the output per man to the point where many farms are no longer big enough to provide full-time employment for one man, he said.

Dr. Patterson said that the present forecasts indicate that by the year 2000 the working part of southern Ontario bounded by St. Thomas, London, Stratford, Orangeville, Port Thomas and Cobourg will be lost to agriculture due to urban development.

He said production in parts of Ontario have risen from about $110,000,000 in 1946 to more than $540,000,000 in 1963—a jump of more than six times during a period when taxable assessment rose only about three times.

Taxes based on assessment are likely to bear more heavily on farm property than on those of town dwellers, he added.

STRIKE LOSSES

Britain lost 1,775,000 working days due to strikes and industrial disputes in 1963—the lowest total since 1951.

How About Blood from Dead?

The Vancouver Sun recently reported that "hundreds of operations scheduled for next week may have to be postponed" because of the shortage of blood.

Similar blood shortages have been reported elsewhere, in Toronto for instance. Belleville, too, has heard appeals for blood donors because supplies are low. This situation is general in the summer months, when vacations reduce the number attending Red Cross blood clinics and accident cases are higher.

Is there no better way to meet the demand for blood?

Russia is reported to be successfully using blood from dead persons, starting the practice as far back as the Second Great War. An informed person here tells us that there should be no medical disadvantage in using blood from a corpse, provided the person died from trauma and not from an infectious disease.

Is it not time that we made use of this process? True, it would require considerable organization at hospitals—the blood has to be drained off immediately after death—but this should be less difficult to arrange than the present system of organizing clinics for voluntary donors.

It would be a simple matter to require by law that blood be drained from the bodies of those who died in hospitals, before the bodies are released to undertakers and providing medical authorities at the hospital believe the blood would be useful. It ought to be much simpler to guard against the use of infected blood when the donor has been a hospital patient than when he or she just walks into a clinic, donates blood and walks out again.

The biggest stumbling blocks to such procedure are probably not scientific or organizational problems, but lie in winning society's acceptance of such a scheme. Yet, there would be nothing callous or inhumane about such a procedure. Society has a duty to see that proper care is provided for the sick. It has no duty to cater to the whims of those who would deny their life-preserving blood to others, after it was of no practical use to them.

Whether acceptable blood from cadavers would meet all our needs, we do not know. But it is obvious that its use, if feasible, would alleviate shortages. If it made it possible to eliminate blood donor clinics entirely, what a worthwhile saving in the time of organizers and donors alike would result!

Spoiling the Pension Broth

That seems to be an explanation of what has happened to Ontario's law requiring pension plans to be portable which becomes effective January 1, 1965.

The Toronto Globe and Mail has published an appraisal of the revised Ontario legislation and concludes that for years benefits will be slight.

As the law now stands, it does not require pension rights to be vested in an individual until he reaches the age of 45. The Globe and Mails says that present workers over this age will get scanty benefits because the law is not retroactive.

It never was proposed that the law should cover pension contributions made before the effective date of the law. What is new, though, is that the amended law does not provide for full vesting rights until a worker reaches the age of 45. As originally passed, the law provided for full vesting of basic, non-commuted pension contributions at 30, with contributions for benefits in excess of this minimum being vested with the worker at 45. Because of the proposed Canada Pension Plan, all benefits under private pension plans are now considered supplemental, and an earlier clause making it compulsory for all companies with 15 or more employees to institute plans meeting a minimum standard, has been eliminated.

The change would not be unreasonable if the Canada Pension Plan were in operation—but it is not and at the rate at which the House of Commons is handling business these days its implementation may be several years away. In the meantime, Ontario workers will be worse off than they would have been if the federal plan had never been mentioned.

The setting sun will always set me to rights —or if a sparrow come before my window, I take part in its existence and pick about the gravel— John Keats.

Ottawa Offbeat

Martin 'His Beatitude,' Pearson Called 'Hard Case'

By RICHARD JACKSON
From The Intelligencer's Ottawa Bureau

OTTAWA—The two o'clock assembly bells were ringing the other afternoon, all through the Centre and West Blocks, and MPs were streaming along the corridors to the Commons and the start of the long day's business, which, as usual, would open with questions about Cyprus, the continuing crisis-island.

But Defence Minister Hellyer was headed the other way.

"Not going in today?" somebody asked, innocently.

"Guess I'll have to," he grinned, not so innocently, as he pulled up short and about-turned, "got to hear what His Beatitude has to say."

Now who, pray, might "His Beatitude" be?

Prime Minister Pearson? Uh uh.

Conservative Leader Diefenbaker? Guess again.

And, of course, nobody really had to ask why "His Beatitude" was. For everybody knew even "His Beatitude" himself when he heard the crack later, and beamed in amiable appreciation.

He has become one of the "musts" for the better than half million summer-evening recital of "Der Rosenkavalier" on the Peace Tower Carillon.

The Hon. Paul has preferred watching "Oom Paul" envelop the Commons in a fog of those great misty clouds of answers to his taking the Capital's "scenic drive" along the Gatineau Parkway.

When Mr. Martin is scheduled to speak, the Lakhead's NDP Deputy Douglas Fisher has suggested, there really ought to be an address system at the main door of the Centre Block -- "it might help poor Walter Gordon with his finance minister's deficit."

A HARD CASE

Remarkably candid, it shows the Prime Minister, in larger-than-life-size, with his jaw stuck out belligerently.

Then, too, there's a quite discernible shadow of a five o'clock ability, an easy, relaxed personality, reasonably ready, always to compromise and to see two ways and sometimes further, to reach an accommodation.

Wrong! Emphatically, insists Mr. Matheson.

Well, if the Prime Minister isn't the amiable man almost everybody has thought him.

Then what, in fact, is he?

"Stubborn, unyielding as a cement wall. Irish, north Irish, the typical kind of Irish.

"The Pearsons come from Guelph, a tough gunner's town—George Pearson's son, ask about him there, and they will tell you this man Pearson's a rock, a hard, hard rock."

MAN FROM MI-5

The Prime Minister, a First War volunteer at 17, a seminary baseball player, and even now able to run easily through a hard set of tennis, in Mr. Matheson's words, is a tenacious egg "with a hard mind to match a hard body."

John Matheson is the Prime Minister's Parliamentary expert on heraldry and worked long and closely with him on the research for the design of the new flag.

So maybe, being closer than most to him, he knows.

But who is John Matheson to know what makes up what he salutes as "a hard case, an extremely tough guy?"

Well, it just so happens he was one himself, a little more than 20 years ago.

A world War II British intelligence agent, he worked variously and successfully for the famed MI-5 Bureau and was on some touch-and-go Secret Service assignments in occupied Europe.

A kind of Canadian James Bond, from Brockville, that charming old St. Lawrence-Front Ontario town, of all places. He doesn't talk much about it, but he's much admirers can spin some thrill-

Photophone Now in Use

Watertown Times

On May 16, the Bell Telephone System announced that it had asked the Federal Communications commission to approve rates for the new Picturephone system between public locations in three cities, and that it hoped to open service "next month" between New York, Chicago and Washington.

Showing the snail's pace at which government agencies normally move, it seemed questionable whether the "next month" goal would become a reality. But, lo and behold, it did.

Limited commercial service between those three cities was inaugurated by a series of ceremonial calls — a month and eight days after May 16.

At present, of course, Picturephone calls can be placed and received only at one specific booth in each of the three cities. How long it will be before home service becomes commonplace is a matter of factor, depending largely upon the imagination — and pocketbooks — of the buyer.

Why? Because it cost $16 for a three-minute see-as-you-talk call from New York to Washington; $27 New York to Chicago; or $21 between Chicago and Washington.

The Picturephone will some day be as normal as the current instrument. It will be used by police for viewing suspected criminals, by salesmen to show products. It could open a whole new world for the deaf who read lips or finger motions. And grandpa and grandma certainly will have to have one — to view far-away grandchildren.

Languages Get Mixed

Financial Post

Québec sticklers for the purity of French complain that too many English words are creeping in.

In France itself howls of anguish about the same calamity may be heard.

His list of current French barbarisms, in a book called Parlez-vous Franglais? is astonishing.

It was long ago that the French adopted rosbif.

Today in a Paris restaurant, it appears, you must be understood if you order un hamburger or (which heaven forbid you should), or le pudding.

On the golf course you hire un caddy, drive off from le tee and have a drink in le clubhouse. You can rent un penthouse.

Here is a mixed bag from Etiamble's lexicon of lapses: le cold cream, le non-sens, le pickpocket, le paguet de quitches (whatever that is), le super girl, bombes-atomiques, commando, jeep, jet.

Spelling, idiom and inflection are affected. Words ending in ique are being spelled -ik.

What indeed is happening, as he asks indignantly, to the language of Molière, Racine or Hugo?

Of course, English has pulloined hundreds of words from French; but nowadays, because of U.S. influence, the corruption (if that is what it is) is mostly in the other direction.

The process is pretty sure to continue regardless of time and tide, world war or even General de Gaulle.

Dean of Canadian service club men, Mr. J. O. Herity, past district governor of the Rotary Club, has been appointed the Canadian representative of Rotary to a special meeting of the International Rotarians at Excelsior Springs, Missouri. The meeting will be attended by seven members of a special committee organized last year to consider the problems of Rotarians affected by the war. Attending besides Mr. Herity, will be a representative from Australia and five from the United States.

Mr. Herity's appointment was made by International Mr. Richard Wells, and came through Rotary International headquarters at Chicago. The conference which takes place on Sept. 12th and 13th will be held in the Elms, Excelsior Springs, Mo.

One of the greatest hours in the war has struck Paris has been liberated from the German occupation after more than four years under the Nazi yoke. Armed and unarmed sons of France have thrown off the shackles of the Hitler armies. The rise of the sons of France was admirably timed. With the smashing drives of the Allied armies in the west, sweeping away the wreckage of the German armies, the time came for the French and the under. And speed to rise. It was a scene with which France has before been familiar, it meant street fighting as in the days of the Revolution. The perfect organization of the French forces of the interior was set in motion with 50,00 armed men striking. To aid them were hundreds of thousands of others with whom ever arms they could get and many unarmed. Once again the people of France have smashed tyranny.

Mayor George Tice has issued a proclamation calling for the observance of a holiday tomorrow at midnight on Sunday, August 26th, instead of midnight on Monday Sept. 3rd. With regard to this change Mayor Tice said today, "The main reason for setting back the date is the Belleville Fair. Practically the whole district is out and has been on slow time all summer and reversion to Standard Time will benefit them. The Fair Board greatly. Officers of the Retail Merchants' Association have expressed their willingness to co-operate in this matter.

Old Notes Received By Business College

Editor,
Ontario Intelligencer

This morning's mail delivered to Ontario Business College contained an envelope, mailed in Wellington, in which were four practice bank notes imprinted, good only in the actual business department of Ontario Business College."

These must have been printed after 1880 since a clause from the Bank Act, 53 Victoria Chap. 31, 1890 is quoted on the face of the notes but not obviously very old.

The College desires through the courtesy of your columns to express warm thanks to the anonymous donor and to solicit any further information he, she can furnish in respect of this contribution to the library of this very old college.

Paris was liberated from the Germans 20 years ago today—the 1944-workers Allied forces linked up with patriots within the city who had driven the Nazis out. The German occupation began on June 14, 1940, and although Paris was in many the scene of violent street fighting, the city lived shut up throughout the occupation. French troops under Gen. Jacques Leclerc forced the Germans to evacuate the city when they arose within the Axis defences.

Epistaxis Is a Nose Bleed Can Be Trivial or Serious

By JOSEPH G. MOLNER, M.D.

Dear Dr. Molner: Please advise what causes "epistaxis," how to treat it and prevent its occurrence. I have had two attacks in a year.

I recall "cautery and anterior nasal pack" on a recent bill from the doctor, but I am still in the dark. — E. P. K.

Epistaxis means nose bleeds. It may be trivial or it may be serious.

Some doctor once said that nosebleed may be a warning, a remedy, or a disease.

This, of course, omits the most frequent cause: Trauma, or injury, or, in the direct parlance of childhood, "a punch in the nose."

As a warning, epistaxis can occur in certain blood disorders.

As a remedy, it may be nature's way of relieving high blood pressure.

As a disease, it may indicate an ulcer or some other condition in the nose. (Ulcers probably are second to the "punch in the nose" as a cause.)

The tiny blood vessels of the inside of the nose lie very close to the surface, and are readily broken by injury to the outside of the nose; or by inflammation of the membrane — that's why, along towards the end of a head cold, a hard blowing, a bump, or even no discernible pressure at all can cause a nosebleed.

Most nosebleeds are of no consequence. A few may be. If there be obvious reason, then the physician usually prove to be the explanation. Only occasionally is some more serious condition involved.

"Cautery" means that something was applied to the site of bleeding, either a chemical, such as silver nitrate, or some form of heat, to coagulate the blood and perhaps to destroy an ulcer.

The "pack" means a cotton packing to apply pressure to the bleeding area, just as you might hold a bit of gauze over a minor cut on a finger.

The emergency treatment for a nosebleed consists of packing the opening of the nostril with sterile gauze or cotton and applying a cold cloth or ice pack.

Hold the head forward; this will help a clot to form at the point of bleeding. Holding the head back merely lets the blood flow into the throat instead.

If bleeding recurs, and without apparent reason, and especially if it is heavy and chronic, it may be more investigated.

* * *

Dear Dr. Molner: My child was working at a project using broken colored glass, picking up the pieces with her fingers. Some pieces were very sharp. Someone cautioned me that the fine glass would work its way under the skin and into the blood stream, and then be carried to the heart. Is this true? — Mrs. N. N.

No, it's not true that you have no cause to worry about that. However, a piece of glass could enter the skin and make a sore spot, yet perhaps be hard to find. Better to have your physician or a pair of tweezers and perhaps avoid a sore finger?

Dear Dr. Molner: Do women who have had the uterus removed suffer more with menopause than others? — Mrs. A. B. No.

Harris Sees Possibility of New Calendar

By SYDNEY J. HARRIS

The greatest enemy of progress — any sort of progress — is not a positive evil, such as war, disease, famine, pestilence or ignorance. It is a negative thing: human inertia and apathy.

Consider the least controversial reform that has been proposed in modern times — the adoption of a "world calendar" to replace the present one.

Replacing today's antiquated with a scientific World Calendar would lower taxes, reduce home-budgeting, equalize salary payments, save bookkeeping expenses, standardize school schedules, aid farmers to plan crops, simplify legal procedures, stabilize business planning and benefit everyone.

Our present Gregorian calendar (which was adopted hundreds of years ago) is itself an improvement over the old Julian calendar) is responsible for tremendous confusion, waste and expense.

There are 52 different kinds of months; quarters and months begin and end on any day of the week; quarters are unequal in lengths; days and dates never agree from year to year; holidays vary; banks begin on different weekdays; and our whole pattern of living is unbalanced, unstable and irregular.

In 1910, calendar reform was launched as a world-wide movement by the International Chamber of Commerce. Scores of business, scientific, educational and labor organizations now support it in principle.

Under the new system, we would have one unvarying calendar year; quarters would always begin and end on a Sunday; each month would have 26 weekdays, plus Sundays; days and dates would always agree from year to year; holidays would be fixed; the year would begin on Sunday, Jan. 1; every year would be comparable to the last.

Yet, with all its manifest advantages, the new calendar has suffered from the fact that no special interest is concerned with promoting it. Its benefits are so general and widespread that no individual group was willing to take the time and energy for its promotion. Congress and the United Nations, with no such organization, the World Calendar Association was formed about a dozen years ago, with headquarters in New York City. It is no longer listed in the Manhattan telephone book, and I can only assume it died.

I would be glad to hear if it is still in existence. It seems to me that many of our readers ought to be interested in a project that would help everyone and injure no one. And then we must remember that it took more than 1600 years to switch from the Julian to the Gregorian calendar—and with the impetus of a powerful Pope behind it.

Toronto Stocks

TORONTO (CP)—Prices improved modestly but trading was slow on the stock market today.

Industrials made an irregular advance with gains and losses almost evenly divided. Chrysler, a big gainer Monday, was again in demand, climbing 1¼ to a 1964 high of 61¼. Rothmans tacked on ⅜ to a 1964 peak of 15¾. Bank of Montreal was a ¾ gainer at 69¼ while Steloo and Dominion Steel were ahead ¼ each to 26¾ and 23¼ respectively. While there was a lengthy list of losers, declines were restricted to about ¼.

Speculative mining issues were featureless. Baglan eased 11 cents in profit taking to 3.60 while New Calumet experienced the same fate with a loss of six to 82 cents.

Golds were higher. Dickenson was up 15 cents to $5 and Giant Yellowknife ⅛ to 12.

Base metals were led higher by ⅛ gains to Geco at 38⅜ and Cominco at 36.

In western oils, Medallion dipped 10 cents to $5.15.

On index, industrials gained .06 to 150.36, golds .46 to 135.27, base metals .05 to 67.58 and the Exchange index .07 to 148.83. Western oils eased .04 to 96.00. Volume at 11 a.m. was 602,000 shares compared with 837,000 shares traded at the same time Monday.

Prices were mixed Monday. The market had an undertone of weakness.

Industrials showed a .02 gain to 150.30 on index as the group wandered aimlessly throughout the day. Chrysler climbed to a 1964 peak of 60 with a 1¼ gain while Moore Corp. lost support with an advance of 1 to 56½. Trans-Canada Pipe Lines and Dominion Stores tacked on ½ each, to 41 and 21⅜, respectively.

Rothmans was at a 1964 top of 15 with a ¾ gain as cigarette sales appear to be on the upswing after a depression in the first part of this year.

CPR dipped ⅛ to 47 while Bank of Montreal and Toronto-Dominion Bank lost the same amount, at 69¾ and 77¾.

Baglan brought some joy to the speculative section, gaining 16 cents to $2.15 in active dealings. New Calumet advanced nine to 88 cents, Norpax 1¼ to 16½ cents and Jobsites ½ to 20 cents. Windfall continued to decline, losing four to 52 cents.

Senior base metals were weak. Labrador gave up ¼ to 34, Inco ½ to 85 and Falconbridge ¼ to 76. Opemiska dipped 15 cents to 8.60. Noranda recovered with a ¼ gain to 46¾.

On index, base metals fell .31 to 67.32, western oils .29 to 96.04 and the exchange Index .81 to 148.76. Golds gained .51 to 135.73. Volume for the session was 3,021,000 shares compared with 3,555,000 Friday.

Rescue Workers Recover Bodies Of Two Miners

KIRKLAND LAKE (CP) — Rescue workers recovered Monday the bodies of two Kirkland Lake miners who were trapped 10 days ago in a violent rockburst at the Wright-Hargreaves mine.

A statement by mine manager Frank Buckle said the bodies of Donald Yaworski, 45, and Edouard Duchesne, 55, were recovered from the mine's 4,000-foot level Monday afternoon.

The statement said: "It is with deepest regret that we have to report both men were dead and to their families we extend sincere sympathy."

The two men were part of a shift of 65 men working in the mine at the time of the first and apparently fatal rockburst at 9:20 p.m. Aug. 14.

Rescue operations were hampered from the start by further rockbursts and cave-ins. The mine statement said workings at the mine have been damaged through a known vertical range of 2,000 feet and an unknown lateral extent.

Yaworski, a widower, is survived by two teen-age sons and a married daughter while Duchesne leaves four sons, a daughter and 11 grandchildren.

Dr. Tom Armstrong, district coroner, said an inquest will be held within two weeks.

In a welcoming address, Mayor Gordon Stronach of London called for more unified action between the Ontario Mayors and Reeves Association and the municipalities association in presenting briefs to the Ontario government.

Mayor Stronach, president of the Ontario Mayors and Reeves Association, said too often the province pays only lip service to the briefs and then forgets them. If the resolutions are sent to the government in the same serious manner in which they are proposed and ir a unified way then the province cannot reject them.

But OMA President Ernest C. Reid of St. Thomas cautioned that municipal problems should not always be taken in the provincial government. He said a special legislation is often sought by municipalities to solve problems that could be handled by existing legislation if officials were willing to use it.

A panel of labor relations experts denounced Ontario legislation permitting the denial of bargaining rights to municipal employees.

Dr. J. H. G. Crispo, associate professor of industrial relations at the University of Toronto; Stanley Little, national president of Canadian Union of Public Employees (CLC); and S. E. Diendale, Toronto lawyer and labor relations consultant, agreed, that Section 89 of the Ontario Labor Relations Act should be repealed.

PERMITS EXCLUSION

The section permits municipal councils and boards to pass bylaws excluding their employees from the provisions of the Ontario Labor Relations Act. When the section is invoked none of the collective bargaining procedures called for under the act need be recognized by municipal agencies or labor.

The panelists warned the OMA against impulsive acceptance of compulsory arbitration as a solution to municipal labor disputes and as a strike preventative.

Mr. Dinsdale said he is not wholly opposed to the principle of compulsory arbitration and supports the approach recommended in July by the royal commission on compulsory arbitration of hospital disputes. The commission, headed by Judge Colin E. Bennett of Owen Sound, recommended legislation to provide compulsory arbitration in hospital labor disputes when patient care is seriously threatened.

In an address to the rural section of the convention Dr. L. H. Patterson, director of the farm economics and statistics branch of the Ontario department of agriculture, said a boost in farm labor wages had stimulated the mechanization of farm production.

He said workers have been leaving agriculture at the rate of 1,000 a month in Ontario since the end of the war. He said the trend is onward enlarged but fewer farms.

The Indian educationist also stressed the need for careful vigilance so that when governments provide funds for expanding educational facilities the educational institutions are not made wholly instruments of national policy.

Sir Willis Jackson, head of the electrical engineering department at the Imperial College of Science and Technology, London, said more importance needed to be given to training people such as technicians who do not require a formal university education.

They deserved to have status boosted in relation to the importance of the work they carried out. However, he conceded that a formal university education had a snob appeal among a wide section of the population.

HERE TO STUDY HYDRO OPERATIONS—Emmanuel A. Mensah of the Volta River Authority in Ghana discusses Eastern Region operations with E. A. Smith, operating supervisor of the Eastern Region. Ontario Hydro will operate the power plant on the Volta River for the first two years of its use.

Ghanaian in City to Study Workings of Ontario Hydro

"Faint the heist", as the old saying goes, "than the humidity that makes you feel uncomfortable". And it looks like the old saying is correct.

Emmanuel A. Mensah of the Volta River Authority in Ghana has been in Canada since May first, and he hasn't yet been bothered by the cold. He has, though, felt uncomfortably warm. He explains that while the temperature is often higher in Ghana than he has seen in Canada, the humidity is lower.

But Mr. Mensah didn't come to Canada to comment on the weather, he's here to study the operations of Ontario Hydro. Since May first he has been to Des Joachims, Peterborough and Toronto before his arrival in Belleville last week, and he goes to Cornwall next Thursday. He returns to Ghana about the end of September.

The Volta River Authority will begin operations next year some time, when four generator units are started at a dam site about sixty miles north of Accra, Ghana's capital city, on the coast. The four-unit power project will be one of the world's biggest, (each of the four units will have double the country's present electrical generating capacity), and plans for the dam include provisions for expansion of the project to six units.

Some of the power from the Volta River will go to Accra, and into a national grid, but most will go to an aluminum smelter about sixty miles from the dam. Ghana has long been a major producer of bauxite, the ore from which aluminum is smelted, but has never yet been able to smelt the ore within the country. The Volta River development will provide the power to change all that.

There is also the possibility that Ghana may be able to export power from the Volta development, but there are no concrete plans made so far in this line. Ghana's own needs for power will come first, then the surplus, if any, can be distributed.

Mr. Mensah, who worked at a generating plant in Nigeria for eight years is one of three technicians in Ontario now studying the Ontario Hydro operation. They came here because the machinery for the new power plant is being built in Canada, by Canadian General Electric at Peterborough, and because the power station on the Volta will be operated, for the first two years, by the Ontario Hydro. It is expected that within two years the Hydro engineers and the Ghana government will be able to train enough Ghanians in the operation of the equipment that the Canadian engineers will be able to return home.

The hurricane hit Guadeloupe Saturday, killing at least 14 persons, injuring 100 and causing $50,000,000 damage. In Mexico, weather officials warned that Cleo would hit the Yucatan Channel between Cuba and the Yucatan Peninsula within 48 hours if she remains on course.

Indian Reds Court Arrests By Picketing

NEW DELHI (Reuters)—Indian Communist party demonstrations over rising food prices entered their second day today with reports that more than 1,500 arrests have been made so far.

Some 100,000 party members, including Communist Leader S. A. Dange, launched a five-day, nationwide protest Monday hoping to get the backing of 1,000,000 Indians. Their strategy consisted of courting arrest in peaceful demonstrations and the picketing of banks, stock markets and government offices.

In Madras 632 persons were taken into custody. More than 50 were picked up during a march on New Delhi's central market and hundreds more were arrested as they picketed grain markets and state legislature gates in Lucknow, Bombay, Calcutta and elsewhere.

No violence was reported.

The government, under Prime Minister Lal Bahadur Shastri, currently faces a critical food problem with the winter harvest still more than a month away. Food lines have already begun to form in some communities and the Communist demonstrators hope to be able to take advantage of the unrest.

The protest is Shastri's first test of strength with the Communist party since coming of fice three months ago after the death of Prime Minister Nehru.

The real estate spokesman said the agency was approached Aug. 3 by the woman who said Banks wanted to sell.

Suggested price for the house itself, on Lake St. Louis 13 miles from downtown Montreal, is $90,000 — with the extras bringing the tab up to $110,000.

The house is a white two-storey affair with seven rooms. Extras include:

—An intercom system which includes an arrangement by which a caller must identify himself through a door microphone.

—A fuel outlet on Lake St. Louis, where a dock is included in the property and where Banks kept two yachts.

Clip This Recipe For Dill Pickles

by Mary Moore

After a steady flow of queries arrived in the United States Department of Agriculture Research Service office, regarding spoilage in many home preserved products, they set their teams to work to find and eliminate the trouble.

Canadian housewives reported to me from different and isolated areas that their dill pickles fermented in 1963 The obvious answer is that there are microorganisms and enzymes present which cause this spoilage and they must be inactivated.

Adequate processing in boiling water bath destroys spoilage microorganisms and inactivates enzymes that cause fermentation and off-flavors. This is an extra precautionary step, added to the regular way of preparing dills.

Last August and September I made several batches of dills and sterilized them in boiling water bath and would like the pickle makers in this audience to clip and use this recipe for dills.

TUESDAY

Dinner Menu

Broiled meat cakes, rosebud beets, onions in cheese sauce, sliced tomatoes, compote of plums, applesauce cake (see Monday), tea.

DILL PICKLES (makes about 10 pints):

8½ lbs. cucumbers 3¼" to 4" long (one 5-qt. basket), freshly picked, 3 qts. plus 1 cup water, ¼ cup non-iodized salt, 3¾ cups vinegar, 6 tablespoons non-iodized salt, 2 tablespoons sugar, 6¼ cups water, 1 tablespoon whole mixed pickling spices, whole mustard seed (¼ teaspoon per jar), garlic cloves (1 clove sliced per pint jar), optional, dill blossoms (2 heads per pint).

Wash the cucumbers under running water with a scrubbing brush until thoroughly clean. (This took me 25 minutes.) Drain well. Cover with a cold brine made of the first amount of water (3 qts. plus 1 cup) mixed with the first amount of salt (¼ cup). Be sure cucumbers are covered. (These should not stand in an aluminum container.) In morning drain. Combine vinegar, salt (second amount), sugar, water (second amount) and mixed pickling spices (tied in a thin white cloth). Heat to boiling. Meanwhile pack cucumbers upright in clean hot pint or quart jars, adding mustard seed, dill blossoms and sliced garlic to each (see above). Cover with boiling vinegar-liquid to within ½" of top. Seal. Process in boiling water bath, having water come to within 2" of tops of jars, for 20 minutes, counting time as soon as jars are placed in the boiling water. Carefully remove jars, tighten seals (never loosen) and let cool in upright position.

Convention Formally Opened

By BRENDA LARGE

CHARLOTTETOWN (CP) — With prayer and song, the 44th annual convention of the Catholic Women's League of Canada was formally opened Monday night in a moving 80-minute ceremony.

More than 800 women, representing the league's 180,000 members in 1,800 groups from coast to coast, heard their new national director, Most Rev. Thomas J. McCarthy, Bishop of St. Catharines, deliver the opening address of the five day meeting. He told them they should be as well informed as possible on problems of a moral and social nature.

"As Canadians, we cannot escape involvement in what is transpiring in Canada; each of us has an obligation to fashion an informed opinion and to try to understand calmly and objectively the opinions of others.

"Unless the majority of Canadians are mature enough for the give and take which all human society demands of its members, Canada is headed for evil days."

Most Rev. Malcolm A. MacEachern, Bishop of Charlottetown, said the church is looking at itself today to see what its image is in the modern world—and there is no reason why its organizations should not do the same thing."

He also told the women that federal, provincial and municipal authorities listened to them when they made representations, "not in the hope of winning your votes, but because they know you are serious in your requests."

The league's approach to radio, television and films in the light of its theme, "for God and Canada—a modern apostolate," was to be discussed today.

Home Economists at Macdonald Institute, Guelph, say that baking sheets require no greasing for rolled or icebox cookies, but do require greasing for dropped batters or cookie bars.

Ann Landers

Handicapped Child Should Be Receiving Special Care

DEAR ANN LANDERS — I think there is something wrong with my 14-year-old brother but my parents refuse to talk about it.

Mat is in the fifth grade and I know he should be at least in the ninth. He slays my mother and punches my father and they never say one word to him. Last night at the supper table he threw a glass of water in my father's face. Father just sat there. I asked him why he didn't punish Mat and he answered, "The boy is a fool and nothing can be done about it."

I worry about my brother because he does such cruel and hurtful things. Last week he put my little puppy Perky in the freezing compartment of the refrigerator. If I hadn't accidentally found Perky she would have been dead within the hour.

ANN LANDERS

I've begged my mother to talk to the minister about Mat but she says "This is our cross and we must bear it."

Please tell me what should be done. — AFRAID SISTER.

DEAR SISTER — Mat should be receiving special care and guidance, not only for his own good and his own protection, but for the safety and peace of mind of those around him.

Parents do the mentally handicapped child no favor when they treat such a child as if he were normal.

Ask your mother to speak to the family physician at once and ask for his advice.

• • •

DEAR ANN LANDERS — I know you have mentioned this problem in your column before but people need to be reminded periodically. They seem to forget. I am referring to the obnoxious habit of chewing gum with the mouth wide open.

A woman in our office chews from the minute she sits down at her desk until she leaves at night. We call her "The Old Corn Popper". Not only does the gum go crackle and snap but the dentures go click click click until you could go right straight through the ceiling.

Can it be that this person does not hear herself? I find it difficult to believe. I must conclude that she has no consideration for others.

Please, please, please print this letter, Ann. I will tack it on our bulletin board. Thanks from the bottom of my heart — SOS.

• • •

TO WHOM IT MAY CONCERN — If you are reading this from an office bulletin board and have gum in your mouth, you may be "Old Corn Popper", — so watch it!

• • •

DEAR ANN LANDERS — Why don't you go jump in the lake?

In a recent column you called a man a goof because he was smart enough to ask a lady to list her financial holdings before making her his wife.

On several previous occasion, however, you wholeheartedly encouraged women to get all the facts and figures before they married. Now the preferential treatment?

If she has the right to know all, why doesn't he have the same right? — MERE MALE.

• • •

DEAR MALE — The role of the male is to provide for his wife. She, therefore, has the right to know in advance whether or not she may have to take in laundry — or if she can hire a little day help for herself.

The man who is preoccupied with a woman's financial holdings is invariably looking to take life a bit easier.

• • •

Do you lack self-confidence . . . have trouble making friends? If so, send for ANN LANDERS' booklet, "How To Be Well-Liked", enclosing with your request 20 cents in coin and a long, self-addressed, stamped envelope.

Ann Landers will be glad to help you with your problems. Send them to her in care of this newspaper, enclosing a stamped, self-addressed envelope.

SPEAKING OF MANNERS — BY PATRICIA LEWIS

GIFTS FOR THE HOSTESS

QUESTION: When we went to dinner at the home of friends recently, I was quite chagrined to find that the other guests — there were two other couples — brought the hostess gifts. She opened them then showed each to the rest of us. Naturally I felt like a cheapskate. I think it was rude to make such a point of the gifts and that she should have opened them in her bedroom and thanked those who brought them in private. Wouldn't you say this is a more thoughtful arrangement? — Mrs. F. V., Boston, Mass.

ANSWER: When guests bring hostess gifts to a dinner party, the hostess should be diplomatic and open them in private, so guests who didn't bring something won't be made to feel chintzy.

QUESTION: A friend gave a tea in my honor recently, and I was most flattered by it. When the party was over, I thanked her and said how much I appreciated her kindness and thoughtfulness. Another friend later said I should have sent the hostess a gift after the party. Is this correct? If I had thought this was proper, naturally I would have done so, but I assumed that my verbal — and effusive — thanks at the time as sufficient. — Mrs. H. A., Chicago, Ill.

ANSWER: When a party is given in one's honor, it's customary for the guest of honor to send the hostess a note a day or so later, and to send flowers in appreciation for her thoughtfulness.

MR. AND MRS. MICHAEL JOSEPH NAPHAN

Naphan – Piccione

White gladioli and baby's breath graced the altar of St. Michael's the Archangel Church for the wedding of Mary Josephine Piccione, daughter of Mr. and Mrs. Nicola-Maria Piccione to Michael Joseph Naphan, son of the late Mr. and Mrs. C. P. Naphan of Read.

Rev. Msgr. J. P. Sullivan officiated at the double-ring ceremony. Traditional wedding music was played by organist Miss Dorothy Grant and Miss Josephine Mascaro sang three selections.

The bride, given in marriage by her father, wore a full-length white lace gown with three-quarter length sleeves. Two tiny bows accented the small train in the back. A wedding ring band of lace over satin and a double bow held the elbow-length veil.

The matron of honor was Miss Mafalda Piccione, sister of the bride who wore a full-length gown of shrimp pink satin with matching bolero piece and shoes. She carried a colonial bouquet of white and yellow poons.

The bridesmaids, Mrs. Judy Piccione, sister-in-law of the bride and Marion Piccione, niece of the bride, were full-length pale yellow gowns of silk organza over taffeta. Their matching headpieces were similar to the maid of honor's, a wedding band and net. They carried colonial bouquets of white and salmon pink poons, with white bows and streamers.

All of the bride's attendants were from Scarborough.

The bridegroom's best man was Edward Buckley, who also acted as master of ceremonies at the reception. Ushers were Thomas Jury, nephew of the bridegroom and Douglas Kelly all of Belleville.

Altar boys were Ronald and Peter Jury and Frances and Gordon Naphan, all of Belleville and all great nephews of the bridegroom

She was assisted by the bridegroom's sister, Mrs. Edward Frasso who wore a blue and white figured dress with white accessories. Mrs. Piccione and Mrs. Frasso wore corsages of white gardenias and pink sweetheart roses.

Guests were present from Montreal, Kingston, Scarborough, Trenton, Cobourg, Read, Toronto, Peterboro, Amelasburg and Kemptville.

For their trip to the east coast and Canadian States the bride chose a cinnamon shade of shantung dress with beige accessories and a corsage of pink and white roses.

Prior to her wedding the bride was given two showers by Mrs. G. K. Ashley and the Red Triangle Club.

Mr. and Mrs. Michael Naphan will reside at 47 Strachan St., Belleville.

Mother Takes 5 Children To Farm to Raise Them

By GERRY GRAY
Canadian Press Correspondent

LUND, B.C. (CP)—After five years as a suburban housewife, Doreen Pihle is raising five children, all under seven, in a converted machine shop on an abandoned farm.

Her husband Fred works in a newsprint mill in Powell River, about 15 miles south of here, commuting to work each day.

The Pihle family moved here from Powell River, about 80 miles north of Vancouver, 20 months ago when they decided the children weren't getting a fair shake being brought up in the confines of a sub-division.

They settled on 25 acres of abandoned farmland turned over to them by Doreen's grandfather.

"The first thing I had to do was beat back the bush," Fred says.

First, they cleared a small orchard and Doreen's canning pr blems were solved for the first year.

GOATS PROVIDE MILK

Then they brought in goats to supply milk for the children. Then pigs, which Fred says are "ideal for rooting and as good 'a bulldozer."

Then they stocked up with chickens —they're convinced brown eggs are superior to white eggs in protein — and Pekin ducks and Toulouse later with Muscovy ducks and geese.

"We don't have television forming their minds and they rely on their own initiative to find jobs.

"As for housekeeping, we don't have so much to do. I mean people aren't always dropping in and besides, you expect to find a farmhouse topsy-turvy."

Fred's latest project was to turn an abandoned car engine into a generator to supply electricity.

"That was the big bugaboo," his wife says.

"No electricity — I really didn't think I could survive. Thinking of all the things in our house in Powell River which ran by electricity gave me a headache. I couldn't see how we could do without it.

SOLVES PROBLEMS

"But we did. We not only survived, but flourished. Sure, some things don't get done, but I find that by using my own God - given skills I can surmount almost any problem usually solved by electricity."

Will Power Needed to Stop Biting One's Finger Nails

DEAR DORIS — Being a nail biter for 43 years I have tried all the remedies, with poor results. Somewhere I read that "once a nail biter, always one", and I think there is some truth in this rather negative and discouraging statement. At present I have eight decent nails — which really means I have two acapacities.

However, I have one suggestion which has helped me. It is a kind of "Nails Anonymous" idea. One has to accept the fact that one is a nail biter. Then one says — "I really don't want to bite them" — and then tries to go through one day without doing so. The motivation comes from within.

DORIS CLARK

After one day, one tries a second day. Even a day makes a difference, and I find cuticle remover, nail file and clear polish a help. The first day is the worst. If one fails, one doesn't give up in despair but says — "Well, I really do want to grow them, so I will try tomorrow".

This may not be the whole answer. I'm sure it isn't, but root causes are very hard to find without help from a psychiatrist, and this is rather an extreme cure for such an ailment. — NOT PROUD OF HABIT.

DEAR DORIS — I bit and chewed my nails until I was a married woman with children. I decided perhaps if I would let some of them grow I could cure it, so I just bit the little finger nails and the ring finger nails and let the other six grow.

In a short time they were tough and hard and I didn't want to chew them. Then I let the ring finger nails grow and just bit the little ones. I still bite the little ones at times but never any of the others, and haven't done so for over 20 years. — CURED NAIL BITER.

DEAR NO PROUD AND CURED — So we have two ideas that have worked: the scapegoat, and the one-day-at-a-time technique; neither as costly as psycho-analysis!

I'm sure other desperate chronics will bite on your bait!

CONFIDENTIAL TO LATE FIFTIES — I'll do nothing but egg you on. The interesting widow probably needs you! When you have your party, make him feel at home by putting a plate of sandwiches in his hand to pass. Let him run the record player. Etcetera.

* * *

DEAR DORIS — I am frantic to know what to do. The doctor says I must have a serious operation, which will mean being in the hospital for two or three weeks. Ordinarily my mother could come and take care of my five youngsters, but she broke her leg and can't move for a while.

Where on earth can I find help? — DISMAYED.

* * *

DEAR DISMAYED — Relax. There are those who can take the place of mother, right where you are: capable women who can step in and carry on.

In Belleville this is the Home Visiting Service, sponsored by the Canadian Red Cross Society. Contact Mrs. J. A. Buchanan, 178 Dufferin Ave., telephone WO 2-2925.

* * *

CONFIDENTIAL TO ON FOOT — Having no car license because of your handicap is no tragedy. Lots of people like you meet girls and marry and live their lives without driving a car. Have the spunk to get out and help yourself. Good links, golf partners, and good ideas can attract the ladies better than a Cadillac.

* * *

DEAR DORIS — Every time this fellow takes me out to a dance he leaves me standing there by myself while he goes off and talks to other girls all evening. I've asked him why he does this and he says he is popular and knows them all, which I know is true.

He asks me out and then he calls at the last minute and gives me some excuse, He has hurt me very much, and if I mention this to him he only tells me again that he's popular and that I should be glad I've got one. This hurts me very much, but am getting fed up with this kind of treatment, and still I don't ever want to loose him. Please help me keep him, Doris. — BEING USED.

* * *

DEAR BEING — Take my advice. "Lose him" and let him run away. Putting up with his bad manners cheapens you.

* * *

(Could Doris give you the nerve to do something about what's troubling you? Write her and see — remembering to enclose a five-cent-stamped, self-addressed envelope.)

She has the power now and finds "it's easier, but it's not a matter of life or death if there's no electricity."

Next year, says Fred, "we should have the yard under control and we can concentrate on building a new house."

"It's been fun living in the old shack but we might as well have a bit of comfort for our efforts.

Transformation from town dweller to farmer has had compensations.

"I'm a great hunter and now in the fall all I have to do is walk out to the end of my own land and I can usually bag a deer or two.

"There's also a small stream up there where I can fish.

"It's not all beer and skittles this farming bit, but it has its moments."

MR. AND MRS. HARRY MAURICE HITCHON

Hitchon – Murray

Pink gladioli and white mums adorned the altar in Bethel Chapel, Belleville for the recent marriage of Sharon Ann Murray, daughter of Mr. and Mrs. Peter W. Murray, Belleville to Harry Maurice Hitchon, son of Mr. and Mrs. Eugene P. Hitchon, Belleville. Evangelist William E. Belch officiated at the ceremony.

Mr. William G. Connor presided at the organ and accompanied the soloist, Mrs. Robert Hough in appropriate vocal selections.

The bride, given in marriage by her father wore a bridal gown of nylon organza over peau de soie in the new controlled skirt styling. The fitted bodice was enhanced with a scoop neckline with a band of guipure lace at the waistline. This design of lace was carried out along the bottom of skirt and along the detachable train flowing from the waist. Her headpiece was of matching organza flowerbuds and clusters of large flowers interspersed with guipure lace. She carried a nuburst bouquet of deep red sweetheart roses mingled with ivy.

Miss Margaret Murray, sister of the bride as maid of honor was gowned in street-length pink summer brocade with bell skirt with suspended bow of self fabric. Her headdress was of matching pink rolled rose and she carried a bouquet of white mums and carnations.

The bridesmaids Miss Linda Hitchon of Belleville, cousin of the bridegroom and Miss Nancy Evans of Belleville, cousin of the bride and junior bridesmaid Miss Leslie Murray, sister of the bride were all gowned alike in street-length dresses of pink summer brocade. Their headdresses were matching aqua rolled rose.

Mr. David Hitchon of Belleville attended his brother as groomsman, while Mr. Robert Hough of Hallaway, cousin of the bridegroom and Mr. Douglas Farrell of Moira were ushers with Master James Pearson of Belleville, cousin of the bridegroom as honorary usher.

The reception was held in the parlors of St. Andrew's Presbyterian Church where the bride's table was centred with a three-tier wedding cake topped with miniature bride and bridegroom encircled with tulle and pink roses about the base and flanked with pink and white candles in tri - branch candelabra. The bridal bouquets completed the attractive nuptial setting. Te'egrams were received from Milton and Brockville.

The bride's mother received the guests wearing a turquoise sheath dress with jacket of imported lace, with matching shoes, pale pink accessories and a corsage of mixed pink sweetheart roses. The bridegroom's mother assisted dressed in a pink beige sheath with Alencon lace over taffeta, a large picture hat with matching accessories and a corsage of mixed pink sweetheart roses.

For the wedding trip through New England States and the Maritimes the bride chose a flowered beige sheer over taffeta with picture hat in shades of green and gold, beige accessories and a corsage of yellow Shasta daisies.

The bride was honored previous to the marriage at a kitchen shower given at the home of Mrs. W. Shortt with Mrs. D. Eves as co-hostess; at a kitchen shower given at the home of Mrs. B. Lott of Ameliasburg; at a miscellaneous shower at the home of Miss Audrey Bowers of Plainfield and at a miscellaneous shower given by members of Bethel Chapel, Belleville.

The bride's mother entertained at a trousseau tea in honor of her daughter and a rehearsal supper was given by the bridegroom's parents at their summer residence at Oak Lake.

Mr. and Mrs. Hitchon will reside at 130 Catherine Street, Belleville.

Corn on Cob August Treat

Tender, juicy corn, smothered in butter, is a delicious many August meals. The special flavor of corn-on-the-cob depends on its freshness; it is best to eat corn soon after picking, before the kernels toughen and the sugar turns to starch. Some corn on the market now is hydro-cooled, that is cooled quickly in refrigerated water. This helps to preserve the fresh flavor and juiciness of the corn. Food specialists at Macdonald Institute, Guelph recommend buying corn with bright green, glossy husks, shiny moist silks and even rows of plump kernels.

Corn-on-the-cob must be cooked quickly until just tender for perfect flavor quality. Remove husk and silk, leaving a piece of stem for easier handling. Put immediately into a large kettle of boiling salted water. When water returns to a boil, cook corn four to eight minutes, or until the milk is set and the kernels slip from the cob when pierced with a fork. Remove corn from water, cover with a napkin and serve at once.

Roasted corn makes a delicious treat with a barbecue meal. Sprinkle husks with water and lay ears on grill or wellgreased broiler pan. Broil about 10 to ten minutes, turning frequently. Husked corn may also be roasted in aluminum foil. Sprinkle corn with water; brush with butter and seasonings. Wrap tightly in foil and roast ten minutes.

Herb butters add a touch of glamor to corn-on-the-cob. Blend finely chopped fresh parsley and a little onion salt with butter. Snipped chives, celery salt, thyme or ground tarragon also make tasty additions to butter for corn-on-the-cob. During August fresh Ontario grown sweet corn is at its peak.

MENU Magic from the TEST KITCHEN

It's Back-to-School Time

And all Mothers know that back-to-school time means it's also time to get back to better breakfasts, as we settle into September's more ordered days. In fact, one of your daily challenges is making sure that your children (and their parents) begin each day with good breakfasts . . . to carry them through to lunch with no mid-morning slump! So we hope these new ideas for "what to serve at breakfast will be helpful, and we salute you as you begin another school year as chief nutritionist at your house!

Sleepy-Heads at Breakfast?

One novel way to break-the-fast, and get those sleepy-heads bounding to the table, is to feature Cheese French Toast on the menu. Easy, when you dip cheese sandwiches into the usual French Toast mixture of eggs and milk, before pan-frying in plenty of butter. Easier still if you make the sandwiches up at night, storing them in your frig, lightly covered. Serve hot with syrup, along with vitaminized apple juice and glasses of milk. Not the first meal of the day, and a nice change from the orange juice, cereal, toast and milk routine that's our usual breakfast pattern.

Cottage Scrambled Eggs

For another variation on the breakfast theme, try adding cottage cheese to scrambled eggs, just before they finish cooking. Dandy in terms of the extra protein provided, you'll find them tasty, too! And you'll be adopting the idea for lunch or supper, on days when breakfast fare is more casual, hot or cold, with milk.

Cheese for Breakfast?

You definitely cheese for breakfast . . . for its great flavor lures even the most weak-willed eggs, bacon and toast. And, the excellent protein it contributes helps carry them through long mornings, with nary a hunger pang. Try serving some of our good Canadian cheddar with fresh pears and buttered toast . . . well round out a breakfast of cereal and milk very nicely!

Town Aluminum Built Settles Into Permanency

By JACK MORRIS

KITIMAT, B.C. (CP) — This aluminum town of soaring ups and rock-bottom downs is up again.

Born of a world-wide demand for aluminum, Kitimat and its huge Aluminum Company of Canada smelter have acquired a neat, settled appearance on their 10th anniversary.

Gone are the boisterous construction days of steak and apple pie for breakfast, of rollicking, fight-filled Saturday nights and the loaded Sunday morning drunk tank.

Gone, too, are the $250 weekly pay cheques for the hard-rock miners, carpenters and labor-ers; the shivering mornings in the endless rows of leaky huts and the daily battle to build in the wilderness of northwestern British Columbia.

With their disappearance has come settlement that at last appears permanent and, hopefully, an end to such days as Black Monday.

PRICES FELL

When Alcan, a subsidiary of Aluminium Limited of Montreal, decided to pour $450,000,000 into construction of the smelter town and its nearby Kemano hydro-electric project, the boom seemed never-ending.

Population grew to more than 14,000. The demand for housing, cars, refrigerators and clothes soared as the town and its smelter took shape in the rain forest 400 miles north of Vancouver.

An ice-free deep-sea harbor, capable of berthing freighters from South America with loads of the raw-material alumina, was located in a valley surrounded by a cloak of snow-capped mountains of dark blues and greens.

Then came Black Monday, Oct. 26, 1957, and the layoffs came without warning.

The situation improved slowly. By 1962, prospects looked brighter. Kitimat recovered some of its lost population, which had plunged to a low of 7,000 in less than two years.

Today Kitimat has slightly more than 9,000 people. There is virtually no unemployment, and the Unemployment Insurance Commission office that once was so busy has been closed.

PLAN PULP MILL

Only 12 persons, most of them widows or deserted wives with children, are on the welfare roll, says Reeve Sam Lindsay.

Plans for a $70,000,000 pulp mill and an $8,000,000 chemical plant to feed it appear promising. They will add to the 2,000-man labor force employed by Alcan and the $1,000,000 monthly payroll.

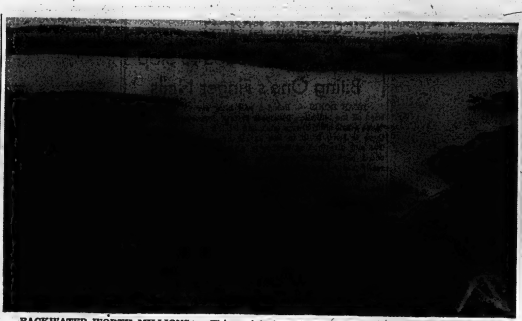
From Kemano, a wilderness site about 50 miles north of here, a series of mammoth generators (fittingly engraved, "Do not assemble or start without reading operating instructions") whirl out 1,050,000 horsepower to feed the insatiable demand for power at the Kitimat smelter.

From this row of potlines here pours a tide of molten, silvery aluminum, almost all of which is sold outside Canada.

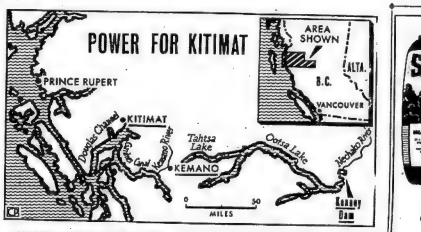
SIGNS FAVORABLE

Officials admit privately that the road ahead for Kitimat may not be easy; but it never was. Dependence on a single industry can invite disaster and Kitimat has had a taste of that.



The signs, they believe, are in Kitimat's favor, however.

Here is cheap electrical power. Diversification of the aluminum - based economy is promised by the proposed pulp mill and the other industry it would attract. Aluminum prices have firmed considerably in the last year and expansion of the Kitimat might never have been built had the company been able to anticipate the troubles ahead.



On reflection, Alcan admits Kitimat works and the Kemano power station already is proceeding to meet growing world demand.

"If we had been able to foresee what happened in 1958, no, I don't think it would have been built when it was," said Nathanael V. Davis of Montreal, president of Aluminium Limited.

"But I'm darned happy it was."

BACKWATER WORTH MILLIONS — This aerial view of Kenney Dam, about 200 miles northeast of Kitimat, shows how it dams the Nechako River in northern British Columbia. The 5,450-square-mile reservoir created, supplies water power for turbines at Kemano, which in turn supply electric power to the aluminum town of Kitimat. Power there has enabled plans for a $70,000,000 plup mill and an $8,000,000 chemical plant. (CP Photo)

200-MILE SHOT IN THE ARM — From Kenney Dam to Kitimat's aluminum smelters in northern British Columbia is a distance of about 200 miles. Kenney Dam is the largest rock-filled, clay-core in the Commonwealth. Its 1,500 foot length blocks a canyon of the Nechako River and forms a reservoir of 5,450 square miles. Electric power generated by the 2,600 foot drop from reservoir to Kemano powerhouse has jolted Kitimat into a revival since the 1957 recession in the town. Power has made possible the diversification on its economy and plans are afoot for a pulp mill and chemical plant. (CP Newsmap)

Ralph Cowan (L — York-Humber) spoke against the maple leaf flag and criticized Prime Minister Pearson.

Mrs. Jean Wadds (PC—Grenville-Dundas) said the carton - tossing incident showed how dangerous were the divisions over the flag issue.

J. Waldo Monteith (PC—Perth) said he feels it his duty to use every device to stop the government's maple leaf flag.

Finding Qualified Teachers Major Problem Now Facing Many Boards Across Country

By THE CANADIAN PRESS

Finding qualified teachers to fill vacant classes is the major problem facing many school boards across the country as schools prepare to open in September.

A Cross-Canada Survey by The Canadian Press shows that expedients such as the use of student teachers for part of the year are being tried in several centres to ensure that no student will lack a teacher.

Expansion of French instruction into elementary school continues in many parts of the country, with Newfoundland and British Columbia the notable exceptions. French as a second language is available as early as Grade Three in Prince Edward Island and Grade Four in Manitoba and Alberta.

Enrolments are stat'e or only up slightly in the four Atlantic provinces. Nieve f o undland in particular is enjoying the benefits of a fall to the birth rate which began seven years ago when most of this year's potential first - year students were born.

Prince Edward Island needs specialists to teach French, mathematics and s c i e n c e. French will be taught on an experimental basis in elementary schools beginning at Gra d e Three in S u m m e r side and Grade Five in Charlottetown.

New Brunswick expects only pockets of teacher shortages in northern areas. Municipalities are holding off on all- but es s e n t i a l classroom additions, awaiting fall legislation based on the Byrne report on municipal taxation and finance.

With no curricula changes except in TV courses—beginner's French will be offered for Grade 4 and elementary French for Grade Eight—Nova Scotia's pressing problem is teachers. As of Aug. 14 the province still needed 214 teachers.

MORE BEGINNERS

Quebec City has no congestion problem. High school enrolment is stable at about 10,000 and elementary school enrolment is expected to decrease slightly from last year's 19,000 figure, although kindergarten classes are being added.

Biggest curriculum change is the addition of Grade 12 to city high schools so that students can go direc... into university. Another is the teaching of religion by university personnel in primary grades.

"The accent now will be more personal," says Leonce Pelletier, suburban Ste. Foy school board chairman. The idea will be to "accentuate the spirit rather than the letter."

Major changes are expected in curricula throughout Quebec province next year due to creation of a new department of education and the recommendation to come from the second volume of the Parent Royal Commission on Education's report.

Of the several boards in Montreal only the French division of the Catholic school board reports serious congestion, with 300 Grade One classes to be run on half-time. The board will open 12 new schools (seven elementary, five secondary) in September to provide for an expected increase in enrolment of 9,000 pupils.

The English Catholic schools lack about 100 certified teachers and will borrow students from teachers c o l l e g e. The French division also lacks enough teachers on the elementary level, and the secondary schools need mathematics and science specialists.

REVISE ONE GRADE

Curricula c h a n g e s in the Protestant and English Catholic schools are largely substitutions of newer material for older courses. But the French Catholic division has revamped its Grade 12 program; it now is a university preparation course.

Most Protestant schools are experimenting .ith subject promotion, in which a student repeats only subjects in which he has failed—not the whole grade —so that classes are organized according to ability and achievement.

Biggest change in the Ontario system will be the introduction of the revised p r o g r a m of studies, previously given first effect in Grade Nine, into Grade 11.

Under the plan, students are channelled into one of three directions, one on five years leading to university, one of four years leading to employment and a two - year terminal course providing occupational training for the less gifted student. In each of the first two directions, options in arts and sciences, languages, commerce or science, technology and trades are available.

Second major change are to be introduced into Grade 11 of the four - year program. Many of these will be given first in non-university student some practical understanding of subjects such as psychology or sociology which he would not obtain otherwise.

Shortage of p r i m a r y teachers in the province is reported adequate except in some outlying areas. Intermediate school teachers are in great demand and the Ontario School Trustees' Council reports that from 900 to 1,000 non-certified teachers will be employed under letters of permission.

SALARIES RAISED

The separate school board of Metropolitan Toronto reports no congestion except that caused by late opening of new schools and says its teacher problems have been eased by higher salaries and an intensive recruiting drive.

The Manitoba department of education a l s o reports the teacher shortage eased, due to higher salaries. Only teacher training courses. The supply will be "almost adequate" in elementary schools but about 50 teachers who aren't fully qualified will be teaching in high schools.

About 1,100 students who last year would have gone to the University of Manitoba after completing junior matriculation (Grade 11) will be back in school this fall. The province has raised its entrance requirement to Grade 12.

Some schools will introduce courses in French for Grade One pupils who speak it as a first language. As last year, French will be taught as a second language from Grade Four up.

Regina public schools are threatened by a teacher strike if the board and teachers are not come to agreement. In any case, there will be congestion in all elementary grades until Nov. 1 because of delays in completing one new school and two additions. Separate schools, however, will be ready for their increased enrolments at school opening and their teachers' contract has a l r e a d y been signed.

MORE ORAL FRENCH

The separate schools report teaching of oral French, an increased number of schools, and extension of a "modern mathematics" course with greater emphasis on problem solving and numbers systems—from Grade Four to Five.

Calgary public and separate schools have enough space, but "not much choice of teachers." In both the teaching of French will extend from Grade Four to senior high school.

The public school board is introducing modern mathematics, teaching methods and extending its biology course to senior high as of 1965. The Separate schools will initiate complementary classes for students who fail to reach Grade Six on an experimental remedial program, and re - employment classes will be started for pu p i l s unsuccessful in Grade Nine.

Edmonton public schools are expanding the oral French program to the extent of teacher availability, with a 50-per-cent increase in both teachers and students expected.

A m o d e r n mathematics course with emphasis on problems and problem - solving will be introduced into all elementary and most junior high schools.

Public schools in Edmonton report no teacher shortage. But separate schools report a shortage of elementary and high school business and commerce teachers.

The British Columbia School Trustees Association reports a definite teacher shortage primarily in physical education and home economics and says school boards are hiring persons with substandard qualifications—in most cases limited experience — rather than wait until the last moment for a qualified p e r s o n. Vancouver school districts report no shortages.

No major curricula changes are planned this year but next year Grade 11 students will be given a new program similar to Ontario's directional plan.

Dr. J. F. K. English, deputy education m i n i s t e r, reports there is l i t t l e teaching of French in B. C. schools — seldom below the Grade Seven level and then only for a few minutes a day.

blood had been mixed with an anti-coagulant chemical to keep it red, he claimed.

The RCMP crime laboratory analysed the liquid but the results were not immediately announced.

Cowilshaw, a former newspaper and radio reporter, founded a group called Underdog in 1961, seeking to redress any case of official injustice against an individual.

The red missile landed just in front of George Nowlan, former Conservative finance minister, as he was praising the Red Ensign. Mr. Nowlan, never at a loss for words, cracked: "It's all right. I don't think it's his heart's blood; I think it's his brain."

Jack Bigg (PC — Athabaska), a former RCMP officer, interjected: "Next time it will be a live bomb."

DESKS SPLATTERED

Spots of the liquid splattered several desks on both sides of the aisle. The mess was cleaned up during the supper adjournment but a few stains remained on the expensive green carpet.

Social Credit Leader Robert Thompson told reporters later that Cowilshaw obtained a pass to the opposition gallery from his office. He had never met the director of Underdog.

Meanwhile, the flag debate continued with no sign of a b r e a k. Eleven Conservatives and two Liberals spoke on the fifth day of the 40-clock, raising to 108 the number of speeches heard so far. The Conservative r a n k s have made 67 speeches, the Liberals 26, Social Credit six, NDP five and Creditiste four.

Ralph Cowan (L—York Humber), the only Liberal to break with the government so far, defended the Red Ensign as a distinctive national flag and criticized the proposed maple leaf design. He accused the government of introducing its flag resolution last May without consulting the Liberal caucus.

Remi Paul (PC — Berthier-Maskinonge - Delanaudiere) also broke with his party's stand, supporting the maple leaf flag and criticizing the Conservative call for a plebiscite on the issue.

Mrs. Jean Wadds (PC—Grenville-Dundas) said the cartes-tossing incident showed how dangerous were the divisions created by the flag controversy. Several Conservatives called for a committee study of the flag situation and others suggested revised versions of the Red Ensign as a new flag choice.

CONNOR WON'T LEAVE

The defiant Alabama delegates were led by Eugene (Bull) Connor, the state's Democratic national committeeman and former Birmingham police commissioner.

As the Alabama delegates left the floor of the convention floor, unchallenged at one doorways, they found sergeant-at-arms guarding the seats marked for Alabama. As each unpledged delegate approached, he was asked in "step aside" but not requested to leave. For a time they did.

Then Connor arrived and the waiting delegates b e g a n to brush past the guards and take their seats. The guards offered no particular resistance . and Connor used little force.

"I'm going to stay here until they ask me to get out of the convention," Connor said.

Use of Firearms Being Probed by Provincial Police

PICTON (Staff) — Picton Detachment of the Ontario Provincial Police is looking warnings regarding the indiscriminate use of firearms in the county, particularly in the villages and more-heavily-populated areas. Recently a few narrow escapes from flying bullets have been reported to the police. In the villages young people firing .22 calibre rifles carelessly have struck windows in homes and buildings and this practice must stop. More consideration should be given to the proper handling of fire arms. Anyone caught with a rifle will be checked by OPP and if no license is possessed charges will be laid. Persons with firearms who are under the legal age limit for having a rifle will also be charged.

Those applying for a licence must pass an Ontario Hunting Safety test. Penalties for failure for possession of firearms is 16 years, or 18 years with consent of parents.

SLIGHTLY SHAKEN UP

Five-year-old Scotty Dufour of Front Street, Consecon, was struck by a car in the village about 5.15 p.m. Monday. Legal Reid of Consecon who struck the boy was travelling at very slow rate of speed when the lad stepped out in front of the vehicle. The boy was only slightly shaken and suffered only minor bruises.

TAKEN TO HOSPITAL

A young construction worker, Donald Peterson, employed on the new construction site at the Lake Ontario Cement Company here, suffered minor injuries when he was working with scaffolding. Peterson was admitte d to Prince Edward County Hospital for observation.

MONTREAL (CP) — Robert Patterson Jellett, 57, retired chairman of the board of the Royal Trust Company, died Monday.

He was born in Picton, Ont., and educated at Trinity College School in Port Hope, Ont.

He entered the Royal Trust Company in Montreal in 1902 and became president in 1943.

Mr. Jellett was a retired director of the Royal Agencies Limited and Continental Business Machines Limited. He was an active member of the Canadian advisory board of the Phoenix Assurance Company of London, England.

2nd Battalion of Guards No Longer Combat Unit

By DAVE McINTOSH

OTTAWA (CP) — The 2nd Battalion, Canadian Guards, has been practically humbled as a combat infantry unit because of ceremonial and other duties, informants say.

Strength of the battalion now is down to 370 all ranks—the complement of an infantry battalion is slightly more than 900.

The battalion, stationed at Camp Petawawa, Ont., has been doing so many odd jobs this summer that it was unable to take part in brigade exercises at Camp Gagetown, N.B.

Besides providing the "public duties detachment" which carries out the changing-the-guard ceremony for tourists on Parliament Hill every day, the battalion has sent reinforcements to the 1st Battalion of the regiment at Picton, Ont., now Canada's standby unit for United Nations duty, and provided trials teams for the armoured and infantry schools and demonstration squads.

OBJECT TO DUTY

It is known that many officers at defence headquarters object to the daily ceremonial at Parliament Hill, not only because of its effect on the 2nd Guards Battalion as a fighting unit but on the ground that it reinforces the o p i n i o n of some American tourists that Canada is a British colony and that military parades have no business taking place on the literal doorstep of a democratic Parliament.

The Guards regiment has already had a checkered career since it was formed in 1953 at the urging of English-born Lt.-Gen. Guy Simonds, then chief of the general staff.

The regiment originally comprised four battalions but two were disbanded in 1957 when the infantry corps was reorganized, mainly because it could not fill the battalions to anywhere near full strength.

The final phase of the draft platform contained several key portions, while continuing to claim general economic and other progress under the Democrats. It condemned violence and lawlessness of any kind—a rebuke to Northern Negro riots and continuing anti-civil rights actions in the South.

It said the "Civil Rights Act of 1964 deserves and requires full observance by every American and fair effective enforcement if there is any fault."

TAKES MODERATE STAND

This moderate attitude—moderate in that for the first time in some years the platform would not press for further civil rights legislation — was interpreted as a bid to placate the Negro without further angering the South.

The draft platform also called for a continuing fight to legislate a medicare program imbedded in the social security system.

It pledged more tax reductions, government frugality, full employment, strengthened labor union security by amendments to the Taft-Hartely Act and a resources program including such projects as the Passamaquoddy t i d a . power project in New Brunswick waters.

Pinch Hitting

By GARRY ALEXANDER

The little guy is well known and equally well-liked on the sports scene in and around the Quinte district.

A veteran of more years than he likely cares to admit on both baseball and softball diamonds, and around bowling lanes, his attention for the past couple of years has shifted chiefly to the field of golf.

Don't get the wrong idea. Ball is still his first love, and you can see the hustling ex-catcher, coach and Jack-of-all ball trades, shouting encouragement down at the CNRA or the Fair Grounds whenever the umps calls "play ball."

But when it comes to participation, age and a heart attack, especially the latter, have forced the gentleman to trade his catche's glove for a three-wood, this time on a permanent basis.

So when the little guy blasted his tee shot into the cup for a hole-in-one at the Picton Golf Club, a little over a week ago, it could not have happened to a nicer guy.

In case you don't know it by now, the chap answers to the name of Jack Elliott Sr.

Golfing for about four years, Jack never expects to become an Arnold Palmer but, as in former baseball days, he puts everything he has into the game. We could be a little off but the last we heard, he was shooting in the high 80's.

The heart attack this spring was a tough knock to a fellow who did not deserve it. A member of the family became his first question from the hospital bed was: "Can I play golf again when I get out of there?"

He was curtailed for a while, but was working with a wedge as soon as he was allowed and got back into the full round of things as soon as possible.

The hole-in-one, (very golfer's dream, came on Sunday, August 16. He celebrated the event by returning to his job the next day for the first time since the attack. Both events indicate that Jack is back to normal health and there's not a person who knows him that doesn't hope he stays right there.

Jack was playing in a ten-man tournament for a trophy donated by Picton pro Fred Brown when he got his ace. The event is not a big one—except to the group of Belleville friends who compete in it every year.

Elliott's threesome contained Ron Dulmage and Jack Elliott Jr., who, by the way, could be one of the district's top golfers if he had the time to play regularly.

The trio was the last to come up to Picton's par three, 161-yard last hole. Waiting near the clubhouse hole were Ken Duesbury, Bill Shaw, Cliff Belch, Austin Watkin, Billy McGuire, Jack Calnan and Arnold Barclay.

Elliott hits this green quite consistently, so figured he had just put it somewhere in good position when the boys started yelling after his tee shot.

He had used a five-iron and placed the ball on the side of the hill just to the left of the green.

Those standing by the green said the ball rolled perfectly down the hillside and straight into the cup. "It wouldn't have gone another four inches without stopping," said Belch, "but it rolled into that cup just as if it knew where it was going."

Back on the tee, Elliott and his mates were unable to see what had happened up ahead and he still found it hard to believe when Barclay grabbed the ball out of the hole and threw it back at him.

Later, setting up the drinks for the boys in the clubhouse, he told one of them: "Don't ever let anyone say that a hole-in-one is more than luck. I just tried to hit it near the green and look what happens."

Rico Carty Runs Wild Against Phillies

By MIKE RATHET
Associated Press Sports Writer

Rico Carty of Milwaukee Braves admits he was a bit over-anxious about breaking into organized baseball.

He signed with just about every club in the Dominican Republic. And with San Francisco, And Cincinnati Reds. And he had the runaway pen in hand ready to sign with St. Louis, when Milwaukee protested.

But the Braves haven't protested since.

A 24-year-old outfielder making a bid for 1964 rookie honors in the Nations. League, Carty slammed five straight hits — a homer, three doubles and a single — as the Braves swallowed first-place Philadelphia Phillies 12-9 Monday night.

Carty has bit like that in the Braves' chain ever since they took his inkwell away by appealing to the late George Trautman, then president of the minors.

BOUGHT BY BRAVES

Seems that Carty was just a kid and I didn't realize what I was doing"—had signed with the Estrellas club in the Dominican Republic before wielding his pen for the Giants and Reds. The Estrellas club had sold Carty to the Braves.

Against the Phillies, Carty doubled in the first, singled in the fourth, homered in the fifth and doubled in the fifth and seventh innings, his average to .323 from .312 while bringing his home run output to 13 and his runs batted in total to 56.

The loss trimmed the Phillies' lead to 8½ games over San Francisco Giants, who broke a tie for second place with Cincinnati by defeating Los Angeles Dodgers 4-2 in other NL action. St. Louis Cardinals whipped Pittsburgh Pirates 5-1 and Houston Colts blanked Chicago Cubs 2-0.

Chicago White Sox, meanwhile, lost an opportunity to gain on American League-leading Baltimore, falling two games behind the Orioles after a 4-3 loss to Minnesota Twins in the only game on the schedule.

CARTY LEADS ATTACK

Carty led a 15-hit Milwaukee attack against five Philadelphia pitchers. Hank Aaron chipped in with his 22nd homer and three runs batted in while Eddie Mathews collected three hits.

Wes Covington supplied most of the fireworks for the Phillies, driving in six runs with two homers and a pair of doubles. Clay Dalrymple also homered for Philadelphia.

The Giants put it away against the Dodgers in the first inning with a four-run outburst helped along by Tommy Davis' error on a Willie Mays liner. That produced one run, a grounder by Orlando Cepeda drew in the second and Jim Hart finished things up with a two-run homer.

The Dodgers scored their only runs in the first on a homer by Willie Davis, then were shut out the rest of the way by Jim Duffalo. Duffalo, who hadn't pitched a complete game since his first major league start in 1961, allowed only six hits.

ERROR HELPS TWINS

The Twins scored twice in the second inning against the White Sox with the aid of an error by Al Weis and added two more in the third on singles by Rich Rollins, Tony Oliva and Zollo Versalles. Then they held on as the White Sox muffed their opportunities.

The White Sox had the potential tying runs on in the sixth. But Jim Kaat picked Don Buford off first to end the inning. Chicago closed to within a run in the eighth but reliever Al Worthington got Moose Skowron and Buford on pops with the tying run on third.

Bill White hit a two-run homer, taking the pressure off Bob Gibson. Gibson was working on a 2-3 lead at that point and wound up with a six-hitter while striking out 12.

Pitcher Bob Bruce, who allowed only two hits, got the Colts winning rally started in the eighth inning with a single off Lou Burdette. Walt Bond's single and an error on the play by Billy Williams let both runs score. Hal Woodeshick pitched the ninth for Houston after Bruce hurt his back.

Young Diver Aims For Gold Medal

COLOGNE, Germany (AP)—Ingrid Kraemer — Engel, the blonde beauty from East Germany who was a diving sensation at the last Olympics, is hoping to repeat her triumphs at Tokyo. Last week she made a promising start.

Unknown and unheralded in 1960, Ingrid won the gold medals for platform and springboard diving. She was only 17.

"Now I have more experience and this will be a great help to me in Tokyo," Ingrid said in an interview.

She was in Cologne for the Aug. 20-21 Olympic diving elimination meet, at which she easily surpassed her competitors. No difficulty for her is anticipated at the final meet to determine the all-German team at Rostock, East Germany, Aug. 26-28.

Ingrid, five-foot-three and a well-rounded 121 pounds, was married last year to an economics student at the University of Rostock. She added her husband's name Engel, to her own of Kraemer to give the present hyphenated version. She has entered the university herself as a physical education major and is working toward a career in teaching.

Andy Rowe Pitches No-Hitter

An outstanding two-way performance by Andy Rowe carried Frankford a step closer to the South Hastings "Little League" baseball championship last night.

Rowe pitched a no-hitter and sparked his win attack as Frankford defeated Carmel 9-3 in the titular series.

Frankford leads the best-of-five series two games to one with one tie and need only another tie to wrap up the championship. The fifth game is scheduled for the Carmel diamond Wednesday night at 6:30.

While Rowe tamed the Carmel hitters without a hit in the seven-inning contest, the losers managed to score three times with the aid of walks, errors and stolen bases. Carmel catcher Garn Adams stole home twice to account for two of his club's runs.

Andy Rowe and B. Rowe each stroked a double and single while G. Bedard contributed a pair of singles to the attack.

WINS YACHT CROWN

MONTREAL (CP) — Peter McConnell, 15, of Montreal won the Canadian Y - flyer Junior championshi Sunday, taking first place in three of the four runs and suffering a disqualification in one. He and four other skippers, including Bill Fenton of Ottawa, who took third place, were disqualified on the one run because of confusion on one of the turns.

Clip Tweed 5-2

Jrs. One Win Away From Title

By GARRY ALEXANDER

Using a pair of unearned runs in the first inning as a starter Ellis Juniors downed Tweed Lumbjacks 5-2 before a good crowd at the CNRA Park last night.

The win gave Ellis' a 3-2 lead in the four-of-seven Belleville and District Softball League finals. Sixth game of the set will be played in Madoc next Monday, providing neither club is tied up with the OASA playdowns.

Ellis' increased their early margin to 3-0 in the second. Tweed got one in the third. Juniors made it 5-1 in the sixth and the visitors closed the scoring with another singleton in the seventh.

For the second game in a row Lumbakis had their chances, getting men on base in every inning except the first, but could not solve the plate offerings of Bob Ethier when it counted. Tweed left 10 runners on base.

In the first Moon got on with a drag-bunt single after one was out. Muirhead grounded to third but the throw to first got past LeSage for a three-base error as Moon raced all the way around to score. Muirhead ended up at third and came home on Chatland's fly to centre

Boomhower slammed a triple in the second and made it 3-0 on Boyle's hoist to the outfield.

An infield base hit paved the way to Tweed's first run. Cotton sacrificed and T. LeSage singled to centre to chase home the lead man.

A disputed hit batter got Ellis' moving in the sixth. Ethier sacrificed and Malloy got a single to deep short. Boomhower's sacrifice squeezed home by a wild throw from Swartz to Boyle.

Doubled past first to make it 5-1.

Healey was given first on another disputed hit-by-pitch call in the Tweed seventh. Cotton singled and Healey scored in a sip-and-tuck play at the plate when D. LeSage also hit safely.

Rich Morton worked the first 5 2/3 innings and gave up all five Ellis runs in defeat. He fanned two and walked two. Blaine Healey finished up, touched for two of the Juniors' seven hits. He struck out three, walked none.

Morton's outfield mates played baseball positions in the outfield and stole a number of extra-base hits from the winners by pulling down long blasts. Ray LeSage turned in the fielding gem, a running, diving catch off Muirhead in the fifth.

Curt Boomhower led the winners at bat with a triple and single. Larry Soule tripled, Bob Boyle doubled and one-baggers went to Bob Moon, Stu Muirhead and Stu Malloy.

Shamrocks Tie Western Finals 1-1

VICTORIA (CP) — Victoria Shamrocks evened the best-of-five Western Canada junior lacrosse series 1-1 Monday night by dropping New Westminister Salmonbellies 13-4.

Rod Nesbitt and Rangit Dillon led the Shamrocks with three goals each. Ken Alexander, Nirmal Dillon and John Allen got two apiece and Tom Black one. Larry Henry, Ken Tory, Wayne Bellwood and Ken Henry scored for New Westminster.

Next game of the series will be at New Westminister Sunday.

The Trots

TORONTO (CP) — Jack Turner of Petrolia, Ont., wasn't in any hurry to retire veteran pacer Attorney's Bob to the races this year. Right now the decision is paying dividends.

Attorney's Bob made it three-wins in his last four outings in capturing the quinella feature Monday night at Greenwood Raceway. Attorney's Bob was the 2-to-5 choice of the gathering.

The 10-year-old gelding won by a length over Johnny's Girl. Attorney's Bob and Johnny's Girl combined for a $8 quinella.

Admiral Byrd, the 2-to-5 choice from Max Webster's Ly den Hill farm of Brantford, easily won the second race to set up a daily double of $46.30. Star King won the first race for owners Jane and Boyd Balkwill of Paisley, Ont.

Ont. Leads Canadian Lawn Bowling

Quebec Is Second

VANCOUVER (CP)—A group of relative youngsters defeated older veterans Monday to run Ontario to a four-point lead after the first day of the Canadian lawn bowling championships here.

Quebec was second with 10 points and Saskatchewan, B.C. and Alberta tied for third with eight points each. Nova Scotia with four and Manitoba with two trailed in the standings.

Defending singles champion Sandy Houston, 70, of Ontario, was ousted Ontario its only loss, defeating Karl Beacom, 24, of Scarborough 21-18 in second-round play. Earlier Beacom defeated Stanley Townsend, 56, of Winnipeg 21-18 and he had a bye in the third round.

Ray Reidel, 27, and Joe Dorsch, 31, both of Waterloo, Ont., bowled three straight victories, defeating 'Bill McFerren and Johnnie Gavin of Vancouver 23-5, Rod Pennycook, 63, and Harry Mitchell, 70, both of Winnipeg, 21-13, and Ron Laplante, 53, and Art Adams, 70, both of Saskatoon, 25-13.

Tied with Ontario with six points from three wins in the pairs was Alberta.

The strong Ontario fours team took three easy victories, defeating Nova Scotia 19-13 B.C. 23-9 and Manitoba 18-8.

The round-robin tournament ends Wednesday.

Cole Paces Montreal

Ted Watkins Top Scorer

TORONTO (CP) — When quarterback Vernon Cole reported to the Montreal Alouette training camp last summer, he was just another player who had been bypassed by Winnipeg Blue Bombers.

He went to Montreal in a mid-winter trade after a three-year stint in the United States Army.

But Montreal needed a quarterback and things turned out, they got exactly what they were looking for.

Cole has a 13.4-yard passing average and the Alouettes are undefeated in three games in the EFC. He has picked up 403 yards in passing, has a .591 average in 12 passes completed of 22 attempted and has thrown for three touchdowns.

Figures released by the league statistician today and which include games played up to Aug. 20 showed Russ Jackson of Ottawa Rough Riders, with a 9.7 average per completion, leads the conference with five touchdown passes. Jackie Parker of Toronto Argonauts leads the conference with passes meet with 37 of 61 attempts for a .607 average.

WARNING ON SCORER

Ted Watkins of Ottawa is the top scorer with four touchdowns for 24 points. Don Sutherin of Calgary Tiger - Cats follows with three converts and six field goals and 21 points.

Arpad Bak Shadie is the top receiver with 14 catches for 174 yards. Tommy Grant of Hamilton is fourth with nine catches for 135 yards with nine catches third with eight grabs for 200 yards.

Toronto's Don Fuell leads the conference in interceptions with three. Jim Reynolds of Montreal and Ken Lehmann of Ottawa have two each.

Ed Usmiat of Ottawa is tops in the punting department with a total distance of 895 yards in 19 kicks for an average of 45.8.

American Tie For CNE's Diving Lead

TORONTO (CP) — Dave Casbarian of Chicago and Joe Gerlach of Overland, Mo., were tied for first place Monday after the 60-foot dives at the Canadian National Exhibition's annual professional high diving championship. They received 138 points out of a possible 180 from the five judges.

1-0 Thriller

Pointers Nip Lightfoots

Point Anne Comsetmen scored a single run in the bottom of the seventh inning to shade Lightfoot Construction 1-0 in a Bellleville Softball League semi-final thriller at the Point last night.

The victory tied their four-of-seven set at three games apiece. The deciding game is scheduled for Bellleville's 10 mile field Wednesday, at 6.30 p.m. The winners meet Barriages (Napanee).

Fine pitching by the winners Jim Hunter and Rob Foots' Harry Powers, plus excellent fielding on both sides, kept the game scoreless until the final frame.

Singles by E. Maber, Powell and Horwood, with one run, loaded the sacks in the bottom of the seventh and V. Whalen ended the game by rapping a final single to centre.

Jim Rotzer pitched beautiful ball for the winners, a masterful 'no-hit' effort in which he faced 29 batters. He struck out five, walked none and not a Lightfoot man got past first base. Solid infield support.

Powers wound up with an 11-hitter after the four seventh-inning runs. He struck out two and walked three while his club erred just once.

Point Steamer collected three Point Anne singles with Harry Powell and Gerry Maher each getting two. E. Maber, Jim Horwood, Vern Whalen and Rick Rosebush shared the other.

The winners missed earlier chances to score, leaving the bases loaded in the second and fifth innings.

When you are just off the edge of a green, but you can't chip with a 6- or 7-iron because the pin is too close, then you must hit the soft chip shot with your wedge. You want a shot that will land on the green and stop quickly before the ball can roll away.

The way to make this shot is to use the wedge but to swing as though you were chipping. You will get a higher shot that will settle down more quickly if you lay back the blade at address, thus increasing the club's loft.

Calgary Comeback Nips Roughies 14-13

By RON MacDONALD

REGINA (CP) — Calgary Stampeders gave Saskatchewan Roughriders a taste of their own medicine Monday night as they edged Roughies 14-13 with a second-half comeback in a Western Football Conference game.

A capacity crowd of 16,642 fans, used to seeing Roughriders work "miracle" comebacks themselves, watched Calgary break a second-place tie with Saskatchewan in the standings.

The first quarter was scoreless but Riders led 7-0 at the half and 13-4 after three quarters.

Halfback Lovell Coleman scored Calgary's touchdown. Jim Furlong booted a single and halfback Larry Robinson kicked two field goals and a convert. Robinson's seven points gave him the lead in the WFC individual scoring race with 40 points, five ahead of George Fleming of Winnipeg.

Calgary coach Bobby Dobbs said after the game it was his club's "best effort this year." He paid tribute to the efforts of quarterback Eagle Day and halfback Ted Woods, playing his first full game for the club.

For Roughriders, fullback George Reed ran for 71 yards in 17 carries and Campbell caught eight passes — one a touchdown toss — for 89 yards.

On One-Hitter Bantams Ousted By Petes

By ROBERT SNEFJELLA

Peterborough Bantams ousted the Bellevills Ellis Printers from OBA play yesterday evening by edging them 4-3 behind the superb one-hit pitching of Mike Henry.

Peterborough swept the series in two consecutive games.

Henry, hurling his victory, struck out 20, walked three and allowed one safety.

Ted Shaw worked the full nine innings on the mound for the losers. He allowed six hits, issued two walks and whiffed 10.

Both teams scored a run in the second inning. G. Kemp reached first on an error and scored a few plays later on a single by Calley.

F. Young singled and L. Kobun got in via an error. B. Dublin of Peterborough then smashed a home run to make the score 4-1.

Bellevills last tally came in the sixth. Cliff Scott walked, stole second and galloped home on a wild throw.

Bellevills lone hitter was Clifford Scott.

Dublin smashed a homer and single, while G. Cally, G. Kemp, Mike Henry and B. Dobson all hit singles for the hometeam.

Suns Half Game Back; Leafs Win

By THE CANADIAN PRESS

Jacksonville Suns, with a big assist from Rochester Red Wings, moved within half a game of the International League leadership Monday night.

The Suns took a 4-3 squeaker over Richmond Virginians to pull closer to league leading Syracuse as the Chiefs came out on the short end of a 5-3 decision with Rochester.

Toronto Maple Leafs, in fifth place, stayed a game behind Rochester and nine games off the pace by thumping Buffalo Bisons, third in the standings, 7-3. Columbus also downed Atlanta Crackers 4-1 in a meeting between the two tail enders in the standings.

WINS 11th

Lefty Dick Lemay scattered 11 hits and banged a run-scoring single in the fifth to win cause as he ran his record to 11-6 for Jacksonville. A sacrifice fly by Columbus Jim Beauchamp in the eighth provided two runs for the Suns in the seventh but ultimately spelled defeat.

A three-run second inning put the Chiefs in front. Rochester's Mike McCormick blanked the Chiefs until the seventh. Vern Handshaw, a Rochester reserve native, came on in the eighth to relieve the rest of the way.

Jim McKnight drove in four Toronto runs with a homer, double and triple as the Leafs unleashed a 15-hit attack to sink the Bisons. Ossie Virgil contributed four singles in aid of Ken Louie, who went the distance for the victory.

Frank Herrera was three for four and scored twice as he teamed with pitcher Tom Butters for the Columbus victory.

Comeback Victory

Landscapers Oust City

Barriage Landscapers earned a berth in the Commercial Softball League finals last night, ousting City Hotel 8-7 to grab the semi-final set four games to two.

Landscapers will meet the Point Anne-Lightfoot winners for the championship. That series is deadlocked at three games each.

City Hotel jumped all over Barrtages for a 6-0 lead after two innings last night but three by the winners in the third and four in the sixth left it tied 7-7. Landscapers got the winning run across in the top of the seventh with Jim Sopha's double driving it home, after two were out.

T. Cooke's three-run homer in the third got the winners on the comeback trail while Harvey's two-run double was a key blow in the sixth, pushing Barriages into a 7-6 lead, before City got one back in their half to tie it going into the seventh.

Joe Harvey was the winning pitcher, striking out three. Lawrence Loveque in the second frame. They gave up 10 hits. Harvey fanned four and walked but a pair while Levesque got one of each.

Moe Hawkins was the loser before giving way to Dave Feeney in the final frames. They allowed eight hits, seven by Hawkins, who struck out five and passed five.

Tim Cook, with a home run and single, and Jim Sopha, with a pair of important doubles, spearheaded the Barriages attack. Gary Wood and Joe Harvey also had doubles and Don Wood hit a single.

Jack Martin and Frank Hawkins bagged two singles apiece for City Hotel. Doug Moreau got a double and single, Doug Hull and Moe Hawkins a double each, Frank Donovan and Harold Redquest a single apiece.

Brockville Eliminates Joyces

The victory eliminated Bellevills from the OBA senior baseball playdowns, Brockville winning the series two games to one after losing the series opener.

Brockville will advance into the OBA semi-finals with last night's victory. Bellevills went to the finals before losing to Galt last fall.

Bellevills is expected to continue now with the Eastern Ontario Senior League semi-finals against Oshawa Merchants.

The length of this series and remaining dates have not been announced by the club.

Bellevills won the first game of the set 15-1 with Wayne Gilbert getting all after five innings. An unconfirmed report last week was that Bellevills had forfeited the second game of the series, failing to show up for a game in Little Britain, so the series is thought to be tied 1-1.

City Will Have Junior 'B' Hockey

"The Bellevills Junior "B" Hockey Club will operate once again this season," was the announcement made by a club spokesman following a meeting which saw a slate of officers named.

Gordon Bell is the president. Jim "Snipe" Matthews will manage the team, "Red" Mavety is the treasurer and Barclay will serve as secretary.

No coach has been named at the time. Bob Taylor was coach of the club at the end of the 1963-64 season.

Monday said such a plan to help raise funds is being put into action at this time. "Due to the lack of funds we are going to sell advertising on the back of each player's sweater to local people at a cost of $25 per sweater," he said.

A number of local merchants and others will be contacted and Monday said that some people have already promised to "buy" space on a sweater. The team will be known as the "Bellevills Junior "B"'s," Barclay added.

He said that all positions on the club are expected to be wide open and that an announcement as to the opening of training camp will be made shortly.

Champion Wins First Snipe Race

OAKVILLE (CP)—Reinaldo Conrad, the defending champion from Sao Paolo, Brazil, Monday won the first of six scheduled races for the international snipe sailing championships of the Western Hemisphere.

The 22-year-old Conrad, sailed with his brother Ralph as crew, had almost a minute lead in the 14-boat Hayward Regatta being held on Lake Ontario.

Douglas DeSouza of Detroit, one of two United States entries, was disqualified after finishing third and placed in 14th spot. The disqualification gave world snipe champion Axel Schmidt of Brazil the third-place finish.

E. P. Taylor has been jeered and booed many times in his career as the leading thoroughbred breeder in Canada. This has been particularly noticeable on Queen's Plate Day when the Toronto industrialist almost invariably is called upon to accept the winning owner's purse.

There was a distinct change in behavior of horse-racing fans last June 20 when the rotund multi-millionaire made his cross-the-track walk to stand beside Northern Dancer, winner of the 105th running of the Queen's Plate, Canada's prestige race for three-year-olds.

Old-timers high up on the roof-top press box at suburban Woodbine track distinctly heard cheering for Taylor. It was the ninth time in 16 years that his Windfields Farm stable had won the Queen's 30 guineas, a $5,000 gold cup and a pot of money.

Track fans at last had come around to admire the man who had spent millions of dollars since the late 1940s to improve the breed. The National Stud at Oshawa, Ont., and Windfields Farm are two of the top five breeding establishments in North America.

Taylor's Northern Dancer had captured the imagination of race - goers and people who wouldn't know the difference between a thoroughbred and a standardbred. He was the first Canadian-foaled horse to win the Kentucky Derby. He followed with a fine victory in the Preakness Stakes and then was blunted in his bid to win the elusive triple crown of racing with a third in the Belmont Stakes.

HAS BOWED TENDON

Taylor no sooner was the "lucky stiff" to thousands of fans and there was genuine regret this when it was announced that the Dancer had bowed a tendon in his left foreleg. It won't be known officially for about three weeks, but this could mean the end of the colt's racing career.

Taylor termed the injury "to the greatest horse he had ever owned or the greatest disappointment." His horse had a big chance of being named Horse of the Year in North America, an honor no Canadian-owned or bred horse had ever won.

The Dancer practically could have locked this up today with a victory in the Travers Stakes at Saratoga in New York. Instead, he is hobbling around with a cast on his leg.

Although Taylor dominates Canadian racing and has won the Queen's Plate six times with colts that Canadian horsemen passed up at his annual yearling sales, his luck hasn't been good.

For instance, horsemen passed up Victoria Park as a $12,500 yearling and Taylor was stuck with him. Two years later, in 1960, he became the first Canadian - bred to win the Kentucky Derby and finished a respectable third.

He won the Queen's Plate that year, won one more race before being hurt and finished his career with lifetime earnings of $250,670.

Victoria Park's injury: a bowed tendon.

OBJECT TO FIGHT

LONDON (AP) — The British Boxing Board of Control Monday threw its weight behind a campaign to outlaw the proposed return world heavyweight boxing title fight between champion Cassius Clay and Sonny Liston. "We are asking the World Boxing Association, which controls sport in a large number of American states, to allow any of their members to stage it. If everybody stands together then the fight cannot go on anywhere in the world," said board secretary Teddy Waltham.

WIN THIRD TITLE

CHESTNUT HILL, Mass. (AP) — Chuck McKinley and Dennis Ralston ran through Britain's Ramsay Hunt and Graham Stilwell 6-3, 6-2, 6-4 Monday and won their third U.S. national doubles tennis championship. McKinley, 23, and Ralston, 22, became the first doubles pair in 14 years to win three titles and retire the silver Bowl, emblematic of the championship. They have been in the finals four straight years, previously winning in 1961 and 1963.

NICKLAUS STILL TOPS

DUNEDIN, Fla. (AP)—Jack Nicklaus has earned $90,117 so far this season, according to the list of top ten money winners released by the U.S. Professional Golfers Association Monday. Arnold Palmer was second with $93,745, and Tony Lema third with $70,926.

Announce New Healing Substance... Shrinks Piles, Checks Itch

A renowned research institute has found a healing substance with which the ability to shrink hemorrhoids penetrates, relieves pain and discomfort in minutes and speeds up healing of the injured, inflamed tissue.

One hemorrhoidal case history after another reported a "very striking improvement." Pain was promptly and really relieved . . . actual reduction or retraction (shrinking) took place.

Among these case histories were a variety of hemorrhoidal conditions. Relief even occurred in cases of long standing, and most important of all, results were so thorough that the improvement was maintained over a period of many months.

This was accomplished with a new healing substance (Bio-Dyne) which quickly helps heal injured cells and checks growth of new tissue. Bio-Dyne is offered in continuous relief ointment form called Preparation H.

In addition to actually shrinking hemorrhoids, Preparation H lubricates and makes elimination less painful. It helps prevent infection which is a principal cause of hemorrhoids.

Just ask your druggist for Preparation H Suppositories or Preparation H Ointment (with a special applicator).

Robinson Enjoyed Big Week

While Baltimore increased its lead over Chicago to 1½ games, Robinson collected eight hits in 15 trips and drove in six of his team's 16 runs.

The third baseman's over-all performance last week was 10 hits in 27 times at bats, establishing him to pick up four points to .306 and move from sixth into third place in the AL batting race.

Rookie Tony Oliva of Minnesota continues to hold a commanding batting lead, although he dropped four points to .335 last week.

In the National League, Pittsburgh's Roberto Clemente maintained a comfortable margin over his closest pursuers, Billy Williams and Ron Santo of Chicago Cubs.

Clemente dropped one point to .346 with 3 hits in 33 attempts. Williams batted .333 in second at .330, while Santo fell to .327 despite a two - point gain to .320.

Harmon Killebrew of Minnesota, although he failed to hit a home run, drove in a run in six games last week, continued to lead in these departments. He has 42 homers and 95 RBI.

Lacrosse Semi-Finals All Even

BY THE CANADIAN PRESS

Peterborough and Brooklin played on their scheduled night Monday night and came through with victories that forced both semi-final series in the Ontario Lacrosse Association Senior A league to seven games.

Both teams rolled 3-2 in the series going in to Monday's games, but Peterborough downed Brampton 12 - 9 and Brooklin edged St. Catharines 10-9 on a disputed goal in the last second of play.

Final games in both series will be played Wednesday, at Brampton and Brooklin.

Ken Ruttan had tied the score for Brooklin with 35 seconds remaining.

Grant Heffernan broke from the faceoff at centre and fired a shot which was partially blocked by St. Catharines netminder Bob McCredy. The officials, after some deliberation, ruled it a goal.

Heffernan and Jerry Burrows scored three each for Brooklin while team-mate Glenn Lotten had two, Ruttan and Don Bruce got one each.

At Peterborough, Larry Ferguson had four Petes with four-goal performance. Terry Downer and Bobby Allen scored two each, while team-mates Joe Todd, Rich Anthony, Rock Bailey and Cy Coombes added singles.

Yesterday's Stars

BY THE ASSOCIATED PRESS

Batting—Rico Carty, Braves, slammed five straight hits, a homer, three doubles and a single, and scored four runs as Milwaukee thumped the National League-leading Philadelphia Phillies 12-9.

Pitching—Bob Bruce, Colts, allowed Chicago only two hits before leaving in the ninth inning with a bad back in Houston's 2-0 victory over the Cubs.

NICKLA ON WAIVERS

MONTREAL (CP) — Ed Nickla, one of the few players ever to have a no-cut contract in Canadian football, was placed on waivers Monday by Montreal Alouettes. The six-foot1wo, 240-pound tackle was replaced on the import roster by Cody Blinkley, a linebacker recently cut by New York Giants. Nickla, in his fourth season with the club, was an EFC all-Star last year and a key member of the Alouettes defence.

Convention-Covering Team For CBS Not Too Sprightly

TV—Radio Column

By CYNTHIA LOWRY

HOLLYWOOD (AP) — The CBS high command must be disappointed today if it was looking for jokes and snappy patter from its new political convention - covering team of Robert Trout and Roger Mudd.

The successors to Walter Cronkite, making their debuts as the key pairing on the CBS team, proved earnest, proficient, highly professional. But sprightly? No.

During the 90 minutes before the Democratic convention was called to order Monday night, their main jobs were handling the news traffic and saying as were all the other teams: "I... And now let's go down to the floor and our correspondent."

The floor reporters of all U.S. networks may have looked like perspiring Martians in their sweltering glass booths, but they were all acting like terriers worrying a bone as they concentrated on the day's top subjects fraught with any suspense at all: The Alabama and Mississippi delegations, the mystery of President Johnson's choice of a vice-president. And, after a period, repetition of questions and evasive answers began to pall.

CBS' department of wit and humor was headed by Eric Severeid, whose occasional observations are a rib-tickling down-to-earth and whose remarks are often funny.

GOOD, UNFUNNY

ABC, in an effort to add some leavening to the sober - sided and intelligent coverage of Chet Huntley and David Brinkley, introduced comedian George Gobel as a floor reporter with an idea.

Meanwhile, Huntley and Brinkley, the ratings champs, who switched to head NBC's smooth, well - organized coverage, Brinkley's greatest talent is his ability to pull together unusual, unexpected bits of information. A good example Monday night when he was speaking of President Johnson's forthcoming flights and of the good - will tours of Vice-President Humphrey. Brinkley interviewed every public figure in sight, that viewers sometimes feel they are missing the convention itself.

Race Driver Jack McLaughlin Is Killed

YANKEES EDGE METS

NEW YORK (AP)—New York Yankees edged New York Mets 6-4 Monday night in the annual Mayors' Trophy exhibition game on a Tom Tresh and Roger Maris getting theirs with the bases empty.

French TV Delights Visitor

By ALAN HARVEY

PARIS (CP) — Ignoring for one foolish moment such built-in benefits as food and drink (if somebody said, they're only the infrastructure), one of the minor delights of a summer sojourn in France is, of all unexpected things, French television.

Perhaps it isn't the novelty. Whatever it is, the holiday viewer may find himself entranced by a favorite film of the 1940s, The Strange Desire of Mrs. Forrester, with Simon avoiding excess sentimentality in the title role of the homely, dying mum who shove all wants to be a father; or by the gilt-edged performance of Giselle Pascal in Le Coeur Ebloui, set in the nostalgic pre-1914 days.

For a tourist more familiar with English than French, there is a special piquancy in hearing a "spiquesr" at a tennis tournament repeatedly use the word "mistress" in referring to a married woman player, apparently under the impression that this, instead of "missus," was the correct rendering of the abbreviation "Mrs."

As usual, there is interesting English from actors such as tennisman and tenniswoman, used in neither English nor French. Not often heard to a slow ear, English words given a French pronunciation may sink in five minutes later.

DUB U.S. FILMS

American films dubbed into French have a strange appeal. It took two or three episodes of a serial called Le Perr de la Mariée before one traveller realized he was watching The Father of the Bride.

French TV occupies much less program time than in North American counterparts, mainly spanning the early afternoon and evening with programs run nearly half an hour. The most painful lack on the state-run service is the almost total absence of political discussion programs.

Infrequently, Canada sends a French-language film. One such offering, Le Mort Dans L'Ame, was caustically reviewed in a Paris paper under the headline: Deadsive Canadian.

Ann-Margaret Exclusively Dating With Elvis Presley

By BOB THOMAS

HOLLYWOOD (AP)—On the matter of whether a working girl should leave home, Ann-Margaret is firmly affirmative. She maintains a house for her parents and an apartment for herself to illustrate her point.

"I think every girl should live by herself as a transition between the time of being with her parents and of getting married," she said. "It is better for everyone if she does."

Does that mean that the suburn-haired, high-voltaged actress is heading for a wedding? "Not at all," she replied. "But I'll be ready when it happens."

"I drop by my folks house three or four nights for dinner," she said. "My mother is a fabulous cook, and just the sight of my own kitchen depresses me."

IT'S BETTER

"Aside from dinner, it's better for me to live alone. I feel moody at five in the morning and want to go for a wild ride on my motorcycle, and do it without bothering anybody. And if I want to come in late from a date, I don't have to make any explanations."

About her dates. They are exclusively with Elvis Presley. She said she goes out every night with him. Does this sound serious? You wouldn't prove it by Ann-Margaret. Ask her what she and Elvis do on lates and the answer comes back: "Next question."

On matters concerning her private life she remains adamant.

"I think it's so wrong to live your life in a goldfish bowl," she said. "There are certain things I like to keep private, and I will do so to anyone who wants to listen. But on things that concern a male-female relationship I think they should remain just between the male and female."

"My life is public on screen, on the records I record, in recordings and on publicity tours. But in my home, in my apartment and on dates, my life is my own. I don't knock on other people's doors. I don't expect them to knock on mine."

Her attitude netted her the Sour Apple Award of the Hollywood Womens Press Club, which annually levels a blast at the male and female stars who do not play the publicity game according to the rules.

Ann-Margret considers it a bum rap. She points out that she gave 130 interviews during the previous year, did numerous photo layouts and made two publicity tours in the U.S. and Canada.

At any rate, her attitude toward publicity appears to be changing. She continues to move from one film to the next and now has three unreleased.

Astrological Forecasts

By SYDNEY OMARR

For August 26

Aries (March 21 to April 19) Two persons close to you may argue. You can succeed in creating harmony by presenting alternative. But don't take sides. Since there are different methods. Cycle remains high. Be original, independent.

Taurus (April 20 to May 20) Time spent alone proves fruitful. Much knowledge to be gained. But you must remain away from the "hustle-bustle." Take time to think, analyze. Special feature in your paper could add cause.

Gemini (May 21 to June 20) Your forces appear scattered. You may be trying to do too much at one time. Instead - concentrate. Money question due to be solved favorably. Good for future planning.

Cancer (June 21 to July 22) Opposition spurs you. Tendency exists to act on impulse. But wise course would be one of caution. Check details. Remain firm in ideals. This is day of testing. Know this - - act accordingly.

Leo (July 23 to August 22) Good aspect of Moon indicates greater knowledge, verification of beliefs. Very good for writing, publishing. Make changes. Highlight creative endeavors. Communicate with member of opposite sex.

Virgo (Aug. 23 to Sept. 22) What you do affects family members. Realize this as a fact. Much attention centres around expenditures. Friend may offer suggestion for investment. Be discreet. Hold off on decision.

Libra (Sept. 23 to Oct. 23) Day appears filled with contradictions. Instead of worrying ... simply relax. Tendency is toward self deception. You tend to see situations as you like them to be. Key is being realistic.

Scorpio (Oct. 23 to Nov. 21) Day when emotions "take over." You would be foolish to brood. Good to create, to give of yourself. Feeling of confusion appears but know you are going forward. Be confident.

Sagittarius (Nov. 22 to Dec. 21) Time, effort spent fulfilling obligation to younger persons is well spent. Keep promises. Maintain integrity. Many watch ... and judge. If travel is necessary ... make the most of it.

Capricorn (Dec. 22 to Jan. 19) Obtain hint from today's Aries message. Adhere to principles. Pressure from outside sources indicated. Even those close to you may be irritable. Don't compound the error!

Aquarius (Jan. 20 to Feb. 18) Re-evaluate travel plans. Confusion evident which requires wait-and-see attitude. Don't be in a hurry. Conditions subject to sudden change. Hold off for sufficient reason before acting.

Pisces (Feb. 19 to March 20) Loved one expresses concern over money. Avoid heavy-handed methods. Be reasonable. Try to explain. Arguing accomplishes nothing. If you smile and display humor . . . you get your way.

If today is your birthday you are determined, at times stubborn, but you really have heart of gold!

GENERAL TENDENCIES:— Cycle high for Aries. Special word to Cancer: Careless actions could result in accident. Obey traffic regulations. Take time to be sure.

P. Thompson Sets Swim Records

TORONTO (CP) — Patty Thompson of Hamilton established a Canadian record in the 400-yard freestyle event and an Ontario record in the 100-yard freestyle during an exhibition swim meet here Monday.

Mike and Marvin Chapelle, Gaye Stratton and Graham Barber, swimming for the University Settlement Aquatic Club of Toronto, also set a Canadian record on three minutes 55.5 seconds in the 400-yard medley relay. The former mark was 3:58 held by a University of Toronto team.

Miss Thompson, a member of the Hamilton Aquatic Club, covered the 400-yar d distance in 4:28.8, eclipsing the former mark of 4:31 held by Jane Hughes of Vancouver.

The meet was held in preparation for the Canadian Olympic swimming trials scheduled for Vancouver next week.

CIA Officer Doubts Viet Nam Victory Possible

WASHINGTON (AP)—A Central Intelligence Agency officer has voiced "serious doubt that victory can be won" in South Viet Nam and has warned that eventual outcome might be a negotiated settlement. Administration officials quickly cut at the federal government for "disloyalty" and tax on manufacturing tools.

"It is a tax which our world competitors do not have to carry," he said. "Surely it has no place in the structure of our system of taxation."

He said the government should review this situation so that the automobile industry could be taxed in a manner which would allow it to be competitive.

NEW DISCOVERY!

SOOTHES STOMACH SUFFERING FAST

Gives prolonged relief from heartburn, indigestion, hyperacidity, blotting, etc. with chewing

New Sylacia tablets with remedy-action ingredient found in no other medicine. Now offers you the same fast relief from stomach suffering that was once the exclusive ingredient, dimethyl polysiloxane, found only in Mylanta. Proved and proved effective for breaking up and releasing gas bubbles trapped in foamy mucus in the stomach and intestines.

Why suffer the gnawing discomfort of sour stomach and heartburn, hyperacidity, indigestion or gas? Stop suffering overeating or drinking spoils! Get Sylacia tablets today. Different from other medicines, Sylacia tablets work fast. Most drug counters, and enjoy eating and beverage free from discomforts.

Says Raising Canadian Car Content Costly

TORONTO (CP) — Earl K. Brownridge, president of American Motors (Canada) Limited, said today government insistence on 100-per-cent Canadian content in the manufacture of cars would lead to fewer —instead of more—people being employed in Canada.

Speaking to Automotive Day luncheon at the Canadian National Exhibition, Mr. Brownridge, who is also president of the Motor Vehicle Manufacturers' Association, said some people appear to have the opinion that more people could be employed in Canada if government insisted on more Canadian content.

"This is not realtim that, by the same token, the price of vehicles would have to be increased to cover the extra and inefficient costs brought about by such a move," he said.

Mr. Brownridge spoke out at the federal government for imposing a new tax on manufacturing tools.

"It is a tax which our world competitors do not have to carry," he said. "Surely it has no place in the structure of our system of taxation."

He said the government should review this situation so that the automobile industry could be taxed in a manner which would allow it to be competitive.

Strike in U. S. Auto Industry Could Effect Subsidiaries of Canadian Firms Quickly

By KEN SMITH
Canadian Press Business Editor

TORONTO (CP) — A prolonged strike at one of the Big Three auto makers in the United States could be felt quickly at the Canadian subsidiary.

The big three in Canada—General Motors in Oshawa, Ford at Oakville and Chrysler at Windsor, Ont. — depend on shipments of certain parts from U.S. factories.

If the supply of these parts is cut off by a walkout, industry sources say, the effect would be apparent within a week or 10 days.

Depending on which supplies ran out first, the shortage could mean anything from a slowdown of operations to curtailment of certain models, or even a complete shutdown.

The United Auto Workers Union in the U.S. is to meet Wednesday to name the company it will use as the target in present negotiations.

In the past, The UAW there has concentrated its efforts on one company, with the eventual agreement setting a pattern for the rest of the industry in the U.S.

MAY BE GM

Speculation in the U.S. has centred on GM as the most likely target. Union officials, although there has been no firm indication from the union, have suggested that U.S. newspapers also has suggested that a strike is likely immediately after GM's contract expires Aug. 31.

Walter Reuther, UAW president, said Monday there will be a strike in the U.S. if the Big Three "do not make a settlement that is within their bargaining positions."

Louis Seaton, GM vice-president of personnel, said after meeting Monday with Mr. Reuther that "we are bewildered by the union's time - wasting manoeuvring."

"If Reuther wants to come down off the mountain and become realistic there is still room to settle this contract without a strike."

Sources in Canada's auto industry say that if the speculation about a strike in the U.S. is correct, GM's 17,000-man operation at Oshawa could start being pinched before the middle of September.

COULD LAY OTHERS

Several thousand other workers, including those at GM's Diesel plant, McKinnon Industries Ltd., of St. Catharines, and several parts plants in Oshawa, could be affected almost as quickly, the sources say.

They emphasize, however, that this is only speculation.

A further complication in the Canadian industry's picture is that the UAW will be opening negotiations with some of the Canadian subsidiaries about Sept. 15.

The possibility of an interruption in one of the Big Three's production comes at the same time as they will be introducing their 1965 models to the public. There have been some suggestions that all three companies will not be ready for production of their new cars to tide them over any brief work interruption so dealer delivery would not be affected. Both Ford and Chrysler have started producing 1965 cars, with GM due to start Aug. 31, the Motor Vehicle Manufacturers' Association says.

Last week Chrysler produced 1,000 cars and Ford 900, as they started to get their production lines moving.

The last full - scale strike among the Big Three in Canada occurred in April, 1962, when 3,000 Chrysler workers were off work for three weeks in a contract dispute.

Five months before that, 16,000 GM employees in five Ontario centres walked out for three days to back their contract demands.

Publishers Give Striking Unions New Proposals

TORONTO (CP)—The three Toronto daily newspapers have made what they term "flexible" proposals to their striking printers and negotiations on them were to continue today.

The proposals were made known to the printers Monday when both sides met with Louis Fine, chief conciliation officer of the Ontario labor department.

The executive of Local 91 of the International Typographical Union (CLC) met Monday night to consider the developments and a membership meeting of the 800 printers was scheduled for Wednesday night.

The printers walked off their jobs July 9 after the papers introduced new work rules opposed to by the union but not embodied in a signed contract. The Globe and Mail, a morning paper, and The Star and Telegram, evening publications, have continued to publish using supervisory and non - union workers in the composing room.

Details of the proposals were not made public, but publisher John Bassett of The Telegram said they met requests of other newspaper unions for the publishers to adopt a flexible position.

Meanwhile, ITU international headquarters sent a strike director and two assistants to Toronto in reply to a Local 91 request. They are strike director Robert Amelin of St. Louis and assistants Robert Armstrong of Vancouver and George Hogan of San Francisco.

DESERONTO

Metcalfe Home Entered and Articles Stolen

DESERONTO — The home of Clayton Metcalfe, owner of Metcalfe Foods in Deseronto, was entered during the weekend. The theft at the Mill street home was discovered yesterday by the cleaning woman, Mrs. Margaret Coles.

Mrs. Coles called police and Chief Ken Gloster of the Deseronto Town Police carried out the preliminary investigation.

A full extent of the theft is not yet known but the preliminary investigations indicated that a translator radio and a sum of cash had been taken.

There are some indications from the early investigation that the theft was carried out by local persons.

Hoodlum Gangs Around Playa To Be Checked

TORONTO (CP) — An all-out offensive against hoodlum gangs that have made shopping plazas the favorite targets for their vandalism was announced Monday by the shopping centre committee of the Urban Development Institute, a non-profit body of land and property developers.

Mrs. Greta Allen, executive director of the Ontario branch, said the committee, headed by Bruce Pattison, general manager of shopping centres for Don Mills Development Limited of Toronto, is drawing up an action program designed to clear hoodlums from the plazas.

Mrs. Allen said the cost in money runs into "hundreds of thousands of dollars" annually but the situation has now reached a point where physical safety of people is at stake. She said the UDI committee wants the legal status of shopping plazas more clearly defined, ending the confusion it feels exists as to whether the plaza is private property or in the public domain.

Southern Rhodesia's Future Depends on Sir R. Welensky

By DOUG MARSHALL
Canadian Press Staff Writer

Southern Rhodesia's future now seems to depend on the results of two byelections and the political cunning of Sir Roy Welensky.

Seasoned commentators on the turbulent Rhodesian situation have been hearing intimations of an illegal, unilateral declaration of independence all summer. They now seem agreed that the middle of October is the most likely date if it comes at all.

The theory is that Premier Ian Smith may be following a time-table calculated to achieve independence within a maximum of support from the white Rhodesians and a minimum of interference from Britain or the United Nations.

Originally the timetable was this:

Smith will meet Prime Minister Sir Alec Douglas-Home of Britain in London Sept. 7 and, like his predecessor Winston Field, will probably fail to sway the British government from its refusal to grant independence without adequate Negro representation.

SEEK SUPPORT

Having proved Britain to be intransigent, Smith's Rhodesian Front Party would then hope to win the two September byelections at Arundel and Arundel-West. Victory would be interpreted as a demonstration of electoral support for a break with Britain.

After that the survival of the independent Rhodesia would hinge on the measure of support from South Africa and the extent to which Britain and other Western nations would apply sanctions. Smith's hard - core supporters believe the majority of white Rhodesians would unswing behind the government.

WELENSKY IS THREAT

Welensky intends to contest Arundel, and seriously does Smith view this challenge that he has asked Deputy Premier Clifford Dupont to resign his present seat and fight Welensky in the byelection.

If Welensky and his new Rhodesia party win both byelections — observers give them a good chance — a possible coup may be frustrated. Sir Roy would then have to bring all his political talents to bear on the task of toppling Smith's government.

DAM'S LAKE

Work on the South Saskatchewan Dam will be so advanced by fall, 1966, that filling the 180-mile-long lake behind it will begin.

No more sneezing, wheezing or weeping!

If you're one of the millions of Canadians who literally sneeze their way through Summer and Fall—think of the relief you could get by removing as much as 95% of the airborne dust, pollen and imitants that rob you of sleep and bring such misery. The Honeywell Electronic Air Cleaner traps millions of tiny particles that pass right through ordinary filters. This method has been proved for years in hospitals where clean air is vital.

South Viet Nam Junta Is Still Seeking Leader

Believe General Khanh Likely to Resume Rule

By ROY ESSOYAN

SAIGON (AP) — South Viet Nam's military junta met for five hours tonight but failed to agree on a new chief of government. The junta adjourned for the night.

As the junta marched downstairs from the second - floor room where they held the meeting, the officers were smiling and chatting in a relaxed manner. But none would say how things were going.

The next meeting is scheduled to resume Thursday morning.

As the junta—or revolutionary council — went into the meeting, Maj.-Gen. Nguyen Khanh, who resigned Tuesday as president, was reported assured of resuming control but under a new title.

Although Khanh bowed to Buddhist and student mobs by giving up the presidency and scrapping the new constitution Tuesday, he clung to power as head of the junta.

He remained more than four hours of secret debate, the junta still had not reached agreement.

As the junta haggled, fears rose that the Communist Viet Cong may take advantage of the ruling by attacking the capital itself. Intelligence reports indicate that the Communists may have more than 20,000 troops around Saigon.

The 60 generals and colonels of South Viet Nam's U.S. - backed armed forces met under heavy guard at general staff headquarters near Saigon Airport.

KHANH ATTENDS

Among them was Maj.-Gen. Duong Van (Big) Minh the popular Buddhist who directed the overthrow of President Ngo Dinh Diem last November. Minh was ousted as figurehead chief of state in Khanh's Aug 16 shakeup, which precipitated the present crisis.

Minh did not attend the junta session 10 days ago when Khanh moved up from premier to president and received extraordinary powers under the new constitution.

Also present today were four generals—including three sus-

Education Aid Likely Our Role

By RUSSELL ELMAN

OTTAWA (CP) — Canadian aid to developing Commonwealth countries will likely be increasingly in the educational field, Dr. G. F. Curtis, chairman of the Canadian Scholarship and Fellowship Committee, said Tuesday.

The dean of law at the University of British Columbia said at a press conference that he noted a change in emphasis in governmental aid. Although assistance would continue for capital projects, such as power dams and nuclear reactors, a larger share than before would probably go towards education.

Dr. Curtis, a member of the Canadian delegation at the third Commonwealth education conference, said the training of manpower in the developing countries now is recognized as a prime objective.

It was clear that education, particularly at a university level, was vital to national development.

'TWINNING' URGED

He suggested that the form of aid will tend to be more along the lines of "twinning" projects now carried on by some Canadian universities in co-operation with the Canadian government.

These schemes "twin" a Canadian university with a university in a developing Commonwealth country. The Canadian institution, with financial support from the government through its external aid program, sets up an entire department for the overseas university.

He noted that UBC is setting up a school of business administration in Malaysia, that the University of Toronto is assisting an engineering faculty on its feet in India and that the University of Manitoba is doing similar work in teacher training in India.

PC's Ask Meeting On Flag

By RONALD LEBEL

OTTAWA (CP) — Conservative MPs are stepping up their new campaign in the Commons to persuade the government to refer the flag issue to a special parliamentary committee in an effort to break the summer-long deadlock.

As the House plodded through its 14th sitting day on the maple leaf flag resolution Tuesday, Conservative after Conservative argued that a small all-party committee would cool off the steaming debate.

"If the House agrees," said Reynold Rapp (PC — Humboldt-Melfort-Tisdale), "a compromise could be reached. There could be set up a committee composed of representatives of all Several.

"... The committee should be empowered to recommend a flag and have it approved by the House."

If the committee failed to agree unanimously on a flag design, then a decision could be taken to the people in a national plebiscite.

The committee proposal was first aired last week by Opposition Leader Diefenbaker. He suggested that a Senate committee should be able to find a solution to the flag impasse that it were given about two months.

WANT LIMIT

Prime Minister Pearson and leaders of the three small parties generally agreed with the idea, but held that a definite debating limit should be tied in to ensure a vote on the issue. Up to 25 days of debate have been made so far in the debate, 56 of them on a Conservative non-confidence motion and a non-confidence motion.

The Conservatives have made 79 speeches, many of them speaking twice, and 27 Liberal MPs have spoken. The splinter parties have put up 16 speakers.

Jean-Louis Frenette (SC — Portneuf) said the government should resort to the infamous closure rule if necessary to end "this sterile discussion."

Conservatives denied they are conducting a filibuster. They argued that any national flag must undergo a period of acceptance and not be connected with any political party in particular.

Terry Nugent (PC — Edmonton Strathcona) said few Canadians are interested in "this three-leaf monstrosity ... this pure political gimmick."

LEAVES GREAT TREE

"Have you ever tried to explain three maple leaves to an Eskimo who has never seen a tree?" asked Gene Rheaume (PC — Northwest Territories). "Or to a Canadian living in the Territories ask, is all this about?" ...

Lucien A. McLean (L—Charlotte), the only government speaker Tuesday, said he could understand the flag issue in the First World War but would like a new flag to symbolize Canada's future.

"I have 12 grandchildren and I do not want them to live in the past."

Albert Horner (PC — The Battlefords) said Mr. Pearson has contributed little to the flag question. The prime minister had called in his supporters like "a Roman dictator and told them: "Here's our new product. Go out and sell it."

L. R. (Bob) Thomson (PC — Huron) said three-quarters of all Canadians support the Red Ensign. Mr. Thomson said he can Canada with the support of only one province, Quebec.

DIVORCES FUNT

RENO, Nev. (AP)—Evelyn Punt received a divorce Tuesday from her husband, Allen, host for the network television show Candid Camera. The property settlement and agreement on custody of their three minor children was sealed by the court. The children are Peter, Patricia and John. Punt did not appear.

Attorney-General Wishart Suspends Securities Chief

TORONTO (CP) — Attorney-General A. A. Wishart announced Tuesday the indefinite suspension of H. Carne Campbell, Ontario securities commission director of administration, for suspected dealings in shares of Windfall Oils and Mines Limited.

Mr. Wishart said in announcing the suspension that Mr. Campbell "may have been involved, directly or indirectly, in matters relating to trading in the shares of the company."

He told a press conference that Mr. Campbell was "quite thoroughly involved" in the dealings which caused the Windfall shares to skyrocket to $5.70 from 56 cents early in July and then plunge to 80 cents later in the month on the Toronto Stock Exchange.

When Mr. Campbell was appointed 10 months ago to the newly created post he was described as the chief watchdog of the Ontario financial community. His duties included making initial decisions on investigations of individuals and companies in the securities business and directing the work of the commission's staff of investigators.

The suspension is the first result of an investigation ordered into the company by the attorney - general July 28, shortly after the market price of the company began to climb. Mr. Wishart said the suspension would remain in effect until "this aspect of the investigation has been completed."

Mr. Campbell said in an interview that his suspension was the only action the attorney-general could have taken under the circumstances, but added that he expects it to be lifted once the investigation ends.

He declined comment on whether he was trading in the company's shares.

Mr. Campbell said he has seen George MacMillan, Windfall president, and his wife, constantly in both social and official capacities since he met them at the prospectors and developers association convention early in March.

Mr. Campbell said he had acted as mediator between the TSE and Mr. MacMillan after the Exchange demanded a statement on drilling results from Windfall and threatened suspension if the statement was not forthcoming.

The MacMillans couldn't have cared less whether the Convention Glosses Over Bitter White-Negro Dispute

All but three of the 68-man all-white and official Mississippi delegation abruptly quit the convention rather than sign the mandatory loyalty pledges spurned earlier by the Alabama delegation.

Promptly, many of the largely-Negro Mississippi Freedom Democratic Party—which sought to unseat the pro-segregationist old guard—infiltrated the huge convention hall in borrowed credentials and occupied the empty chairs. About 30 finally got there.

An attempt by convention officials to throw some of them out ended, when, apparently, it was found out that the order had come from a southerner rather than the convention officers in charge. No blows were struck but there was a lot of pushing and pressure, much of it caused by television and radio reporters crowding round.

Late in the session, the actual seating area for the delegates was sealed off for a time, trapping the Negro groups and other authorized people. While all this was going on, the huge crowd outside the convention droned through the long and comprehensive party policy, which was rubber-stamped. All of it was made public earlier.

That was the main official event of the night, pointing toward the nomination tonight of President Lyndon B. Johnson for a take on Republican Senator Barry Goldwater Nov. 3. Johnson also is expected to reveal immediately who he wants as his vice-presidential candidate, with Minnesota Senator Hubert Humphrey favored.

But the smouldering civil

Rhodesia Outlaws 2 Parties

By BRIAN CHARLESWORTH

SALISBURY (Reuters) — A state of emergency was declared in a Southern Rhodesian Negro township today and a government ban placed on the country's two main nationalist organizations.

Police and troops ringed Highfield Township near Salisbury just before dawn as Governor Sir Humphrey Gibbs declared the area in a state of emergency.

Some territorial National Guard troops were called out and all Africans in the district were being screened.

Highfield, about eight miles from Salisbury, has been the scene of continued violence since early this month. Seven persons have been killed in fights between the rival African nationalist factions.

Shortly after the emergency was declared the British colony's minister of law and order, Desmond Lardner-Burke, announced in radio broadcast that Southern Rhodesia's two rival nationalist parties, the African National Council and the Zimbabwe African Nationalist Union, had been banned.

Lardner-Burke said the state of emergency in Highfield, "the scene of considerable lawlessness for some time," would last for three months.

ARREST 'THUGS'

He said the object of the declaration, was the arrest of "thugs and criminals."

Police were only concerned with weeding out lawless elements and were in the township to protect those who had been the innocent victims of recent unrest, he said.

ZANU is headed by Rev. Ndabaningi Sithole, a former chief lieutenant of Nkomo. He is awaiting trial on charges under the Law and Order Maintenance Act.

Lardner-Burke said the PCC and ZANU were "the main protagonists in the intimidation and violence in Highfield and throughout the country."

Members Told To Talk Less And Stay Longer

OTTAWA (CP) — Veteran MP L. Elston Cardiff treaded gently through the Commons flag debate Tuesday in delivering off homespun advice to fellow members on how to get along with people and stay in Parliament.

"I would suggest to the younger members of the House ... if you want to stay here don't talk too often and then they don't know how stupid you are," he said.

The 75-year-old Conservative from Huron said he has seen many members leave the Commons after a few years. "Then you, they were a lot smarter men than I and could make money outside and when they came down to solid facts they forgot all about the people who elected them. ..."

"More people talked themselves out of this House than talked themselves into it."

Mr. Cardiff said he was peaking for his people when he supported the Red Ensign.

A farmer who is secretary-treasurer of the Huron Farmer's Association, Mr. Cardiff had a special theory on the business of getting along with men.

"There are some men you cannot get along with ... unless you give them a good licking. I believe in the strict style: I believe in cracking down on a man who won't mind his own business."

Hurricane Sows Trail Of Death In Caribbean

64 Dead in Its Wake Before It Swipes Cuba

MIAMI, Fla. (AP) — Hurricane Cleo, responsible for at least 64 deaths, pounded Cuba during the night and appeared to be headed for Florida today.

The storm, which killed at least 14 on Guadeloupe and an estimated 50 in Haiti, took an abrupt turn to the north Tuesday, hitting the southwestern Cuban province of Camaguey.

Winds diminished to 75 miles an hour as the eye crossed over land but were expected to intensify as the hurricane hits the Florida Straits.

Residents of south Florida were warned by the weather bureau to be ready to take quick action if the storm intensified or appeared to pick up faster forward motion.

The bureau said the storm was expected to hit the Florida Straits this morning.

A businessman in Las Cayos on Haiti's southern peninsula radioed to Port au Prince that a hospital had been destroyed by the storm and 50 bodies found. Las Cayes was still in the process of rebuilding from the effects of Hurricane Flora which devastated the island and took thousands of lives.

More than 10,000 persons were evacuated from exposed areas of Florida's southwestern coast. There were no reports of casualties.

Hurricane Flora, which lashed Cuba for four days last year, caused more than 1,500 deaths in Cuba and hit the Caribbean economy a staggering blow.

Cuban military short - wave frequencies were kept busy throughout the night relaying hurricane damage reports to Havana.

One station, monitored by The Associated Press in Miami, reported a number of sugar mills in Oriental provinces were heavily damaged.

Printers Reject Late Offer

TORONTO (CP) — Striking printers from the three Toronto daily newspapers scheduled a membership meeting for tonight following a decision Tuesday by their union negotiating committee to reject the latest publishers' offer.

David Lewis, counsel for Local 91 of the International Typographical Union (CLC), said at a press conference Tuesday union members would be given an opportunity to express their views freely at the meeting.

Publishers of the Globe and Mail, a morning paper, and The Star and The Telegram, evening papers, presented the new proposals Monday and made them public in a statement following the union decision Tuesday.

The publishers, who have continued to put out papers since the printers walked off their jobs July 9 by using supervisory and management workers in the composing room, described the new proposals as flexible. They said the language with which they were rejected, combined with other factors, was disappointing.

The latest round of negotiations, under Louis Fine, the Ontario labor department's chief conciliation officer, collapsed at noon Tuesday after the union decision.

Earlier negotiations broke down Aug. 4 over publishers' demands that foremen and assistant foremen be removed from the union bargaining unit, that newspapers have the right to introduce new equipment and work practices which the publishers call featherbedding be eliminated.

In return, the publishers offered a lifetime guarantee against automation layoffs to present composing room employees.

Inquest Halted Because Coroner On Staff of Hospital Involved

TORONTO (CP)—Dr. Morton Shulman, Metropolitan Toronto chief coroner, ordered an inquest halted Tuesday night when he learned the coroner conducting the inquest was on the staff of a hospital involved in investigation.

After the jury had returned to give its verdict, Dr. Murray Rotstein emerged from an office interview with Dr. Shulman and announced that the inquest was adjourned and would be held with another coroner presiding.

The inquest was into the death last July of Mrs. Mary Wakar, 59, who was found dead away from Northwestern Hospital's emergency ward the night before. She was said to have come back later but died at home about eight hours after leaving the hospital.

Dr. Rotstein, who did not mention during the inquest that he was on the hospital's staff, said in his summation to the jurors "must blame the decreased herself" for not arranging through a family physician to be admitted to hospital as recommended.

He said everyone should have a personal physician and have a complete examination at least once a year.

Walter Wakar testified he tried for five or six hours to get a doctor for his wife on July 1, after she complained of being short of breath and feeling ill.

He said he drove her to the emergency ward on the hospital's advice after a doctor who he thought was coming never showed up.

His wife Marjorie said the doctor at the hospital said her brother-in-law was not sick and should be admitted to hospital or she might die.

But she said the doctor explained that he could not admit Mrs. Wakar through the emergency ward. She would have to be admitted by a doctor outside the hospital staff.

Mrs. Wakar complained of feeling ill again the next morning. She died while her brother-in-law was again trying to reach a doctor.

Hard Over Plaza Hoodlums, Magistrate Sends Five to Jail

TORONTO (CP) — All-out war was declared Tuesday on teen-age shopping plaza hoodlums as irate shopkeepers tried to rid themselves of a problem some claim has been going on for years.

Charles Bick, chairman of the Toronto Police Commission ordered an investigation into the charges of shopping plaza hoodlumism. Five youths were given jail terms for their part in a Scarborough brawl and in the theft of three cars.

Magistrate Robert Taylor told the youths — all members of a "plaza gang"— he had intended to put a stop to plaza gangs with their pool hall and street-corner associations, and car cowboys who will waste half a lifetime in jail.

Mr. Cardiff said he was peaking for his people when he supported the Red Ensign.

A farmer who is secretary-treasurer of the Huron Farmer's Association, Mr. Cardiff had a special theory on the business of getting along with men.

"There are some men you cannot get along with ... unless you give them a good licking. I believe in the strict style: I believe in cracking down on a man who won't mind his own business."

A wave of pro ests was started by Mr. and Mrs. Leslie Williams after windows were broken at their lodge' wear in suburban Scarborough Saturday night.

A rash of complaints followed from other plaza shopkeepers who berated the youths' behavior — swearing, hanging around outside premises and bothering customers.

Metro Urban Development Institute, a non-profit group, of land and property developers, is also preparing action against the gangs.

A committee was drawing up a plan to form a "vigilante" executive director of the Ontario branch, which would cost "hundreds of thousands of dollars" to clear the youths from the plazas.

Markham East York merchant, James Thompson, 64, meanwhile armed himself with a basket and is keeping a vigil at his clothing store where a plate-glass window has been broken three times this month.

Neil Jaworzik, 19, a steelworker who associates with the plaza loiterers, defended his friends. "We're not as bad as they make out," he said.

"Where else can we go? We used to go to the community centre to play floor hockey Wednesday but the ladies aid or somebody wanted it and they cut us off. There isn't any place else."

Basic Principals Of Peace Said To Be Crumbling

CASTEL GANDOLFO, Italy (AP)—Pope Paul warned today that "all of these basic principles on which peace must be founded" are crumbling.

In an impassioned appeal against an arms race, the pontiff begged men to remember what caused two devastating world wars, and deplored what he called a return to the "illusory concept that peace can only be based on the terrifying power of extremely homicidal weapons."

Pope Paul said the world is seeing a rebirth of perilous concepts, that the "concept of the sacred and inviolable character of human life" has been obscured.

"Men of good will, listen to our humble words," the pontiff implored.

Pope Paul decried "subversive propaganda and revolutionary disorders," and said that when pacifist statements are misused to promote social and political contrasts. This may have been a reference to pro-Communist "peace movements."

Pope Paul said his thoughts were stirred by the current anniversary commemorations of the start of the First and Second World Wars. He expressed concern at the "acute disagreement," already stained with blood and pregnant with mounting existing today between various countries."

The Vatican press office issued translations of the Pope's appeal in major w o rld languages. Generally translations are issued of only the Pope's most important pronouncements.

The Pope, who spoke in Italian, recalled peace appeals by Pope St. Pius X and Benedict XV before and during the First World War and by Pius XII on the eve of the Second World War.

"The difference which surrounded the warning intentions of papal teaching does not discourage us from renewing our paternal appeal for peace whenever the moment of history and especially the duty of our apostolic office, require it," he said.

Accordion Students Win at CNE

Second prize in the eight-years-and-under class went to Barry Van Dusen, of Belleville.

Gillin Miller and Veronica Kosir of Trenton both won first class honors in the 11-years-and-under class.

Linda Miller of Belleville won first class honors in the 14-years-and-under class. Linda was one of seven winners of the original 37 contestants in her class to reach the final contest for a $100 prize.

Accordionists from 15 countries will meet in Toronto, Sept 5 and 12, to compete for the world championship in accordion playing. Representing Canada will be Canadian Champion Joe Macerollo, of Guelph, who will also be playing in Belleville next February. The meet this year will be the first time the accordion playing contest in the world championship championship of the world has been decided in Canada.

No Violation Of Act Says Premier Manning

EDMONTON (CP)—Premier Manning said Tuesday that Dr. Lou Heard, Social Credit member of the Alberta legislature for Drumheller North East, has not violated the Legislative Assembly Act.

The premier replying to Neil Reimer, Alberta New Democratic leader, who last week called for the legislature to look into the activities of Dr. Heard in connection with the province's Chiropractic Act.

Mr. Reimer said in a letter to the premier actions taken recently by Dr. Heard may be in "conflict with statutes governing the conduct of (MLA's."

"The prohibitions in the Legislative Assembly Act would appear to be violated in any way by reason of Dr. Heard performing certain administrative duties under the chiropractic association of which he is a member," Premier Manning said in a letter of reply dated Aug. 24 The letter was released Tuesday by the premier's office.

Mr. Reimer sent the premier a copy of a confidential report prepared by Dr. Heard for the Alberta Chiropractic Association on government financial assistance to pensioners for chiropractic services. Dr. Heard is pension secretary - treasurer for the association.

Mr. Manning said "it is obvious that (the report) is not intended to be a report according to the public or to the government of the expenditures of public monies received by the association under its agreement with the department of health."

Will Convert Destroyer Into A Museum

TORONTO (CP)—The retired destroyer HMCS - Haida was turned over in a ceremony here Tuesday to Haida Incorporated, a 10-man group which will convert the ship into a memorial museum.

Headed by Nell Bruce of Toronto, the group raised $20,000 to buy the ship which was commissioned in 1943 and saw extensive action in the Second World War and the Korean War.

The group now plans to campaign for $500,000 to build a permanent berth.

Many Militia Units Below 200 Personnel

By DAVE McINTOSH

OTTAWA (CP) — At least 18 militia infantry regiments have fewer than 200 personnel on their ratio of officers to men in the militia officer for every five or six men.

With three exceptions, all these regiments are in Ontario and Quebec.

The figures are contained in a defence department report on the 45,000-member militia made public by the Commons defence committee Tuesday.

Associate Defence Minister Cardin has said the militia will be reduced to 30,000 and that decisions on which units will be disbanded or amalgamated with others will be reached by October.

An examination of the figures indicates which infantry and artillery types of units may be disbanded. The committee also said it may be politically impossible for Mr. Cardin to eliminate some currently weak regiments because of their famous names and traditions.

SHOULD BE 500

An infantry battalion normally numbers slightly more than 500 but the militia has a strength of about 500 is considered excellent.

Battalions with fewer than 200 personnel in Ontario include:

The Perth Regiment, Stratford, 22 officers and 94 men;

The Highland Light Infantry of Canada, Gall. 30 officers and 102 men;

2nd Battalion, Essex and Kent Scottish, Chatham, 29 officers and 160 men;

The Queen's Rifles, 27 officers and 151 men;

The Atlantic provinces have the smallest militia formations but there are also well supported regiments in other provinces.

Body of Missing Man Found In Crowe Lake

The body of a 20-year-old Toronto man, David Vandewater, 9 Stag Hill Road, was located in Crowe Lake Tuesday afternoon.

The man was reported missing late Sunday afternoon when a small boat he had rented from Bonter's Marina on Crowe Lake, was found floating unoccupied.

Ontario Provincial Police at Madoc dragged the lake without success Sunday. On Monday, Const. Donald Constable of James McCormick, searched the waters and it wasn't until 12.40 p.m. Tuesday that Constable McCormick located the man's body just off Stoney Island, near where the boat was seen on Sunday.

Crowe Lake is about two miles northwest of Marmora. The incident was investigated by Ontario Provincial Police Constable Bruce Shaw of the Madoc detachment.

No explanation was given as to how the man drowned.

Fire Damages Farm Tractor

Extensive damage was caused to a farm tractor owned by D. Longwell on the 9th of Sidney when it caught fire yesterday afternoon. Fire Department was called to the scene.

A short in a clothes dryer at the J. M. Finkle residence on West Dundas Street brought the fire department to the home at 3.17 p.m. Damage was reported as slight.

At 7.30 p.m. the department was called to the home of M. Thompson at 213 Charles St., where the ceiling in the kitchen caught fire from a grease pan. A small amount of damage resulted.

At 9.44 p.m. a grease pan sitting on the stove at 211 Coleman St. caught fire. There was no damage.

Six Candidates For Leadership Heard at Meet

PORT WILLIAM (CP)—Criticism of their own party's organization interspersed attacks by the current government of six announced candidates for leadership of the Ontario Liberal party, which spoke to a political rally Tuesday night.

The candidates said the Progressive Conservative government has become fat, complacent and corrupt but the Liberals will have to rejuvenate their organization if they expect to win the next provincial election, expected in 1965.

About 200 persons turned out to hear speeches by Robert Nixon, member of the Legislature for Brant; Andrew Thompson, member of Toronto Dorsecourt; Eddie Sargent, mayor of Owen Sound and member for Grey North; Charles Templeton, former executive secretary of the Toronto Star; J. J. (Joe) Screaton, member of Parliament for Renfrew South; and Vic Coppa, mayor of Hamilton.

Mr. Templeton said Premier Gould, member of the legislature for Toronto Bracondale, has failed to attend the rally due to a back injury.

Mr. Greene said "the people of Ontario have a new party of Tory government, know it's time for a change. Rigor mortis is setting in. The symptoms are clear enough—security commission scandal, the gas line scandal, a new scandal in the highways department."

NEED CHANGE

Mr. Templeton said the Liberal party will not win the next election if it continues doing what it has been doing.

"It will take a completely revitalized Liberal party to do it," he said. "Only the Liberal Conservatives are "arrogant, with no concern for the people of this province."

Mr. Coppa slapped Liberal opposition in the legislature for not speaking out against "ridiculous legislation."

He criticized the government was "busy keeping their fingers in all holes which have been sprung in the dike."

Mr. Sargent accused the Conservative government of showing favoritism to cities. He said the government is subsidizing a $20,000,000 subway in Toronto while there is no provincial help for cities in all parts of the province $30 a head."

He advocated equality for all parts of the province. "What's good for Toronto should be good for Port William, Sudbury, Timmins, or any other area of the province."

Mr. Thompson said the Liberal party must have a capable and dynamic leader. "The day of the one-man show is over."

Chanaian Tells Kiwanians of His Country

Belleville Kiwanians were given a lesson in history on Ghana, at their regular meeting held at the Kiwanis Centre on Tuesday by Emanuel A. Mensah, a generating engineer from Ghana.

Mr. Mensah has been in Canada since May to study operations of the Ontario Hydro. He is representing the Akosombo generating station in conjunction with the Volta River project now in progress in Ghana. It is expected the project will go into operation some time next year.

Mr. Mensah gave a brief description of the native country, outlining its size, population, imports and export, education system and its economical position.

The speaker pointed out that in the beginning Ghana's chief source of export was cocoa. He went on to list the various companies now in existence in Ghana which has a population of seven and one half million people.

The Volta River operation is the country's biggest operation. Power is supplied at the present by diesel powered generating stations. The biggest percentage of the electricity will be used by mines in Ghana which are gold and ore.

Mr. Mensah will be returning in Ghana, along with representatives from Ontario Hydro, in the near future. He was accompanied to Canada by two other delegates from his company.

CNE Attendance Down 83,000 From Last Year

TORONTO (CP)—The hopes of Canadian National Exhibition officials of drawing more than 3,000,000 persons to their show for the third straight year took another dousing Tuesday.

Rain, lashed by winds of up to 50 miles an hour, and a 20-minute thunder storm slammed the exhibition grounds just before the supper hour, wrecking some of the midway and causing cancellation of the waterfront show.

It was the third time in four days a severe weather had plagued the exhibition and held crowds down.

The attendance Tuesday was 156,500 compared with 177,000 for the same day last year. Attendance so far this year is 655,000, a drop of 83,000 over last year's attendance for the first four days.

Tuesday was Automotive Day and Mayor Philip Givens of Toronto entertained at a luncheon that automobile companies use the CNE as a place to unveil their new models.

However, representatives of three auto manufacturers—General Motors, Chrysler and American Motors—said if new models were displayed here customers might not visit dealer showrooms to see the new models.

Stewart-Warner's Canadian President, Arthur Young, Is Honored on Retirement

Tribute was paid last night to Arthur (Art) Young, retiring president of the Canadian division of Stewart-Warner Corporation. A retirement dinner was held in the Pinnacle Room of the Hotel Quinte and was attended by approximately 100 guests and employees of Stewart-Warner.

In opening his remarks, Mr. Hagerman said: "Tonight, it is my privilege to honor one whose name has long been a part of Stewart-Warner of Canada. After years of service and leadership of the company Mr. Young has come to the stage in life, where he can be relieved of those responsibilities and look forward to years of relaxation and ease. His unceasing concern for the welfare of the company has brought about this award."

Mr. Hagerman outlined Mr. Young's career with the Stewart-Warner Company. He first joined the ranks of the then named Alemite Products of Canada in 1922 as assistant plant manager. He was promoted to plant manager in 1925 and in 1929 was elected a director of Stewart-Warner of Canada. In 1938 he was appointed general manager and president in 1940.

Mr. Young, since reaching the top, has branched further afield and has held important and responsible offices, such as the presidency of the Radio Manufacturers Association of Canada, the directorship of the Central Region of the Canadian Manufacturers' Association.

During his 42 years with Stewart-Warner of Canada, Mr. Young also served several years on the Board of the Unemployment Insurance Commission.

Malcolm Robb, the legal counsel for the company was the guest speaker of the evening and was introduced by chairman Hagerman.

In a brief talk Mr. Robb commented "it is a privilege for me to return to Belleville on this occasion, honouring Art Young." One of his earliest memories of Belleville, Mr. Robb said, was the esteem everyone seemed to have for Art." "I've known Art for a long time and he has been very good to me," was, according to Mr. Robb, an expression he often heard.

Mr. Robb congratulated Mr. Young on his 42 years with the Stewart-Warner Company and said that in congratulating Mr. Young he was also congratulating all the employees of Stewart-Warner here because they, along with Mr. Young, had contributed so much to the success and universal acceptance of the Stewart-Warner Company products.

Other speakers from the Stewart-Warner plant expressed their best wishes for many years of leisure. Among those who spoke were Dr. Russell Scott, the company medical doctor; Fred Ethier, the plant manager; Harold Cummings, past chairman of Stewart-Warner Employees Guild; Miss Beverley Coulter, Mr. Young's secretary; Vic. White, the sales manager of the Bassick Division; Jack Backley, district sales manager for the Alemite division; Steve Bakay, the O.E.M. sales manager and Joe Hawkins, comptroller.

The program concuded with the presentation of a portable television set from the associates of Stewart-Warner, Canada. The presentation was made by William Page, the vice-chairman of the Quarter Century Club. Another gift from the Chicago executives was presented to Mr. Young by Mr. Hagerman.

Finally Mr. Young rose to thank all those present and all those who had helped to make his 42 years with the company so successful. Mr. Young said he saw a great future for all employees of Stewart-Warner and for the new president of the Canadian division, Stan Hagerman. Mr. Young asked that all Stewart-Warnerites give the same support to Mr. Hagerman that he had received from everyone over the years. Mr. Young said that he would spend his retirement in doing those things he had planned to do for so many years.

Another retirement party for Mr. Young will be held later this week in Chicago by the executives of the company.

More Foreign Aid Needed To Cure Economic Ills

By EDGAR MILLER

RIO DE JANEIRO (AP)—Brazil is like a train in a long, dark tunnel—but gives a little light it will soon find its way to sunshine and fresh air of the other side.

This is the way President Humberto Castello Branco has described this huge country's economic ills. His implication is clear: What's needed is more foreign aid. Brazil can't get its problems alone, he says.

He compares Brazil's present situation to that in Europe after the Second World War when the United States stepped in with the Marshall plan.

The press has been even more vocal in criticizing the government for not pouring more money into Brazil to help the post-revolutionary government which Castello Branco heads.

Equally influential O Globo gave a "serious and sincere warning to the government of the United States" about its financial policy toward Brazil.

'DESERVES' AID

"A government of undeniable democratic good faith like that of President Castello Branco, firmly supported by the military to guarantee its stability, should deserve American aid," said O Globo.

Castello Branco, however, did not go so far as the editorialists.

"This aid," he said, "already is beginning to make itself felt."

The U.S. Alliance for Progress has significantly stepped up its efforts since the revolution. But problems continue despite an alliance grant of $50,000,000 recently for economic stabilization. After holding steady for nearly four months, the cruzeiro suddenly took a new tumble this month in the wake of government efforts to stimulate exports. From around 1,300 cruzeiros to the dollar, the price went to more than 1,600 to the dollar.

A new problem has cropped up: Unemployment.

Brazil's finance says industries which were forced by government economic restrictions, particularly those on credit, to cut back their labor force are exploiting inflation for their own profit.

Workers Vote To Switch Allegiance

MONTREAL (CP) — Some 1,000 National Harbors Board employees belonging to the Brotherhood of Railway and Steamship Clerks (CLC) voted Tuesday to switch their allegiance from the Canadian Labor Congress to the Confederation of National Trade Unions.

The vote, ordered by the Federal Labor Relations Board, was taken at a general meeting attended by 972 of the local's 1,100 members. Seventy-five per cent of those present favored the change in affiliation.

The union members are grain elevator and warehouse caretakers.

The two labor congresses have been involved in rivalry for the adherance of organized Quebec workers. CNTU President Jean Marchand, whose group is almost wholly within Quebec, has said it seeks members in CLC ranks.

Ex-Head of American Legion Sees Goldwater Landslide

TRENTON — At a meeting in the Trenton Legion Hall, Monday night, Master Sgt. James McKinley of Midland Park, New Jersey, told the Legionnaires they must work to encourage a sense of their country's heritage in the young people of Canada.

Sgt. McKinley said the young should be made to feel that Canadian and American freedom must be maintained at all costs, and that the veterans of both world wars could still play an important role in this. "Canadians and Americans share a heritage of free men," said Sgt. McKinley, "We must never give it up. Some people, unwittingly, some unwillingly; some purposely, try to undermine our nations. We, as men who have seen the horrors of war, must nevertheless fight against those who advocate peaceful co-existence with the very nations who would destroy us."

Sgt. McKinley, a past commander of the American Legion, saw service in World War II in Europe, the Philippines, Japan, China, Guam and since that service has devoted himself to youth activities in the Boy Scout work, and to community projects.

He has particularly interested himself in groups and organizations that call for the retention of American freedom and pledged to fight communism on every front.

In a telephone interview from Stirling on Tuesday, Sgt. McKinley came out strongly in support of Senator Barry Goldwater for the presidency of the United States. He said that while Goldwater might seem to advocate extreme nationalism, he felt the remainder of his marks were quite often misconstrued by newspaper reporters.

Sgt. McKinley said Senator Goldwater was a moderate in viewpoint that America was taking too soft an approach towards the communist nations, and was only biding their time to destroy the West.

"The apparently softer approach of the communist nations in the west, said Sgt. McKinley, was, in reality, only a change of tactics, and a change with the times. "The basic ideaiism of the communists, which is to subjugate the non-communist nations, has not changed," he said.

FORECASTS GOLDWATER WIN

Sgt. McKinley said he felt he was in a position to speak of the average man in the street and forecast a landslide victory for the Republican Party and Barry Goldwater.

"Our nation needs a strong leader," Sgt. McKinley said. "For the past eight or ten years we have been drifting along like a ship without a rudder. A changeover in the States is necessary."

At the Legion Hall, Sgt. McKinley outlined the policy of the American Legion towards the youth of America. He said the US Legion sponsored such programs as boys' camps, where boys spend two weeks learning about the workings of their government, and the education of young girls in the nation's schools of nursing.

Sgt. McKinley's address, "Hands Across the Border," was designed to point up the common interests of Canada and the United States.

"There'll always be an Amerca and there'll always be a Canada and we can continue to live side by side, fostering our mutual heritage of independence and freedom."

Youth Pleads Guilty to Theft Of $40 in Cash

TRENTON — In magistrate's court at Trenton yesterday, a 17-year-old youth, 18-year-old James Edward Hanrahan, pleaded guilty to the theft of $40 from a Hexade, Ont., woman and was placed on a one year's absolute sentence by Magistrate Phillip Baker of Kingston.

Constable Sidney Vickers told the court the youth had admitted taking the money from the woman's purse, while she was in one office of the marina on the east riverbank in Trenton. The purse was in another office. The theft occurred on Aug. 15.

Hanrahan admitted spending the money on the same night, on meals in a local restaurant, and on the purchase of a used bicycle.

The money has been returned to the owner, Mrs. Bradley, and in court yesterday, Hanrahan told the magistrate he would work for a relative who had loaned him the money with which to make restitution.

The youth was ordered by the magistrate to report to probation officer once a week for the duration of his period of his sentence, then twice monthly for the duration. Hanrahan's father, in court, was advised by the magistrate to "be a little more strict" with his son, and told it that he kept an 11 p.m. curfew.

Making Trip Down Moira In Canoe

TRENTON — Proving that there are still more worlds to conquer, 18-year-old Larry Everson of Glen Miller launched his 12-foot plywood canoe into the upper reaches of the Moira River last Tuesday, on his own and attempt to prove that there is still water in the river.

Two weeks later he made his first sortie, wetting his canoe briefly at Deloro, near Marmora, and days later was beached his boat for repairs at Madoc, as he had discovered the Moira is about full of rocks.

The rains of the past week persuaded Don that perhaps the Moira was higher and at 1 p.m. on Tuesday he again pointed his craft in the general direction of Belleville. Flying a Pearson pennant, and carrying on board a tent, sleeping bag and food, Larry expects to make the trip in less than a week.

Larry is a Grade 13 student at Quinte Secondary School in Belleville. He has no known Indian ancestry.

Working Plans For New School Are Received

TRENTON — Working plans for the proposed $90,000 addition to North Trenton Public School have been received by the Trenton Board of Education office and considered by the board. Architect's fees will be forwarded to the Department of Education in Toronto for approval, since they are approved, tenders for construction will be called by the board. Architects for the new addition are: Barrett, Reider and Creighton of Port Hope and Toronto.

WILL SEND EXPERT

Rev. Bowen Squire of Consecon, who earlier this month went to Dr. Ian Emerson of Toronto, an archeologist, for comment on Indian artifacts found along the new development road, north of Trenton, has received the reply that Dr. Emerson will be engaged in excavation work in Northern Ontario at this time, an "expert" will be sent from Ottawa to examine the find.

Paul Finlan, 13 and Byron McMurdo, 15, both of R. R. 1, Trenton, came upon two human skeletons buried in "red sand", while on the Finlan family property. A further search revealed artifacts in the "graves".

Contacted, Mr. Squire judged the skeletons to be those of an Indian man and woman, and possibly 2,500 years old. He has formed the find by the boys, "important".

Mrs. H. Upper Guest of Honor BeforeDeparture

TRENTON — A former Trenton newspaper woman, Mrs. Helen Upper, was a member of the Board of Judges in the recent contests for better newspapers, sponsored by the Canadian Weekly Newspapers Association. The trophy for the best all-round weekly newspaper will be presented at the CWNA convention in the Royal York Hotel at Toronto this week, as well as individual awards for specialized sections of the weeklies.

Mrs. Upper, former assistant editor of The Trentonian, judged the women's sections of newspapers from coast to coast and selected the Lakeshore News-West Island Chronicle of Pointe Claire, Que., as the best all-round women's page. Judging was done on the point system, which included matters of general interest to women, pictures, advertising and typography. This is the first time the CWNA has offered a prize for the women's page.

"Weekly newspapers are an important feature in publishing," Mrs. Upper said in a comment about the contest, released today, "they convey the news at community level, sometimes called the "grass roots level," and keep the local population in close touch with community activities."

Mrs. Upper, who was elected as associate member of the International Conference of Weekly Newspaper Editors at the CWNA convention last year, was requested to write a commentary on the judging of the women's pages, for presentation at the 1964 convention.

Mrs. Upper leaves Trenton this week to take up temporary residence in Hamilton. She was the guest of honor at a farewell party given by fellow members of the Trenton Business and Professional Women's Club, last week. Also at the gathering was a representative from the Belleville Soroptimist Club, of which Mrs. Upper is a member. Mrs. Upper was presented with a gift and a corsage by the president of the Trenton club, Miss Dorothy Kennedy.

The farewell party was held at the home of Miss Marion Baker and Miss Lucy Baker, Byron St., Trenton.

WIFE IN HOSPITAL

TRENTON — Rev. George Minielly, a former minister at King St. United Church, Trenton, and Mrs. Minielly, have been visiting in the Trenton area for the past few days. Mrs. Minielly, however, became ill during the visit and is now a patient in Trenton hospital where her condition is reported as satisfactory.

Constitution Party Has Candidate

By FRAN KWETZEL

ATLANTIC CITY (AP)—Joe Lightburn is a mild-mannered man with close-cropped grey hair and a neat moustache who runs a general store at Jane Lew, W. Va. He also is running for president.

Lightburn, 64, was nominated by the Constitution party at Houston on July 24 His vice-presidential running mate is Ted Billings, who runs a health food store in Denver.

How's he doing?

"Well, they're taking my literature home for them," he said in an interview. "I'm encouraged by the reception."

HITS 15 POINTS

The literature Lightburn gives away like a 15-point party program. One plank calls for U.S. withdrawal from the United Nations.

Another urges repeal of the Civil Rights Act. There is emphasis on states' rights, balanced budgets, freedom from foreign alliances and establishment of a militia in each state.

Lightburn's name will appear on the ballot in Texas, New Mexico and Washington and his supporters are trying to get it on the ballot in other states.

He said the Constitution party received 500,000 votes in the 1960 election.

"I know we'll get more than that this year." he said "Perhaps it will be in the millions."

Cheese Centennial

Being Prime Minister of Canada has some advantages. Every hundred years, one can expect to be presented with a brick of the finest Canadian cheddar cheese.

The precedent for future gifts was set last week, when J. M. Hartwick, president of the National Dairy Council, handed the first of such centennial tributes to Prime Minister L. B. Pearson.

The occasion was the hundredth anniversary of the first commercial manufacture of cheese in Canada, at Norwich in Oxford County, Ontario, in 1864.

This information, incidentally, cleared up a slight mystery. During the Lennox and Addington County centennial, a celebration at Adolphustown had been billed as the joint centennial of that village and the Ontario Cheese Producers' Association. A hundred years ago our forefathers were much too busy to produce to bother about the formation of producers' associations.

In today's world, though, such groups fulfill useful functions and no similar association has done more for the group it represents than the Cheese Producers, which has its headquarters here in Belleville.

The Association still has some new fields to conquer. Domestic consumption of cheese has doubled in the last twelve years, with an average sales gain of eight per cent per year. Nevertheless, Canadian rank only 13th amongst the 17 leading cheese consuming nations of the world, managing to eat their way through eight pounds of cheese a capita. This is a meagre two-and-one-half ounces per week, no more than enough for a healthy gulp for the week's first midnight snack and leaving absolutely nothing over for cheese sandwiches or apple pie.

Some of us, of course, are doing more than our share of the work in eating the nation's cheese output, but none of us is complaining. Still, we could stand some assistance, providing the Cheese Producers promise to produce adequate supplies of cheddar.

Cheddar, of course, is cheese as far as Canadians are concerned. There are as many different kinds of cheeses as there are wines, but cheddar is to cheese what a robust red burgundy is to wine, although there is much to be said for the blue that is not to be displeased, we remember a Samsoe of authority which had to be exiled between the kitchen window and the storm, limburger can be more than pleasant, the originators of cheddar, the English, swear by Stilton, Camembert hath charms, Roquefort opens new vistas, the Swiss have arranged a whole symphony of flavors for the delicate tongue, Edam — —

But why are we wasting time talking? Let's see what is in the pantry.

Sally Ann Will "Rock"

In music there are two sounds over the years that have never really changed. The sound of the Lombardo orchestra and the music of the Salvation Army band.

However there is to be a change and it does not involve "The Royal Canadians." Commissioner Edgar Grinsted, the new commander of the Salvation Army in Canada, made the announcement this past week in Toronto.

In England an Army band has experimented with rock 'n roll at its meetings for the youth and the results, according to authorities, have been most rewarding.

The commissioner said the implementation of this new approach will be one of his first projects here in Canada. This modern, up-to-date thinking, on the part of the Army's new Canadian commander is laudable.

It is safe to say that in our modern age the trend with youth has been away from things religious. Their big excuse has been that there is really nothing to interest them. There simply has been no real mass appeal.

The new musical policy of the Army is a step in the right direction. The Army will try to speak to the youth in a language that it can understand—rock 'n roll. Perhaps after all, the music that adults are so ready to condemn, trash will be just the instrument to bring the young to a realization that religion does and should play some part in their lives.

Youth is the time to go flashing from one end of the world to the other both in mind and body; to try the manners of different nations; to hear the chimes at midnight.—Robert Louis Stevenson.

Cardsplash — Two Views

St. Louis Post-Dispatch

Senator Goldwater has been crying for sympathy because he was misquoted by a wire service on the use of nuclear weapons in Vietnam.

We think the Senator has a just complaint on this particular occasion, but it is for the disavowal of a policy of using nuclear weapons in South-east Asia is as phony as a three-dollar bill.

Long before the recent occasion in which he claims to have been misquoted, Senator Goldwater was advancing the idea of attacking with nuclear weapons.

For instance, on May 30, 1963, Newsweek quoted him as saying: "I'd drop a low - yield atomic bomb on the Chinese supply lines in North Vietnam, or maybe shell 'em with the Seventh Fleet."

Again on Nov. 18, 1961 The Los Angeles Times quoted him as saying: "A low-yield atomic bomb could have been used in Laos to defoliate the rain forests."

These Goldwaterisms were among a collection of quotations put together last April by Look magazine. The editors quoted the whole batch to Senator Goldwater and asked him "Do you still believe this?"

The Senator declined personally to answer on the ground that he did not think he would have to be interdicted where they leave Red China, which is the Red River Valley and North Vietnam and there, according to my studies of the geography, it would not be a difficult matter to destroy those basic routes."

What Mr. Goldwater said was perhaps ambiguous. But he did not say he wanted to "defoliate South Vietnam." Yet which alert reporters grabbed it and ran.

Whatever the fate of Mr. Goldwater, we suspect the word "defoliation" will dog him into the history books!

B. C. Plans Sideshow

Ottawa Citizen

Premier Bennett of British Columbia says his government is going to concentrate on publicizing on a mammoth industrial fair in 1967, even if this means neglecting Expo '67 at Montreal. This is his privilege, but Mr. Bennett hardly displays the spirit of co-operation toward the nation's centennial celebrating, and other Canadians will have reason to wonder once again how much B.C. is really interested in what goes on beyond the Rockies.

Expo '67, of course, is much more than a trade fair, and to that extent the Bennett project does not really qualify in competition with it. But to the extent that it diverts support from the Montreal exhibition—a World's Fair in the truest sense — it hurts this major centennial project.

Mr. Bennett might have selected another year than 1967 to stage what he aims to be the world's largest industrial fair — say 1971, the centenary of British Columbia's entry into Confederation.

If he persists, he should be left strictly on his own so far as the rest of the country is concerned. The B.C. government should certainly not count on any help from the federal Department of Trade and Commerce in pushing its provincial sideshow.

Water-Rich

Vancouver Sun

Canada is one of the most water - rich nations on earth. And we do not know yet whether we should take the water to the people or bring the people to the water. We had better find out.

The National Observer

"Defoliation" has become sort of a smart crack, used to illustrate Mr. Goldwater's "trigger-happiness"—whatever specifically that might be. Or just to get at Mr. Goldwater.

For example, Governor Scranton said Mr. Goldwater was out to "defoliate the whole Republican Party."

Just what did Mr. Goldwater say in the defoliation episode? According to the transcript of the American Broadcasting Company, it was this:

Interviewer: "There's a lot of supply lines seem to run in on the Laotian border, in any case, through jungles and along trails. How could you interdict those, with no good—"

Senator Goldwater: "Well it is not as easy to do sometimes, because there are not trails that are out in the open.

"I have been in these rain forests of Burma and South China. One can effectively defoliate them by just spraying them as an enemy hunting you.

"There, I've been several suggestions made. . . I don't think we would use any of them. But defoliation of the forests by low-yield atomic weapons could well be done. You remove the foliage, you remove the cover.

"The major supply lines though I think would have to be interdicted where they leave Red China, which is the Red River Valley area in North Vietnam and there, according to my studies of the geography, it would not be a difficult matter to destroy those basic routes."

What Mr. Goldwater said was perhaps ambiguous. But he did not say he wanted to "defoliate South Vietnam." Yet which alert reporters grabbed it and ran.

Mosquitoes Bite Healthy

Winnipeg Free Press

It is no news that mosquitoes like some people better than others. But the information obtained in a survey made recently for the manufacturers of an insect repellent, while it won't keep the critters away from the unwanted, may give them a slight feeling of superiority.

The survey, made among 800 people in 16 Canadian cities, showed that mosquitoes don't prefer blondes. The mosquito likes is someone with a dark complexion, who wears dark clothing, is energetic, has healthy, and uses cologne or aftershave lotion. The insects will ignore cool, light - skinned people who take a lot of baths and don't use scent.

One can conclude from these findings that the way to avoid being bitten is to dye your hair blonde and sit in a bathtub all day. On the other hand, if one is in the mosquito belt, bathes not wear dark clothing, eschews all kinds of cologne and scent — but still gets bitten, the spirit of co-operation toward the nation's centennial, and other Canadians will have reason to wonder once again how much B.C. is really interested in what goes on beyond the Rockies.

Expo '67, of course, is much more than a trade fair, and to that extent the Bennett project does not really qualify in competition with it. But to the extent that it diverts support from the Montreal exhibition—a World's Fair in the truest sense — it hurts this major centennial project.

Mr. Bennett might have selected another year than 1967 to stage what he aims to be the world's largest industrial fair — say 1971, the centenary of British Columbia's entry into Confederation.

If the play begins with someone answering the telephone and explaining the situation to the audience through a phone conversation, it's going to be a murder night.

If the program gives the opening scene as "A drawing-room overlooking terrace on a Long Island country house," the play has probably been written by someone who's never seen anything better than a furnished ball bedroom in a rundown hotel.

If the action commences with someone kidding, slipping, falling, tripping or dropping objects with a huge clatter, all back, close your eyes, and put on your earmuffs.

If the dialogue is interspersed with the names of real "celebrities" to give the play an air of authenticity, you may be sure that the author is afraid he cannot create a real world of his own on the stage, and needs all the outside help he can summon.

If the family in the play has a hired maid who performs her chores ineptly and talks back to her employers, you may confidently expect an evening of the most childish and primitive kind of farce.

If one of the principal characters sits down for a serious conversation with another, and proceeds a remark with "Life is . . . ," you may take it for granted that the playwright has little about life, and less about constructing a drama — which should illustrate life, not talk about it.

If the action of a comedy reaches a point where a humorous "drunk scene," in 99 plays out of 100 you are witnessing a cliche that unskilled device for getting laughs. Only the 100th play will be "The Male Animal."

If the starring actress enters the stage in six different $300 gowns—in a scene — it is a reasonable assumption that the producer places more reliance upon her wardrobe than on his playwright, and would prefer a fashion report to a dramatic review.

If the play introduces an obviously beautiful girl, who pretends to be plain by wearing horn-rimmed glasses, flat heels and tweed skirts, you can write your own second and third acts beginning with the moment she removes her glasses and our hero suddenly realizes that she is more attractive than her glamorous sister.

If you must close off after the curtain rises on any of these hackneyed offerings, bring along a companion to administer wake-up pokes before you begin to snore.

To Your Good Health
Cleanliness Is Important In Curing Carbuncles

By JOSEPH G. HOLNER, M.D.

Dear Dr. Molner: My 15-year-old son has a form of staph infection which started some time ago. He has carbuncles or boils, on the buttocks mostly, none above the waist.

I have been told that a cure can be very costly, since there are many types of staph infection. When he takes vitamins containing iron, the boils seem to be better and sometimes dry up. — Mrs. E. D.

Some people are "staph carriers." The germ lurks quietly in the nose or such areas as armpits or groin.

But when the germ gets into the skin and establishes a focus of infection, then you have a boil (or a group of boils, which we call a carbuncle).

From such a spot, the germ can then spread and, by penetrating the skin, start other boils.

It is true that, when simpler measures fail, special laboratory studies may be made to identify the strain of the germ and prepare a vaccine to combat it specifically. This is a painstaking task and may be expensive. Some people would call it "very costly" depends on what those words mean to you.

You mention that "vitamins and iron" seem to help. Well, some individuals have more resistance to staph (or other) infections. Vitamins, while important, are not of themselves protection against infection. Neither is iron.

But your son's experience suggests that perhaps he has some degree of anemia or a nutritional defect which makes him more vulnerable to the infection. I suggest that you have your doctor check him for young man from that standpoint. It could turn out to be an important step in getting rid of those boils.

Meantime scrupulous cleanliness is essential to keep the germ from spreading and starting new infections. Your son must have had their holdings administered by a trustee because I have not even drawn their salaries. Disclosure of financial facts about the Johnson and Goldwater fortunes has aroused no public resentment.

The American system makes it possible for a president to attain the highest office in the land without being a political apprenticeship. He is often commended for his distinction in another career. They give him time to secure a financial background before entering politics. White House Millionaires

Brantford Expositor

While the ambition of every American boy is said to be to become president of his country, his chances of success are improved if he first acquires a large fortune. Since the election of Herbert Hoover in 1928, all presidents except Harry Truman have been very wealthy men.

This tradition of a millionaire in the White House will be continued after this year's presidential election since both President Johnson and Senator Barry Goldwater are well heeled. Adding in their wives' fortunes, both candidates married well-to-do women, the Johnson fortune has been placed by auditors at about $2,500,000 while the Goldwater stake, according to a trust company, is close to $2,000,000. Both amounts are being disputed by political partisans eager to make a campaign issue.

In Canada, power wielded by wealthy politicians is looked upon with suspicion and the few prime ministers have come from the upper income bracket. Russians, on the other hand, would regard the vast wealth of American presidents as further confirmation of the evils of the capitalist system.

Americans, however, do not seem in the least alarmed at being led by a millionaire. Neither is endowed a mark in favor of a man (Johnson, Eisenhower, Hoover) that he should have made a financial success of his life or, in the case of inherited wealth (Roosevelt, Kennedy), have devoted his time to public service instead of pleasure. A background of money also removes the suspicion that the office-holder will profit from his purse. Recent presidents have had their holdings administered by a trustee because they not even drawn their salaries. Disclosure of financial facts about the Johnson and Goldwater fortunes has aroused no public resentment.

Toronto Stocks

Windfall dropped seven cents to 44 cents and Canadian Dyno five cents to $1.63. Ralgin fell 17 cents to $1.33 and Genor two cents to 41 cents.

Leitch rose 35 cents to $6.40 among higher - priced speculatives and Highland-Bell backed on 30 cents to $8.25.

Most industrials lost small fractions. Loblaw A and B and Salada Foods all slipped ¼, while Canadian Breweries and Distillers Seagrams both dropped ¾.

Algoma Steel and Steico fell as much as ¼, while Bell Telephone, CPR and Canadian Industrial Gas all lost ¼.

Levy Industries sustained the largest industrial loss, down $2 to 15¾.

Industrial gains were scattered across the board. Textile-Dominion Bank gained ¼, Great Lakes Power ¾ and Industrial Acceptance Corp. ¼.

The industrial index dropped .14 to 188.66 and the TSE index .18 to 148.20. Golds fell .22 to 134.54, base metals .03 to 67.52 and western oils .03 to 86.26.

Investors have adopted a "couldn't care less" attitude of late and it showed up in the industrial list where trading was extremely light. Leading the gain list downhill were banks.

On the plus side, Consolidated Paper and Laurentide Finance tacked on ¾ each to 42¾ and 26¾, respectively. Empire Life, one of the highest priced issues on the board, jumped $25 to $308 after gaining $20 Monday.

MacDonald sagged 13 to 15 cents and rallied to close with a nine-cent loss at 20 cents in a late burst of trading in the speculative mining list. Raglan eased 15 cents to $2, New Calumet five to 80 cents and Windfall one to 51 cents.

Base metals were quiet and trendless. Inco sagged 1 to 84 while United Keno Hill dipped 15 cents to $7.50. Leitch traded actively in gaining 15 cents to $6.05 and Highland-Bell 25 cents to $8.05.

In golds, Cochenour Willans fell six cents to $2.39 and Kerr-Addison five cents to $7.25.

On index, industrials were down .50 to 158.80, golds .15 to 134.78, western oils .06 to 86.26 and the exchange index .43 to 148.33. Base metals were ahead .01 to 67.53. Volume for the session was 2,915,000 shares compared with 3,021,000 Monday.

Peron Decides To Return To Argentina

BUENOS AIRES (Reuters)—Former president Juan Peron of Argentina announced in a recorded message here Tuesday he has decided to return to Argentina.

Nine years after a military coup sent him into exile, the recording was brought here and produced at a press conference by Peron supporters who attended a meeting with him in Madrid last week.

Peron said in the message he was returning to help "pacify and unify the Argentine people."

Peronist leader, Alberto Iturbe, said the former president was not worried about arrest warrants that have been out for him since 1955.

Iturbe said he did not know whether Peron would seek elective office on his return, but emphasized he would participate actively in political life.

"His health is excellent," Iturbe said.

Fist-Swinging Fan and Fighter In Wild Brawl

AUSTIN, Tex. (AP)—A fist-swinging fan and a fighter who wasn't on the card got into the act Tuesday night during a bout in which the former world lightweight champion Joe Brown was disqualified.

A virtual free-for-all erupted during the final round of the Houston fighter's scheduled 10-rounder with 20-year-old Richard Medrano of Austin, undefeated in 16 previous matches.

Brown appeared to have Medrano on the verge of a knockout when light heavyweight Benny Bowser rushed in to save the Austin fighter from further punishment.

Brown refused to continue the fight, despite insistence from referee Vel Barker, and was disqualified.

Near the end of the seventh a fan socked Brown in the mouth when he and Medrano wrestled to the canvas near the ropes.

Workers Return To Airways, Strike Settled

WASHINGTON (AP)—Transport workers returned today to their jobs at Pan American Airways following a strike-ending agreement on a new labor contract which one union official called the best ever negotiated in the industry.

The strike of AFL-CIO Transport Workers Union members lasted less than 24 hours before it crippled the airline's operations to foreign points.

Pan American operates no domestic flights.

The agreement recalled all its employees to duty shortly after the agreement was reached.

Details of the new contract covering 12,000 union members —maintenance and ground service personnel and flight stewards and stewardesses— were not disclosed pending ratification by rank-and-file union members.

About 9,000 workers were involved in the strike over wages, working conditions and fringe benefits.

Sen. McCarthy Pulls Out Of Race

ATLANTIC CITY (AP)—Senator Eugene McCarthy in effect pulled out of the Democratic vice-presidential contest today in favor of his fellow Minnesotan, Senator Hubert H. Humphrey.

In a telegram to President Johnson, McCarthy did not specifically say he was out of the race, but he did "recommend for your primary consideration" his Senate colleague.

He said Humphrey appears to him to fit the qualifications Johnson has set up for a desirable running mate.

The two Minnesota senators have been leading the pack for weeks in speculation on whom Johnson might choose, with Humphrey in the No. 1 spot. They are friends and mutual political backers of long standing.

Guardian System For Alcoholics Is Suggested

HAMILTON (CP) — Judges and police must be sympathetic to alcoholics in court but they are ill-equipped to give them effective help, Robert H. Scott, assistant director of the Michigan Department of correction, said Tuesday.

He told a conference on alcoholism sponsored by the Ontario Institute of Alcohol Studies:

"I find the attitude of police officers heartening. They understand alcoholics and have a high regard for Alcoholics Anonymous."

But effective treatment would only come under a system:

1. Probation for alcoholic offenders and a guardian system for them.

2. Protective custody for alcoholics and the mentally ill, keeping them off the streets but free of the stigma of jail; with rehabilitation treatment centres for all alcoholics.

4. Bail for minor alcohol offenders to allow them to be sent to such centres.

Mr. Scott also called for an end to the practice of offering an offender jail or a fine.

He said a guardian system would give control of alcohol offenders before severe damage has been done, ensuring treatment for them and control of their finances.

rights issue in the traditionally-Democratic South was the major focus of interest so far.

LOST VOTES

There was no action in the Alabama delegation, where those who signed the requested loyalty pledge to President Johnson and the majority of the 36 - man delegation who didn't sit side by side Failure to sign stripped the delegates who refused of voting rights.

Party leaders lnsisted a substantial victory for unity was scored in a compromise hammered out with extreme difficulty since Saturday. Under it, the Mississippi official delegation would sign the pledge or else.

The compromise also gave delegate-at-large credentials to two of the rebel Freedom delegation—which protests the fact that Negroes constitute more than 50 per cent of the Mississippi population and most can't vote. But the men given these credentials — delegation chairman Aaron Henry and Rev. Ed King—supported Johnson.

The Mississippi delegation which stalked out accused the Freedom group of "misrepresentation and slander" (which) failed hopelessly." The Freedom group expressed disappointment at the compromise, rejecting it, but the convention as a whole gave it swift approval by voice vote, officially ending the matter.

Thomson Says Khrushchev Would Attend Summit Meet

LONDON (CP)—Lord Thomson, Canadian - born British newspaper publisher, said Tuesday Soviet Premier Khrushchev told him he would be willing to attend another summit conference.

"As soon as I suggested it, he said 'Yes'," Thomson told reporters at London airport on his return from the Soviet Union.

During his 15-day visit Thomson and Khrushchev were travelling companions on a train journey, across Russia's virgin farm lands area.

In Moscow the Soviet newspaper Pravda quoted Khrushchev as telling Thomson that the Russians bought more wheat from Canada last year than they actually needed.

Thomson, who met with Khrushchev in Kazakhstan Aug 13, said that, according to figures given him on Soviet wheat production this year, the 1964 crop will be sufficient for the Soviet Union's needs.

In an interview published in Pravda, Thomson said: "Mr. Khrushchev told me that he doesn't ever want to buy what he bought earlier in Canada."

HAD CROP FAILURES

The Soviet Union last year imported 1,600,000 tons of wheat to make up for crop failures over most of the country. It bought 6,000,000 tons from Canada, 1,800,000 from the United States.

Thomson said his interview with Khrushchev "could not have been more satisfactory."

"He was always under control of the situation and knew precisely his view on all questions and freely and readily expressed it," Thomson added.

Thomson said that during his 10-day trip through the Caucasus and the Crimea, he found living standards in the Soviet Union significantly improved since his last visit 18 months ago.

He said Khrushchev had done much toward improving life in the Soviet Union.

"I regard him as an inspiring leader of the Soviet people," he added.

DIFFER ON CYPRUS

Thomson said in London Khrushchev's attitude on Cyprus was "hostile to us."

"The Russians and the Turks are natural enemies," he said.

"Politically Mr. Khrushchev is very sound," Thomson said.

"In Russia they have not got elections like we have here, but I'm convinced if they did have, he would be re-elected on his own. The enthusiasm which greeted him was quite astounding."

Thomson's verdict on Khrushchev the man was: "I like him immensely. I think he is a most able man. There is no question of that. He is doing a great deal for the people of his country."

LONG LACE

LONG EATON, England (CP) — A new elastic man-made fibre has made it possible to manufacture "wrench lace." The designers of the British Weavers' Lace Association here in Derbyshire are at work on lingerie which they claim has the delicacy of Nottingham lace.

By JEAN SHARP

TORONTO (CP)—If you think your child may have some talent as an artist or a writer, the best way to help him while he is young is to encourage him without worrying about technicalities.

William Curnoe, organizer and judges of the school art show at the Canadian National Exhibition, says too much emphasis on mechanics can discourage a young talent.

The CNE school art show and essay contest are open to schools across the country. Entries are sent in by teachers, and are usually based on subject suggested by the CNE.

There are prizes for the essays, which this year were based on Canadian history and geography.

The entries are judged by specialists—artists and writers—and by Mr. Curnoe, who is principal of a suburban Toronto grammar school.

SEEK ORIGINALITY

He says the main thing each judge looks for is originality. "We don't want copy work, we want their own thoughts on paper."

He says it is difficult to judge realistically whether a child has talent until he is past Grade Seven or Eight. Until then children will express themselves unselfconsciously given a chance. After that they will begin to think about grammar or perspective—will want things to be right.

In a classroom, he says, it is not unusual for four or five children to begin to realize they need to know perspective to draw, although they don't realize it precisely. Some teachers may wait until then to begin to teach it to them.

It may be wise, Mr. Curnoe says he has seen cases of young children who were given art lessons and, having produced a successful picture, kept on painting it over and over again.

ALLOW FREEDOM

One clue to a possible talent is how much a child enjoys writing or drawing. "If they do enjoy it, let them do as much as possible, with suggestions of how they can improve. You can slowly show them how to put a story down so other people can read it more easily." But, if a story is creative, and a child is trying to use new words, it is better to encourage that than to criticize him for mechanical errors.

He says some teachers have children write two kinds of stories, "stories for myself to read" which will not be corrected, and "stories for others to read," which will.

Whether a child has an important talent or not, Mr. Curnoe says there is value to him in encouraging him to express himself and to be aware of the arts. "The more writing you can get any child to do, the better. And we teach art as part of a well-rounded training. We are not trying to make artists of all of the children."

SPEAKING OF MANNERS

BY PATRICIA LEWIS

EVERYBODY HAS A PET PEEVE

We get a lot of gripes through the mail about irritating habits that make life a little more difficult. Judging from the tally-sheet we've been keeping, among the most vexing individuals are:

The person who doesn't answer letters or return telephone calls.

The person who looks straight through you when you're being introduced and doesn't give as much as a nod in acknowledgement.

The person who insists on talking to you when you're trying to talk to someone else on the telephone.

The ungrateful boss who does not bother to send you a thank-you note for a present and who wouldn't dream of sending a bread-and-butter letter even after spending two weeks in your home on an all-expense-paid vacation.

The garrulous guest who has one too many at your party and then picks a fight with one and all.

The tightwad who manages to find his wallet only after someone else has settled the check.

The guest who invites all his friends in to visit him while he's staying at your house.

Guests who stay on and on after a party is over and give you the distasteful job of trying to edge them politely out the door.

Friends and relatives who write they're coming to visit, when they'll arrive and how long they'll be staying, without bothering to ask if you'd mind or even if you'll be home.

The nosy character who wants to know all about you — family, schools, job and possible salary — and grills you thoroughly five minutes after you've met.

And, of course, the compassionate stranger who cries on your shoulder about all his problems like stranger who cries on your try to give him any helpful suggestions.

MR. AND MRS. ERIC LESTER COONEY

Cooney – Ketcheson

Wesleyan Methodist Church, Belleville, was the scene of a pretty wedding recently, when Joyce Mae Ketcheson, daughter of Mr. and Mrs. Jack Ketcheson, Foxboro R.R. 1, was united in marriage to Eric Lester Cooney, son of Mr. and Mrs. Garfield Cooney, Belleville R.R. 6. Rev. Keith Cooney, brother of the bridegroom assisted by the Rev. J. S. A. Spearman officiated at the ceremony before a background of white gladioli and yellow 'mums. White satin bows designated the guest pews.

Appropriate wedding music was rendered by Mrs. Gordon Smith of Frankford who also accompanied the soloist, Mr. Floyd Cumming, brother-in-law of the bridegroom, who favored with three vocal selections.

The bride, given in marriage by her father wore a floor length bridal gown of nylon lace and net over white satin fashioned with a lace bodice featuring a square neckline outlined with seed pearls and sequins, and long lace lily-point sleeves. The bouffant skirt of nylon net was highlighted with lace inserts. Her headdress was a crown of tiny white flowers which held in place an elbow-length veil. She carried a bouquet of red sweetheart roses designed in the form of a cross.

Miss Valerie MacDonald of Point Anne as maid of honor was dressed in blue and carried yellow and white 'mums; Mrs. Ray Ketcheson, sister-in-law of the bride as bridesmaid in yellow and carried blue and white 'mums and Miss Barbara Sine of Brantford, cousin of the bride wore a blue dress and carried yellow and white 'mums. Their street-length gowns were designed alike of nylon organza over taffeta with bouffant skirts enhanced with cummerbunds. They all more matching white net and floral headdresses. Miss Janice Bell of Peterborough as flower girl was most demure in a yellow organza dress with white hat of net and flowers and carried a nosegay of blue and white 'mums. Master Donnie Bell of Peterborough was ring-bearer and carried a heart-shaped cushion with the two rings for the double-ring ceremony.

The groomsman was Mr. James Curry of Frankford, cousin of the bridegroom, while Mr. Ray Ketcheson of Cannifton, brother of the bride and Mr. Ross Cooney, of Scarborough, brother of the bridegroom were the ushers.

A reception was held in the hall at College Hill United Church which was decorated with pink and white streamers and bells. The bride's table was most attractive with white linen cloth centred with a three-tier wedding cake topped with miniature bride and bridegroom under an arch of flowers and white doves holding wedding rings. White tulle and red rosebuds encircled the base of the cake with tall white tapers on either side. The bridal bouquets completed the nuptial setting. The bride's mother received the guests wearing a two - piece sheath dress of pale blue lace over taffeta with matching hat to match, while accessories and a corsage of pink sweetheart roses. Assisting was the bridegroom's mother attired in brown figured silk dress, beige hat and accessories and a corsage of golden garnet roses.

For a honeymoon trip to northern points of Ontario, around the Lakehead and through the State of Michigan, the bride chose a white linen suit with the jacket featuring an embroidered lace front, yellow and white hat, white accessories and a corsage of golden garnet roses.

Guests were present from Belleville, Cannilton, Scarborough, Fort Erie, Kingston, Peterborough, Napanee, Carrying Place, Marmora, Brighton, Point Anne, Trenton, Madoc, Frankford and Shawville, Quebec.

Previous to the marriage the bride was entertained at a miscellaneous shower when Mrs. Wesley Bell and Mrs. Floyd Cummings were co-hostesses. A presentation was also held for the bride by the staff of National Grocers where she was formerly employed.

Mr. and Mrs. Cooney will reside at 521 Wilson Road South, Oshawa.

Colorful, sun-ripened Ontario tomatoes are excellent sources of Vitamin C. Eat fresh tomatoes every day while they are in season. Home economists at Macdonald Institute, Guelph recommend storing tomatoes between 45 and 55 degrees F. for best flavor. Refrigerator temperatures are too cold and cause tomatoes to become watery and lose flavor. Leave underripe tomatoes at room temperature until they reach a deep red color. Then store in a cool place such as the basement.

Engagement Notice

The engagement is announced of Nancy Ellen Reynolds, daughter of Mr. and Mrs. James Reynolds, Foxboro, to James Edward Langton, son of Mr. and Mrs. Ray Langton, Belleville. Marriage will take place in the Church of St. Michael the Archangel, Saturday, September 26, at 10 a.m.

Speaking Personally

STAR DUST

It is strange how we mortals like to get a peek into the future. Any quack who claims to be a fortune teller can separate gullible people from their money. We long to know what is coming instead of what is here. That is why so many people read their horoscopes in this paper. The science cannot be too accurate but astrology is extremely old, and we hear about omens in the stars as far back as history goes.

A look at some of the horoscopes makes one wonder how they can apply to so many people at one time. For instance here is Gemini, "Don't tell all you know." So he clams up and walks around with buttoned lips. His friends think he is sulking. His enemies think he is a moron. His co-worker says, "You could tell all you know in eleven seconds," and he replies, "It would take forever to tell about just one of my virtues—modesty." Imagine a whole office full of Geminis!

Here's poor old Pisces. "Be careful if you are driving." Surely is good advice at any time but assumes a sinister sound when he reads it in his horoscope. So the poor wretch wonders if he should get up in the morning or stay in bed. The early morning news comes on the radio with its usual quota of car accidents and violent death and he thinks of his horoscope, shivers and goes back to bed.

Virgo gets the good news that his efforts are going to be rewarded and to prepare for good news. He immediately thinks of his pay envelope and opens it hopefully next payday. It is enough to destroy his faith in human nature when he finds the same old number of dollar bills. Perhaps his boss doesn't read horoscopes.

Scorpio is told to be a host rather than a guest. So if you invite Scorpio to your home for the evening don't be alarmed if he passes out the salted nuts, and is generous with the drinks, and ends up using his shoes and shooing out the cat. He is just making like a host.

Taurus is advised to "accept advice from friends, let others point out possible errors"—my experience has been—try and stop them.

Here's Aquarius who is told, "partner to express concern about finances". That one is sure to be true. What partner doesn't? Especially around the first of the month.

Here's Libra promised "Message very clear before day is over." So he waits for a telegram, even a telephone call, even a wrong number, and then goes to bed with his problems as murky as before.

QUICK MIX

From time to time consumer news comes to this desk from Macdonald Institute in Guelph. A practical idea is a homemade mix for biscuits, muffins, cookies or cakes, quickly made and stored, to be used when the busy housewife needs a batch of one of these in a hurry. It is much less expensive than mixes purchased at the store.

For 13 cups of mix, stir 1/3 cup double acting baking powder, 1 teaspoon of salt, 1 teaspoon of cream of tartar, and ½ cup granulated sugar into 9 cups of sifted all-purpose flour. (or 10 cups of pastry flour). Cut in two cups of shortening until mix is the consistency of cornmeal.

To make quick-mix biscuits, add 2/3 cup milk in 3 cup of mix. Stir 25 strokes; knead 15 strokes on lightly floured board and roll ¼ inch thick. Bake on baking sheet in a hot oven (450 degrees) 10 minutes. Yield: 18 2-inch biscuits.

To make quick-mix muffins, add 2 tablespoons sugar to 3 cups of mix. Combine 1 cup of milk with 1 beaten egg and add the mix. Stir only until flour is moistened. Fill greased muffin tins 2/3 full and bake at 425 degrees about 20 minutes. Yield: 12 medium muffins.

This mix can be stored in a large covered pail or canister at room temperature. But if it is to be kept any length of time it should be stored in the refrigerator or the freezer.

SIDNEY SOUTH W.I.

The August meeting of Sidney South Women's Institute took the form of an executive meeting on the regular meeting night at the home of Mrs. Fred Meese, and as a family picnic on the following Sunday at the Col. Vandervelde Conservation Park. During the business period it was decided to hold a bake sale with all members participating.

After a fine picnic dinner Mrs. Fred Meese, Mrs. Ken Kerr, Mrs. Ted Aikens and Mrs. Roy Nobes conducted a program of games and races with prizes for everybody. A few stayed for the supper meal and all enjoyed a lovely day in the park.

A display of house plants was shown at Belleville Fair. The 4-H girls and their leaders attended both Peterborough and Belleville Fairs. Miss Donna Wellman was awarded a bus trip tour of Western Ontario for outstanding 4-H Homemaking Club work.

Tyendinaga Children Receive Holiday Swimming Lessons

By MRS. B. O'SULLIVAN

Although school was out and holidays had only begun, 120 children from Melrose and Marysville were waiting for buses. Instead of books, each swirled a towel and under a skirt or jeans was a swimsuit. Four mothers left their household chores daily, to chaperone these youngsters.

By 9.20 a.m. they were arriving at the Tops Motor Hotel pool for swimming instruction. For many it meant learning a new stroke, how to stay afloat or open his eyes under water; for others it means less fear of the water. Whatever the case everyone was eager for the new day's endeavors.

Classes were taught according to Red Cross regulations under the capable leadership of Mrs. Joyce Patrick from Trenton. Assisting Mrs. Patrick was her husband, Pat Patrick; Misses Pat Hay and Pat Wright; also Allan Smith. Leslie Genejs from Melrose deserves honorable mention for her help.

13-DAY COURSE

The children were divided into small groups, depending upon age and ability. Everyone received special attention and when the 13-day course was finished, pride swelled in every young heart.

The last day was parents' day and a large number was present to watch the leaders and pupils demonstrate their skills.

Mr. Patrick welcomed the guests and outlined the course, urging that it be planned for a longer period next year. This was Marysville's first attempt at such a program, whereas Melrose has been practising such for the past three years.

RECEIVE BADGES

Badges of merit were awarded to several Beginners, Juniors and Intermediates. The Tadpoles received a card of checked achievements. The presentations were made by Mrs. K. McMechan and Mrs. W. Mcaulay.

The following mothers deserve credit for organizing such—Lois McMechan, Mary McCauley, Lorna Bates, Betty Stapley, Ruth Long and Louise O'Sullivan. It is their aim to acquaint more parents throughout the township of Tyendinaga with such a program. It is important that our young people learn water safety for protection and enjoyment.

Today's Children Love Rising to a Challenge

DEAR DORIS: Please send Thankful's practical schedule of some chores. Guess I should have learned something about being a housewife instead of a good office worker.

I was wholly unprepared for this life. It hardly seems possible that I could be so flustered and inefficient.

I'm certainly giving my girl a chance to do any jobs she likes to try. Always I was told I didn't do them right or made too much mess trying. Already she's decided she likes "flouring". She loves rolling out pastry and often asks to do pancakes; also likes sweeping, but she's still too little for the broom!—Mrs. B.

DORIS CLARK

DEAR MRS. B.: The schedule is on its way. And your lucky little girl is well on her way to happy homemaking. Our youngsters love rising to a challenge. We fail them when we lack the patience and faith in them to keep them trying. (There are dandy brooms her size.)

• • •

DEAR DORIS: My problem is my self-consciousness before an audience. I am in grade 12 and I am still scared—terribly so. Every time I hear the word "report", my heart jumps.

This year I made an oral report once. It was about 15 words long and, believe it or not, I was nervous before I started. I could hardly keep from squirming in my seat and my heart was going lickety-split. The point is, I am sick and tired of my fright but I cannot help myself. I cannot use my will power to rid myself of this nightmare (no exaggeration).

I'm planning on being a teacher but how will I do it if I go on like this?—Weak In The Knees.

DEAR WEAK: Practise befor a mirror, at home. Read from books you've never seen before. Say to yourself occasionally, "Come on, Teacher, you can master this!"

To teach little ones you'll need self-forgetfulness and concentration on their need for you—the very thing which will lose for you your self-consciousness. Did you know that practically every public speaker shares your palpitations—more or less?

• • •

DEAR DORIS — My friend has been taking me out for four years. I am 22. He has a good job. Recently he has been becoming more amorous and tells me he loves me. How much longer do I wait for some suggestion of marriage? — WILLING AND READY.

DEAR READY — Popping the Question is enough to scare some older bachelors out of a year's growth. Yet Mortimer Chesterfield, in his "Art of Making Love" (1916) said:

> "An offer of marriage is a serious affair, and should not be lightly made. Neither should a man gratify himself by an avowal of love only, without alluding in the most distinct terms to his hope of the lady becoming his wife."

It still holds. One goes with the other, like ham and eggs. (Teen-ager — please note!)

CONFIDENTIAL TO "PLEASE ADVISE": For an answer about brown spots, identify yourself with proper name and address.

CWL Executive Rejects Scathing Denunciation Of CBC by Ottawa Group

By BRENDA LARGE

CHARLOTTETOWN (CP) — The National executive of the Catholic Women's League has rejected a scathing denunciation of the Canadian Broadcasting Corporation and its plans to continue its positive and constructive criticism of broadcasting, it was learned here Tuesday.

In a closed meeting at the CWL national convention, the executive decided not to support the "declaration of Canadian women", a document drawn up by a group of Ottawa women which sharply criticizes the CBC.

The declaration, which President Mrs. Hermon Stevens of Calgary described as "extreme", says radio and television are "being exploited to maintain a constant assault on character; to undermine faith in God and respect for law and authority; to destroy sound home life and the knowledge of right and wrong."

Mrs. Stevens told a reporter she understood the declaration had been initiated earlier this year by Ethel Gordon, an Ottawa nurse, in colaboration with several other Ottawa women.

TWO REFUSE SUPPORT

"These women have been contacting members of the larger organizations all across the country and asking for support for this document. I believe that both the Federated Women's Institutes and the National Council of Jewish Women have already refused to support it."

The CWL president said she could not support the declaration personally because she had always been against protests which are not of a constructive nature.

She also criticized the declaration's assertion that the CBC was being controlled by a minority group.

"I am not a witch hunter," she said, adding that the CWL executive had decided not to support the declaration because it lacked a number of positive and constructive suggestions to make about national CBC programming.

It reads, in part, "We ask you to end the domination of a minority who misuse the CBC to spread propaganda for perversion, pornography, free-love, blasphemy, dope, violence and crime. More and more of our tax money has to be diverted to deal with the increasing social wreckage.

CHARGE THOUGHT CONTROL

"We will not tolerate being told that if we don't like these programs we can turn off the set. That is not freedom of choice. It is a form of thought control.

"Those who kill the conscience of a nation dig the grave of freedom and prepare the ground for dictatorship. It begins when God-given standards are mocked and their proponents are belittled, bullied or silenced altogether."

The declaration, about 500 words in length, closes with these words:

"We believe the true function of the CBC is to help us raise a generation with the strength of character and courageous leadership that the opportunities of this age demand. We want programs that will bring home to us what this country can be and can do for the world."

A brief accompanying the declaration said its purpose is to "arouse such a lively public opinion in Canada that our Parliament will know the extent of public discontent with the policy and programs of the CBC."

The CWL executive's decision not to support the declaration came after a series of lengthy meetings at which a number of policy matters were discussed. The issue was not discussed on the convention floor.

FAIR ATTRACTION

Included among the attractions at Britain's Food Fair in September will be demonstrations of meals in preparation, from the grand dinner party to a farmhouse high tea.

FELL TREE

BLANDFORD, England (CP) A tulip tree which has stood in the grounds of Dale House, Dorset, since 1682, just after the species was introduced to Britain from North America, has to be felled because it now is in danger of falling.

Bringing Up Baby

HINTS COLLECTED BY MRS. DAN GERBER, MOTHER OF 5

Tempest in a teapot—fortunately that's all most toddler tantrums amount to. Most toddlers have an occasional temper storm because they're business of growing up is bound to bring frustrations. Tantrums may also result if a child is overtired or overstimulated.

•

To fight anger with anger, hardly ever works. Good ways to calm an overwrought child who's not old enough to reason with:

• If he's failed at something, try to show him the way and be quick to praise new attempts.

•

Mealtime hankerers almost never happen when you spark your toddler's menus with something extra-special. Like Gerber Junior Meat Dinners . . . famous for savoury flavour interest. That's because they have 3 times as much meat (and therefore more protein) as our regular vegetable and meat combinations. Add to this extra meat, the goodness of selected garden vegetables and you get the tastiest dishes that ever perked up a palate. Strained versions for pre-toddler tykes, 8 varieties.

•

Nutrition bulletin from Gerber. Every mother knows that excessive cooking sometimes reduces the nutritive values of food. Gerber Strained and Junior Fruits are processed just a few seconds to retain high degree of natural food values. Flash-cooking does a lot for baby's eating pleasure, too, because it helps preserve the true-to-nature colours and flavours so appealing to junior. Gerber Fruits, (and other foods) come in White-Top Jars with re-closable Twist-Pop caps for safe refrigeration of unused portions. Gerber Baby Foods, Niagara Falls, Canada.

Paris Fashion Collections Are Based on Philosophy

By PEGGY MASSIN

PARIS (Reuters)—Paris collections are fundamentally dedicated to those sophisticated women who until this season have belonged to a fashion minority group.

This season, however, French designers have evoked a neoclassic approach, in the tradition of the pre-war era in Paris when clothes were created for elegant private clients, rather than becoming fads and fancies for the sake of something new.

Once again, the total effect of the new Paris fashion collections is based on philosophy that a mature and beautifully groomed woman, wearing timeless fashions, is more attractive than the girl who puts all the accent on youth.

Until the 1930s, no French woman was considered capable of being truly fashionable until she had passed at least her first quarter of a century.

Paris dress designers unanimously preferred the full-blown rose to the bud.

RESTRAINT RETURNS

Today, an understated silhouette treated with restraint and simplicity is back in the limelight. All the Bestnik, "yeh-yeh," and sports fashions are strictly for teen-agers, or designed for their proper setting in the country and at winter sports resorts.

The lady may deign to don trousers for sports or casual wear, but basically she is feminine.

The feminine aspects of fashion are more pronounced this season than at any period since the late Christian Dior launched his famous New Look in 1947.

After more than a decade of sack and chemise-inspired silhouettes, clothes have revived a fit and a flare. They do not cling closely to the body, but have a definite curve.

There are real waistlines and fitted bodices, combined with wider-swinging skirts cut with pleats, godets, side-wraps, tiers, tunics, or hemline interest.

Clothes make no attempt to camouflage a woman's natural assets, although "toplessness" and strapless decolltes were completely ignored in the main Paris collections.

NECKLINES RISE

The new mood is sedate and serene. It tends to conceal rather than to reveal, based on the assumption that no woman need bare her bosom to prove the difference between the sexes.

Formal fashions, with necklines cut up to the collar bones and sleeves reaching to the wrist, are Paris' answer to the vulgarity of toplessness.

New silhouettes climax the trend towards soft smooth finish and supple fabrics, worked with intricate seaming to achieve the body line.

Clothes, including coats, fit by the cut of cut rather than any studied architectural construction with padding and interlining. Shoulders are rounded and natural, playing up long light sleeves and high unclut tered necklines.

Hats and half styles are the real focal point of the over-all new look. They emphasize the small, neat head. Inflated bouffant coiffures and loose, unkempt locks are out-dated by sleek cropped bobs and cap and helmet styles in millinery.

Ann Landers

People Don't Want Steady Diet of Tragic Stories

ANN LANDERS

DEAR ANN LANDERS — Maybe I can help that girl who doesn't know what to do about her boy friends eyebrows. She was terribly distressed because his eyebrows grew together and it looked as if her had one long eyebrow instead of two.

My boy friend had the same problem, and this is what he did — had his head split right above the nose and it separated his eyebrows beautifully. The only problem now is that his brains keep falling into his eyes.

Honestly, Ann Landers, I used to think you were funny. Now I think you are nuts. With all the crushing problems you must receive from tortured people, you go and print one like THAT. — BROOKLYN.

DEAR BROOKLYN — Yes, I do deal with thousands of crushing problems but who wants to read a steady stream of crushing problems 365 days a year?

The eyebrow dilemma provided a change of pace. I appreciate such letters and I believe my readers do, too, and that's why I'm printing your response. Thank you.

• • •

DEAR ANN LANDERS — I know you are a level-headed person and I need your advice. I've been through so much I can't think straight anymore.

We have been married 17 years, and have four children. Two years ago Barney moved out and went to live with a woman who is 10 years younger than I am. I knew he was seeing her and I couldn't stand the lip-stick-smeared handkerchiefs and the lies any longer. I told him to leave. He came home every Sunday and spent the day with the children. Usually he stayed through supper. They love him so much it is heartbreaking.

Last week he asked if he could come home for good. I said "Yes, if you are ready to settle down". He replied, "I would like to spend weekends with her and break off gradually".

I told him I'd think about it.

Ann, my children need a father and I need a husband. Should I settle? — BATTLE SCARRED.

DEAR SCARRED — If you agree to a shuttle service and a part-time husband you are inviting a full-time headache.

It's apparent your Rover Boy is losing interest in the other woman. Tell him when he is ready to come home, and behave like a husband and father, you will be happy to have him, but so long as he wants to engage in extra-curricular activities he can keep his clothes in somebody else's closet.

• • •

DEAR ANN LANDERS — School will be starting again soon. Our youngest child will be entering the fifth grade. The teacher has done things my husband and I consider appalling.

Our middle child was in Miss V.'s room two years ago. One day she gave every child in the class a tablespoon of patent medicine. When our child came home and told us about it we were furious. My husband begged me not to report the teacher to the principal for fear she might take it out on our youngster.

Another time, in an attempt to impress the students with the importance of safe driving, She showed the class some pieces of glass stained with blood. A member of her family had been involved in an accident. Our child came home ill.

What should we do — if anything! — VERMONT PARENTS.

DEAR PARENTS — If the patent medicine story is true and you did nothing about it there's something wrong with you — as well as the teacher.

That glass bit is positively gruesome. And you did nothing about THAT either? For heaven's sake, round up some other parents and go together to see the principal.

• • •

Liquor can ruin your mind, your body and your life. To learn the booby-traps of teen-age drinking, write for ANN LANDERS booklet, "Teen-Age Drinking," enclosing with your request 20 cents in coin and a long, self-addressed, stamped envelope.

Ann Landers will be glad to help you with your problems. Send them to her in care of this newspaper enclosing a stamped, self-addressed envelope.

Macdonald Institute, Guelph, suggests that to separate lettuce leaves from a head easily, cut out the core and fill the cavity with running water from a tap. The water enters between the leaves and they can be pulled apart more readily.

To measure the capacity of an odd-shaped cake pan, fill the pan with water and then measure the water. Home economists at Macdonald Institute, Guelph, suggests that you use this measurement of water for a well baked cake.

Town-Travel Design With New Dash

PRINTED PATTERN A806 SIZES 10-18

Alice Schweitzer

For brisk fall days—it's the town dress with the dash of a suit! Printed Pattern A806 by Alice Schweitzer is subtly curved, then accented by top stitching to emphasize a slightly longer waistline. The bodice has a large collar, double row of buttons—it suggests the elegant look of tailored dash that's so important for Fall. For the transition season, sew the short-sleeved version—for later on, the ¾ subtle bell shape.

Printed Pattern A806 is available in Misses' sizes 10, 12, 14, 16, 18. Size 16 requies 2¼ yards 54-inch fabric.

Neighbors Give Farewell Party

WELLINGTON — Mr. and Mrs. R. Graham and Mr. H. GGraham, who are moving to the village from the Swamp College area were honored with a farewell party at their home on Friday evening. About 80 friends and neighbors gathered there for a social evening together.

Later in the evening Mr. and Mrs. Graham and Mr. Harvey Graham were presented with gifts from their friends, after an appropriate address was read by Mrs. Doris McFaul. Mr. and Mrs. Graham received a pair of step tables and a lamp and Mr. Harvey Graham a wallet and a traveller's clock. They all voiced their appreciation to their friends and invited them to come and see them when they get settled in their new home in Wellington. The sponsors of the party, Barbara Pettingell, Lillian Rathley, Edna Allison, Ethel Allison and Gladys McFaul served delicious refreshments.

Reception Held For Newlyweds

WELLINGTON — Mr. and Mrs. Gerald held a reception in the Wellington town hall on Friday evening in honor of their son and his new bride, Mr. and Mrs. Elmer Ward. There were 58 guests present.

The long tables looked attractive with vases of beautiful flowers and candles on them. After partaking of the delicious dinner served by the members of the Women's Institute, toasts were given for the bridal couple.

The guests all returned to the farm home of the bridegroom's parents where a social time was enjoyed by all. Mr. Hubert Greenfield and Mr. Ross Greenfield and Mr. Don Ward furnished music on guitar, piano and accordion. The honored couple received many gifts from their friends.

Guests were present from: Brighton, Port Credit, Amherst Island, Collins Bay, Picton, Belleville and Redneresville.

One Dish Meal Chicken Casserole

by Mary Moore

A new stainless steel two-quart covered casserole inspired today's recipe. The fact that chicken legs were cheap and popular helped the inspiration to be executed.

This dish is rich with a creamy cheese sauce and could serve as a one-dish meal if you provided a generous salad too. It is called.

WEDNESDAY

Dinner Menu

Barbecued spareribs, baked jacket potatoes, creamed limas and celery, cole slaw with sliced radishes, vanilla ice cream with fresh apricot topping, coffee.

CHICKEN MEXICANA (will serve 5 or 6 — depending on their appetites):

6 chicken legs, including drumsticks and thighs, 1-3 cup flour, ¼ cup melted butter, 2-3 cup (one 6-oz. can) evaporated milk, 1 can (10½-oz.) undiluted cream of chicken soup, 1 cup grated process or Cheddar cheese, ½ teaspoon salt, ⅛ teaspoon pepper, 1 can (14-oz.) whole kernel corn, undrained or 2 cups raw fresh corn kernels, sprinkling of paprika.

Gently melt the butter in a large shallow casserole.

Wife Preservers

Cotton knits won't shrink if you remove them from the dryer before they're completely dry. Hold to shape and finish drying on top of the dryer.

Put the flour in a bag. Dry the chicken legs and shake in the flour in the bag. Place in melted butter in casserole, turn each piece over to coat both sides and bake at 400 deg. Fahr. for 40 minutes until golden and tender. Remove from oven.

Spread corn over evenly.

Combine evaporated milk, soup, cheese, salt and pepper. Pour evenly over corn and chicken. Sprinkle lightly with paprika. Cover. (If your casserole does not have a lid, cover it snugly with foil).

Reduce oven temperature to 300 deg. Fahr. and bake one-half hour longer. If desired, remove cover, raise casserole to top shelf in oven to brown it a little.

NOTE:

As you can easily imagine you may use a cut-up frying chicken or equivalent in chicken breasts instead of chicken legs.

I served ours with new green beans and a shredded cabbage and apple and pecan salad, garnished with tomato wedges.

Clip this chicken recipe, please, for I know it will be popular with the cooks who like one-dish meals, especially those that are economical. The rich sauce is its special feature.

TWO BIRDS IN THE HAND — Dr. Donald M. Sutherland, 84, made a habit of twisting proverbs during the 1930-35 government of R. B. Bennett. The country doctor preferred to take both birds in the hand as minister of national defence and national health in Prime Minister Bennett's cabinet. He still watches for birds, travelling from his 110-year-old estate in Embro, Ont., to Collingwood on Georgian Bay, to Kettle Point on Lake Huron and Long Point on Lake Huron. (CP Photo)

Former Federal Cabinet Minister Now Bird Watcher

EMBRO, Ont. (CP)—Donald M. Sutherland, physician, old soldier and former federal cabinet minister, spends his time now as he nears his 85th birthday doctoring his garden, fighting brush for a clear view of birds and studying politics of the past.

Dr. Sutherland, who will be 85 Dec. 3, pursues gardening, bird-watching and history with the same quiet enthusiasm he once displayed as a small-town family doctor, a battalion commander during the First World War and as minister of national defence in the cabinet of R. B. Bennett in the early 1930s.

Clear-eyed and erect with a shock of white hair, the bachelor doctor lives in a two-storey frame home on spacious grounds in this village a few miles outside Woodstock, where he went to high school and practised medicine and politics after studying at University of Toronto. The home was built by his grandfather 110 years ago.

A militia major when war broke in 1914, he was the original commander of A Company of the 1st Batallion of the Canadian Expeditionary Force. Wounded in the second battle of Ypres in February, 1915, he was invalided home, returned the next year as a battalion commander, was wounded again during the battle of the Somme, but was back in France by April, 1918, leaving finally with a Distinguished Service Order.

He lost out on his first venture into politics in the Khaki election of 1917 while home on medical leave, but won Oxford North in 1925 and sat at Ottawa for a year before losing the 1926 contest.

JOINS CABINET

Returned in 1930, Mr. Bennett appointed him minister of national defence. The job in those Depression years, he recalls now, was mainly a matter of "cutting down" and routine administration, although his department was responsible for operating camps for homeless men without jobs.

Dr. Sutherland took on the added portfolio of health briefly before the Bennett administration, Dr. Sutherland with it, was defeated in 1935.

"Bennett had a real rough time then," Dr. Sutherland recalls. "No progress could be made and he was easily blamed for everything."

On doctoring, Dr. Sutherland laments the decline of the old-style family physician who "used to nurse the soul as well as the body" and the drift of doctors to large communities, leaving rural districts doctor-less.

"Patients are just strangers to most doctors now," he says.

Now he looks after his garden and lawns, cutting a "little bit" of grass each day with a hand mower, and takes an active part in several regional historical societies. He keeps careful records of his bird-watching activities and has lists of sightings going back 30 years.

pected of favoring neutralization of South Viet Nam—who were placed under house arrest after Khanh seized power last Jan. 30.

Reports from Da Nang, a coastal city 380 miles north of the capital, told of heavy firing around the government communications centre. The centre was evacuated.

Troops were reported to have fired on demonstrators for the first time in three days of anti-government, anti-Catholic and anti-U.S. rioting in Da Nang, the reports said. At least 11 persons have been killed.

The troops cracked down in Da Nang after army headquarters ordered their commander, Gen. Nguyen Chanh Thi, to go before the people and tell them Buddhist leaders in Saigon were satisfied with Khanh's resignation as president.

A small Roman Catholic settlement at the edge of Da Nang lay in ashes after Buddhist mobs burned 60 houses Tuesday. The Catholics, many of them refugees from Communist North Viet Nam, sought safety on nearby piers or in sampans offshore.

The riots began Monday when 1,000 Buddhists stoned a U.S. barracks 100 yards from the Catholic village. The Americans fired shots into the air to ward off the rioters.

Reports from Da Nang told of heavy gunfire near the barracks again Tuesday night, but there was no word of new casualties. During the night mobs sacked and burned six shops owned by Catholics and set fire to several cars and trucks.

Three of five victims were lynched. In one instance, a Vietnamese soldier helped the lynchers.

Soldiers made no move to protect Catholic villagers or their belongings. One said the Catholics were "supporters of the Ngo Dinh Diem regime."

A new burst of demonstrations took place in Hue, but there was no indication of violence.

A terrorist grenade exploded at a bridge near the U.S. Embassy in Saigon Tuesday night. No one was injured by the blast—the third in the capital in five days—nor was there significant damage to the bridge.

The blasts were believed to be the work of Communist agents.

Forecasts Sick Will Be Frozen Until Spare Organs Available

By FRANK CAREY

WASHINGTON (AP)—A pioneer in kidney transplants forecast today that victims of organic ailments may eventually be frozen in suspended animation and later returned to life when replacement organs are available.

Dr. Richard Lillehei of the University of Minnesota said that might be possible when top statesmen, scientists, humanitarians, athletes and other outstanding persons die from diseased hearts or other organs.

He also envisaged the day when space voyagers could be kept in controlled cold storage in their spaceships for trips beyond the solar system lasting as long as 100 years.

He said that might be possible not long after the year 2000.

He made the forecast on the basis of recent advances in human and animal studies involving use of cold to preserve organs designed for transplantation, including kidneys taken from human corpses immediately after death.

He and a number of associates told about the developments in technical reports to the first annual meeting of the Society for Cryobiology, an organization formed to study "cold preservative effects of applying extreme cold to living tissues.

Lillehei outlined it in an interview.

Recent advances have been made at the University of Minnesota, he said in taking kidneys from human corpses, preserving them for up to 11 hours after the patient's death at temperatures between freezing and then transplanting them into patients facing death from kidney disease.

One 16-year-old girl has survived a year with a corpse's kidney, he said.

Only last week, Lillehei reported, he and other surgeons transplanted the kidneys from the corpse of a 20 - year - old youth into a 50-year-old man. The man died so far doing fairly well," he said.

Winter Wheat Supply Good With Germination Excellent

PICTON (Staff) — Reports indicate that registered and certified grades of winter wheat are in good supply this year. Pedigreed seed quality is high, germination is excellent and weight per bushel is better than other grains or weed seeds is assured. The varieties Talbot and Genesee are at the top of the list for this area. Genesee has performed well for several years. It is a high yielding variety with white grain and red chaff and has some resistance to loose smut. Talbot is shorter and stronger-strawed than Genesee with similar yield and quality to Genesee. It is moderately resistant to loose smut leaf rust and mildew. It is a white grained red chaffed variety.

The annual Prince Edward County Dairy Princess Competition was held at the Belleville Fair on the evening of Wednesday, August 19th with four competitors taking part. The competition consisted of an interview, a short talk on the dairy industry and milking a cow and recommended milking procedures. Miss Helen Whitehead, R.R. No. 1, Bloomfield was the winner with Anne Scrimgeo, R.R. No. 2 Bloomfield in second place. Others who competed in the competition were Pat Townsend, Carrying Place, and Mary Whiteford, R.R. No. 2, Picton. While the milking was being done, Miss Janet Farks, Prince Edward Dairy Princess commented on the milking routine and at the conclusion of the competition Janet was called on to crown the 1964 winner. Helen received a trophy, a rolling dog, tiara and sash. She will also receive the Reg. Bishop Trophy, which will be presented at the Prince Edward 4-H Awards Night this fall. The other competitors received cash awards.

The judges were Keith Reynolds, Regional Supervisor, Dairy Branch, Ontario Department of Agriculture, Ernie Henderson, Area Fieldman, Hastings County and Doug Tipper, Agricultural Representative, Hastings County. Equipment for the competition was provided by the Surke Company and cows were provided by Maycroft Farms, Picton and Doug Deller, Stirling.

SPONSORED BY DAIRY GROUPS

The competition was sponsored by the Prince Edward County Dairy Groups and Farm Organizations of Gordon Fox, Bloomfield, as chairman and H. Ivan Bell as secretary-treasurer. Cash awards were received from Quinte Milk Products Ltd., Wellington, and Pet Milk, Canada Ltd., Napanee. Convener for the Competition was Tom Heath, Dairy, Branch, Fieldman, Ont. Dept. of Agriculture.

Miss Whitehead will represent Prince Edward County in the Dairy Princess Competition at the Canadian National Exhibition on August 31, where she will compete with contestants from Lennox and Addington, Peterborough and Grenville. The winner on August 31 will offer the semi finals which will be held on Sept. 1st and 2nd. The Ont. Dairy Princess will be chosen at the finals on Sept. 3rd.

Congratulations to Margaret Montgomery R.R. 1, Carrying Place on being chosen to represent Prince Edward County Junior Farmers on the Eastern Ontario and Quebec bus tour which was held from August 16 to 22. The members of the tour were outstanding Junior Farmers from many of the Southern Ontario Counties. The tour included such points of interest as Upper Canada Village, Rorke H. Saunders Generating Station, Montreal and Quebec City. On the return trip the group visited Macdonald College, Larose Forest in Russell County, Ottawa and Peterborough.

The annual Junior Farmer chicken barbecue will be held on the evening of Saturday, August 29 in the Curling Rink at the Fair Grounds, Picton. The price of the tickets is $1.75 and this includes the barbecue, program and dance. Tickets are available from County Junior Farmer directors and from the Picton Agricultural office in Picton.

JUDGING CONTEST

The County Livestock judging competition for Prince Edward ward was held in conjunction of the Belleville Junior Fair, Belleville. The competition Janet was called on to crown the 1964 winner. Home, Contents Lost in Fire South of Town

PICTON (Staff) — The home of Mr. and Mrs. Robert Way Sr. of R.R. 8, Picton, was completely destroyed by fire Tuesday afternoon. The fire, possibly caused by overheated stovepipes broke out about 1.20 p.m., while the house was unoccupied.

Mr. Way was a few flaks away plowing at the time and was attracted to the fire by smoke from the burning building. He raced to the scene on his tractor and arrived in time to save only his suit from the house. The house was well ablaze at this time.

Mrs. Way and her daughter-in-law were shopping in Belleville at the time of the fire and did not return home until some time later.

A neighbor, Mr. Clarence Calnan who arrived on the scene about the same time as Mr. Way did what he could to help, but the two-storey frame structure was too far gone to be of any great assistance.

Mr. Calnan said that the house took less than an hour to burn completely to the ground despite efforts of the Picton Army Camp fire department. "There was not water to supply available near the house and even though there might have been it was too late to save the building. With such a southerly direction prevented the fire from spreading to an adjoining barn.

The Ways have lost all of their belongings and will in all probability be staying with their daughter-in-law, Mrs. Robert Way Jr., who lives just a short distance away.

A tank of diesel oil for the tractor which was located damaged near the burning building was hauled away by tractor. It is not known if the house and furnishings were insured.

Wallbridge

WALLBRIDGE — On Thursday, Wallbridge W.I. members catered for the meals at Belleville Fair and report a busy day.

Mr. and Mrs. Jack Cole and Mary Lattis and friend spent Saturday in Toronto attending the fair.

Rev. and Mrs. W. E. G. Dovey of Montreal were last week guests of Mr. and Mrs. Frank Harris and called on many of their friends.

Junior Farmer Square Dancers District Champs

PICTON — In a recent square dance competition held at the Quinte District Junior Farmer Field Day at Peterborough, the Prince Edward County square dance team dancer did its way to the championship, outstepping members of teams from Area other Counties. As a result of winning the trophy in the Quinte district, the team will travel to Guelph in March to compete in the provincial finals for the Ontario championship. It will be challenged by the title-winning team of each of the three other Junior Farmer District districts in Ontario.

In the two-round consecutive year, the team proudly holds possession of the square dancing trophy, presented at the annual competition at Belleville Fair. Many local spectators from Prince Edward County encouraged the team with their cheers over teams from three other Counties.

The team will be appearing at the Junior Farmer chicken barbecue to be held at the Community Centre, Saturday, August 29th.

Two Missing Children Found On Golf Course

PICTON (Staff) — Town police, and hundreds of citizens Tuesday conducted an all out search for two missing children, Michael Lammes, age 4, and Sandra Lammes, age 3.

Michael Lammes resides at 39 Hill St. and Krista Leeling, 11 Broad Street, both in Picton. The children were last seen by a golf course caddy and boats, which checked the harbor shoreline in the area.

The two small children were found at 3.10 Tuesday afternoon at the Picton Golf and Country Club sitting beneath an apple tree—indulging in green apples and completely oblivious to the frantic search that had taken place in an effort to find them. Both are now home and undoubtedly suffering tummy aches.

SENATOR'S WIFE DIES

Rotary Speaker Against Tolls On St. Lawrence Seaway

PICTON (Staff) — Rotarians of the Picton club Tuesday were impressed with a message brought to them by their guest speaker, Mr. Stuart Armour. Mr. Armour, who was introduced by Rotarian George Ship, man of Picton, was born in Toronto and educated in Brockville and Kingston. In a First World War veteran and was awarded the DSO and Belgian Croix de Guerre. From 1928 to 1940 Mr. Armour lived in Philadelphia, Penn., and was assistant treasurer of the Provident Trust Co., and during the early years of the last great war wrote and put into operation the war rationing plan for Canada that was later to be adopted by the U.S. He later joined the Steel Company of Canada as economic advisor to the president where he stayed until the age of compulsory retirement. In the fall of 1963 he assumed the presidency of the Great Lakes Waterways Development Association which he still holds.

In opening his address Mr. Armour said that he was impressed with a sign at the entrance to Picton which stated that Picton has the finest natural harbor on the St. Lawrence Seaway.

GREAT PROJECT

Mr. Armour in referring to the St. Lawrence Seaway said that it was undoubtedly the greatest engineering project in the world, and was created through Canadian vision and tenacity. "Five of the seven locks in the canal system are Canadian," he said. Of the 2,000 some miles of water highway from the Atlantic to the Lake head only two of the locks in the whole waterway are American. Mr. Armour said that the St. Lawrence Seaway was a great technological problem and went into detail to tell of the construction and pointed out the responsibilities of his company to the seaway. He said that while the co-operation of the U.S. the system could once again become an all-Canadian seaway. He pointed out that Toronto and Hamilton were the two most significant ports on the system and referred to Chicago as being the largest port in the world in export and imports. Some 200 million tons of cargo have been handled in this port in the past year. He went on to say that there were scores of ocean ports now on the seaway. The city of Oshawa is now shipping cars overseas.

BEING IMPROVED

The seaway," he said, "was constantly being improved, enlarged and deepened. He used the example of the Welland canal and said that it was once privately owned and is now the best in the world and added that it is overcome the 365-foot escarpment between Lake Ontario and Lake Erie. Many locks and "were solely built, engineered and paid for by Canadians. Canadians should be proud of this achievement, instead they are shockingly ignorant. A total of 9000 million has been spent by Canadians over the years to improve the seaway whereas the total U.S. expenditure is only 100 million. The St. Lawrence Seaway," he stated, "is still mainly a Canadian waterway."

Mr. Armour further stated that due to selfish U.S. interests pressure the U.S. railroads and seaports has saddled the seaway with tolls. He stated that the St. Lawrence Seaway was the only waterway in North America subject to tolls. He further stated that he could not understand why the U.S. railways are opposed to the seaway when actually it is a great benefit to, and from the ports by rail. He also stated that the U.S. government feels that there is strong discrimination against Canada by having to pay tolls on using the seaway, he went on to add, but been toll free for 111 years to the great benefit of the Canadian people. "Tolls," he said, "are causing a competitive disadvantage and a definite disfavance with regard to overseas exports, causing increases in shipping. It will kill ports unhealthily and will also prohibit growth of communities that have sprung up along the inside shore of the St. Lawrence. Many communities have sprung up along the north shore, where nothing existed before."

In closing his address Mr. Armour stated, "There is a hindrance to world export, they already have the canal and the tolls imposed on the St. Lawrence Seaway hinder the growth of Canada. The tolls should return to a toll free seaway and end this discrimination.

Rotarian William Cook thanked the speaker for a most informative address and that it was indeed a pleasure to welcome themselves as residents borderingon the Great Lakes waterways.

Ont. Historical Society May Meet in County

PICTON (Staff)—The annual convention of the Ontario Association of Homes for the Aged is being held in Picton from September 8th to 11th, and will bring several hundred visitors from all parts of Ontario as well as at least one Provincial Cabinet Minister.

This convention could be the forerunner of such gatherings, as the county is considered an ideal spot, especially from a scenic and historical standpoint, and there is adequate accommodation. The County Centre and Curling Club facilities are ideal for banquets and meetings.

The town has an opportunity to secure another convention planned for next June.

The annual meeting of the Ontario Historical Society is held that month and the president is Miss Kay McFarlane of Napanee.

Picton has never been the scene of the Historical Society annual even though it is located in the heart of Ontario's most historic area," Miss McFarland noted.

The Ontario Association donates $100 toward local expenses to start and fees, banquet tickets, etc, sover other costs.

It would mean that at least a couple of hundred people would visit the county—most of them for the first time.

Whether or not Prince Edward Historical Society will invite the Association to hold its opportunity is a golden one and, would have many benefits.

Member Home After Serving On Committee

PICTON (Staff) — Norris Whitney, M.P.P., arrived home early Friday after serving in other parts of Canada with a select committee which dealt with a wide variety of municipal problems. Meetings were held at Kingston, Ottawa, Sudbury, Elliot Lake, Port Arthur, Fort William, St. Catharines, Niagara Falls, London and Windsor.

We were given a wonderful reception everywhere and interest in the meetings reflected in the turnout of people to the meetings, Mr. Whitney said.

Following the Friday meeting in Toronto but Mr. Whitney now hopes to be more available to constituents than has been during the past month.

BIG LUNGE HOOKED

The largest muskie of the season was caught Saturday by Glen Brooks of Adelaide Street, Picton. The big fish was hooked at Greenfield Point by casting the scales at 27 pounds.

Tuesday evening, Ross Greenfield, Picton's Postmaster, caught a 23-pound muskie on Harrison Bay. The fish measured 40 inches from the tip of snout to the "V" in its tail.

EXPECT MANY BOATS

The Picton Outboard Club will again hold Provincial championship boat races at North Bay, Penetanguishene, August 30th.

This year the races are sanctioned by both the American Power Boat Association and the Canadian Boating Federation so that U.S. drivers can compete for marks toward their own high point championship.

However there will be no races sanctioned by the A.P.B.A. in northern New York State that year and U.S. drivers are expected to compete.

company was suspended or not," he said. "I felt that suspension would have done a great deal of damage to the shareholders."

Mr. Campbell, 50, said he was confident the public will learn that he has done nothing of which to be ashamed.

Mr. Wishart said news of Mr. Campbell's suspension had been forwarded to Mr. Justice Arthur Kelly, a one-man royal commission appointed early this month by Premier John Robarts to inquire into the trading in Windfall and two other speculative mines with claims in the Timmins area where Texas Gulf Sulphur Company made a major base metal discovery this spring.

The value of Windfall shares, now selling at 31 cents, fell more than $3 in one day after Mr. MacMillan announced the drilling on company property produced no valuable find.

A. R. Dick, associate-deputy attorney - general, said the investigation into Mr. Campbell's activities is "proceeding as quickly as possible" in an effort "to get the facts straight."

Conservatives Maintain Fight to Retain Red Ensign In Bitter Debate in House

OTTAWA (CP) — Conservative party defenders of the Red Ensign have reaffirmed their determination to fight to the limit in the face of reports on Parliament Hill that the current flag debate might collapse in a week.

Leaders of the Conservatives adopted a we've-just-begun-to-fight attitude to the reports. They apparently stemmed from an announcement Monday that the Speakers of the Commons and Senate, and the leaders of the three minority parties in the Commons, hope to leave Sept. 1 on a trip to Russia and Czechoslovakia.

Prime Minister Pearson indicated in the Commons Tuesday that the trip probably would have to be postponed because the Commons would be in session next week.

The Conservatives said they see no end to the debate in the Commons and no way out of the parliamentary impasse unless the government either drops its flag proposal, or sends it to a parliamentary committee to be decided at leisure.

The government, showing its determination to have Parliament adopt a national flag with three red maple leaves on a white background with blue vertical borders, has scheduled the flag debate for every day this week except Friday, when departmental appropriations will be studied.

Conservative strategists argue that ultimately the government will be forced to make some change in its program in order to bring other important matters before Parliament.

Conservative MPs representing Ontario and Prairie ridings report their recent mail has tended towards stronger defence of the Union Jack and the Red Ensign, and support for the Conservative fight to retain them. Earlier, the Conservatives say, they were getting some criticism of their debate tactics, but that criticism now has lessened.

The Conservatives also have been heartened by the declared intention of one government backbencher, Ralph Cowan (L—York - Humber), to make a full-dress speech in support of the Red Ensign on every amendment proposed in the flag debate. If Conservatives are prepared to move innumerable amendments.

In carrying of the protracted flag debate, it was learned, the Conservatives intend in the next few days and perhaps weeks to put more stress on the government's changes of position since originally introducing the flag resolutions.

They do not see Prime Minister Pearson's action last Friday, in declaring that votes on the flag issue will be free of party discipline, as any concession towards shortening the debate. If anything, they say, the move demonstrates another government change of position which embarrassed its own members and will prompt more, rather than fewer speeches.

Municipal Assoc. Wants End To Vacant Apt. Tax Rebates

LONDON, Ont. (CP) — The Ontario Municipal Association gave almost unanimous support Tuesday to a request seeking to end tax rebates for apartment vacancies because the allowances subsidizing the apartment owners come from other taxpayers.

Delegates to the 66th annual OMA convention here also urged that legislation permitting a hotel and motel room tax and a sales tax exemption for all municipal purchases be initiated. They defeated a proposal to seek taxable income deductions for municipal taxes.

The most controversial issues — education costs and arbitration to outlaw municipal strikes — did not reach the discussion stage during the three-hour resolutions session.

Resolutions Chairman William Archer announced his committee will recommend approval of a form of compulsory arbitration whereby the provincial cabinet will have discretionary powers to impose arbitration on municipal labor disputes.

Earlier, delegates rejected by 166 to 138 votes a motion seeking to prohibit future discussions of resolutions with provincial government officials before OMA meetings.

LEVELS CHARGE

An apparent basis for the controversy arose from a charge levelled Monday by Mayor Gordon Stronach of London that the provincial government attempted to forestall embarrassing requests by planning politically ambitious supporters within municipal associations.

During Tuesday's session Mr. Archer said that, as resolutions chairman, he had an obligation to seek information from any source, including Municipal Affairs Minister Wilfred Spooner and his staff, that would aid him in performing his duties more efficiently.

He also denied he had been "planted" within the OMA.

Delegates reversed six recommendations made by the resolutions committee, including a Niagara Falls request to impose a room tax. It was decided only municipalities wishing to introduce the tax need do so.

The delegates also overruled a committee recommendation by supporting a Kingston resolution asking the provincial and federal governments to exempt all municipal purchases from sales tax.

Fire Chiefs Hear Report on Fire Prevention

PETERBOROUGH — The Canadian Association of Fire Chiefs should work closely with information media to educate the public on fire prevention, a report read to the association's convention here said Tuesday.

The report, read by Chief Bev R. Wade of Kentville, N.S., said Canada "suffers from one of the highest rates of fire losses and it is quite probably that the lack of concern on the part of the public is due to an absence of an information program."

The report said the CAFC is "ideal for reducing the appalling fire loss" and should work closely with government and other agencies in public education regarding the problem.

It said the association should provide more services in order to boost membership. Membership is only about 650 out of a potential 3,500.

After 50 years of operation, the association's finances still do not permit payment of officers' expenses incurred in promoting association affairs, the report noted. It recommended the association be incorporated as a non-profit entity under federal rather than provincial laws because "our association has a national outlook."

It recommended that a full-time general manager be employed at a salary of about $15,000 a year, to set up a program of services with special emphasis toward gaining more volunteer fire chief membership.

A program for training firemen was recommended with a standardized training plan. Specialized training programs would be undertaken with possible utilization of Boy Scouts in this field. A recommendation that future association literature contain a portion written in French was also submitted.

Bogus $20 Bills Trickling Into Toronto Area

TORONTO (CP)—Police said Tuesday bogus $20 bills, believed to be the work of a Montreal counterfeiting ring, are trickling into circulation in the Toronto area.

Harold Oswin, manager of a supermarket told police that four of the bills were passed at his store Monday. Police said another attempt to pass one of the bills was made Monday night at the Canadian National Exhibition.

Police said several other complaints have been made about the bills which they describe as good copies with different serial numbers.

Civil Explosion in Viet Nam Can Prove Serious Blow To U. S. Check on the Reds

By WILLIAM L. RYAN
AP Special Correspondent

The civilian explosion in South Viet Nam can prove a serious blow to United States efforts to hold back Communist pressure in Southeast Asia.

Already some of America's allies indicate lack of faith that the war against the Viet Cong can be won. If the alternative to victory is negotiation, the prospects for negotiated peace are also unpleasant from various viewpoints.

The South Viet Nam explosion should have surprised nobody. The wonder is that it didn't come sooner. Young people there have known nothing but war, tension, dictatorship and frustration. They are resilient people, but there are limits to their patience.

Frustration seems the key word. Young, educated people in the cities want some sort of representative government. But in a country at war there is a high price on a luxury like free elections. Democracy as it is known in the West is a pitifully embryo state in South Viet Nam.

YEARS OF TALK

For years there has been talk of the need for social justice, economic improvement for rural people, measures to relieve public morale, elimination of corruption, appointment of army and government leaders on the basis of merit. These were talked about long before President Ngo Dinh Diem died in last November's coup.

Cruelty repression had not helped Diem survive. But restraint and avoidance of bloodshed in this week's uprising did not seem to help Nguyen Khanh, either.

There is deep frustration for Americans, too. To those on the scene it must have seemed that only a strong hand could master this country and that the effort needed to beat back the Communists, when Duong Van Minh proved a disappointment, there were hopes that his successor, Khanh, had the strong hand needed.

In these circumstances South Viet Nam had to progress from the dictatorship to another. There had to be a dictatorship, until there was victory — and there was no sign of victory. Now the question is whether South Viet Nam is back where it was last November, with little to show for two coups.

The explosion this week has the look of a depressing symptom, a sign of weakening resistance, a search for quick solutions. The majority may, as Americans say, be against communism and even neutralism, but that won't help if the will to fight a modern furtive insurrection is eroded by internal chaos, confusion and frustration.

Developments likely will encourage the Communists and Communist regime in the north. If they act according to pattern, they will take full advantage of the confusion.

All this can have an effect on American public opinion, especially if it visualizes the expensive effort of the last few years as wasted.

In the rest of Asia and among America's allies elsewhere, it can generate pressure for some sort of negotiated settlement.

What kind of settlement could there be? The Communists make their terms clear: Withdrawal of Americans and settlement "in the spirit of the program of the National Front for Liberation of South Viet Nam." That is another way of saying a conference should prepare South Viet Nam for an eventual Communist takeover.

There is support in Europe for neutralization of both North and South Viet Nam. There is little prospect that the regime in the north would agree to be neutralized, and neutralization of the south alone would leave the tide open for Communists eventually, when they were ready to move. Such a solution could only undermine the whole Western position on the Asian mainland and lead, some day, to Chinese domination of the continent.

Chief Coroner Orders Inquest In Man's Death

TORONTO (CP)—Chief Coroner Dr. Morton Shulman Tuesday ordered an inquest in the death of 30-year-old Robertsons, who was released from hospital after an auto accident and died suddenly Monday.

An autopsy indicated the youth had suffered fractured ribs in the accident. The fractured ribs resulted in laceration of his liver and he died of shock and internal hemorrhage.

Dr. Shulman said he would endeavor to find out at the inquest if the liver injury had occurred before or after he was released from hospital.

He was taken to hospital after his car crashed into a pole here Aug. 6, and was released Aug. 13.

Not Prepared To Implement Recent Proposal

TORONTO (CP) — W. I. Haskett, Ontario transport minister, said Tuesday his department is not prepared to incorporate a recent proposal by Dr. Morton Shulman, chief Toronto coroner, to curb traffic fatalities through legalizing breath analysis tests.

Mr. Haskett said he would like to see the federal government strengthen the Criminal Code by spelling out what constitutes an impaired or a drunken driver.

Dr. Shulman suggested in a letter to the minister Saturday that drivers applying for licences be required to sign an agreement whereby police can ask drivers to submit to breathalyzer tests. If drivers refused to comply their licences would be cancelled.

An attorney-general's department spokesman said compulsory breath tests "would not be too different from forcing a man to give a statement to police. This would be a deprivation of the particular rights of the individual."

Mr. Haskett said the federal government should be approached with a view laying down standards and tests for breathalyzer devices to ensure that would be uniform across Canada. He added that it is not difficult now to get prescriptions for drinking drivers.

Weekly Editor Found Dollar For Assault

SARNIA (CP) — John T. Fullerton, editor of the weekly Sarnia Gazette, was fined $1 when he was convicted in court Tuesday on an assault charge involving International Typographical Union (CLC) pickets in front of the strike-bound Gazette building.

At the same time, Magistrate William Pearson also ordered a dog removed from the picket line after Marcel Brady, Gazette publisher, claimed the animal was intimidating non-striking employees.

Fullerton was charged with assaulting Eugene Boley June 25 as he picketed the newspaper. Boley testified he felt ill on strike, seeking a first contract with management.

Boley said Fullerton drove his car towards him, striking a placard he was carrying.

Magistrate Pearson adjourned until Sept. 3 a joint charge against pickets Ray Halford and Harold Kaul for assaulting John Cribben, an apprentice employed by the Gazette.

The publisher called police Tuesday because he thought the dog was intimidating non-striking employees as it walked outside the building with its master, Paul Larson.

Parliament At a Glance

BY THE CANADIAN PRESS

TUESDAY, Aug. 25, 1964

Fostering General Nicholson said promises made by a cabinet minister before his election can't be regarded as binding.

Opposition Leader Diefenbaker called that an outrageous proposition as other opposition MPs hooted and laughed.

Minister Rheaume (PC—Northwest Territories) said Eskimos who have never seen a tree can't understand the maple leaf flag idea.

A. M. A. McLean (L—Charlotte) said the maple leaf flag is the symbol of Canada's great future.

Fernand Cardiff (PC—Huron), backing the Red Ensign, advised fellow MPs to "get down where they would stay in office longer.

Jean-Louis Frenette (SC—Portneuf) said the government should take emergency measures to wind up the flag debate.

WEDNESDAY, Aug. 26

The Commons meets at 2 p.m. to continue the flag debate. The Senate stands adjourned to Sept. 15.

Promise Made by Cabinet Minister Before Election Not Binding Says Member

OTTAWA (CP)—An out-of-office politician who makes a promise in an elected campaign can be held to account for it if he gets elected and joins the cabinet.

This theory of political responsibility drew scepticism laughter and shouts of derision in the Commons Tuesday when it was stated by Postmaster-General Jack Nicholson.

"This is the most outrageous proposition that I have ever heard advanced," said Opposition Leader Diefenbaker.

Mr. Nicholson was answering opposition questions about an increase in rents at a veterans housing project in Vancouver and a promise given in an election campaign by Arthur Laing, then now minister of northern affairs. Mr. Laing is absent this week on an Arctic tour.

"I say there is a difference between a private member campaigning as a member of the opposition party trying to get elected, and a member of the government," said Mr. Nicholson, whose portfolio includes housing matters.

'ANOTHER MATTER'

Later he added: "When a man speaks as a member of the government he speaks on behalf of the government. When a man speaks during the course of an election campaign about what he will try to do, that is another matter and I refrain from speaking as a member of the government."

The flurry arose from a declaion by Mr. Nicholson and the Central Mortgage and Housing Corporation not to postpone an increase in rents for the veterans houses. Rates will rise between $3.50 and $11 a month, depending on the house, Oct. 1.

Harold Winch (NDP — Vancouver East) and George Chatterton (PC — Esquimalt-Saanich) asked about a written promise they said had been given by Mr. Laing two years ago. Mr. Laing, a former Liberal leader in British Columbia and minister in the course of an election campaign some years ago," Mr. Nicholson said. "It was not made by a responsible minister of the Crown."

Mr. Diefenbaker snapped: "Then the minister say that a statement made by the man who today occupies the position of minister of northern affairs and national resources is irresponsible because he was not a minister then?"

"I never made or suggested any such statement," Mr. Nicholson said.

"If it is the statement (promise) that I think it is," Mr. Nicholson added, "it was made before he was a minister."

"Does Mr. Nicholson say that statements made by candidates are not to be regarded as responsible unless they are ministers when they say them?" Mr. Diefenbaker asked.

Speaker Alan Macnaughton called for order.

Leader of 'Underdog' Freed And Will Continue Fight

OTTAWA (CP)—The Vancouver-based leader of Underdog, an organization that claims to aid the mistreated, was freed from jail Tuesday but the scars he gave MPs with his blood bomb lingers on.

David Cowlishaw, 28, spent three hours in jail before an "angel" paid his $25 fine, $2 costs and $75 for damages to the posh Commons carpet he soiled.

But Cowlishaw was undeterred from the cause he was championing.

The former Toronto newspaper man told reporters he would head for Toronto to launch a "nationwide campaign" to rally indignation for the case of Calvin Macdonald," a convicted thief awaiting death in a 17,000-mile wrong - rectifying tour of Canada and the U.S. Since then another daughter has been born.

VANCOUVER (CP)—A car firm here has offered David Cowlishaw a job because "he has got to feed his family."

Carsean Tanberg, manager of Sarzent Sales and Services Ltd., said Tuesday he had wired $77 to Cowlishaw to pay his fine and damages.

Asked why he was offering a job to Cowlishaw, Mr Tanberg said Cowlishaw has been mistreated by police and his family is not exactly living in luxury. I am sure, because of his actions, he has created efforts to help people."

Mr. Tanberg said he was a close personal friend of the family.

Mrs. Cowlishaw and her six children could not be reached.

"Mr. Cowlishaw has worked most of his life and almost all of his personal earnings in his venture to help people who have been wronged," said Mr. Tanberg.

"If his family is in financial distress it is certainly because of his efforts in helping the more than 1,000 requests he and his associates receive every month through the Underdog organization."

WANT QUEEN'S RULING

SANTIAGO (Reuters) — The Chilean government has asked Britain's Queen Elizabeth to arbitrate in the dispute with Argentina over the southern frontier between the two countries, it was learned Tuesday. The dispute is centred on [illegible] the southern part of the [illegible] Border shots placed there six years ago have disappeared.

Fosters Union Label For Assault

Roots of Rockefeller Dynasty In U.S. Go Back to 1720 Immigrants From Rhineland

By CARMAN CUMMING

NEW YORK (CP) — All through their lives the Rockefellers exist under the shadow of a dollar sign. Every time they write their name they put down a word synonomous with wealth.

How has it affected them?

One young Rockefeller went to work as a laborer in the Oklahoma oil fields. Another lost his life in New Guinea swamps on an anthropological trip. A third tackled prison reform during the 1930s, visiting jails and night courts.

Several of them also have had experience in divorce courts.

For two, Nelson and Win throp, grandsons of the original John D., the path has led into the tricky ground of politics.

Nelson aimed for the—top, making an unsuccessful attempt for the Republican presidential nomination this year after serving six years as governor of New York state.

Younger brother Winthrop—the one who worked in the oil fields after quitting Yale — is trying for the governorship of Arkansas as Republican candidate challenging Democratic Governor Orval Faubus.

QUIETLY INFLUENTIAL

Behind these two who have chosen to live in the fishbowl of political life there is a large and growing clan—wealthy, influential almost always discreet. Their names appear sometimes on the social or business pages but only rarely on the news page.

The roots of the dynasty in America go back to 1720, when Johann Peter Rockefeller emigrated from the German Rhineland. But the modern - day Rockefeller family really began 100 years ago when his great-grandson, John Davison married Laura Spelman.

John D., son of a family black sheep, showed little brilliance in school and quit at the age of 16 to work as a $3-a-week clerk in Cleveland.

Four years later he formed a farm produce business with a partner. He was already a prosperous businessman when oil discoveries in Pennsylvania captured his attention.

The rest—how he parlayed an investment of less than $75,000 into the mammoth Standard Oil monopoly—is history.

The extent of the fortune has never been precisely measured but at one point his income was said to be about $50,000,000 a year. There have been estimates that the whole family has given away something in the neighborhood of $2,500,000,000. A family spokesman says the estimate is probably reasonable.

BAD TO GOOD

John D. himself gave away more than $500,000,000 before he died in Florida in 1937 at the age of 97. By that time he had also erased much of the image of a ruthless "robber baron" that built up along with his bank account.

By that time also his son, John D. Jr., had taken over the full-time job of giving away what the old man had amassed.

Shy and retiring, John D. Jr. was born in Cleveland but moved with the family to New York at the age of 10. There he was brought up in a massive $600,000 house where no one smoked, danced or played cards and where the children were "fined" if they were late for family prayers or failed to account for their allowances.

The young John D. lived most of his life under his father's shadow. He was 63 when the old man died and he himself lived until 1960, when he died without ever having broken a childhood pledge never to smoke, drink or swear.

He was survived by a daughter, named Abby after her mother, and five sons: John D. III, Nelson, Laurance, Winthrop and David.

It was John D. III, now 58, who mildly shocked his contemporaries of the 30s when he studied prisons at close range and even donned old clothes to visit relief shelters. He also served as a League of Nations clerk before immersing himself in the various boards foundations and funds that make up the Rockefeller charitable complex.

FOLLOWS FATHER

Nelson, 55, also served in Washington as an assistant secretary of state before going into New York politics.

Laurance, 54 and an aviation enthusiast, has sometimes been called the quiet plugger of the family. He is president of Rockefeller Brothers Inc., which the five sons founded in 1946 to coordinate their philanthropies. He is also known as a conservationist.

Winthrop, a husky 52-year-old rancher, earned the title of playboy and adventurer of the clan in his younger years. He joined the army as a private before Pearl Harbor and rose to lieutenant - colonel in Far East fighting.

After the war Winthrop became involved in a sensational marriage with Barbara (Bobo) Paulekinte Sears, divorced daughter of an immigrant Lithuanian coal miner. The marriage broke up within a year and the subsequent divorce cost Winthrop $5,500,000 in alimony.

He later remarried with heiress Jeannette Edris and settled down to raising cattle and making political hay on a giant spread in Arkansas.

David, 49, a brilliant and bookish economics PhD, also joined the army as a private and moved up to captain in the African and French campaigns. After the war he joined uncle Winthrop Aldrich's Chase Manhattan Bank and has since become president. Recently he spent more than two hours discussing international affairs with Premier Khrushchev at the Kremlin.

MARRIAGE TROUBLES

Their sister Abby is married to banker Jean Mauze and lives quietly in New York. She was divorced from her first husband in 1943 and her second died in 1946.

Of all the Rockefeller marriage troubles, by far the most significant has been Nelson's divorce and subsequent remarriage to a divorcee last year.

This breakup was considered one of the main reasons that Nelson's drive for the presidency failed to catch fire.

Nelson's children — including a baby son born of the second marriage in May — have also been more in the news than the rest of the more than 40 grandchildren and great - grandchildren of John D. Jr.

One son, Michael, died in New Guinea just after the breakup of his father's marriage. Another son, Steven, a theological student, made headlines when he married a former maid at the family's Pocantico Hills estate near New York. A daughter, Ann married an Episcopalian minister who was jailed in Mississippi three years ago for taking part in an integration drive.

Retired History Professor Reader of Mystery Novels

VANCOUVER (CP) — The "boy wonder" of the history department was the tag put on Frederick Hubert Soward when he arrived at the University of British Columbia in 1923.

Now retired dean of graduate studies and director of international studies, UBC's elder statesman has done far more than just teach and study history. He has participated in the making of history.

And he's an accomplishments he has found time to develop an acute taste for mystery novels. He frequently reads a paper-back novel in an hour.

Dean Soward participated in shaping Canadian policy during the Second World War as special assistant to the undersecretary of state for external affairs. He has been a Canadian delegate to the United Nations and has participated in numerous overseas conferences.

His greatest moment he considers the day in 1967 when, as rapporteur of the trusteeship committee of the United Nations General Assembly, he moved that British Togoland and the Gold Coast amalgamate to become the new African nation of Ghana.

GIVEN RARE HONOR

In a written tribute passed by the university senate, he was described as "a voracious reader (with) an encyclopaedic knowledge and a photographic memory and (with) interests so broad that they encompass all of the arts."

The son of a store owner in Minden, Ont., he completed elementary school at the age of 10 and had to wait two years before he could attend high school.

A history essay he wrote in his final high-school year won him a scholarship to the University of Toronto. Two years later he went overseas with the 68th Highlanders to fight in France and Belgium during the First World War.

He later returned to the University of Toronto and Edinburgh University on scholarships.

After that came another scholarship, to Oxford, where he and another young Canadian undergraduate became a firm friends.

That student was Lester B. Pearson, who Dean Soward described as a "good, all-round type . . . You couldn't call him an intelectural."

In 1922 he came to UBC and embarked, as a lecturer, on "the lean years." He was to spend 28 years at the then-young university before his salary reached $5,000-a year.

In his varied career since he has written 12 or 13 books ("I can't remember the exact number").

Now, although he has officially retired, he has returned to the classroom as an instructor "just to keep me busy."

Expert Oilmen Are Sounding Depths of North Sea in Hope Of Finding Oil at Bottom

By DOUG MARSHALL

LONDON (CP) — Expert oilmen from Calgary to Kuwait are sounding the depths of the North Sea on a multimillion-dollar gamble that there is black gold beneath those cold inhospitable waves.

Extensive surveys by groups of oil companies, including three Canadian firms, have been under way since the Slochteren natural gas field was discovered near the coast of Holland four years ago. The field, with reserves estimated at 1,100,000,000,000 cubic metres, is believed to be the third largest in the world.

Where there is gas there's usually oil. The surveys are particularly interested in a geological formation running between Holland and the Yorkshire coast in northeast England.

The prospect of finding commercial quantities of oil or gas on fuel-hungry Europe's doorstep is something no major petroleum company can afford to pass up, despite the difficulties and enormous cost of undersea drilling.

Cost of drilling one test well alone is estimated at £1,000,000. The floating barges or rigs, big enough to survive 30-foot waves, cost about £2,000,000 to build. Some are being constructed in British and European shipyards; others are being towed over from the Mexican and Persian gulfs.

JOIN FORCES

Exploration of this scale cannot be financed by individual companies, especially when the chances of success are tenuous. Instead the 30-odd oil firms in the field have joined forces to form at least eight consortia for the venture.

Dr. Tom Gaskell, 49-year-old adviser to the giant British Petroleum Corporation, says the groups have already spent about £9,000,000 on initial seismic and magnometer surveys of the sea bed. He says each group is likely to spend about £1,000,000 a year for the next five years in the hunt.

"It's a calculated gamble," Gaskell says. "But once the firms have embarked on such a gamble they won't give up easily.

"If they do strike oil it will make the California gold rush seem small."

The whiff of oil in the prevailing North Sea wind has already set quivering many a financial — and political — nostril in Britain. With drilling scheduled to start next April—winter operations are out of the question—one financial editor predicts it will only be a matter of time before enterprising bookmakers start offering odds.

CLAIMS RIGHTS

Under the 1958 Geneva convention on continental shelves, finally ratified here last May, Britain claims mineral rights for about 100,000 square miles of sea bed. Of this, the firms are interested in about 38,000 square miles and the competition for licences in this area is tough.

The system of granting licences threatens to become an election issue. The Conservative government plans to grant successful applicants the go-ahead on or about Sept. 30. Labor wants the matter delayed until after the October general election.

Current regulations would grant firms six-year production licences over 100-square-mile plots. Renewal for a further 40 years would be on condition that the firm relinquished rights over 30 per cent of its concession area.

Labor is toying with a scheme under which the government would have a 50-per-cent interest in each plot from the beginning. Power Minister Frederick Erroll rejects the Labor scheme on the grounds that such regulations would have attracted far less venture capital in the first place and it is unfair on the oil firms to change the rules now.

Several firms have been nibbling at North Sea oil within territorial waters for some years. Home Oil and Grizzly Petroleum, both of Calgary, have a farm-out option from the British Petroleum on the Yorkshire coast.

Place Oil and Gas of Canada, which owns 28 offshore gas wells in Lake Erie, has formed a British company and is building a rig for use in the Washington to strike greater riches than the Crown jewels that King John inadvertently lost in the east-coast inlet in the 13th century.

Also tied up with the oil race are two Canadian aerial survey companies, Hunting Survey and Aero Services Limited, operating on a free-lance basis for several groups.

Results of the surveys have merely confirmed the theory that the North Sea, in the words of one geologist, "is the last great sedimentary area left in the world — and the hardest place to get the stuff from."

The oil hunt could prove to be a huge North Sea bubble. Or it could, as the weekly New Statesman speculates, result in a success that would "transform the economy, enrich the nation and even influence foreign policy."

MIDGETS ARE BACK!

And the "stealing" won't be a pushover since two of these fine bouts have been arranged for the card.

The midget match will provide the semi-final action and pits Billy the Kid and Irish Jackie against the combo of Farmer Pete and Pancho Lopez.

This foursome should give the wrestling faithful a million laughs and plenty of fast, spirited action in the two-of-three falls events.

In case you have missed the little guys in previous appearances here, don't let it happen again. Around the four-foot mark and weighing in the neighborhood of 100 pounds soaking wet, these mite-sized belters are a show worth watching, be you a wrestling fan or a comedy addict.

Headlining this Friday's affair will be the latest king of judo from Japan, one Professor Hiro, strutting his stuff against Gentleman Jim Hady.

Hady has had a couple of rough goes here lately against The Beast and can't expect things to get any easier with Hiro providing the opposition.

This two-of-three falls main event will have to be good, following the midgets, but we look for a wild and rugged affair between two top grapplers which should disappoint no one.

While with hockey, we heard somewhere that Howie Young is so happy with the movie industry that he may not even lace on a pair of skates this winter. Mr. Young has a role in a soon-to-be-released war story... Looks like the Black Hawks may have done him a big favor by selling him to Los Angeles, that is as long as Howie does not forget he's in a movie and not a hockey brawl and fails to pull his punches.

Track, Field Clinic Opens

GUELPH (CP) — Jim Worrall of Toronto, president of the Canadian Olympic Association welcomed 250 student coaches from Canada and the United States Tuesday to the annual track and field clinic here.

He said the clinic, sponsored by the Royal Canadian Legion, is a "once-in-a-lifetime" chance to combine gain knowledge and experience which should improve Canada's chances in future Olympic Games.

He pointed out that the clinic features such instructors as John Disley, Lionel Pugh and Peter Hildreth, all of England, and Gilbert Ounce, Jacques Bergongnoux and Joseph Mallejac, of France.

He said demonstrators at the clinic, which ends Sept. 3, include Harry Jerome of Vancouver, who has equalled the world record of 10 seconds in the 100-metres.

Pizarro Keeps Sox In Pennant Hunt

Suns Share Lead; Leafs Lose Pair

By The Canadian Press

Deuces are disastrous for Toronto Maple Leaf pitcher Marshall Bridges — even when they're two-hitters.

Bridges went against Buffalo Bisons Tuesday in the first game of an International League doubleheader and when he finished he had lost the game 2-1 on a two-hitter, both homers, and his record was 0-2.

The Bisons then went on to wallop the Leafs 13-3 in the second game.

Elsewhere, Rochester Red Wings dumped Syracuse Chiefs 9-4, Columbus Jets edged Atlanta Crackers 6-4, and Jacksonville Suns, making a late run for the pennant, split a doubleheader with Richmond Virginians 4-3 and 2-8 to claim a first-place tie with Syracuse.

Duke Carmel cracked a homer in each game for the Bisons, his first had ruined Bridges' bid for a no-hitter in the second inning. Pumpsie Green and Norm Sherry added circuit clouts in the second game.

The Jets scored their 13th victory in the last 16 games, scoring four unearned runs in the first inning and banging on.

QUICK START

The Red Wings jumped on Dave Ryan for three runs in the first inning and added four more off Al Pehanich in the third. John Griffin smacked a three-run homer, Joe Durham got a triple and a double, and Steve Demeter went three for three, including a double.

Jack Damaska hit a two-run single off Frank Carpin to climax a three-run Jacksonville rally in the fifth inning of the opener to hand Carpin his second loss of the year.

The Virginians collected five third - inning runs off starter Fritz Ackley in the second game, then coasted to the win behind the nine-hit pitching of Billy Muffett.

LIBYAN CENSUS

TRIPOLI (AP)—Preliminary results of an Aug. 1 census put Libya's population at 1,559,399 persons, the government said A 1954 census gave the population figure at under 1,250,000.

By Dic Kcouch

Associated Press Sports Writer

Juan Pizarro has been a potential 20-game winner since he started throwing rocks in Puerto Rico 11 years ago.

Pizarro pitched Chicago to within a game of first place Tuesday night when he blanked Minnesota Twins 1-0 on a masterful five-hitter. The victory was No. 17, tops in the American League, for the 27-year-old freshman and the shutout lowered his earned run average to a brilliant 2.00.

He has never been this close to the 20-victory mark before, though tagged "another Bob Feller" before he had thrown a pitch in anger in the major leagues.

Juan started the 1954 Winter season as the Santurce, Puerto Rico, club's batboy, wound up on the pitching staff when he discovered he could fling rocks harder than the team's pitchers could throw baseball's.

Three years later he was Milwaukee's prize farmhand striking out 318 batters for the Class A Carolina League in the old Sally League. The Braves paid Santurce $35,000 for his contract, but they never got a return on their investment.

FAILED WITH BRAVES

Pizarro and the Milwaukee management suffered through four seasons with equally unimpressive results. The southpaw flopped each spring, was demoted to the minors, where he was virtually unbeatable, and finished each season in the Braves' doghouse.

Finally, in 1960, the Braves traded him to the White Sox and Lopez made his reclamation project No. 1. Pizarro has been a winner ever since.

Elsewhere in the American League Tuesday night, Cleveland Indians upended league-leading Baltimore Orioles 5-3; third place New York Yankees topped Washington Senators 4-1; Los Angeles Angels defeated Kansas City 5-3 and Detroit Tigers slugged Boston Red Sox 11-6.

Pizarro, 17-6, pitched out of a bases-loaded jam in the top of the ninth before the White Sox broke through lefty Dick Stigman in the bottom of the inning.

Stigman checked the Sox on three hits until Jim Landis led off the inning with a single, moved to third on Floyd Robinson single, Bill Skowron lined out before Ron Hansen broke it with a run-scoring hit to left.

HOMERS BEAT ORIOLES

The Indians struck for five runs in the eighth inning, the last three on Bob Chance's two-run homer and Leon Wagner's solo shot, to overtake Baltimore.

Orioles starter Milt Pappas gave up Cleveland's fourth hit of the game, a double to Tito Francona, and walked Woody Held before being replaced by Harvey Haddix in the eighth. Max Alvis' pinch single scored one run, Chico Salmon singles, loading the bases, and the second run crossed while Dick Howser was grounding into a double play. Then chance and Wagner connected back-to-back.

Lula Aparicio's two-run homer had helped the Orioles to a 3-0 lead.

Whitey Ford won his first game since July 15 when the Yankees came from behind with four runs in the eighth. Mickey Mantle's third hit of the night, a two-run double, was the key blow.

Dean Chance picked up his 15th victory as the Angels rolled all their scoring in the fifth inning, with singles by Bobby Knoop, Albie Pearson and Leo Clinton, plus a bases-loaded walk and wild pitch delivering the runs.

Bob Lee relieved Chance in the 6th screenful, when the Athletics scored their last two runs on Doc Edwards' single, Bert Campaneris' triple and a pinch single by Manny Jimenez.

Don Demeter's three - run homer in the sixth paced Detroit's 15-hit attack against the Red Sox. It broke a 5-5 tie and the Tigers wrapped it up with two more in the seventh after Carl Yastrzemski's two-base error opened the gate.

DOCTORS SOUGHT

KUALA LUMPUR (AP)—The Malaysian government is trying to recruit 45 Filipino and 10 South Korean doctors to help staff rapidly growing medical facilities.

VANCOUVER (CP) — John Henderson of Montreal upset defending champion Alex Houston of Vancouver 21-13 in a singles event Tuesday to give his Quebec team undisputed possession of second place in the standings for the Canadian lawn bowling championships.

Henderson, who had a perfect 6-0 won-lost record, broke Houston's string of consecutive Canadian championship victories at eight.

At the end of the fifth round Ontario held the lead in the tournament standings with 20 points from four wins and no defeats in the fours and three wins each in the pairs and singles.

Quebec was second with 18 points on Henderson's four victories plus two wins in each of the fours and singles. British Columbia has 14 points.

Defending pairs champion Ontario lost to Quebec 20-18. Ray Redish and Joe Dorsch pulled to within two points at the halfway mark in their game with Peter Wilson and Stan Hollinghead of Mount Royal but lost by two shots.

The strong Ontario foursome won their fourth straight victory to move further ahead in team standings with 18 points, defeating Saskatchewan 21-11 in the fourth round. They drew a bye in the fifth.

Phillies Lose But Giants Drop Notch

Reds Regain Second

By BOB GREEN
Associated Press Sports Writer

Howie Reed doesn't win often. In fact, his pitching victories are so well spaced out he might even pass for a Met.

But when the 27 - year - old righthander does get around to winning one, he does it in convincing fashion, and he makes the licking hurt.

Reed, who hadn't won in the majors since 1958, got around to it again Tuesday night. He fashioned a six - hitter, with ninth-inning help, for Los Angeles Dodgers and beat San Francisco's struggling Giants 3-1.

The loss dropped the Giants into third place and left them 6½ games behind National League - leading Philadelphia Phillies, a deficit that becomes more imposing each day.

Cincinnati Reds took over second place, rapping New York Mets 7-2 behind the six - hit pitching of Bob Purkey while Philadelphia took a 7-5 licking from Braves. The Braves' second straight over the league leaders.

Houston Colts held off Chicago Cubs 5-4 and Lou Brock's 13th-inning homer sealed St. Louis Cardinals' 7-6 victory over Pittsburgh Pirates in the other games.

IN TOP FORM

Reed, whose last major league triumph was a 2-1 decision over Chicago White Sox while pitching with Kansas City Sept. 22, 1956, was in top form against the Giants.

He allowed only five hits through the first seven innings, gave up another in the eighth, then weakened in the ninth. With one out, he issued walks to Chuck Hiller and Matty Alou.

Ron Perranoski came on to get one out and Bob Miller was called in to strike out Willie Mays and end the game. It was only Los Angeles' fourth victory over San Francisco in 15 games this year, but it left the Giants with an overwhelming task in attempting to overtake Philadelphia.

For example, if the Phillies play anywhere near their current pace, they'd wind up with 96 victories. To catch them, the Giants would have to win 28 of their remaining 36 games.

HUNT HOMERS

The Mets got two runs on Ron Hunt's homer before Purkey got anyone out, but he shut them out the rest of the way. Frank Robinson doubled in two runs and Deron Johnson doubled in three more for all the working room Purkey needed.

The Braves built an early lead on homers by Eddie Mathews and Lee Maye, then held off Philadelphia's late rush. Braves right-hander Tony Cloninger held the Phillies to three hits over the first seven innings, but the Phils chased him in the eighth, scoring three runs on two singles, a fielders choice and Johnny Callison's homer.

St. Louis blew a 4-0 lead, then came from behind 6-5 before Brock settled their long struggle with Pittsburgh with his homer. Smoky Burgess drove in two Pittsburgh runs with a third single in the top of the 12th, but the Cards matched them in the bottom of the inning.

Bob Aspromonte drove in one run with a double, another with a sacrifice fly and scored a third as Houston jumped on rookie John Flavin for five runs in the first 2 1-3 innings, then held on against the Cubs.

Suspension Challenged

Favor Outlawing Liston-Clay Rematch

NORFOLK, Va. (AP) — A majority of the early arrivals to the World Boxing Association convention this week favor outlawing the proposed Liston-Clay rematch.

Pre-convention talks with delegates also indicate there will be a floor fight over the WBA's suspension of Sonny Liston after he lost the world heavyweight boxing title to Cassius Clay.

James E. Deakin, executive secretary of the Nevada State Athletic Commission, said Tuesday he plans to take the floor at the convention Thursday and challenge the WBA suspension of Liston. He maintains the WBA did not have the authority to suspend Liston until a member boxing commission did so.

He added: "I favor reinstatement of Liston to the WBA ratings but disapprove of the return bout unless Ali and I feel Liston should be made to fight somebody else before he meets Clay again. Then Liston can prove that shoulder is good again."

Morris Klein, chairman of the Miami Beach Boxing Commission, said he sees no reason to suspend Liston. We could prove nothing irregular. X-rays were taken of his left shoulder and eight physicians examined him.

Liston was suspended for not coming out of his corner at the beginning of the seventh round of his fight with Clay last February in Miami Beach. He complained of a shoulder injury.

The return match has been lined up for later this year but no date or site has been selected.

WATER RETURNS

HONG KONG (AP)—After a crippling 13-month water shortage Hong Kong suddenly has more water than ever before in its history, 32,273,000,000 gallons. Three days of rain, amounting to almost seven inches, provided the turnabout in conditions.

OPENING DATE SET

NEW YORK (AP) — The Eastern Hockey League will begin its 1964-65 season Wednesday, Oct. 14 and close Sunday, March 7, it was announced Tuesday. New York Rovers will be at Johnstown and New Jersey Devils at New Haven in opening games that night, at 8 o'clock. The new Jacksonville team makes its debut Oct. 17 facing Clinton Comets in the latter's arena. Other clubs in the 11-team league are Knoxville, Nashville, Charlotte, Greensboro and Long Island.

Would Build Grand Prix Race Course

AMHERSTBURG, Ont. (CP) — Plans to build a $6,000,000 Grand Prix automobile race course on nearby Bob-Lo Island in the Detroit River have been announced by island manager Troy Browning.

Mr. Browning said Tuesday the track, winding around the edges of the island for three miles, would be one of the finest in the world.

The project was revealed at a joint meeting of the Amherstburg, Anderdon and Malden councils and the Amherstburg Chamber of Commerce.

Snipe Sailing

Brazil Opens Big Lead

OAKVILLE (CP) — Reinaldo Conrad of Brazil lost his crewman temporarily but recovered him in time to salvage the third race and take a commanding lead in the international snipe sailing championships of the Western Hemisphere Tuesday.

Conrad, the defending champion, was 100 yards from the finish line when his brother Ralph lost his balance as the boat scooted on white-capped waters driven by 25-mile-an-hour winds.

But the skipper, sitting in the stern, reached out as the boat went past the floundering crewman, clasped his hand and hauled him aboard.

Conrad, who won the first of the seven-race series, completed Monday, had finished second in the first race Tuesday. It brought his point total to 4,721 after two days.

Ralph Conrad, champion Axel Schmidt of Brazil won the Tuesday morning race and was third in the afternoon's event to place second in the points standings with 4,678.

YCAZA SUSPENDED

SARATOGA SPRINGS, N.Y. (AP) — Jockey Bobby Ycaza was handed a 20-day suspension by the Saratoga stewards Tuesday as a penalty for his ride on Stephen Foster in the sixth race Monday. Stephen Foster finished first but was disqualified and placed second behind Wesbrae Stephen. Ycaza's suspension runs from Aug. 27 through Sept. 15 inclusive.

Clay Starts Rematch Workouts

MIAMI BEACH, Fla. (AP)—Cassius Clay started light workouts Tuesday for his return match with Sonny Liston, and said he was only kidding about going to Egypt to train.

"It's too hot over there," the heavyweight champion said.

"I'll lose it with no trouble," he said. "I'm eating one-fourth what I usually eat. But I could go in at 220 and beat Liston or any other heavyweight around because they are so slow."

The second Liston-Clay fight was announced last month but neither a date nor a site has been chosen.

Clay said he was "going to bring 10 or 15 people here from foreign countries at my own expense and get them ringside seats so they can see that the fight is fair," Clay said.

"Then if I lose because of some crooked deal, they can rush to the United Nations and tell the world I was robbed.

MUCH TRAVELLED

MEXICO CITY (AP)—President Adolfo Lopez Mateos, the most-travelled chief executive in Mexican history, will spend 14 more official trips outside the capital before leaving office Dec. 1. All the trips will be to other Mexican states.

Rain Halts Trudeau Game In Third

Last night's downpour of rain washed out the OASA Senior "B" playdown game between Kingston C.A.S. Men and Belleville Trudeau Motors, breaking up a tight pitching duel in the making.

The clubs were scoreless with Kingston at bat in the top of the third inning. Bobby Green was on the Trudeau mound and Buhs Van Horne was doing the Kingston pitching.

This was the first in a two-of-three series. The first game will now be played at Kingston's Victoria Park tomorrow night, weather permitting.

Trudeau manager Ron Frclick says he hopes to complete Monday night so the second game played at the CNRA Park here on Sunday afternoon, with the starting time to be announced shortly.

Rain also washed out all other district games last night.

Eisenhower To Succeed Ford Frick?

BELAIR, Md. (AP) — Larry MacPhail, who helped seat A. B. (Happy) Chandler as baseball commissioner more than 30 years ago, has a personal choice for the sport's No. 1 man to succeed Ford Frick.

He is Milton Eisenhower, president of Johns Hopkins University in Baltimore and younger brother of former President Eisenhower.

"The next commissioner absolutely must be a man of national prominence and an executive," said MacPhail. "We have just that kind of man here in Maryland.

"I don't know whether Dr. Eisenhower even would consider it, but I believe he would make an outstanding commissioner."

Frick, whose term expires a year from September, announced his retirement intentions several weeks ago.

Giants Drop H. McElhenny

NEW YORK (CP) — Hugh McElhenny of New York Giants was among those dropped Tuesday as United States pro football squads trimmed their rosters.

McElhenny, 36, gained more than 10,000 yards since he broke in with San Francisco 49ers of the National Football League in 1952. The one-time great breakaway runner went to the Giants last year and was one of the leaders in New York's drive to the NFL Eastern Division title.

Phil King was traded to Pittsburgh Steelers for a fourth draft choice while Joe Don Looney, the Giants' No. 1 draft pick this year, went to Baltimore Colts in a five player swap. The Colts also got tackle Lou Korousse and a future draft selection. The Giants received two veterans—pass catcher R. C. Owens and defensive back Andy Nelson.

Whether King, New York's top ground-gainer in 1963 would report to the Steelers was in doubt. Pitt coach Buddy Parker said King told him he planned to retire. A Giants' spokesman said the fullback-halfback likely would join the Steelers or some other club.

Some clubs had made their first cuts earlier. Others, notably Los Angeles Rams, were active Tuesday. The Rams lopped 13 players, including veteran Charlie Britt.

The Trots

TORONTO (CP)—Two accidents marred Tuesday night's harness racing program at Greenwood Raceway but fortunately drivers and horses escaped injury.

A three-horse pileup came up in the second race, seven furlongs for two-year-old pacers, shortly after the field left the starting gate.

Union Scott, driven by Murray Waples of Coldwater, Ont., tangled with Go For Broke with William Henry of Walkerton, Ont., at the reins. The latter horse then bumped into Judge Forbes driven by William Lawrence of Blenheim, Ont.

Waples, thrown from the sulky in the initial contact, was hit by Judge Forbes and sent spinning into the infield rail.

The 36-year-old horseman ended up atop the rail. He gave his feet a kick and fell to the ground, head first. Waples promptly got up and returned to his colt.

The second accident occurred in the fifth when Postal Chief, driven by Archie Llewellyn, fell in the backstretch. The seven-year-old horse owned by Wilfrid McNab of Maple, Ont., and the driver were not hurt.

Longshot players hit a big one in the fifth race as Norma C. Byrd clicked for Ivan Young of Ingersoll and rang up a win-mutuel of $51.30.

Chief Saint was on the front end of a $26.70 quinella as 11-to-1 chance Gracie Lochinvar came on to be second.

HIGHWAY DEATHS

ROME (AP) — Highway deaths in Italy averaged more than one an hour during the 48-hour holiday weekend Aug. 15-16. Fifty persons were reported killed as thousands travelled to beaches and mountains.

Australia Wants America Cup

By GRAEME CONNOLLY

SYDNEY, Australia (Reuters) — Wealthy Australian sportsmen are preparing to spend the equivalent of at least $1,500,000 on another expensive attempt to win the America's Cup yacht races.

This is the estimated cost of designing, building, outfitting and campaigning two 12-metre class yachts and three "trial horse" boats.

Seeking as good a chance as possible, the Australians are also building their own built-test ing tank.

No matter who wins the United States-England clash in the waters off Newport, R.I., in September, Australia will challenge for the 1967 cup series, according to the Royal Sydney Yacht Squadron.

Privately, most Australian experts expect United States to retain the cup, since it has done so for 113 years against 18 challengers.

Newcomers to 12-metre international competition, Australian yachtsmen learned fast and well from their first and only other challenger, Gretel, when she sailed against the American champion, Weatherly, in 1962.

Gretel won one race and lost three—still better than Britain's Sceptre, the previous challenger—for a cost of more than $1,000,000. She will be one of the "trial horses" in 1967.

AWAIT SERIES END

The new challenge is being planned by a committee of members of the Royal Sydney Yacht Squadron who will issue it immediately after the end of this year's series.

The two new "twelves" will be built by syndicates headed by Sir Frank Packer, Sydney newspaper owner, and Otto Meik, Melbourne businessman.

This will be Packer's second America's Cup campaign. He built the Gretel attempt, which first amazed and then perturbed the New York Yacht Club, custodian of the cup. The speed of Gretel and the dexterity of her crew had not been expected.

Packer is retaining Gretel's designer, Alan Payne, for the new yacht and has also brought in Tryggve Halvorsen as joint designer.

Both Payne and Halvorsen have gone to the United States to study the American and British boats at Newport in September. Packer will join them.

Warwick Hood, the naval architect who helped Payne design Gretel and who will design Meik's boat, also will be at Newport for the series.

Hood hopes that the Meik yacht will be sailing by mid-1966, leaving ample time for both yacht and crew to be tuned up by May, 1967, when they should leave for final trials on the cup course.

TREE CAMPAIGN

CLOFHILL, England (CP)—A campaign to turn Bedfordshire into the "county of tree-lined roads" is to be started by the county council. The council's tree nursery here will be extended and more roadmen employed to plant trees throughout the countryside.

QUARTERBACK RETURNS

OTTAWA (CP) — Import quarterback Mike Mosoff walked out of an Ottawa Rough Rider practice session Monday but returned Tuesday appar ently after a change of heart. "I guess he got a little discouraged," said a spokesman for the Eastern Football Confer ence club. The club had earlier advised reporters of Mosoff's disappearance when the 25-year-old Californian reappeared, in uniform.

Sport Snapshots

By TED BLACKMAN

MONTREAL (CP) — It didn't take Al Irwin long to discover that professional football is distinctly different from the college game.

The message, arriving in the first game he played for Montreal Alouettes of the Eastern Football Conference, came on the end of a fist that hit him squarely in the mouth.

"I realized then that the pros play a much rougher game," he says in recollective understatement. "They have more sly tactics and use their elbows and fists a lot more."

Irwin's inhospitable introduction to the sly, if unsubtle, tactics occurred in a pre-season exhibition game against Saskatchewan Roughriders. At offensive end, he was playing against Roughrider Garner Ekstrand.

"I was blocking him and maybe holding him a little," Irwin recalls. "He kept getting more and more angry and finally he punched me right in the mouth. He really tagged me because I was bleeding pretty good."

HIDE FEAR

"But you can't let those things scare you because the minute you become intimidated you are wasting your time on football field," Irwin says.

Irwin is not really the right size to be intimidated, standing six - foot - four and carrying 220 pounds on surprisingly f a s t feet. At high school in Toronto, where he grew up, Irwin once ran 100 yards in 10.1 seconds.

At that time, competing on the school track team, football held little interest for this hitory major from Hamilton's McMaster University. Only when he reached grade 12 did he play his first organized football game and he never seriously considered turning professional until the end of his three-year tour as an end for McMaster.

The Als, who jumped into an early lead in eastern football, have no reason to regret drafting the 6-foot-2 college end. Coach Jim Trimble is counting on the bespectacled youngster to help bolster the pass-catching ability his team has lacked.

SCORES TOUCHDOWN

In the first regular season game against Hamilton, Irwin hauled down two passes, one for a touchdown, as Alouettes trounced the Tiger-Cats 32-5. In the second game, defeating Toronto Argonauts 21-13, the Montreal attack was confined mainly to the ground as quarterback Vernon Cole was suffering with a sore shoulder. Irwin was busy throwing blocks for end runs by halfback George Dixon.

Rookie Irwin says he was not particularly surprised that he made the starting lineup and had such an auspicious start.

"I love to compete, to play any game, and I try to do the best I can."

Pro football has thrown his plans for the future into confusion, although one item on the agenda is definite: He'll marry at Christmas a Toronto girl he started dating in grade 12.

"I'm still trying to work out the other problems. I want to be a high school teacher in history and I'd like to get my master's degree at McGill. I might have/to do it in half years — that's if I don't get traded or cut."

THE LITTLE WOMAN

"Did he say he intends to clean up the capital or clean up IN the capital?"

NEW DAMS

South Africa expects to spend $182,000,000 on two new dams on the Orange River, the Van der Kloof Dam and the Hendrik Verwoerd Dam.

CNE Diving

Don Webb Drops To Tenth Spot

TORONTO (CP) — Dave Casper of Chicago and Joe Gerlach of Overland, Mo., each piled up 154 points in their 70-foot dives Tuesday to maintain their early lead in the world high diving championships at the Canadian National Exhibition.

Gerlach, a former Hungarian and Casper each have a total of 322 points after two days of competition which started at the 60-foot level Monday and will increase 10 feet each day to 110 feet, Saturday.

Defending champion Don Webb of Toronto dropped to 10th place among the 19 entries Tuesday. His total is now 296 points.

COSTLY FLIGHT

The Tracks

FORT ERIE, Ont. (CP)—It took trainer Jerry Meyer a little time to get rolling but now that the Kitchener native is in high gear it appears he'll run off with Fort Erie's leading trainer honors.

For the second straight day Meyer saddled two winners—the fifth and sixth—and boosted his leading total to 22, five more than runner-up Elmer Kalensky.

Biggest victory of the day for Meyer came with Willow Downs Farm Rimadir in the featured fifth race. A $12,000 claim at Pimlico, Runadir came on with a bold rush to beat Pierlou by a head right at the wire. This was Runadir's second victory in four starts at this track.

The odds-on choice of the 7,295 fans, Runadir was coming off a second place finish in the International Stakes Handicap and appears at the peak of his career.

The quinella of Runadir and Pierlou was a popular $10.60, while the daily-double of Elm Wood, in the opener, and Shining Wings, in the second, paid $82.80.

Black Hawks Get Goalie E. Chadwick

HERSHEY, Pa. (AP) —Hershey Bears of the American Hockey League traded veteran goalie Ed Chadwick to Chicago Black Hawks today in a complicated deal in which the Bears will receive one of two players from Montreal Canadiens.

Both Chicago and Montreal are members of the National Hockey League.

Chadwick, 31, had a 3.32 goals against average during the 1963-64 season, part of which he sat out as a result of an injury.

Indian Council Moves To Strengthen Its Unity

By CARL MOLLINS
Canadian Press Staff Writer

The Union Jack in front of the Rising Sun Council Hall at Garden River Ojibway Reserve near Sault Ste. Marie, Ont., was flying upside down when Indians from across Canada met there at the end of July for an important powwow.

To Indians, the flag, traditional signal of distress, turned out to be an appropriate if unconscious call for help as the young National Indian Council was torn by suicidal squabbling.

The council, third attempt in half a century to unite Canada's 200,000 Indians for a better deal from the white man, was beset throughout its three-day conference by an open feud between its chief, Calgary lawyer William Wuttunee, 39, and deposed council princess Kahn - tineta Horn, 28, beautiful and articulate Mohawk fashion model from Montreal.

The conference — and this will be remembered among Indians eager to escape from pale-face paternalism — the cooling assets sweered its own distress signal.

On the verge of disintegration, the council members drew back in near unanimity to strengthen their leadership with unity-minded officers.

The Wuttunee - Horn dispute was described by one council member as "a clash of personalities" which grew more vituperative as it developed during the last half of this year "until we were all dragged into it."

Mr. Wuttunee, accustomed to the council chieftainship and impatient with dissent, started out more than a year ago on friendly terms with the self-assured Miss Horn, attractive and articulate spokesman for the Caughnawaga Band. He appointed Miss Horn princess royal of the Indians of Canada at the 1963 council conference in Winnipeg.

CHIEF BALKED

But by last March, seven months after Miss Horn's appointment as princess and as chairman of a committee to plan for Indian participation in the 1967 Montreal world's fair, Mr. Wuttunee was trying to remove her on the ground that she was acting without consulting him.

The minutes of a council executive meeting in Winnipeg March 14 and attended by Miss Horn, notes that there was "considerable debate whether or not Chief Wuttee had the right to release Miss Horn of her duties" and adds, without detail, that "several arguments and accusations were flung back and forth".

The executive voted to confirm Miss Horn in the world's fair job, but as chairman of a subcommittee under an enlarged "Over-all Committee" for the 1967 centennial of Confederation headed by Wilfred Pelletier, a Wuttunee ally who is executive director of the NIC.

The executive also agreed that no white people should be on the committee — reference to charges that Miss Horn on her own initiative had been making plans for an Indian pavilion at the fair with the help of "white associates," an architect and a Montreal public relations man. At stake was control of an operation that Mr. Pelletier said will earn $2,000,000 for the council.

At the June meeting, the minutes say, Miss Horn was "reprimanded" for sponsoring production of a doll in her likeness to be called Princess Canada. "It was felt by a number of council members that this is exploiting the NIC and Indians people in general," the minutes note, although Miss Horn had offered to hand over the production contract to the NIC in return for royalties.

PUNGHT BACK

Miss Horn, clearly not a person to wilt under criticism, began to fight back following the March meeting, mainly in the form of long letters to council members and the press. She questioned Mr. Wuttunee's leadership, the financial affairs of the NIC and fiscal stability of Mr. Pelletier, among other things.

In the face of Miss Horn's failure to repent, Mr. Wuttunee convened a meeting in Winnipeg June 5. The minutes record that nine of the 17 executive members, excluding Miss Horn, were present and that Miss Horn was removed both from the world's fair position and as Princess Canada "for improper conduct.

"Other serious matters" discussed at the meeting later by Mr. Wuttunee as involving alleged attempts to bribe both the Caughnawaga Mohawk tribe near Montreal and the British Columbia Indians to take part in opening an Indian pavilion at the world's fair independent of NIC.

Miss Horn strenuously denied any improper conduct, maintaining that until Princess Canada, said the June 5 meeting was illegal because all members had not been properly informed in advance and broadcased her attacks on Mr. Wuttunee under a charge that he was considering association with the Black Muslim movement and the Communist Negroes.

ISSUED AGENDA

The week before the annual NIC conference, Miss Horn journeyed to Ottawa Nov. 1 and met with the host chief, Richard Pine, a member of the NIC executive council, and then published announced his support for Miss Horn and agreed with her that the June 5 meeting had robbed her of her NIC titles had been illegal. Miss Horn distributed her own agenda for the coming meeting to the press.

On the first day of the conference, Miss Horn launched her attack, trying unsuccessfully to change the order of business. She offered a substitute constitution, tried to present a 25-year history of Indian affairs and, when balked, denounced the meeting for wasting time on "irrelevant" and the leaders as traitors, liars, hypocrites and "the worst insult I can think of" — Canadians.

Opinion shifted against Miss Horn, her ideas were discarded in a wave of hostility toward her methods and she was soundly defeated in the election of officers.

But Mr. Wuttunee, too, was discredited in the eyes of some delegates as being at least half responsible for the public flare-up. His abortive attempt to move the conference into Sault Ste. Marie after Chief Pine had blocked his effort to remove Miss Horn from the meeting also was resented.

CHIEF STEPS IN

Chief John Tootoosis, head of the 34,000-strong Saskatchewan Federation of Indians, prevented the total collapse of the conference by persuading Mr. Wuttunee to return to Garden River.

The behind-the-scenes efforts by Chief Tootoosis and his aides, both to unify the Indians and to get Mr. Wuttunee and Miss Horn reconciled to each other, were described by one council member as "a real eye-opener."

But Mr. Wuttunee, who was licked by the palefaces that we can't even organize!" — made him a strong compromise candidate for the NIC chieftainship and in the result he missed by only two votes unseating Mr. Wuttunee.

But the Saskatchewan Cree Indian, lively and agile at 65, came first in balloting for three sachems (assistant chiefs) and made it clear he intends to play a prominent role in future NIC councils.

He will be aided in his efforts by several of the newly elected governing councillors who privately pledged themselves to prevent a recurrence of bickering in the drive to broaden the council from its present base of 29,000 members and give the Indians of Canada a unified voice.

EXTENDS MEMBERSHIP

TORONTO (CP) — Associate membership in the Ontario Hospital Association has been extended to nursing homes in the province which meet OHA standards, a spokesman for the association said Tuesday. Seventeen nursing homes were accepted and issued certificates of associate membership this week and another 28 homes have suspended applications, the spokesman said.

Income Tax Explained

By C. A. MILLER

Medical expenses still present a problem to many taxpayers especially since more and more each year have taken out some form of medical insurance. Many are aware that hospital bills paid by a provincial hospitals services plan are not deductible for income tax purposes but do not know if the same applies to doctors bills paid by their medical insurance policy.

It is only the hospital bills paid by their provincial hospital services plan that are not allowable for income tax purposes. Medical, nursing and dental bills paid by any form of insurance may be claimed by the taxpayer providing they are verified by receipts. The amount deductible is that part of the total which exceeds 3 per cent of the net income.

I received numerous letters last year inquiring if the cost of dentures was a medical expense and was glad to advise that all payments to dentists are acceptable.

Another item of medical expenses that could be easily overlooked by a taxpayer is the cost of a full time attendant to look after the taxpayer, his wife or any dependant by any support. Such claim is not only for the wages paid to the full time attendant but may include a reasonable amount for such attendant's board and lodging. If the invalid dependant is cared for in a licensed nursing home, then the cost of the invalid's keep may also be claimed under medical expenses. You may also include the cost of an artificial limb, eye, wheel chair, crutches, trusses or hearing aids, etc.

For general replies pertaining to income tax problems, please enclose a self-addressed five cent stamped envelope and 25c in coin for each question you wish answered.

Question: What medicines may I claim as medical expenses?

Answer: You can only claim the cost of such medicines as prescribed by a doctor and the receipt should have an Rx number on it. This does not apply to insulin used by diabetics as all these receipts are acceptable.

Beatles' Only Real Worry Is Inadequate Protection

HOLLYWOOD (AP)—A press conference was scheduled for 7:15 p.m. and at precisely 7:15 the Beatles walked through the door.

Some 200 reporters crowded onto the floor of the Cinnamon Cinder, a night club for teenagers, while a hundred or more young girls stood atop platforms and benches on the periphery. One was a close relative, blonde and 18, posing as my assistant.

Ringo, Paul, George, sideburns and looking world-weary, were hurried to chairs, where they disappeared in a maze of photographers.

"George has the prettiest hair," observed my assistant.

After minutes of shooting, the photographers were admonished to sit down. The questions began.

Do the Beatles like Elvis Presley?

"We've got all his early records. He's all right, we don't thought I detected an accent on 'early.'

WHITE SONGS

How long does it take Beatles John and Paul to write their songs?

It depends. Sometimes an hour, sometimes as long as two days. A Hard Day's Night was written very worry in association is inadequate, as in New Zealand, where there were three policemen to handle a crowd of 8,000.".

What about reports they were crazy about Am-Margarine?

"None of us know him. Not even Ringo Ringo, has even talked to her on the telephone. It must have been the work of her press agent."

Is Beatle John writing another book?

"I'm not."

This answer and others drew shrill applause. The conference ended with the presentation of presentations on the platform: "George will accept the gold records, I'll accept the silver ones," said Ringo, "and you take the trophies from the fan clubs, and Ringo will receive the keys to Hollywood."

On the way out my assistant noticed an ecstatic girl clutching a glass of soft drink to her bosom. "It was Paul's," she murmured.

At the Park

Opens Thursday
"Ride the Wild Surf"

"Ride the Wild Surf," new Columbia Pictures release opening at the Park Theatre for its first Belleville showing, is reported by advance audiences to be one of the most impressive and most entertaining motion pictured in years. Impressive, because of its spectacular background and theme—the 40-foot waves of exotic Oahu Island, in Hawaii, which challenge the surfing enthusiasts from all over the world. Entertaining, because of the youth, beauty and talent of its brilliant cast, and the film's romantic excitement

Starred in "Ride the Wild Surf" are Tab Hunter, Fabian, Shelley Fabares, Barbara Eden, Peter Brown, Anthony Eisley, Susan Hart and James Mitchum as Eskimo. All the men play surfers, in Hawaii to test their skill against the waves and each other. The girls are there on vacation, because in Oahu, as in surfing and swimming, because the men are there, too.

Hunter, Fabian and Brown play ardent surfers with different backgrounds and problems. Hunter is an automobile repairman who believes that surfing is a way of life, and he hopes to find it; Fabian, a youth completely uncertain of himself and his future; Brown, a stodgy, conservative scion of wealth able to relax only when he is on a surfboard. Mitchum plays Eskimo, the tantiturn, bulldog-like champion of the surfers whose nickname derives from the coldness with which he meets any attempt at friendship.

The giant waves, and the manner in which they test skill and courage, are shown to high-light "Ride the Wild Surf," also of interest are the romantic triangles formed by the surfers and the girls, and the manner in which the several problems are resolved.

"Ride the Wild Surf" is based on a screenplay by Jo well Art Napoleon, who also produced, and Don Taylor directed.

On the same program Top Teen Singers in the biggest teen-musical show of the year, "Just For You," stars Bobby Vee, the Crickets, Freddie Cannon and host of other stars.

AT THE PARK — Recording stars Fabian and Shelley Fabares play romantic roles in Columbia Pictures' "Ride the Wild Surf," new Jaza production in color opening Thursday at the Park Theatre for its first Belleville Showings. Also starred are Tab Hunter, Anthony Eisley, James Mitchum, Barbara Hayes, Susan Hart and James Mitchum as Eskimo. On the same program the big teen musical "Just For You" stars Bobby Vee and the Crickets. Complete shows at 7:30 and 9:30 p.m.

At the Belle

Jack Lemmon, Ronny Schneider in "Good Neighbor Sam"

Two more contrasting types of feminine beauty could hardly be found than those represented by Romy Schneider and Dorothy Provine in "Good Neighbor Sam," the new comedy coming real soon to the Belleville Drive-In, with Jack Lemmon in the title role.

The big screen color comedy from Jack Lemmon's lodging Romy to win a $15,000,000 inheritance by posing as her husband. Dorothy, as his wife, lives next door!

A native of Vienna now living in Paris, Miss Schneider exemplifies the chic, sophisticated European woman. Miss Provine is a child of the state of Washington, symbolizes the buoyant, uninhibited, all-American girl. Jack Lemmon is the delight of audiences, representing the good-natured American male who is always in trouble!

Reporters Given Hard Time Filling in at Convention

By CYNTHIA LOWRY

HOLLYWOOD (AP) — After two days of watching television coverage of the Democratic national convention, U.S. viewers might fairly conclude that all the reporters assigned on At-CBS handled it with analyses of events and interviews on the floor. NBC had a humorous conversation about convention literature.

But that was where the action was. Again Tuesday night, speakers on the platform got short shrift from all three networks, whose attention focussed constantly on the turbulent, at-times boisterous party in the Mississippi delegation.

At one point the press of reporters and interested delegates in the section became so fierce that a CBS floor reporter desperately forward the cameras, crying "this is simply chaos—help!"

The long, long reading of the party platform, which practically emptied Convention Hall, was left to the three television network teams in their goldfish bowls above the hall. ABC and CBS handled it with analyses and interviews on the floor. NBC had a humorous conversation about convention literature.

George Gobel, who was scheduled to do humorous commentaries" for ABC, turned up only in the commercials. Maybe he didn't think anything was funny.

Horticulturists Pampering Three Roses So Canada Can Choose Centennial Rose

By JANET KASK

MONTREAL (CP) — Horticulturists across Canada for the last few months have been pampering three roses developed by one of the world's leading hybridists so Canadians can choose a 1967 Centennial flower.

Visitors to 27 test gardens across Canada have been cultivating hallet this summer for the test roses: A rich, red floribunda, a coral rose of the same variety and a golden-yellow tea rose.

The man behind the Centennial Rose idea is Jack McIntyre of Motreal, whose garden of 4,000 roses in a hill cemetery draws thousands of visitors each summer.

Mr. McIntyre owns the rights to the name "Centennial Rose" and proceeds from the sale of the chosen rose will go to a Centennial Foundation for Handicapped Children, sponsored by Rotary Clubs across Canada.

The three roses were developed by American hybridist E. S. Boerner.

The fact that American roses are being used for a Canadian Centennial has sparked a controversy that has been dubbed "Canada's War of the Roses".

The Canadian Association of Nurserymen says they learned of the rose contest, protested that a Canadian - grown rose should be named Centennial Rose.

CAN'T GET TEST ROSES

But Jack McIntyre feels a rose from any other country will smell as sweet.

"We sell 12,000,000 roses a year in Canada, and import 9,000,000," he said. "There is no place in this country to get test roses.

"It takes from eight to 10 years to develop a rose, and sometimes costs up to $50,000." The firm in Newark, N.J., donated the plants for the test gardens which are being sponsored by Rotary Clubs, horticultural societies and parks departments across Canada.

The firm also has promised to have enough roses of the chosen variety on hand to be sold in Canada.

The Centennial Rose will be named in September.

He said between 10,000 and 15,000 roses from the world over—including Russia—will be featured at the garden.

NEW AND OLD TASHKENT—Modern Alisher Navoi opera and ballet theatre in Tashkent (top) is evidence of the emphasis on progress and development in the major city of Uzbekistan, largest of the four Soviet Republics of central Asia. Dilapidated shacks (bottom) remain as remnants of the past in Tashkent, but they are ticketed for destruction and replacement by apartment blocks. (CP Photo)

Fabled Past and Restless Present Living Peacefully Together in Uzbekistan

Uzbekistan, a Soviet republic in west-central Asia, has through the centuries been overrun by armies of some of the great conquerors. Today, while proud of its historic past, it is stressing modern industry and farm development. In this story, John Best, Canadian Press correspondent in Moscow, reports on the blend of past and present as seen on a reporting tour of the region.

By JOHN BEST

TASHKENT (CP) — The fabled past and the restless present live together in a kind of peaceful coexistence in the Soviet republic of Uzbekistan.

With 10,000,000 people, Uzbekistan is the most populous of the four Soviet republics of central Asia—others are Turkmenia to the west, Tadjikistan and Kirghizia to the south and east.

Some of history's giants have figured in its past—Alexander of Macedon, Genghis Khan and his Mongol hordes, and Timur Lane.

Most of the conquerors who have come here over the centuries are regarded as mere plunderers by contemporary Uzbek leaders who emphasize that central Asia had a highly developed culture even before the arrival of Alexander in the 4th century B.C.

But the line on the mighty Tamerlane is different. Official tourist literature says he raised this area anew to "glory and fame" through his vast Asiatic conquests in the 14th century AD. And Tamerlane was a native son, born 50 miles south of Samarkand.

MOSTLY DESERT

Though 80 per cent of Uzbekistan is desert, semi-desert or arid mountain, it encloses portions of two great river systems, Syr Darya and Amu Darya, which irrigate the region.

Its principal crop is cotton. It produces two-thirds of the cotton grown in the U.S.S.R and likes to call itself "the republic of the white gold."

It also produces silk, jute, fruit and vegetables in abundance, along with ferrous and non-ferrous metals. It has a wide assortment of industrial enterprises, including a huge textile factory here and a natural gas industry in Bukhara.

It is in the ancient cities of Samarkand (Timur's capital) and Bukhara, with their rich store of antiquities, that history encroaches most noticeably on the present.

Here in Tashkent, hub of the republic and its industrial centre, emphasis is definitely on contemporary matters.

Everything is being changed, local Communist party officials say, pointing to the scores of new apartment buildings being thrown up, the huge construction cranes, the concrete slabs piled next to mud-walled huts marked for extinction.

ATTACK ILLITERACY

You hear the same story wherever you go in Uzbekistan. —Before the 1917 revolution: Many shops and few industries, few schools, widespread illiteracy, primitive medical facilities, high mortality rates, friction and strife among myriad racial groups living here, principal of which are the Uzbeks, Russians, Tatars, Kazahks, Tadjiks, Turkmen and Kara-kalpaks.

—Since the revolution: Burgeoning industry, improved living standards, education and health facilities available to all, amity among the ethnic groups.

The 32-year-old mayor, Husmedin Asanov, a welding engineer before going into full-time party and municipal work, says Tashkent now has more than 400 industries and its exports go to more than 50 countries.

Ten thousand apartments are marked for completion this year, he says, with new residential blocks to open in October when the 40th anniversary of the Uzbek republic is celebrated.

Tashkent is a cosmopolitan city and an Aeroflot spokesman Planes land here en route from Afghanistan and India to Moscow.

It tries to look like a city on the move. Yet it is also a relaxed place.

MARKET ATMOSPHERE

"I think it is much more humane," said Miss Monsey, the visiting French reporter. He meant that Tashkent, for all its buzzing energy, doesn't seem to take itself so seriously.

Whereas Moscow tends to be brooding and introspective, Tashkent has more the outgoing flavor of a busy market place. The people are rather casual and they move about at an unhurried pace, at this time of the year perhaps in deference to the 100-degree summer temperatures.

Colorful garments, including flamboyant loose-fitting dresses worn by Uzbek women and embroidered beanies called tyubeteikas worn by the men, remind the visitor that he is in Asia.

But with all the emphasis on industry, there is evidence that Tashkent is really not so far removed from the past after all.

Though the younger generation of women is well dressed and thoroughly emancipated, older women still go about heavily shrouded in white head-dress, a relic of the pre-revolutionary past when Uzbekistan was strongly Moslem and women kept their faces hidden in public.

And when Mayor Asanov himself boasts that Tashkent has 30,000 motor vehicles, he reveals a statistic that indicates his city has a long way to go in mechanization. It means that there is one vehicle for every 36 persons: And most of the motor vehicles are state-owned trucks.

GREAT CONQUERORS IN UZBEKISTAN'S PAST — Some of history's giants have figured in the past of Uzbekistan, the most populous of the four Soviet republics of central Asia. Alexander of Macedon and Genghis Khan overran the area, while Tamerlane, a native son born near Samarkand, is credited with raising Uzbekistan to glory and fame. The republic, with 10,000,000 population, produces two-thirds of the cotton grown in the Soviet Union, despite the fact 11 is 80 per cent desert. Hub of the republic is Tashkent, a modern industrial centre. Samarkand and Bukhara retain evidence of the fabled past. (CP Newsmap)

Trip to Dentist Can Be Appealing Says Doctor

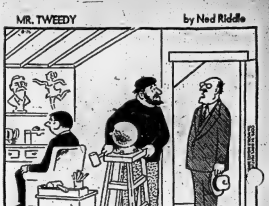
And this is what he offers.

The methods and distractions employed by him are based on the premise that children can be easily distracted by "make believe" and if they aren't preconditioned to expect pain they find a trip to him a fascinating game.

He tells the children, for instance, when the "tooth has gone to sleep," that along comes Busy Bee to watch it. Then follows Woody Woodpecker to fill it up.

Teeth are not examined, they're counted. "Mothers are teaching their three- and-four-year-olds to count as it seems quite logical to them," he explains.

He covers his hypodermic needle with "magic-color" and patients remark that it "sure doesn't hurt with the cotton on it."



"The children usually know what you are really doing," he said, "but they go along with the game."

Dr. MacKenzie wears an assortment of brightly colored jackets to prevent possible association with a hospital in the child's mind.

Model fish, mounties and horses hang from the walls and ceilings in his surgery. He uses a "kitty clock" with a moving tail to further distract the children while they are sitting in all the chair.

Dr. MacKenzie limits his practice to children. Children's tooth decay can be prevented, he says. "With adults it's just patching."

Astrological Forecasts

By SYDNEY OMARR

For AUGUST 27

Aries (Mar. 21 - Apr. 19)—Cycle remains high. But there are money questions which require careful analysis. Take nothing for granted. Be specific. Check various sources. Find out the why or recent events. Be perceptive!

Taurus (Apr. 20 - May 20)—Utilize sense of criticism. Attack shoddy methods, persons. Seek only the best. You have so much in your favor—you needn't put up with carelessness! Stress versatile approach.

Gemini (May 21 - June 20)—One who expresses uncertainty can be made confident. Up to you to supply inspiration. You do this by emphasizing facts, truth. Not always easy to adhere to reality. But today this is a necessity!

Cancer (June 21 - July 22)—Key word is affection. Give and receive love. Day to highlight personal magnetism. Creative forces come to fore. You will feel "alive." No time to hide light under bushel!

Leo (July 23 - Aug. 23)—Good to volunteer for project that enhances standing in community. Family member takes great pride in your accomplishments. Others look to you as example of integrity. Let conscience be your guide!

Virgo (Aug. 23 - Sept. 22)—What you seek may not be based on practical consideration. Try to be patient. Travel would prove costly—and productive. Enlarge horizons. Begin to see "forest" as well as "trees."

Libra (Sept. 23 - Oct. 23)—Interest in the unknown comes to forefront. You feel need to satisfy intellectual curiosity. Important, however, that you maintain sense of balance. In plain words, don't stick your neck out!

Scorpio (Oct. 23 - Nov. 21)—Tendency is to take action merely for the sake of doing something. This is impulse to be overcome. Some associates are envious. Take special care—especially where legal matters are concerned.

Sagittarius (Nov. 22 - Dec. 21)—Good to visit friend who is confined to home or hospital. Work with group, club or organization. Trying to "go it alone" not advisable today. Fine time for self expression, inventiveness.

Capricorn (Dec. 22 - Jan. 19)—you tend to be excessively sentimental. Time when you desire affection, appreciation . . . but from "far away" sources. If you are not careful, you could hurt those close to you. See clearly!

Aquarius (Jan. 20 - Feb. 18)—Attend to details — especially as they affect matters of security. Includes contracts, real estate agreements, insurance policies. Be thorough. Take time to be safe.

Pisces (Feb. 19 - Mar. 20)—Conditions, persons, undergo changes. Your best course is one emphasizing steady approach. Don't be pushed from one side to the other. Insist on completing projects. —You will be happier as result.

If Today is Your Birthday—you would make excellent doctor, nurse, administrator, problem analyst. You have qualities which are universal in appeal. Chief fault is tendency to drive yourself—to neglect your own health.

Hurricane Cuts Path Through Florida

Vicious Cleo Strikes Miami, Sweeps Inland

Winds up to 115 M.P.H. Slam Southeast Coast

MIAMI, Fla. (AP) — Hurricane Cleo struck Miami today, leaving the streets of the city looking like a battleground, then roared on northward up the heavily-populated southeast Florida coast.

Broadcasting towers toppled. Store windows exploded by hundreds, littering streets with merchandise and broken glass. Fallen trees blockaded hundreds of streets.

No deaths were reported but a looter said he would ask to have the city declared a disaster area. There was no estimate of damage to public buildings, but McNayr called it "quite serious."

A veteran policeman who was in Miami when the 1926 hurricane broke the big Florida land boom said the storm was the worst since then.

Numerous fires broke out and couldn't be fought in the 115-mile-an-hour fury of the wind. One warehouse was destroyed by a $500,000 blaze still were breaking out when the gray dawn revealed the raw scars of the hurricane.

POWER FAILS

Cleo slammed hurricane-force winds into Miami at 2:30 a.m. One hour later, power failure plunged the city into darkness.

After crossing Miami, the eye of the hurricane moved on northeast across Hallandale, Hollywood, site of Gulfstream Park, Fort Lauderdale, Boca Raton and West Palm Beach.

At 10 a.m. winds of 105 miles an hour were hitting West Palm Beach.

At Fort Lauderdale, a 20-by-40-foot sign over a shopping centre vanished on the wings of Cleo. Gusts strewed trees across roads.

An automobile, apparently caught by a gust, turned on its side on a bridge that normally carries heavy traffic. Several buildings, which were being erected, were knocked down to

Canada May Pledge More Aid

By RUSSELL ELMAN

OTTAWA (CP) — Pledges of stepped-up educational aid to the developing countries of the Commonwealth may be given today.

Major addresses to the third Commonwealth education conference were to be delivered by the delegates for the Commonwealth's three most advanced countries — Britain, Canada and Australia.

Delegates from developing of Africa and Asia have already indicated they expect to receive a favorable response to their pleas for more assistance, particularly in teacher training and technical education.

The form of aid the more developed countries are prepared to offer may be spelled out in speeches by Sir Edward Boyle, Britain's education and science minister; Paul Martin, Canada's external affairs minister, and Sir Allen Brown, deputy Australian high commissioner in London.

OTHER TO REPLY

Presenting the case for developing countries will be representatives from Nigeria, Malaysia, Pakistan and Western Samoa.

For the last two days the conference has been in closed committee sessions. Progress reports of the deliberations so far were expected to be made today.

Wednesday, various African delegates expressed their confidence that more aid will be flowing their way as a result of the two-week meeting here.

H. R. M. Chipembere, education minister for newly - independent Malawi, said the African country already has received informal offers of teachers and scholarships.

Flag Debate Goes On

By STEWART MacLEOD

OTTAWA (CP) —Just when the usually predictable flag debate seems to be settling down to a friendly family discussion, someone invariably hones up a dagger and lets fly.

John A. Irvine (PC—London), an unflinching supporter of the Red Ensign, proposed Wednesday that the tomahawks be buried and the whole business be settled in a spirit of togetherness.

"I am not too sure that the prime minister and the leader of the opposition may not be perhaps a little closer to a compromise than we all expect. Wouldn't it be nice if, as Canadians, we could just sit down together and work this thing out. . . ."

Minutes later, William Skoryko (PC — Edmonton East) told Prime Minister Sharp in his sights.

"He did, you must agree, refuse to fulfil his responsibilities as a deputy minister because of political partisanship. He resigned not only because he could not get along with his staff but because his staff did not particularly care for him. The only way in which he could vindicate his honor was to get elected to the Parliament where he could again display his bureaucratic arrogance. . . ."

INTO 18TH DAY

And so the flag debate churns doggedly into its 18th day, still deadlocked over a sub-amendment to the main resoution.

Of the 127 speeches made so far, 61 have been on the sub - amendment. Conservatives have objected 53 times, Liberals 28, and 16 have come from the smaller parties. And there's no indication that supplies are running out.

During Wednesday's question period, Prime Minister Pearson told the Commons "at the present moment nothing could be more important than to bring the present debate on the flag to a decision."

Opposition leader Diefenbaker said the House should be considering more important economic legislation to improve a very serious" trade situation.

The prime minister replied: "If my friend would only accept the arrangements proposed by the leaders of all the other parties, then a reasonable time limit could be agreed upon and we could be able to proceed with these matters to which he refers."

Later in the debate, Thomas M. Bell (PC —Saint John Albert) said the new flag was part of "creeping republicanism," and much of the blame goes back to the era of prime minister Mackenzie King.

PLAYED 'POWER' POLITICS

"This misguided liberalism of the first order . . . played with the constitution and threatened national life into the volcano of power politics to mustard at costs the life of the Liberal party."

In a reference to Mr. Sharp, he said: ". . . It is his type of membership in the so-called Ottawa establishment of Liberal, with a small "L," civil servants, English speaking and British educated in most cases, which is more to blame than anything else for the division that has crept into this country."

He said it now is thought that to reach true Canadianism, one must accept French Canada as the basis. "In other words, it seems to have become an established fact that no Canadian virtues are to be found in our Anglo-Saxon traditions."

If the Red Ensign is to disappear, he said, he hoped a new Crown would be put on the new flag.

Humphrey's Youthful Zest Now Mated to Experience

The 53-year-old Minnesotan, after 16 busy years in the Senate, still has the ebullience, the optimism and the zest he brought to it as a fiery young liberal in 1949.

But there have been changes. Humphrey candidly has moderated his views to the point that he now prefers enacting a cutdown bill into law rather than going down to defeat trying for the entire loaf.

Always interested in issues and not only the brass and tactics of politics, he has pursued this policy so successfully in the last half-dozen years that he has an impressive string of legislative credits.

And they are alike in a folksy, homespun approach to their trade. But in other ways the senator complements Johnson on the Democratic ticket. For Humphrey is a northerner. A liberal throughout his career, and an intellectual.

The chunky Minnesotan capped his career in Congress this year with 15 weeks of slogging work as floor manager for the far-reaching civil rights bill.

This task brought Humphrey's career full circle. He first flashed into national attention on a sweaty night at the 1948 Democratic national convention with an impassioned appeal for a stronger civil rights plank in the party platform.

Humphrey won elect.on to the Senate that same year as the first Democrat ever to serve from Minnesota. He defeated Republican Senator Joseph H. Ball.

Thus he came to Washington tabbed as a ardent civil rights advocate. But as his Senate service stretched into three terms, he developed an astonishingly broad range of interests.

His early committee service was on agriculture, vital to his section of the country, and on labor and public welfare, where he worked for education and health legislation.

But, with more seniority, Humphrey moved on to two of the Senate's powerhouse committees, appropriations which handles federal funds, and foreign relations.

In 1955 he became chairman of the disarmament subcommittee of foreign relations, and began the long years of prodding which contributed to the 1963 nuclear partial test-ban treaty with Russia. Out of this also came his bill to set up a disarmament agency, enacted in 1961.

Compulsory Arbitration Issue Sent to Executive

LONDON, Ont. (CP) — The Ontario Municipal Association Wednesday side-stepped a major debate on the controversial compulsory arbitration issue by referring it to their executive for investigation.

At the closing session of the 66th OMA convention, delegates compromised by asking their executive to conduct a full investigation of the entire field of labor relations.

The executive agreed to establish a special committee with labor and management representation to make a full report on the handling of municipal labor disputes.

The resolution was originally proposed by the OMA's town and village section in protest to strikes that could disrupt essential services but was amended by the resolutions committee after a labor relations panel warned that the OMA should be circumspect in dealing with compulsory arbitration.

The committee's compromise action, adopted by the convention, was suggested by Reeve Albert Campbell of the Toronto suburb of Scarborough.

Sen. Humphrey Running Mate Of Johnson

Convention Delegates Give Vent to Feelings

By ARCH MacKENZIE

ATLANTIC CITY (CP)—President Lyndon B. Johnson end and the Democratic party convention dried Wednesday night in giving unanimous full-hearted acclaim to a November elections ticket featuring the president and Senator H. Humphrey of Minnesota as his vice-president.

It was the climax of the four-day convention, ending tonight with President Johnson's acceptance speech and his 56th birthday. The 5,280 delegates, alternates and other qualified convention hands — swelled by perhaps 15,000 guests in the huge convention hall on the Atlantic City boardwalk—took full opportunity to demonstrate at what has been an unusually dull meeting.

There was little fresh excitement generated by the main source of excitement — the walkouts by most of the Mississippi and Alabama delegations for refusal to sign loyalty oaths.

But suspense or not—and the choice of the Liberal Senator Humphrey, 53, had been generally expected — the convention took the cue in waving a forest of signs, shouting, rhythmic clapping and hoisting pretty girls aloft astride the party emblem of a donkey.

The president kept the vice-presidential guessing game going as long as he could.

SUMMONED SENATOR

He summoned the Minnesota senator, whose selection is expected to weld together the party ticket in some southern areas, to Washington Wednesday afternoon with others for consultation.

He also injected a variation in the convention script by deciding—in what was believed a precedent—to come personally before the convention to name his choice.

He flipped reporters in Washington before returning with Senator Humphrey and told the convention after the formality of his own nomination had been completed.

There had been one simple guide in his abundant canvassing of advice and prolonged personal reflection, he said. That was to get a man who was qualified "to assume the office of the United States president if that day should come."

His words recalled his own elevation to president last November after John Kennedy's assassination, and the fact he suffered a heart attack only two years ago. However in recent exhausting jaunts around the White House, through a physi-

Troops Fire On Rioters

By MALCOLM W. BROWNE

SAIGON (AP) — The ruling military revolutionary council today elected Maj.-Gen. Nguyen Khanh and two other top generals to run South Viet Nam for the next two months, Radio Saigon announced.

This development in the political crisis came amid bloody new riots in Saigon. Three persons were reported killed and more than 20 wounded.

Roman Catholic and Buddhist youths battled in a rain in the capital's streets. The Saigon radio station and a technical high school were focal points. Several persons were wounded, apparently knifed.

Called on to share rule with Khanh were Lt. - Gen. Tran Thien Khiem, former defence minister, and Maj.-Gen. Duong Van (Big) Minh, the former chief of state. Khanh supplanted Minh Aug. 16. That was the day the council elected the 37-year-old strong man to the presidency.

The ruling military junta has been trying for two days to name a chief of government to fill the vacancy left when Khanh stepped down as president and scrapped the constitution in the face of mounting demonstrations from Buddhists and student groups.

Today's casualties were reported when government troops fired on a mob of 2,000 which tried to enter a compound where junta members were meeting to choose a new head of state.

A Roman Catholic group pushed toward the military compound and a Saigon radio station. Buddhists and student groups massed to confront the Catholics at the radio station.

The demonstrators demanded that the council resist Buddhist

Printers Turn Down Last Offer

TORONTO (CP) — Striking printers at Toronto's three daily newspapers Wednesday night overwhelmingly rejected the latest settlement offer from the publishers and decided to continue the search for an "honorable" end to the strike, now in its 49th day.

The strikers, members of Local 91, International Typographical Union (CLC), voted 588 to 5 at a closed meeting to reject the publishers' proposals, turned down a day before by the union's negotiating committee.

In a second motion, adopted unanimously, the printers authorized the negotiating committee and union counsel David Lewis to continue the search for an honorable settlement with The Globe and Mail, morning paper, and The Star and The Telegram, evening papers. Voting on both motions was by secret ballot.

The pairs have continued to publish since the strike started July 9—at first using supervisory and non-union personnel to carry out composing room work. However about 20 strikers have returned to their jobs and an unknown number of outside employees have been hired.

Mr. Lewis told reporters the membership decisions made it clear that while the latest proposals in their total form could not be accepted, the members were anxious to continue their search for an acceptable compromise.

The latest offer was presented by the publishers Monday. John Bassett, publisher of The Telegram, said at that time that if the offer were rejected further negotiations would be for a contract for the future. Offer equal to at least $800 in retroactive and vacation pay embodied in the new proposal, Bassett said Wednesday.

Mr. Lewis said the overriding factor in the membership decision was that the publishers proposals were presented by the employers as a non - negotiable package.

Liberal Charges Taxation System Perpetuates 'Great Inequalities'

PETERBOROUGH (CP)—Eddie Sargent, candidate for leadership of the Ontario Liberal party, Wednesday night lashed out at the Progressive Conservative government of Premier John Robarts, charging it with perpetuating a taxation system full of great inequalities and "unjust" crippling the province with debt.

Mr. Sargent, Ontario legislature member for Grey North, said at a press conference the existing tax structure has been changed since 1904 and "the corporations and the rich are paying 50 per cent of their taxes toward education."

But, he said, if a man's wealth is in stocks and bonds, he doesn't have o pay the tax at all. Mr. Sargent is one of 12 delegates who will be attending the Liberal leadership convention in Toronto, Mr. Sargent said the Robarts administration has run up a debenture debt of $2,000,000,000 with interest this year at $53,000,000.

He also claimed the Robarts government took $20,000,000 from the provincial treasury to aid Toronto with subway construction.

"Robarts needs seats in Toronto," he said, "and he gave Toronto the money only to build more subways for himself."

He said if he headed the government in Ontario, he would put income and farm taxes toward education to 35 per cent, work to provide more hospitals and to get higher wages for teachers.

He said the shortage of teachers in the province is attributable to low salaries.

He said that if the tax structure is not revised," the majority of Ontario municipalities will go bankrupt in three to five years, and Robarts knows it but doesn't do a thing."

Doctors Declare Johnson Is Fit, He Proves It by Four-Mile Hike

WASHINGTON (AP) — President Johnson, 56 years old today, has his party's overwhelming endorsement for another term in office and his doctors' assurance he is physically fit for an active vigorous life.

For a birthday party, he was assured a rousing reception from the Democratic national convention in Atlantic City, where he goes to accept formally tonight the full-term nomination handed him without contest Wednesday night.

The verdict of four doctors on his physical condition was disclosed by the president Wednesday as he led reporters on a five-mile hike, finishing it in circled 15 laps around the back driveway of the White House. Lopping easily through the high-humidity heat of the afternoon, Johnson convinced less athletic reporters of the doctors' finding that his "exercise tolerance seems to be superb" despite a serious heart attack in 1955.

The physical examination which Johnson announced was the first he had reported since taking office last December. He underwent it Monday, after a nine-lap tour of the White House driveway which had set his record up to that time.

The doctor said in a summation of the 71-word report that Johnson has "no symptoms" of any kind, including early arteriosclerosis. His heart, lungs, heart, abdomen, lower intestinal tract and reflexes.

Today's Chuckle

Living conditions are improving so much in this country that we're running out of humble beginnings for our great men.

THE WEATHER

Synopsis: Sunny skies and warmer air prevail over most of the province this morning. This condition will continue in southern Ontario today and most of tomorrow. Cloudiness and showers are expected to move across Northern Ontario this afternoon and tonight ahead of a disturbance moving across Lake Superior. Cloudy most and showers are expected in southern Ontario Friday afternoon.

Isolation, Mental Trouble Have Root in Loneliness

By ALAN WALKER

LONDON (CP)—"Lonely" is the saddest word.

Everybody knows loneliness hurts old people with no families. Little children can get terribly lonely, says a recent report of a British agency, and such loneliness can seriously alter their character and make it difficult to cope with society when they grow up.

New city living conditions, with skyscraper apartment buildings containing families that in past generations would have had houses, are at the root of the trouble.

Pre-school children who live above the fifth floor aren't allowed out to play, says the report, because their mothers can't run downstairs quickly enough in case of trouble.

Deprived of the company of other children, the lonely young stare enter school with scarred personalities and have great difficulty entering into community life.

"Thus the first seeds of isolation and mental trouble are sown," says the report of the British National Council of Social Service.

CAN CAUSE SUICIDE

"The lack of opportunities of learning how to develop normal human relations may cause a child to become suicide-prone in later life, and add yet one more to the 5,000 suicides recorded each year in Britain.

"How happily a person gets along as an adult in his job, in his family and social life, depends a great deal on how he got along with other children when he was young."

The report also deals with other forms of loneliness usually overlooked by people who themselves have a "healthy and fulfilled" relations with the word around them.

There is a "weekend loneliness," widespread among professional workers who are too busy during the week to make outside friendships and find themselves at the weekend "without a soul to speak to."

There is "retirement loneliness" that strikes professional workers "who find too late that they have made no personal friends."

HARMS MARRIAGES

Wives of travelling salesmen and transferred workers face long and unhealthy periods at home alone, the report says, and this can have disastrous effects on a marriage.

And there is even something the report calls "hire purchase loneliness" that plagues young families who have to devote their entire income to paying off instalment plan debts and who have no money left for entertainment.

Persons between the ages of 30 and 50 are the most prone to loneliness, the report finds.

"Men and women living alone, making no friends at their returning each night to a solitary existence, too old for youth clubs, too young for the sedate societies of the grey-haired, long for contact with men and women of like interests, whether in theatre parties, dances or outings, or just for someone to meet, drink a cup of coffee and talk."

Bateman Clan Holds Reunion

The annual reunion and picnic of the Bateman families was held at Glen Allan Park, Crowe Lake on Sunday, August 16th.

Approximately 175 sat down to dinner. Following the noon picnic meal, president Mr. Milton Bateman called the gathering to order and all observed a silence period in memory of deceased members: Mr. Will Courtney, Mrs. H. Green, Mr. and Mrs. Earl Holland, Mrs. Walter Riderson, Mr. Milton Hagerman and Mrs. Estella Leonard.

Secretary, Mrs. Granville Mellekjohn read the minutes of 1963 picnic held in Col. Vanderwater Park, Thomasburg.

Mrs. Henry Bateman, secretary of Scholarship Fund, spoke briefly on the merits and purpose of continued interest, reading a letter from Linda Mackiejohn who had received the scholarship for 1963, stating that she was now entering her second year at Queen's University in Honors history course and appreciated the help such a scholarship had meant to her and congratulating this year's winner.

It was decided to make up a history of Bateman family and that Mrs. Hiram Bateman do the research and prepare same for 1965.

Mrs. Della Holden had charge of register for 1964 also forming a more complete address list.

At this time several prizes were given out by Mrs. Hiram Mumby, as follows: oldest person in attendance — Mrs. W. J. Tanner; largest family present — Mr. and Mrs. E. Bateman; youngest member present — daughter of Mr. and Mrs. Wesley Finch; family coming greatest distance — Mr. and Mrs. Harold Hogle, Niagara Falls; most recent married couple — Mr. and Mrs. W. Hogle.

Finch; guessing contest — Mrs. Hiram Mumby, as follows: per son in attendance — Mrs. W. J. Tanner; largest family present — Mr. and Mrs. E. Bateman; youngest member present — daughter of Mr. and Mrs. Wesley Finch; family coming greatest distance — Mr. and Mrs. Harold Hogle, Niagara Falls; most recent married couple — Mr. and Mrs. W. Hogle.

President announced that the committee had planned a program for the day, had a full afternoon of sports planned.

The picnic at Glen Allan Beach proved an ideal picnic spot and it was decided to hold the picnic in 1965 there, with the same executive and committee in charge.

President, Mr. Milton Bateman; assist. president — Mr. Murray Bateman, Secretary-treasurer Mrs. Granville Mellekjohn; assist secretary — Mr. Harold Holden; president Bateman Scholarship Fund — Mrs. J. H. Bateman; Historical Family Tree — Mrs. H. Mumby.

Kingston Man Convicted on Charge Laid

He convicted Russell James Green after the man pleaded not guilty and went into the witness box to support his plea.

Green was charged by city police early last year after 15-year-old Robert Scott of 29 Brock Street, received a broken leg when struck by Green's car.

Scott was one of three youths who leaped for safety as the car swerved into them on Hannah Street, near Club Canara. Green was defended by Kingston lawyer Lou Tepper.

20TH BELLEVILLE CUBS

On Friday afternoon the Cubs and Scouts of the 20th Belleville and Leaders Kim (Mrs. Norman Howard) and Akela (Mr. Claude Hockey) paid their final respects to two of their fellow Cubs, Ron and Art Monteith and their mother 'Larry' who was four years the secretary of this pack.

The leaders were followed by Sixer Michael Bradshaw who led the Cubs who formed a guard of honor outside the John R. Bush Funeral residence. The Cub salute was given with caps on as the casket passed. On the boys' casket lay their Cub caps and scarves at the foot of which lay a single yellow rose nestled in a Union Jack.

The Cubs sang Family Burial tributes were proof of the high esteem and respect with which they were held in this community.

Six Scouts were bearers for Cubs Ron and Art; Denis Deavesaux, Allan Ray, Paul Creatrix, Bruce Creatrix, Ronald Pickell and Brian Cleary.

The bearers for Larry were: John Bindley, Hugh McMullen, Doug Mozam, Ray Rouse, Clifford Reid and Clinton Brown.

Rev. J. Fellowell paid tribute to the late Montetths and offered prayers and comfort to the bereaved relatives, the long procession to the Belleville Cemetery ended with a "temporary farewell."

Banana Brings Squirrel Monkey Out of Tree

HARTFORD, Conn. (AP)—Bananas are a monkey's delight, his cage today after a 24-hour taste of high living.

The four-year-old squirrel monkey escaped from his cage and scrambled up an old oak tree Tuesday.

There Albert remained indifferent to pleas from below from his owner, Mrs. Shirley Gorman.

She called the fire department, which referred her to the police department, which referred her to the humane society.

After the humane society suggested she call the fire department, Mrs. Gorman gave up.

Before Albert's escapade, the old oak tree had a date with the tree surgeon. Wednesday the tree was cut down. But Albert merely hopped over to a nearby pine tree.

Then later in the day, Albert spotted a little boy standing below holding a banana. Down came Albert.

Candidate Asks Wishart to Resign Post

SAULT STE. MARIE. Ont. (CP)—J. E. Necesse, Liberal member of Parliament for Renfrew North, called Wednesday for the resignation of Attorney-General Arthur A. Wishart over a conflict of interest involving a law firm.

Mr. Greene, a candidate for the leadership of the Ontario Liberal party, quoted a press report saying Mr. Wishart is a member of the law firm representing the Scott Mar-Steamship Company of Port Colborne in a dispute with some 45 families who face eviction from their homes at Batchawana Village, 30 miles north of Sault Ste. Marie. He spoke at a public meeting here.

Since the government of Jands and forests sent out the assessment notices that triggered the dispute, Mr. Greene said, "both provincial government and the cabinet are involved and the attorney - general should resign due to conflict of interest."

The Scott Mismer company has initiated court action to evict the families, both municipalities, from the land for a possible harbor development. The company claims it owns the land.

The residents say they were born and raised in the village and are entitled to stay.

Bicycle Knocked Under Truck, Rider Injured

Today, the 18-year-old youth who lives at 77½ Church Street is gravely ill in Belleville General Hospital, critically injured when an open car door knocked the bicycle he was riding under a passing truck on Pinnacle Street.

His father, Bernard Hyderman, employed at a city plumbing contractor's came on the accident just as he left for work. He found his son was the victim, say police.

The youth was cycling north on Pinnacle when a three-ton truck owned by Percy Rodgers, 144½ St. Paul Street, drew abreast of him. Simultaneously an automobile with two plumbing salesmen halted at the curb. One of the salesmen, Robert Dixon, of Islington, opened the passenger door just as the Hyderman youth and the truck passed the vehicle.

The bicycle struck the open door and the youth was thrown under the rear dual wheels of the truck.

The accident occurred minutes before 1 p.m. that put the premises of Hollin Plating Limited, 77 Church, Hyderman works. Police say he was just leaving work at the time and he walked over to the accident scene not aware his son had been involved.

The youth's condition was still given as critical this morning.

Births

WHITTS — Larry and Lee (nee Watson) wish to announce the arrival of their son, Christopher Ward, on August 23, 1964, at the Trenton Memorial Hospital, Trenton.

In Memoriam

OSLAND — In loving memory of a dear husband and father Percy Osland who passed away August 27th, 1963.

From our happy home and circle, God has taken one we loved,
He is gone but not forgotten,
In our hearts a sacred place,
No one knows how much we miss him,
None but aching hearts can tell,
Lost one link in family chain,
Jesus doeth all things well.
Sadly missed and remembered by wife Laura, Joy, Harvey and family.

MOORE — In loving memory of Thomas Moore who passed away, August 26, 1960.

He is gone but not forgotten,
And as dawns another year,
In our hearts he's still missed,
Thoughts of him are always near.
Days of sorrow and years of pain,
Friends may think the wound is healed,
But they little know the sorrow,
That is still concealed.
Sadly remembered by son Basil, daughter-in-law Doris and family, Kathleen and Lorne.

Concrete Islands Control Traffic Flow on Hill

GILMOUR HILL on Dundas Street East is taking on a new look these days, with the new wider road and the maze of concrete traffic islands. Rumor has it that one (at least) of the islands will be torn up, to provide large trucks with an easier run at the hill. Meanwhile, the islands sort out the rush hour traffic at the top of the hill, and four lines of traffic come down the hill, aimed at the two-lane bridge.

Judge Reserves Decision on Commitment

TORONTO (CP)—Mr. Justice Edson Haines reserved decision Wednesday on an application for the committal to jail of two striking Oshawa printers on contempt-of-court charges.

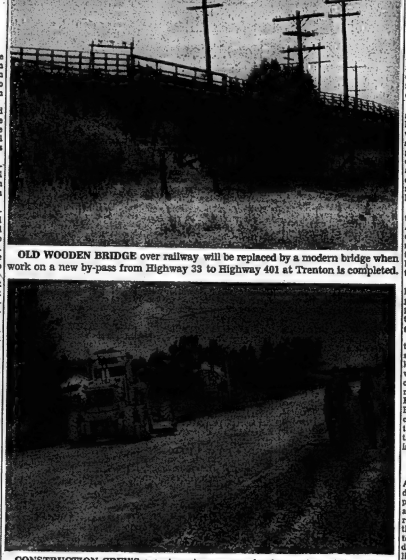
The men are members of Local 900 of the International Typographical Union (CLC), on strike against the Oshawa firm since last June.

Company lawyer Roy McMurtry in his application alleged that both men had assaulted threatened physical violence to students working at the plant. Dunsmoor was also responsible for damaging cars belonging to workers, Mr. McMurtry said.

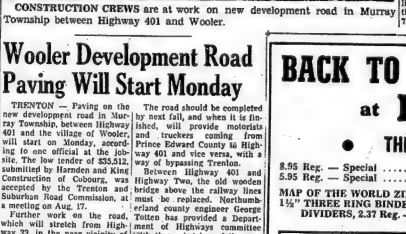
The company contends that the acts violate a July 2 court order limiting picketing and enjoining pickets from intimidating workers.

Mark Hendelman, 17, said in an affidavit before the court that Ellerbeck warned him: "Things do happen during a strike. People get killed. You take my job and I'll kill you."



Mr. Justice Haines asked whether organized labor tells pickets to stop others from committing a crime. Asks Ian Scott, counsel for the men, told the judge that incidents at General Printers occurred late at night when few pickets were at the premises.

"It seems to me that rather than trying to restrain them the pickets stand by and applaud such actions and hurl insults at those passing picket lines," the judge said.



Mr. Justice Haines said he had no doubt Dunsmoor's activities had breached the court order but he wanted to deliberate whether Ellerbeck was validly identified in connection with some of the incidents.

FIRST EXHIBITION

More than 140 paintings and etchings by Canaletto will be exhibited at Toronto's art gallery in October—the first ever organized for the works of the 18th century Italian painter.

OLD WOODEN BRIDGE over railway will be replaced by a modern bridge when work on a new by-pass from Highway 33 to Highway 401 at Trenton is completed.

CONSTRUCTION CREWS are at work on new development road in Murray Township between Highway 401 and Wooler.

Wooler Development Road Paving Will Start Monday

TRENTON — Paving on the new development road in Murray Township, between Highway 401 and the village of Wooler, will start on Monday, according to one official at the jobsite. The low tender of $35,512, submitted by Harnden and King Construction of Cobourg, was accepted by the Trenton and Suburban Road Commission, at a meeting on Aug. 17.

Further work on the road, which will stretch from Highway 33, in the near vicinity of Dead Creek, crossing Highway Two, to beyond the Highway 401 overpass, will, for the most part, be curtailed until spring. In two stretches of the road, land must be cleared to straighten out the road.

The road should be completed by next fall, and when it is finished, will provide motorists and truckers coming from Prince Edward County to Highway 401 and vice versa, with a way of bypassing Trenton.

Between Highway 401 and Highway Two, the old wooden bridge above the railway lines must be replaced. Northumberland county engineer George Totten has provided a Department of Highways committee with three sketches of the proposed new bridge, (which will resemble the overpass bridges on Highway 401) and from these a choice will be made. The DHO and the two railways involved will share the cost.

Senator

cal examination and through prolonged hours of work at his job, President Johnson has displayed enormous energy.

HAS BEEN TESTED

The president said Senator Humphrey had been tested politically, marking each step with "excellence and achievement." The senator was knowledgeable about world problems, about the need for American military strength and had enthusiastic party support.

The president said the senator combined convictions "with an understanding of the convictions of others . . . this is not a sectional choice, not a question of a balanced ticket, but this is simply the best man in America for this job."

He said he would feel strengthened to have Humphrey at his side. Drawing the actual name out to the last moment, he paused and shouted the identity.

Most of the evening in fact was given over to a procession of speakers nominating and seconding the president and later Senator Humphrey. The first Humphrey nominator was his fellow Minnesotan, Senator Eugene McCarthy who was known to have figured in Johnson's considerations and who had been given considerable public attention.

Convention officials imposed tougher security measures around the huge hall to prevent a recurrence of the pushing and shoving that developed Tuesday night—partly caused by efforts of Mississippi freedom delegation Negroes to get inside.

As happened Tuesday night, some got in Wednesday night. But they contented themselves with standing beside the Mississippi chairs. Convention sergeants - at - arms had occupied chairs vacated by Mississippi and Alabama delegates who either had gone home or been refused entry for refusing the loyalty pledge.

There was no effort to make the freedom delegates leave. Again, they said they gained entry using credentials borrowed from sympathizers inside the hall. But Leader Aaron Henry said they were prepared to move if requested to do so.

The Mississippi issue which hinged on the freedom group's plan to unseat the official and non-segregationist delegation, most of whom decided to go home Tuesday.

The Alabama delegation took their seats Tuesday night and stayed without being challenged. Wednesday night, they were foiled by finding the seats occupied by among those who marched out angrily was Eugene (Bull) Connor, former Birmingham police chief in charge when police dogs were turned on Negroes demonstrating for civil rights and integration.

INSTRUCTION NEEDED

OTTAWA (CP)—The St. John Ambulance Association says it doubts that one of every 15 people in Canada would be able to administer effective artificial respiration in an emergency. By the fall, the organization hopes to have trained 175,000 Canadians in the fundamentals of life - saving methods, bringing the total for the last 11 years to 750,000.

B. R. JONES, an alderman of the City of Bedington, Cheshire, England, and a former mayor of that city, visited the Trenton chapter of the Trans-Atlantic Brides and Parents' Association, last night. He was offered a "cup of English tea" by the hostess, Mrs. Eunice Naylor, and sandwiches by the president of the Trenton club, Mrs. Jean Tetreault. Mr. Jones is overseas general secretary of the association.

Air Commodore Will Be Guest Of Honor

TRENTON—The annual September Ball of No. 413 Trenton and No. 418 Belleville Wings of the R.C.A.F. Association will be held in R.C.A.F. Station Trenton Recreation Centre on Saturday, September 19th, with Air Commodore M. E. Pollard, DSO, DFC, AFC, CD, of Northern Norad Headquarters, as the guest of honor.

For the past few years this ball has been one of the social events of the fall season, and this year's committee are making every effort to make this one the most successful to date.

Music for the ball will be supplied by P/Sgt. Jones and his Music Makers Orchestra, and the committee of members of both wings under the chairmanship of President Jim O'Bryan of the Belleville Wing, expect to have all details finalized this week. Tickets are expected to go on sale about September 1st. Contact members of either wing anytime after this date for your tickets to this gala affair.

INTERNAL BUSINESS

LAGOS, Nigeria (AP) — Sir Abubakar Tafawa Balewa, prime minister of this African nation, says the appointment of Moise Tshombe as Congolese premier is an internal matter. He made the remark on his return from the African summit conference in Cairo, where widespread opposition to Tshombe led Congo President Joseph Kasavubu to boycott the meeting.

Former Mayor of English City Visits Association

TRENTON — A former mayor and a present alderman of his native city, B. R. Jones of Bedington, Cheshire, England, visited the Trenton branch of the Trans-Atlantic brides and Parents' Association last night. The meeting was held at the home of Mrs. Eunice Naylor, 5 B Bell Irving Cres, Middleton Park, and 18 members of the Trenton chapter were present.

Mr. Jones came directly to Trenton from the association's one-day convention in the Pick-Congress Hotel in Chicago. Twenty five overseas clubs were represented at the convention; 600 from Canada and the U.S. Mr. Jones is overseas general secretary of the association.

While on this side of the water for the third time, Mr. Jones visited New York, Providence, R.I., Philadelphia, and points in Pennsylvania before going on to Chicago. While in Ontario, his son-in-law, Austin Reeve of Ottawa, will take him to visit Toronto, and Montreal.

The Trenton chapter, being a new branch of the association, Mr. Jones made it a point to pay the members a visit. The club offers social contact for British brides, married to retired or serving members of the Canadian armed forces. One feature of the club is reduced flying fares for members and their parents.

Mr. Jones, a socialist, forecasts a victory for socialist leader, Harold Wilson in the forthcoming elections in England. His comment on Canadian politics was that Canada was a relatively young country and the present dissention in parliament, the last few years' history of minority government, etc., would sort itself out in time and as the country matured.

Do We Want Grade 14?

Grade 13 has been under fire from all sides.

Some have even suggested that it be eliminated, that if, in Quebec, Saskatchewan and other provinces, young people can be prepared for university in four years' high school study, the same can be done in Ontario.

Now comes a diametrically opposed plea.

The Board of Governors of the Ontario Teachers' Federation expects to receive this week a report from a committee, advocating the establishment of Grade 14 in the province's high schools.

The committee suggests that Grades 13 and 14 be combined to provide the equivalent of junior colleges in the United States, under the administration of local school boards.

There are obvious advantages to this suggestion, not the least of which is that the plan would help in relieving congestion in the country's universities.

Still, we think much thought should proceed any such action.

By the time they have put in five years at high school, spirited young people are starting to pull at the bit.

They are eager to get about the business of living, to escape from parental domination. Many of them are ready—and anxious—to start earning their own living. Others, because of the increasing complexity of modern life, know that they need several more years of schooling. For them, however, if they are fortunate enough to live outside the great centres of population, the process of going away to university provides a partial break with home. Often this change in environment has been as stimulating to their development as the college course of study itself.

To impose another year of "togetherness" on our young people could prove quite a strain on the family tie.

This, of course, is a situation commonplace in university centres. But for young people in such larger centres the wider opportunities for sampling life may offer some compensation. In most cases it is only after maturity that the rural atmosphere or its small-town equivalent sometimes proves stimulating to intellectual activity.

Statistics

The Ontario Department of Municipal Affairs has produced its annual "blue book," a voluminous report on statistics concerning the province's municipalities.

Comparisons are said to be odious, and nowhere is this more evident than in any attempt to measure one municipality by the yardsticks provided by its fellows. There is nothing to give us cause for congratulations, for instance, in the fact that our total taxable assessment is almost fifty per cent higher than Stratford's nor in the fact that it is less than half Welland's. Nor need we be unduly alarmed at finding our tax rate almost double Waterloo's, or delighted by the fact that it is below Guelph's.

One unit of measurement, though, does appear applicable to all. This is tax levy per capita. The Department groups a dozen municipalities as roughly comparable in size and location. Their per capita taxes vary from Chatham's $131.32 to Eastview's $66.21. Eastview, though, is in a class by itself. Leaving it out of consideration, we find that the lowest rate per capita is Stratford's $106.10, and Belleville is next with $108.04. The spread between these rates and the top is not large, and is much less if we drop Chatham, as we did Eastview, and take the second highest rate, Waterloo's $124.15. (Waterloo, remember, had the lowest tax rate, yet is high on the tax per capita list.)

Eastview? That has us stumped.

Members of the general public should feel just as free to comment intelligently on questions of science policy as they would in the case of, say, health, defence, taxation or education policy. In every case, there is the same room for public debate, both in Parliament and among the general public—the same need for informed commentaries and the same need for academic research.—Stephen Toulmin, Director of the Nuffield Foundation Unit for the History of Ideas.

John Kennedy believed so strongly that one's aim should not be just the most comfortable life possible but that we should all do something to right the wrongs we have and not just complain about them. We owe that to our country, and our country will suffer if we don't serve her. He believed that one man can make a difference and that every man should try.—Mrs. John F. Kennedy.

Ottawa Offbeat
Socred MP's Are Demanding Govt. Pay Their Phone Bills

By RICHARD JACKSON
From The Intelligencer's Ottawa Bureau

OTTAWA—Now, it seems, the Honorable Members of Parliament — or at least some of them — don't want to pay their phone bills.

They want you to pay them instead.

And some of these bills are inconsiderable.

A few might even be frightfully large.

Listen to Dr. Guy Marcoux, ♦ Social Credit MP for Quebec Montmorency, speaking in the Commons just the other day:

"Mr. Speaker . . . lately, a sales representative of the telephone company advised the chairman of our caucus committee that Social Credit MPs owed long distance phone bills and pleaded with him to have those accounts settled.

"Those outstanding bills amounted variously to $130.95, $197.15, $100.80, . . . $66.65, $36.50, $457.65, $43.25 and $66.70."

Dr. Marcoux went on to recall that last year when the MPs voted to raise their salaries from $12,000 to $18,000 with $6,000 of it tax-free, they voted, too, certain other fringe benefits like payment of their long distance phone bills and unlimited travel expenses between their constituencies and the CapHal.

But since then, the Commons internal economy committee — on which sit representatives of all the parties — has had second thoughts about this generosity.

HOLD THE LINE

Perhaps it feels the hot resentful breath of the taxpayers and, worst of all, their constituents, on their necks. The economy committeemen decided that unlimited travel expenses were maybe just a bit much.

So they cut it back to one air line pass a week, and to not of even that much. Other MPs who don't always fly, tossed in mileage for cars. Hitherto, of course, remained unlimited.

And on those hundreds - with 308 MPs, remember, that must amount to thousands, many thousands - - of dollars worth of long distance calls, the economy committee asked the MPs to hold the phone.

It was after the last June 4 that Creditiste Leader Real Caouette made the first formal complaint to Commons Speaker that the telephone company had had the temerity to suggest he pay his outstanding phone bills. He cough.

Did not the MPs voted to have those phone bills paid by the federal treasury, he asked, reading into the record the text of Bill No. 64, which is the omnibus piece of legislation the Commons must pass to implement all the salaried professional group?

Ah yes, Mr. Speaker Alan Macnaughton replied.

Yes, indeed, except that, alas, the Economy Commissioners had "not yet decided whether long distance phone calls should be paid for. . . . and until that decision has been made by the Commissioners, it is not legal for the government to pay such accounts."

ALWAYS A CAUSE:

The catch was that Mr. Caouette—and who knows just how many other Social Credit MPs—had neglected to read the fine print in Section 4 of Bill No. 64.

That section read the MPs should have known, really, that there is indeed a distinction—specified that travelling expenses and telecommunications expenses would be paid "as the respective Houses (Senate and Commons) may prescribe for their Members."

And those Houses or their internal economy committees, prescribed that there could be only one air line pass a week—and until a firm decision was made otherwise, long distance phone accounts would "remain the personal debts and charge of the individual Member concerned and not the responsibility of the Government."

That was plain enough, or should have been.

But no.

The other day up sprang Dr. Marcoux with his protest that the telephone company, in "pleading" that Socred MPs pay up their collective $1,518.60 long distance bill, has outraged his Parliamentary "privilege."

Up spoke Gilles Gregoire, Creditiste MP for Lapointe and Real Caouette's No. 2 man, in even greater indignation.

He was protesting, he said, not only for the Creditistes, "but for several Liberals MPs who came to me and asked me to speak on their behalf, as well as many Conservative members."

What's more, he was not going to pay his bill—it was, as he put it, "a matter of principle"—and he called certain other un-named Honorable Members were quite prepared to have our phone lines cut."

So there!

Of course, the Commons Committee can always turn softhearted and let you pay the bill.

Why Attempt Trip to Moon?

By DANIEL F. COMSTOCK
Physicist and President of Comstock and Wescott, Inc.

Many of my friends keep asking, "Do you think the moon project is worthwhile?" What possible good can come of it?" This is one true of space research in general.

It is, of course, difficult or impossible to give a definite answer to such questions, but in my opinion a very powerful general answer can readily be given.

In 1831 the English scientist Faraday demonstrated to a skeptical world the hot resentful breath of the taxpayers and, worst of all, their constituents, on their necks. The economy committeemen decided that unlimited travel expenses were maybe just a bit much.

So they cut it back to one air line pass a week, and to not of even that much. Other MPs who don't always fly, tossed in mileage for cars. Hitherto, of course, remained unlimited.

And on those hundreds - with 308 MPs, remember, that must amount to thousands, many thousands - - of dollars worth of long distance calls, the economy committee asked the MPs to hold the phone.

The site of the present city was picked by LaSalle in 1673 and the famous explorer was named commandant of the French camp. Later the area was occupied by United Empire Loyalists from New York State and was named Kingston. It later became the chief naval base on Lake Ontario.

GLEANINGS FROM OUR FYLES OF BYGONE YEARS

20 YEARS AGO

Inquiries for tourist accommodation received at the Belleville Chamber of Commerce office this year exceeded by one percent the highest figure of any preceding year. Contributing factors to this situation were the availability of ready money and gasoline restrictions on both sides of the border. At that, 95 percent of the requests for hotel, cabin, cottages and other accommodation came from Canadians.

If a human steals from a vending machine he or she is subject to all the pains and penalties of the law.

But not the machine when it steals.

Why this discrimination? Why are soulless assemblage of wheels, gears, coils and sheet-iron permitted to violate the moral, ethical and legal codes of the community? Why is it allowed to cheat, steal and dishonestly enrich its owners? Why but—regard its bland and self-satisfied face—with insult, too?

Outraged humanity is slow to anger. But mark our words. The day will come when the vending machine will be made subject to the rules which govern decent society. And when that happens . . . .

Well, the demands of justice will not be satisfied until all the local constabulary hustling the larcenous machine into the paddy wagon and jailing it up behind bars for 30 days, just like any other petty thief.

Let Machines Cheat, Steal

Vancouver Sun

The criminal habits of vending machines are typified by a recent occurence in Denver, Colo. One of them took the money of Suzie Pacheco and refused to return her a packet of oysters. Instead, when she tried to regain her money, it seized her arm and imprisoned her for 20 minutes.

Eventually Susie was freed, but no penalty was exacted from the mechanical marvel.

Everyone with experience of these unprincipled contraptions has suffered from their pirating habits. In a public place the customer can merely shrug and retire defeated when the machine fails to yield what it has promised. Machines in offices and factories—even our own office—are often festooned with sheets of paper bearing the bitter complaints of people they have cheated.

If a human steals from a vending machine he or she is subject to all the pains and penalties of the law.

But not the machine when it steals.

Why this discrimination? Why are soulless assemblage of wheels, gears, coils and sheet-iron permitted to violate the moral, ethical and legal codes of the community? Why is it allowed to cheat, steal and dishonestly enrich its owners? Why but—regard its bland and self-satisfied face—with insult, too?

Outraged humanity is slow to anger. But mark our words. The day will come when the vending machine will be made subject to the rules which govern decent society. And when that happens . . . .

Briefcases Once Absent

Ottawa Journal

Mr. Ralph Cowan, a Toronto Liberal MP, drew attention in the House to a change in the Canadian immigrant young men. While we are not at all clear on the point he was trying to make we thank Mr. Cowan, who is 62, for this recollection:

"I tell you quite frankly that in those days we did not have the briefcases that lawyers carry around today. We used gladstone bags and we used to pick them up and travel from here to there carrying our gladstones.

Briefcases are fearsome. When delegations come with gladstone bags it could be imagined they had with them a change of underwear and presents for the kids at home. When they carry only briefcases every MP knows they have briefs of terrifying length, supported by legal opinions, the advice of public relations officers, and an expense account at the local hotel.

With a gladstone-bag man the MP knew his visitor wanted to get home. With a briefcase man the MP can be sure it will be a long, involved and probably continued-until-tomorrow interview.

Skin Tests Are Helpful In Detecting Allergies

By JOSEPH G. MOLNER, M.D.

Dear Dr. Molner:-Do you believe in skin tests for allergies? What is the difference, if any, between an allergy affecting eyes, nose, and stomach? I feel better when I'm outdoors. — A. L.

Yes, I certainly believe in skin tests but I'd be surprised if I said that you can run a series of them and expect to have all the answers.

"Allergy" is another way of saying that a person is hypersensitive to something he eats, smells, touches or breathes.

Skin tests are very helpful but even a substantial series can cover only several dozen to several score of the commoner offenders. It takes time to test for several hundred. Yet the total number of substances which can in some people cause allergy certainly runs into thousands and perhaps more.

Skin tests can identify (or eliminate) the things known to affect a lot of people. But beyond that, you must rely on observation (or "detective work"), your allergist's trained instincts, logical process of elimination, and — yes — luck.

Roughly speaking, allergy follows patterns. Pollens and other things we breathe cause "hay fever," meaning symptoms of nose and eyes. Things we touch tend to cause skin allergies at the point of contact. Food allergies upset the digestive tract, but can cause anything of lips or throat, or a rash to appear on the skin anywhere.

Something I eat can affect the eyes and not the nose, or vice versa. Food allergy can cause wheezing. Allergy to cosmetics is very complicated, and far from wholly understood.

As to being more outdoors — well, some people are and some aren't. Ragweed grows in the field. What bothers you indoors? chemicals, soap powders, wool or other fabrics, dust, furry pets or dyes — it's a long, long list.

You must add this fact: The person with allergies is not necessarily sensitive to just one thing. Indeed, it is usual to find that he is sensitive to several, and perhaps to many. The degree of sensitivity varies from person to person, also.

You may be sensitive to things outdoors, too, yet not encounter them in your normal vocation, or the same combination.

So with allergy, employ all means of detecting the things to which you are sensitive. Do what you can to avoid the major ones, or to build resistance by treatment. You may not achieve total and complete relief, but if you can solve even part of the problem, you will have fewer attacks and less severe ones.

With allergy, you must expect everything. Fortunately, some substances are much more likely to cause trouble, and that is why skin sensitivity tests are so useful.

Dear Dr. Molner: What causes cancer? Is it true My doctor says it's a virus. Is this a warning of cancer, since it starts from a virus, too? — Mrs. J.

A recurrent virus is the most frequent cause of canker sores, but certain allergies can be involved, too.

First, it is suspected that viruses may have something to do with cancer, but this has not been proved.

Second, remember that colds, flu, smallpox, chickenpox, measles, and other diseases, are caused by virus, but they aren't "warnings of cancer."

Note to Mrs. D. S.: I see no reason why you should not have mild tranquilizers during pregnancy, since your doctor has consulted other doctors and they all agree.

Strictly Personal
Advances In Teaching Techniques

By SYDNEY J. HARRIS

Like Falstaff, I have a kind of alacrity in sinking. The inherent presence of a body of water, however small or shallow, makes me so nervous that sometimes I get slightly hysterical while splashing my face in a washbasin.

I love the seas as a spectacle — as something to gaze at, to ride on, to walk beside. But not to swim in. Even though I was Scout Harris of the Beaver Patrol, with a dozen merit badges which (God save the mark!) included one for swimming, the literal fact remains that I cannot swim.

Watching my daughter dart like a dolphin across the swimming pool this summer, with an utter contempt for any possible drowning, I realized the tremendous advances we have made in teaching techniques during the past generation. I think it is a pity we are not yet properly appreciative of.

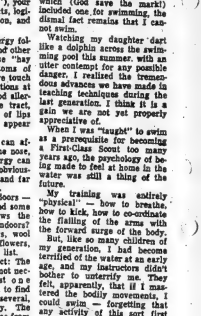
When I was "taught" to swim as a prerequisite for becoming a First-Class Scout too many years ago, the procedure consisted of being made to feel at home in the water was still a thing of the future.

My training was entirely "physical" — how to breathe, how to float, how to co-ordinate the flailing of the arms with the forward surge of the body. But, like many members of my generation, I had become afraid of the water at an early age, and my instructors didn't bother to unterrify me. They felt, apparently, that if I mastered the body movement, I could swim — forgetting that any activity of this sort first demands a complete ease of mind and sense of self-possession.

I learned to "swim," through grim, desperate efforts, swallowing hard on my fears, and finally managing to traverse the half-dozen lengths of the pool that earned my precious merit badge.

But I never really learned to swim in a pure, psychological way. I was never taught to relax in the water, to conquer my childish fears, to move spray swept into my mouth or a large wave buffeted my body.

Luckily for our children, the throw - them - off - the - pier - and-they'll-learn-to-swim school of pedagogy has largely disappeared. We learned to swim, for self preservation, but we never learned to like, and we never learned to cope with unreal or frightening circumstances.



Barbara's mind and emotions allow her to enter the water long before she knew how to stroke or kick. To her, the water is a friend, not a formidable enemy that must be conquered at frantic cost. Whether it's marriage or business or swimming we have lately won the knowledge that how our children are made to feel their security, they will fall, or will succeed at a price that is far too high to pay.

Toronto Stocks

TORONTO (CP)—Prices retreated in light trading on the stock market today.

Industrials were lower with banks the weakest group. Losses of ¼ went to Imperial Commerce at 67⅝, Royal at 78 and Nova Scotia at 76¾. In foods, Dominion Stores eased ¼ to 22 while among papers, Abitibi gave up ¼ to 15⅝. Empire Life jumped $25 to $365, a 1964 peak, bringing its gain so far this week to $100.

Speculatives were quiet with most issues showing minus signs. Giant Yellowknife slipped 11 cents to $1.65. New Calumet four to 76 cents, Raglan three cents to $1.97 and Giant Mascot climbed six cents to $1.14.

Senior base metals made a modest gain. Falconbridge tacked on ⅜ to 73¼. Rio Algom fell 10 cents to $9.75 and Noranda ¼ to 47¾. Leitch advanced 20 cents to $6.50 in active dealings.

Western oils pursued a lower course with Husky off ¼ to 10¾. Golds were lower in light trading.

On index, industrials were down .14 to 158.60, golds .70 to 133.18, western oils .11 to 95.40 and the Exchange index .14 to 147.96. Base metals were up .06 to 67.46. Volume at 11 a.m. was 745,000 shares compared with 792,000 shares traded at the same time Wednesday.

Small price losses were recorded Wednesday.

In the industrial list, Levy dipped 1¼ to 16 with Bank of Montreal and B.C. Forest Products down 1 each, to 68 and 30 respectively. Algoma Steel fell ⅛ to 74.

A bright spot in the list was Empire Life which tacked on $32 to a 1964 peak of $365, bringing its gain so far this week to $75.

Speculative mining issues remained out of favor with the investment community. Lowsagged 14 cents to $1.76, Raglan 10 cents to $1.80, Canadian Dyno the same amount to $1.58, Windfall seven to 44 cents, and New Calumet three to 80 cents.

Base metals made an irregular retreat. Inco and Hudson Bay were off ⅛ each to 63¾ and 68¾ respectively. Leitch advanced 25 cents to $6.50 and United Keno Hill 20 cents to $7.80.

Golds were stronger with Dome up ⅜ to 31¾.

On index, industrials were down .28 to 158.54, base metals .13 to 67.40, western oils .47 to 95.51 and the exchange index .23 to 148.10. Golds were ahead 1.13 to 133.88.

Volume for the day was 3,140,000 shares, compared with 2,916,000 Tuesday.

Business Exodus Follows Burmese Nationalization

RANGOON (Reuters) —Foreigners living in Burma have begun to feel the full brunt of the revolutionary government's nationalization of private property.

Their businesses and professions have been nationalized, the repatriation of their property and assets has been blocked, the currency which they held demonetized, and their movement within the country restricted.

Many thousands of them, especially Indians and the Pakistanis, now see no economic future in Burma and are making arrangements to return to their native countries for good.

Air passages to India and East Pakistan are solidly booked for the next six months. Indian authorities are arranging to send three liners here to take at least 5,000 Indians home.

There are about 300,000 foreigners living in Burma. Some 90,000 of them are Indians and another 80,000 are Pakistanis. The rest are Chinese, except for a few hundred Europeans.

Before nationalization, import and export business and wholesale trade were all in the hands of well-to-do Indians, Pakistanis and Chinese. The few hundred Europeans here were also mostly engaged in the import and wholesale distribution business.

The less well-to-do Indians, Pakistanis and Chinese cannot monopolized the retail trade, the sale of foodstuffs and the ownership of cinemas and small foodstalls. They also operated road and river passenger transports.

Soon after coming into power in 1962, Gen. Ne Win, chairman of the Burmese revolutionary government, announced that the state would put an end to the "exploitation of man by man."

The government banned private importation of goods as well as the purchase and export of rice, timber and beans. Burma's major foreign exchange earning exports.

Thinks Province Should Subsidize Arson Squads

PETERBOROUGH (CP) — Provincial governments should subsidize arson detection teams in large cities, a panel of Canadian fire chiefs said here Wednesday.

The panel was conducted in connection with the annual convention of Canadian fire chiefs.

Chief Reg. Swansborough of Hamilton, first vice - president of the International Association of Fire Chiefs, said the number of suspected arsons increases every year.

"I think the province should subsidize arson squads in large cities rather than sending men from the Ontario fire marshal's office to investigate questionable fires. They have such a large area to cover they are often four or five days late."

Chief Swansborough also suggested that insurance companies should provide more assistance. "I know they have their own investigators but most of the burden is carried by the fire marshal's investigators."

CHILDREN BIG PROBLEM

Chief Swansborough said one of the biggest problems in recent years has been the number of fires set by juveniles. "Some of them six or seven years old."

"It's hard to blame children of this age entirely. We think they usually start the fire out of curiosity, but often it is a case of pyromania."

The association decided Wednesday to recommend legislation regulating the sale and handling of fireworks on a province-wide basis.

They also endorsed Smokey the Bear, initiated in Canada by the Canadian Forestry Association in 1956, as a fire prevention image.

Faithful Reader Praises Doris for the Good Work

DEAR DORIS — You are very lucky William Wordsworth is unable to read your column in the newspaper. If he could, he would surely turn in his grave for he is the author of "The World is Too Much With Us." "Old Bill Shakespeare" I'm sure would do the same, since he is famous for his "English Sonnets" while Wordsworth wrote strictly Italian ones.

Might I add that this is one of my favorite poems and it would do a great many people no harm to read it and take its message to heart. I enjoy reading your column in our local newspaper. Keep up the good work. — A LOVER OF POETRY.

DEAR LOVER — My face is red. The world must have been too much with me, that day! Thanks for putting us right.

• • •

DEAR DORIS — At the age of 13 I was attacked and nearly raped. I began to hate boys and life. I never went with any one boy very long. I couldn't stand to have them near me.

I have been going with this boy ten months now. We seem to get along O.K. until it gets time for him to take me home. He likes to go and park and I just dread it. After about one-half hour of necking he seems to want something else. At this point I start to cry and tell him to just stay away from me, so he takes me home.

He still wants to marry me but he is afraid I hate sex and I think he's right. What can I do? I love him very much. Will I hate him after we're married?

Do you think I have any major problems or are you like all the other adults who laugh, make fun of me and my boy friend and say we can't possibly be in love because we're only teenagers? — UNHAPPY.

DORIS CLARK

DEAR UNHAPPY — You fear sex — with good reason. Your early experience now colors every contact. Right then was when you needed to talk it out. Where was your mother?

Once you come to see the meaning of sex your fears will fade away. At its best, the sex act is the highest expression of lasting love. When abused, it becomes something base and cheapening.

Would you and your boy read a book about it together? And readers not to indulge in sex experimentation as you are doing? This is your best way back to mental health.

Perhaps you do love each other, but the final decision had better wait until you are at least 20. I am sending you a list of books I recommend on the serious subjects of sex and dating.

• • •

CONFIDENTIAL TO NOTHING — For the information you want, please write in again, enclosing a stamped, self-addressed envelope.

• • •

DEAR DORIS — What is proper etiquette concerning gloves? The dress is long and the problem is: Must we wear long gloves with a long formal even though the short ones look better? The dresses have straps about three inches wide. — COLLEGE TWINS.

DEAR TWINS — You may wear the very short — wrist length — or the very long — up over the elbow. But not the half-way glove. Not this year.

• • •

CONFIDENTIAL TO MARY LOUISE — Don't be too sure. Since Joey doesn't to be tied down, neither should you be. You may y the "love of your life", and the next two or thre hould tell the tale.

and student demands that it step down and pave the way for civilian rule.

Khanh stepped down Tuesday in the face of widespread student demonstrations. Minh had been figurehead chief of state only 30 days ago when Khanh proclaimed himself president under a new constitution.

Minh was ousted in the shake-up, touching off student charges that Khanh had made himself head of a military dictatorship. A popular Buddhist leader, Minh had directed the overthrow of president Ngo Dinh Diem's government last November.

The shooting flared today during the council's second day of deliberations. A surging crowd swept past barbed wire barricades in an apparent effort to enter joint general staff headquarters.

Some 250 government troops fired over the heads of the demonstrators but some shots went wild. A 15-year-old boy was killed, apparently shot. The wounded included an old woman, a teen-age girl and a gunner.

An officer ordered the shooting stopped when the crowd fell back.

'Lines on Life'

By Dr. Stuart E. Rosenberg

Every day, every week, people who thought they were in love mean their complaints. They repeat the famous last words of their burned-out flame, "He's not the man I married!" "She's no longer the same girl I once courted."

Their unhappy experiences often lead to only one conclusion: the modern love-cult has succeeded in distorting our lives so badly that we are in danger of letting ourselves to death.

LOVE IS SEX

Some moderns have come to the dismal conclusion that love is sexual in its origin and that there can be no love without sex. From this doubtful platform we have moved to an ever more questionable position: Sex-is-Love and Love-is-Sex. Even if we do not openly admit it, this is what many have come to believe. The wreckage of our long-standing values can be traced directly to this popular but false theory.

Instead of helping to stabilize and to strengthen marriage, it has reduced it to a game — a losing game, at that.

Rather than lend support to family ties and help to cement the relations of the home, it has caused parents to become increasingly obsolete and useless and has made their authority, counsel and feelings more and more irrelevant.

MODERN LOVE

"Love" has not made life kinder, but more cruel. It has gendered a youth-worshipping and adoring society which increasingly finds neither place nor function for people over 35.

One would have expected love to have helped to resolve the dreaded universal problems of human loneliness and isolation. But modern love has succeeded in accentuating and exacerbating this condition to almost unbearable proportions.

Let's see what "love" has done to marriage.

The picture we have of modern marriage can be found in Hollywood's interpretation of the meaning and place of love in human life. But the films only repeat our own convictions. Because moderns think of love only as romantic love, Hollywood's typical story follows some such standard sequence: (a) Boy meets girl; (b) They fight; (c) They make up; (d) They argue; (e) They make up; (f) They battle; (g) They reconcile; (h) They fall madly in love; i) They marry.

ROMANTIC STORM

What happens after "marriage" is barely touched on by the impressarios of the cinema. Only the romantic storm and stress, the peaks and the valleys of the pre-marital period seem worth depicting. In the Hollywood version of modern marriage (which is also our own), before we wed — if it is to be the "real thing" — we must fall madly in love. What follows once marriage occurs seems much less important. After all, we can always un-marry and re-marry.

The flippancy of such a suggestion is the direct result of a love, in our culture. We think of love chemically or biologically. The physical proportions are the significant measurements of marital attractions. The prettiest girl — one who can best display her endearing young charms — is most likely to ensnare her willing "victim." We centre our concern in the physical because we think of love primarily as a romantic affection.

We focus upon the size and shape of the human form as a valid index to future marital happiness, because when we say love, we really mean sex. But sex is not love. Says Dr. Theodor Reik, disciples disciple of Freud: "Sex is a passionate interest in another body; love, a passionate interest in another personality, or in his life."

ZOOMING DIVORCE

It is no accident that our zooming divorce rate coincides with an age which thinks of love principally in terms of romantic adventure. We like to believe that the Victorians were unable to experience love fully because they were too prudish about sex. They may have known too little about it, but they seemed to stay more married than we do. Did they, perhaps, learn how to love, precisely because they knew so little and thus made love into more than sex? And do we, on the other hand, hardly ever learn how to love, because we mistake techniques for love and believing that we know the former so well, make love nothing but sex?

Erich Fromm suggests that in our day romantic love is often but an uneasy cover-up for our unwillingness to work at mastering the true "art of loving."

To married folk who want to survive together long after their "glamour" has departed, he offers this sound advice: "Love is not the result of adequate sexual satisfaction, but sexual happiness is the result of love."

This suggestion may disturb some counsellors whose chief stock-in-trade consists in prescribing books that "cure" unhappy marriage by teaching couples "how to achieve correct sexual adjustment." But it does remind us that many a marriage has broken down because we have played up the wrong kind of love.

The complaints one hears from husbands and wives are often the insipid but logical corollaries to a marriage founded principally on a bio-chemical or anatomical basis, in the dimmer aftermath of an earlier glow.

If we teach ourselves to believe that we must reach the peak of happiness before we've even started out, how can we expect "love" of this kind to grow and to deepen. It can only wear itself out and wither away.

WINNING STRUGGLE

CZESTOCHOWA, Poland (AP) — Stefan Cardinal Wyszynski said Wednesday the Roman Catholic church is winning the struggle for survival in Poland. The primate of Poland addressed nearly 50,000 people attending annual anniversary celebrations of the shrine of the "Black Madonna" of Czestochowa.

stages where a fresh start will be necessary.

At Hollywood, Cleo's rampaging winds bashed in the plate fronts of the luxurious Diplomat Hotel's lobby and ocean front rooms. About 30 guests fled to inner areas of the hotel and bedded down by cash in hand in corridors.

BOXCAR PUSHED

Cleo's powerful winds pushed a railroad freight car eight miles from south of Hollywood to Fort Lauderdale. The runaway car sheared off one side of the old Dania train station and then collided with an automobile, injuring the driver, an elderly man, seriously.

There were numerous reports of fires at Fort Lauderdale. In one, flames levelled a building being used to protect automobiles from the storm.

At Pompano Beach, two persons were trapped at the height of the storm when the wind crumpled their trailer home. Rescuers got them out unharmed.

At Cape Kennedy, six space rockets were lashed down and other hurried preparations made for a big blow.

Many residents and business men in Miami boarded up in advance of the storm. But many others, careless after a 14-year period in which the city saw only one hurricane, did not.

Those who didn't returned to the gloomy dawn to find plate glass windows shattered and store interiors wrecked. Mannequins blown from the display window of one store sprawled like bodies in the street.

STORES LOOTED

Looting began soon after winds began to explode. In the fury of the storm, the thieves easily eluded police.

Cable failure knocked the National Hurricane Centre out of operation and the Washington weather bureau took over the filing of advisories until the Miami operation could be re-established at International Airport.

Key Biscayne, an island with a large residential colony across Biscayne Bay from Miami, was largely evacuated before the storm struck and high tides blocked the causeway to the mainland.

The 85-foot yacht Electromatic broke loose from its mooring and crashed into television's famed houseboat, Surfside Six, in Indian Creek in front of the Fontainebleau.

More than 300 stranded travellers slept on benches at Miami International Airport. But even the huge, terminal didn't escape Cleo's fury. Windows blew out on two concourses and rain and wind whistled into exposed sections of the building.

A boat smashed into the 27th Avenue bridge over the Miami River, putting the busy crossing out of commission.

In the first gales ahead of the hurricane, two trusties working on the roof of the county jail took advantage of the confusion and fled barefooted into the storm.

Hospitals held staffs overtime to treat the injured. Many persons were reported injured by flying glass and other objects.

Miami enjoyed a long period of calm while the eye was over the city and Police Lieut. James Ford said dozens of looters raided the damaged shops and stores, carrying off liquor, clothing, food and other items.

Behind the hurricane lay a swath of death and destruction in the Caribbean, with 14 dead in Guadeloupe, at least 60 in Haiti.

The Bahamas islands, east of Miami, also took a pummelling from blinding rain and winds. Water ran two feet deep in some streets of the capital city of Nassau.

54-Year-Old Albania Nun Most Popular Missionary

By V. M. NAIR

CALCUTTA (Reuters) — Mother Theresa, a 54-year-old nun from Albania, is the most popular foreign missionary working in India today.

She has captured the hearts of literally millions of poor Indians.

Fifteen years ago, few had heard of her. Today, she is a legendary figure and her selfless service in the cause of the poor, the dying, the destitute and the abandoned has won her all-India fame.

The "Missionaries of Charity" congregation, which Mother Theresa founded, now has more than 150 nuns. They have carried their founder's work in Calcutta to Delhi, Bombay and another half dozen Indian cities.

Starting with a simple attempt to care for the sick and help the poor, she now runs a mobile leprosy clinic, a children's home, 14 primary schools and seven clinics, including one for tuberculosis patients—all in Calcutta alone.

She also has established a home for rehabilitate street walkers and another for dying destitutes.

SERVICES RECOGNIZED

In 1962, she was awarded $10,000 for her "merciful cognizance of the abject poor of a foreign land, in whose service she has led a new congregation."

The Indian government, which often has looked upon the activities of foreign Christian missionaries with suspicion, also singled her out for a rare honor. She was awarded the "padma shri" an Indian decoration given to outstanding persons.

Mother Theresa came to India in 1929, as a Loretto nun and teacher. A few yards away from her school she used to see the poor trying to eke out a living in the slums and was deeply moved by children crying for food and the misery and disease common among the slum dwellers.

She wanted to do whatever she could, but her hands were tied as long as she continued to be a cloistered nun.

LIVES OUTSIDE CONVENT

With the encouragement of her immediate superiors she obtained permission from the Pope to live outside her convent "in order to spend herself in the service of the poor and the needy in the slums of Calcutta, and to gather around her some companions to undertake the same work."

That was in August, 1948, a year after India achieved independence.

She took training as a nurse and then ventured out into Calcutta's teeming slums alone. Her devotion to the cause of the poor attracted scores of other dedicated girls from other parts of India and from five other nations.

They became the nucleus of the Missionaries of Charity. They spend their probation period working in the slums. They pledge themselves to remain unmarried, poor and dedicated to the cause of the needy.

Mother Theresa is little concerned about converting those whom she tends. She makes no distinction between Christians and non - Christians. All who need help are welcomed.

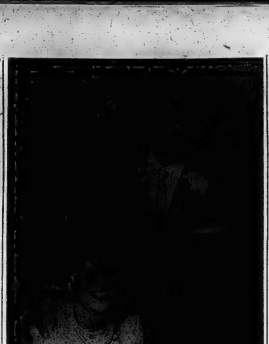
The Royal Conservatory of Music has announced that Miss Carol Burpee, R.R. 2, Brighton, and Miss Linda Lee Noakes, 11 Holloway Street, Belleville have achieved highest marks in 1964 in Ontario, Grade 111 in the practical examinations for piano. As a result the candidates have each been awarded a Conservatory silver medal and a Frederick Harris tuition scholarship.

S. S. Sponsors Ice Cream Social



GORE — Victoria United Church Sunday School on the Redmerville charge sponsored an ice cream social on Tuesday evening and in spite of the heavy rain and electric storm a large crowd gathered. Rev. G. Ambury was chairman for the program.

Mrs. Dennet showed beautiful pictures and told about life "down under" in Australia which proved most interesting and informative.

Mrs. Dennet's home is in Australia and she is at present holidaying with her parents, Mr. and Mrs. Hatfield of Hutt's Island. Friends gathered from far and near to see and hear the program. The Sunday School is most grateful to Mrs. Dennet for sharing some of her experiences in Australia.

Following the program all were invited to the dining hall for cake and ice cream and a fine social time was enjoyed.

Proceeds of the evening were most gratifying.

MR. AND MRS. GEORGE STAFFORD BUTLER

Butler – Lee

Pink and white gladioli adorned the altar in College Hill United Church for the recent marriage of Marcia Ade Lee, daughter of Mr. and Mrs. F. Belleville to George Stafford Butler, son of Mr. and Mrs. Ivor Butler, Belleville. The Rev. R. Vessey officiated at the ceremony.

Traditional wedding music was provided by Mrs. Blakely and appropriate vocal selections were rendered by Mrs. West.

The bride, given in marriage by her father was wearing a floor length bridal gown of over taffeta featuring a fitted bodice with scalloped neckline and long lily point sleeves. A nylon net waist-length veil flowed from a tiara headpiece. She carried a cascade bouquet of red roses.

The matron of honor, Mrs. R. Wessels and the bridesmaids Mrs. C. Loft and Mrs. J. Stewart, all sisters of the bride were identically attired in dresses of blue chiffon over taffeta and carried cascade bouquets of pink 'mums. The little flower girl was a niece of the bride dressed in white, fashioned similar to the bride's, and carried a nosegay of red roses.

Mr. Charles Butler attended his brother as groomsman, while a brother - in - law, Mr. Frank Ray and Mr. Kleinstenber were the ushers.

Following the ceremony a reception was held in the basement hall at College Hill United Church where the bride's table was prettily appointed and centred with a four - tier wedding cake topped with miniature bride and bridegroom. The bride's mother received wearing a blue chiffon over peau de soie dress and a corsage of pink roses. She was assisted by the bridegroom's mother who wore a beige peau de soie dress and a corsage of Talisman roses.

For the wedding trip through New York State the bride chose a pink ensemble, white accessories and a corsage of pink roses.

Guests were present from Markham, Napanee, Brampton and Belleville.

Miscellaneous showers honoring the bride were given by Mrs. Gwen Ray and by Miss Emmy Empey.

Mr. and Mrs. Butler will reside at 83A Byrier Street, Belleville.

WEDDING

Meehan – Wilson

MARMORA — White candles and white 'mums graced the altar of St. Patrick's Church, Niagara Falls, Ontario, on Saturday morning, August 22, when Miss Carol Elizabeth Wilson exchanged vows with Mr. Leo Gerard Meehan, son of Mr. and Mrs. William Meehan, Marmora. The double-ring ceremony was conducted by the Rev. Barry Kremer.

The bride, only daughter of Mr. and Mrs. Walter Wilson of Marmora, Ontario, was given in marriage by her uncle, Mr. E. R. Pigden. Her full-length gown was of crisp taffeta veiled with pure silk organza. It was fashioned with a fitted bodice, portrait neckline and elbow length sleeves trimmed with lace appliqués. Lace appliqué flowers arranged in a heart, set off the controlled skirt. The full back fell in a full petal shaped cathedral train dotted with lace appliqué flowers. Two lace gauntlets held in place a four-tier silk illusion veil. She carried a bouquet of red roses, stephanotis and English ivy.

Wedding music was played by Miss Eunice Leahey and Mrs. P. Mavrinac was soloist.

Mrs. John Matthews of Quebec City, as matron of honor, wore a gown of pink terylene over taffeta, deigned with short puff sleeves and full skirt complemented by a velvet ribbon at the waist in a deeper color. She chose a large flat bow of pink velvet ribbon decorated with pink roses for her headdress and she carried a bouquet of pink and white 'mums.

Mrs. Alex Foster of Stoney Creek, sister of the bridegroom and Miss Sandra Cunningham of Niagara-on-The-Lake, bridesbaids, were attired similarly to the matron of honor, but in turquoise.

Little Miss Cheryl Brady of Marmora was the flower girl, dressed the same as the matron of honor.

Mr. William Meehan Jr. of Marmora, brother of the bridegroom, was groomsman and ushers were Mr. Alex Foster, brother-in-law of the bridegroom and Mr. Lou Wilson, brother of the bride.

The mother of the bride was attired in a royal blue silk sheath with bouffo jacket, yellow roses and white feather 'mums formed her corsage. The bridegroom's mother wore a sheath of beige lace and her corsage was of red rosebuds and cream rose.

The bride chose for her honeymoon a pink jumper sheath over a white three-quarter length coat of cotton lace, white hat and accessories. The ensemble was complimented by a pink rose corsage. Following a motor trip to Calgary the couple will reside in Belleville.

Guests were present from Marmora, Msdoc, Toronto, Kingston, Peterborough, Sudbury, Hamilton, Niagara Falls, N.Y., Niagara Falls, Ont., Quebec City and Florida.

Mrs. Thomas Brady, Marmora was hostess at a shower for the bride at which she received gifts of kitchen ware, including crystal and china. Mrs. Delbert Robinson, Niagara Falls was also hostess to a matched china and crystal shower.

Friends Hold Kitchen Shower

CENTENARY — Mrs. W. Shortt was hostess at a kitchen shower in honor of Miss Ruth Slavin of Belleville who is to be married. Ruth lived in Centenary community before moving to Belleville and attended church and school here.

Mrs. Fred Means and Miss Patsy Sargent led in some contests. Ruth received a number of useful and attractive gifts for which she thanked Mrs. Shortt and her friends for their kindness.

Mrs. Shortt and neighbors served refreshments.

Catholic Women's League Assists Vanier Institute

By BRENDA LARGE

CHARLOTTETOWN (CP) — The Catholic Women's League on Wednesday became the first national voluntary organization in Canada to lend its financial support to the new Vanier Institute on the Family.

The league will raise funds by voluntary contributions from its 150,000 members across Canada and donate the money to the institute as a centennial project.

No goal for the fund-raising campaign was set. But in preliminary discussions on the league's centennial project at the CWL national convention here, the figure $100,000 was mentioned by members of the national executive as suitable.

The Vanier Institute was set up in June, following the Governor-General's conference on the family in Ottawa. It is to direct research into the problems of modern family life.

The national president of the league, Mrs. Herman Stevens of Calgary who attended the family conference, told the 300 CWL delegates Wednesday:

"I was most impressed by the great need for further study and research into the grave problems confronting our families. I'm sure our CWL members will understand the need, and each individual member will want to make her voluntary contribution from her heart."

Most Rev. Thomas J. McCarthy, bishop of St. Catherines, Ont., and the league's national director, said he thought the Vanier Institute the "kind of thing that would demand national action."

"I don't think this type of project would be hard to sell to the parish CWL councils. It gives something permanent that will have positive results."

Mother's Helper

EXPERIMENTS with growing things are always interesting to children. If yours would like to try to produce a small palm tree, provide them with the top of a pineapple. Support it at the top of a pint jar of water and keep the water level up until roots develop. Then it can be moved to sandy soil in a flower pot.

SPEAKING of MANNERS

PATRICIA LEWIS

MAIL CALL

QUESTION: As we were saying goodnight to our host and hostess at a party recently, I asked them to visit our new home when we were settled. Another couple whom we had met that evening, and with whom we had only slight conversation, was standing nearby and I said they should com- too. They had overheard my invitation, so I felt they had to be included, also. I didn't mean it seriously, but just as a courtesy so they wouldn't feel neglected. Now we're planning a housewarming and I wonder if they remember my casual invitation and should be invited, even though we hardly know them. What do you think I should do about this? — Mrs. E. B., Hartford, Conn.

ANSWER: Unfortunately, this is the sort of predicament that often results when invitations are given so casually. Possibly they didn't take it seriously. Most "courtesy" invitations of this sort are usually forgotten immediately, so I don't think you've beenbound to invite them to your housewarming, which is usually meant for close friends anyway. If, through mutual friends, you get any inkling the couple in question took you seriously, and look forward to being invited, then you should extend an invitation.

QUESTION: My husband and I plan to visit the New York World's Fair in late summer, when he gets his vacation. Judging from pictures we've seen in the newspapers and on television, fair-goers seem to dress quite casually. However, we plan to go to several of the excellent restaurants we've read about. We'll probably be at the Fair on three different evenings, but will also be at the Fair in the afternoons. Is casual dress permitted in the gourmet restaurants, or should we plan to dress for them? Since we won't be able to change for dinner at the Fair, what would you suggest we wear? — Mrs. L. A., Peoria, Ill.

ANSWER: While daytime dress at the Fair, as you noted, is quite casual, those who go to the better restaurants for dinner usually dress the same as they would for a restaurant in town. A two-piece dress is the most practical solution. The jacket may be removed during the heat of the day and it's comfortable to have along for air-conditioning at night. Your husband can wear either a lightweight summer suit or slacks, a conservative sports jacket, white shirt and tie.

Ann Landers

Forget Incident Before It Becomes Important

ANN LANDERS

DEAR ANN LANDERS — Last night my husband and I decided to go to a movie. I wore my nicest maternity dress and my new white patent leather shoes. After about 15 minutes my feet began to ache, so I removed my shoes. When the movie was over I tried to get my shoes back on but it was impossible because my feet had swollen. (I am in my eighth month.)

My husband suggested we wait until the place cleared out so I could walk out "unnoticed" in my stocking feet. On the way to the parking lot — me with my shoes in my hand — several people stopped to stare. One woman gasped, "Imagine being drunk in her condition. Isn't it disgraceful?"

This morning my husband called from the office and said everyone is talking about it. Should I phone a few people and explain? — HUMILIATED.

DEAR HUMILIATED — Explain what? That you really weren't drunk? Why give the incident more publicity? Laugh it off and forget it.

* * *

DEAR ANN LANDERS — I am the mother of three sons. The problem concerns the youngest boy who is a high school senior.

Butch has a girl friend, Sally. They do not have much money to spend so they sit around in the evening and watch TV a lot. I've told Butch that when my husband and I are not for the evening, if he wants to have Sally over he must invite another couple to the house.

The boy accuses me of being mean and nasty-minded. He sulks and goes for days without speaking. Butch says when he visits Sally in her home HER parents don't impose such ridiculously strict rules.

If you feel I'm wrong and should change my ideas, please say so. — FIRM BUT SAD MOM.

DEAR MOM — No teen-age boy should be allowed to entertain a girl friend in his home when his parents are not present. What sense, pray tell, does another COUPLE make?

Tell Butch he can't have Sally over unless he asks you in advance. Then STAY AT HOME.

* * *

DEAR ANN LANDERS — Pop has always been reckless with money. He has speculated in figures, invested in penny stocks and bought lots of $10 down and $10 a month. When things got tight he borrowed from loan companies and paid high interest rates. We never said anything because we figured it was his money.

Recently Pop became ill and had to quit work. His income has stopped. My husband and I are the only ones in the family who can help him financially. We have agreed to support him in a rest home if he will get rid of all his so-called investments and pay off as many of his debts as possible. Also, he must promise not to go for any more get-rich-quick schemes.

The rest of the family says we are unfair. They feel we should support Pop and not ask him to change his way of life.

If we do as the family says we will have to forego our vacations and dig into money set aside for our children's college education. Help! — THE GREAT DIVIDE.

DEAR DIVIDE — Since the rest of the family has nothing to contribute but advice, use your own judgment.

It would be foolish to spend your savings to take care of a father who is throwing his money away on pie in the sky deals. Your plan makes sense.

* * *

Too many starry-eyed lovers do not know the difference. Do you? Send for ANN LANDERS booklet, "Before You Marry — Is it Love Or Sex?", enclosing with your request 20 cents in coin and a long, self-addressed, stamped envelope.

Ann Landers will be glad to help you with your problems. Send them to her in care of this newspaper enclosing a stamped, self-addressed envelope.

TO MOTHERS OF LITTLE GALS FROM 5 to HIGH SCHOOL AGE...

How does your daughter grow? With naturally curly hair? If so, we'll cut her hair in a style that will be trim and tantalizing. If not, we'll cut her hair to a perky length and give her a baby soft permanent wave.

No more putting it up every night or after every rain storm. This plan is not only helpful to you, but good for your child. Most little girls are coquettes at heart. We'll wager a child who looks as pretty as she can, will be as smart as she can — and happier — in school.

Male Monopoly in India Is Being Threatened in Astrology and Palmistry

By RUKMINI DEVI
Canadian Press Correspondent

BOMBAY (CP)—A 2,000-year-old male monopoly in India is being threatened.

For the first time, women are invading the professions of astrology and palmistry. And the new entrants seem to be doing pretty well.

By tradition, peeping into the future has been a man's job in the East. Ancient Hindu books on astrology—one manuscript is 2,200 years old — frown upon women casting horoscopes, reading palms and gazing into crystals.

One 12th century Hindu king ordained the death sentence for women who dared to dabble in astrology.

Now in a quiet bylane in central Bombay, a beautiful, long-tressed Hindu woman is earning $100 a month by casting horoscopes. Mrs. Avinash Joshi, a mother of six children, is among Bombay's two dozen female astrologers.

Her clients are mostly businessmen, politicians—and government officials. She charges lower rates to housewives.

Mrs. Joshi learned astrology from her father and grandfather, who were noted astrologers in their day. The grandfather was "astrological consultant" to the royal family of Indore, a clan of maharajas who have now retired.

Most of the women astrologers still function under serious handicaps. Their biggest worry is the hostility of male astrologers who do not like female competition.

Miss Kusum Sharma, a Delhi palmist, says that she is being constantly harassed by "evil-minded young men." She believes some of them are paid by her male rivals in the profession.

"But things have started improving since I started giving astrological advice to a couple of senior police officials," Miss Sharma added.

Pandit C. B. Nambiar, a 65-year-old Bombay palmist, suggests women are not suited to the astrological profession. "The job requires great study and determined objectivity of which women are incapable," Nambiar said.

On the other hand, astrologer Avinash Joshi holds that women are especially qualified "because of the superiority of our intuitive powers which aid the divining process."

Sesame Squares Have Chewy Texture

by Mary Moore

What I wanted were Walnut Squares, but to get walnuts Pete would have had to drive 8 miles to the highway and I was in a hurry. I found a box of sesame seeds among Margy's spice boxes so settled for

Dinner Menus

THURSDAY

Meat loaf, parsley creamed new potatoes, Frenched green beans, relish tray: radishes, cucumber sticks and dill pickles, fresh melon fruit cup, currant cookies, tea.

SUNDAY

Chicken Mexicana (see Wednesday), new green beans, hot rolls, shredded cabbage, apple and pecan salad garnished with tomato wedges, Pear Melba (poached fresh pear half on cake square topped with raspberry sauce), coffee.

SESAME SQUARES:

These are layered pan cookies with a pastry-like bottom.

Bottom Layer: 1¼ cups sifted all-purpose flour, ⅓ cup soft margarine, ½ cup well-packed, moist light brown sugar.

Top Layer: ¾ cup well-packed, light brown sugar, 2 tablespoons flour, 2-3 teaspoon baking powder, 1 egg, ½ teaspoon vanilla, ¼ teaspoon almond extract (optional), one 2¼-oz. package sesame seeds.

Make bottom layer by creaming together well the ⅓ cup margarine, ½ cup brown sugar, then mixing in the 1¼ cups flour until blended. Pat this smoothly into 13½ x 9½ x ¾" greased pan, size of jelly roll pan. (If you do not have a large shallow pan of size recommended, use two 8 x 8" pans.)

Make top layer by blending together the ¾ cup brown sugar, 2 tablespoons flour and baking powder. Now add the egg, vanilla and almond extract (if used) and beat with rotary beater until foamy. Fold in sesame seeds. (Obviously you can see that if you do not have sesame seeds and do have chopped walnuts or cocoanut you could substitute ½ cup of either of these or ¼ cup of both for the sesame seeds.) Spread evenly over cooled bottom layer.

Return to oven and bake on centre rack at 350 deg. Fahr. for 13 to 18 minutes. Top may appear slightly underbaked, but be sure not to overbake these. Cool slightly in pan and if desired dredge lightly with sifted icing sugar.

While still warm in pan cut into strips approximately 3 x 2".

Barring burglars, these keep well if when cold they are removed from pan with spatula and stored in single layers between wax paper, in tightly covered tin.

These sesame squares have a nutty, chewy flavor and are different and highly recommended.

To make a little juice for shortcake from fresh berries or other fruit, here's a hint from the Foods Department at Macdonald Institute, Guelph. Add half corn syrup and half sugar to sweeten fruit. Let stand at least a half hour before serving to make the syrup.

Weekly Publishers Urged To Better Community Service

TORONTO (CP) — Weekly newspaper publishers were urged Wednesday to meet competition head-on by providing better service to their communities and by giving editorial opinions on matters of current community interest.

Charles H. Nolan of Stouffville, president of the Canadian Weekly Newspaper Association, told the CWNA annual meeting the challenge of competition should make alert weekly publishers work harder to "record the vital statistics of daily living, to supply background information and give editorial opinions on matters of current interest."

"We must have publishers who are ready to stand up and be counted in their . . . communities, who will not let their newspapers become pale reflections of a robust past."

He said any idea that weekly newspapers are fading is straying from the facts, despite the advent of the give-away weekly and competition from television and daily newspapers for national advertising revenue.

Many a Canadian community, Mr. Nolan said, would have no voice at all if it did not have a weekly newspaper.

FELLS OF CENTENNIAL

John Fisher, Canadian centennial commissioner, outlined activities and projects planned to mark Canada's centennial observance in 1967.

He said the publishers could assist by encouraging an interest in local history and Canadiana among their readers.

He cited one project, that of the Canadian Library Association, which consists of putting on file all available newspapers of the Confederation period.

The project, supported by a $12,000 grant from the centennial commission, would preserve invaluable Canadiana that otherwise might be lost or destroyed.

He solicited the aid of CWNA publishers in locating issues of some newspapers that may be missing and urged them to encourage their readers to search in "attics, trunks and strong-boxes" for copies of old newspapers or other Canadiana.

Two Railways Win Awards In Safety

MONTREAL — Canada's two major railways—Canadian National and Canadian Pacific—have been named winners of the public safety activities award of the National Safety Council.

The two roads along with 12 United States railroads have received the honor for conducting outstanding programs in 1963 for their employees and for the general public.

The non-competitive awards recognize such varied activities by the railroads as participation of their personnel in community safety activities, off-the-job-safety programs for employees, co-operation with local safety councils and civic groups, and attention to public safety in institutional advertising and public information work.

Computer Takes Over Kids Read in 30 Hours

NEW YOR K(AP)—Teachers need not worry, but a sophisticated computer system has taught a group of children in Freeport, N.Y., how to read without formal human instruction.

John Henry Martin, superintendent of Freeport public schools, reported that the children who learned reading from the computer in 30 hours "could read significantly better" than others taught by traditional methods.

Called the Edison Responsive Environment System, the computer talks, listens, presents pictorial and graphic material and even comments and explains.

Here's how it works:

A child goes into a booth where he is alone with a "talking typewriter." He touches a letter key on the multi-colored keyboard and the computer responds by pronouncing and typing the letter.

He soon discovers how letters, symbols and numerals look and sound, later expanding them into words, sentences and stories—all within 30 hours of "instrumented instruction."

The Freeport experiment started five months ago when the Responsive Environment Corp. of the Thomas A. Edison Laboratory in New York invited the Freeport public schools to conduct an experiment to determine the instrument's validity.

The pilot project was supported by the local board of education and the state department of education.

The experiment with 20 kindergarten and mentally retarded children showed that intelligence and sex made no difference.

During the last five months, "no one ever spoke in loud tones," Martin said. "Hurry was forbidden. A generally pleasant hush was maintained in order to keep the children in a neutral atmosphere."

As for teachers, they merely observed the child's progress through an unseen one - way viewing mirror.

Whipper Watson Wants to Enter Federal Politics

TORONTO (CP) — Toronto wrestling champion Whipper Billy Watson said Wednesday he has decided to try to enter federal politics.

He said he will seek the Progressive Conservative nomination in York East riding "when I was brought up and lived all my life."

He said he would retire from wrestling if elected to Parliament.

Mr. Watson, who met with Conservative Leader John Diefenbaker in Ottawa last week, said he "was very impressed and this had a lot to do with my decision."

"Mr. Diefenbaker is one of the finest men I have ever met. "I always wanted to go into politics to do something for crippled children and improve training facilities of the athletes we send to the Olympics."

The Massive Deterrent From 1749 -- But Nary a Shot Fired in Anger!

By DON LeBLANC

HALIFAX (CP) —A cannon has never been fired in anger from Citadel Hill in the centre of this Nova Scotia capital, and never has the ancient fortress been called upon to resist invasion. Completed in 1749 and rebuilt three times, it has served its purpose merely by existing.

Citadel Hill now is the most popular of Canada's national historic parks. Drawing 250,000 visitors a year, its two museums—the army museum and the historical branch of the Nova Scotia museum of science —are open all year.

Exhibits of early life in Nova Scotia, including dress, furniture and farm implements, fill one restored building.

But perhaps the greatest single attraction in the provincial museum is a life-like model of Angus MacAskill, the Cape Breton Giant. The seven-foot-nine-inch giant was born in Scotland in 1825 and died at St Ann's, Cape Breton, in 1863. He weighed 425 pounds and wore a 24-inch boot, which is displayed near the model.

The army museum, housed in casemates, contains everything from swords, spears and suits of armor to a full-sized model of a Mic-Mac Indian dressed in the normal attire of the period.

Among the collections is a model of Halifax as it was in 1750, a year after its founding as a British navy and army base.

At that time the entire community was encompassed by a number of forts linked together by wooden palisades as a protection against marauding Indians. Planned by Edward Cornwallis after he arrived here with more than 2,500 settlers, it was part of the first citadel.

Twelve years later the small fort was considered obsolete.

GUNS ADDED

The work of constructing the second citadel began in 1761 under Maj-Gen. Bastide but it stopped a year later. His system of irregular earth and sod fieldworks was considerably enlarged and strengthened about 1776 by Captain William Spry who added many guns and a wooden blockhouse to serve among other purposes, as a barracks for 100 men.

The period of marked activity on the Citadel was a result of the American Revolution but work ceased when peace came.

A decade later, during Napoleon's rapid rise to power, Halifax defences were again in need of repair.

When the Duke of Kent, then Prince Edward, became commander-in-chief at Halifax in 1794, he undertook to rebuild the fortress, using a new and simpler plan than those of his predecessors. The task took four years and Prince Edward named the Citadel Fort George in honor of his father, George III.

In the construction, Prince Edward had called for a field work "to contain 1,000 men with log bomb-proofs for 650 men, a magazine for powder to contain 1,200 barrels, and one for provisions to contain all kinds of species for three months."

Fort George had all this and more but, by 1825—27 years after its completion—a stone bomb - proof magazine, added during the War of 1812, was all that remained.

It was the War of 1812 that made Britain aware of the need for a permanent fortress here as a strong Atlantic base.

REBUILT AGAIN

Under orders from Britain, Col. Gustavus Nicholls began building the fourth citadel in 1828. Work on the fort went on for a number of years but less than 40 years after it was started, the extensive facilities were considered obsolete.

British troops garrisoned the Citadel until Canada took over its own defences in 1906. During the First World War it was used as a detention camp for prisoners and suspicious aliens and during the Second World War as a radio station, signal post and as a site for anti-aircraft guns and searchlights.

The Citadel's condition went from bad to worse before the resources and development department, now the northern affairs and national resources department, took it over in 1951. It was to become a national historic park five years later.

The work of restoring the Citadel goes on. Casemates must be repaired, the great wall surrounding the fort kept up and old guns remounted.

"We must keep everything authentic," says G. L. Scott, regional director of national parks for the northern affairs and national resources department.

"It means getting details of the fort exactly as they were years ago but yet constructing it with lasting qualities."

TAKES DIVORCE ACTION

SANTA MONICA, Calif. (AP) Actress Jayne Mansfield sued Tuesday to save a 1963 Mexican divorce from Mickey Hargitay declared valid. The couple reconciled after she obtained the divorce April 30, 1963, in Chihuahua. Friends say they now are estranged.

ITS ONLY WAR—AGAINST THE ELEMENTS—The fortress on Citadel Hill was completed 215 years ago in 1749. Its purpose was as a British navy and army base and a protection against marauding Indians. But a cannon has never been fired in anger from its ramparts and its inhabitants have never had to resist invasion. Its only war has been against obsolescence and the elements. (CP Photo)

Demands Echo for Tighter Controls After Suspension Of Commission Director

TORONTO (CP)—Sharp demands for tighter government regulations echoed Wednesday in the wake of the suspension of John H. Campbell, administration director of the Ontario Securities Commission, for possible involvement in the trading of shares of a mining company under OSC scrutiny.

Members of the legislature called for more stringent regulations to protect the investing public and for efforts to prevent conflicts of interest.

Mr. Campbell, 50, was suspended indefinitely Tuesday by Attorney - General Arthur Wishart, who said the OSC director may have been involved directly or indirectly in the trading of shares of Windfall Oils and Mines Ltd.

A spectacular rise in the price of Windfall shares and their equally shocking collapse has touched off a continuing barrage of criticism.

Three investigations, including a one-man royal commission appointed by Premier Robarts, are under way.

TOOK PART LAST FALL

Mr. Campbell, a lawyer appointed to the OSC last November, said Wednesday he has done nothing "illegal, immoral or unethical," and added he is sure the continuing investigation will result in the suspension being lifted.

Mr. Campbell also told reporters that he has seen noted mining figure Mrs. Viola MacMillan and her husband George, Windfall president, several times both socially and officially since he first met them last March.

Mrs. MacMillan is head of the Prospectors and Developers Association, a post she has held for 21 years.

It was an announcement by George MacMillan that sent the shares of Windfall shares tumbling more than $3 in one day's hectic trading, after they had climbed to a high of $5.60 from 56 cents in less than a month on rumors of a rich find near Timmins.

Mr. MacMillan said diamond drilling had discovered no valuable ore and the shares fell to less than $1. They now are selling in the 50-55 cent range.

ROBARTS SILENT

Premier Robarts declined to comment on the suspension, but Kelso Roberts, lands and forests minister in the cabinet and a former attorney - general described it as "shocking."

He said it is "unthinkable that anyone in that sort of position should trade in stocks." He suggested the government might look at preventive legislation.

Alfred Cowling, member for High Park and lone in the Progressive Conservative government, said he would favor a law outlawing public officials holding stock if it conflicted with their jobs.

George Yeck (PC—Scarborough Centre) said any official involved in conflicts of interest "has no place."

Donald MacDonald, NDP leader in Ontario, demanded an investigation of relationship between the OSC and the Toronto Stock Exchange and described Mr. Campbell's suspension as "simply one more of the persistent scandals which have plagued the Ontario government."

Govt. Said Ready to Accept Compromise on New Flag

OTTAWA (CP)—The government is ready to accept major compromises in its proposal for a national flag for Canada, it was learned Wednesday night.

Overtures already have been made to Liberal opposition MPs by at least one government supporter for designs describing the Red Ensign, but that the maple leaf flag now proposed by the government.

A basic plank of the government's flag platform, however, still is that there should be a national flag for Canada that cannot be confused with the flag of any other country.

This rules out any adaptation of the Red Ensign, similar to the flags of a number of Commonwealth countries and British colonies and based on the British merchant marine flag—the Union Jack in one corner on a field of red.

SUGGEST ADAPTATION

But an adaptation of the Red Ensign—itself a variation of the so-called Blue Ensign?— might be acceptable to the government as a flag representing Canada's Queen and Commonwealth membership in the Commonwealth.

At least, this proposition has been advanced privately and informally to the Conservatives by a prominent Liberal.

As a flag for Canada's national identity, apart altogether from its Queen and Commonwealth connection, one of the flag designs tentatively suggested by Liberal go-between in their private meetings with Opposition supporters is a radical variation of the maple leaf flag.

Its background would be pale blue—similar to the color of the United Nations' flag. The overlaying symbol would be either one three - pointed maple leaves in scarlet.

Highest government authori ities are said to favor such a flag even over the maple leaf design on a white background and with blue bars preserved, to Parliament by Prime Minister Pearson. They are reported now to be ready to adopt it over the advice of experts in heraldry.

PONDER INTRODUCTION

The main problem said to be confronting the government and its Liberal supporters is having the compromise introduced in the commons if it is accepta ble to the House generally.

The government does not want to appear to be giving way to Opposition pressure against the original maple leaf design but is reported ready to accept a form of any variation which would be acceptable as compromise.

Along with the maple leaf flag, the government's original proposal was that the Union Jack in the upper quarter next to the flagstaff on a field of deep blue, with a Canadian device on the fly.

Princess Forced To Abandon Ship In Heavy Sea

OLBIA, Sardinia (AP)—Britain's Princess Margaret, her husband Lord Snowdon and others were forced to abandon ship Wednesday in heavy seas off Sardinia, Italy, the royal household confirmed today. The officials said, all are well.

Mario Cervi Bonnichi, prefect of Sassari City and main administrative officer for this vacation area, said police had investigated the accident.

"Benissimo," was Castellucci's one-word reply when asked how the princess, Lord Snowdon and the Aga Khan were. It means fine.

Employees of the Aga Khan said this happened:

The Amalouna was sailing close to the shore of Mortorio when it struck a rock and came to a standstill.

Water began taking water through a hole punched by the rock, so the yacht's lifeboats were launched.

The princess and her husband donned lifejackets, clambered into the boats, were reported safe and were safely landed on Mortorio, where they waited until a larger vessel came and took them back to Sardinia.

The Amalouna apparently wasn't damaged badly. The yacht remained afloat and was later towed to Sardinia for repairs.

Bankruptcy New Problem For Fat Man

LONDON (AP)—John Martin weighed 350 pounds and kept losing jobs, so he went on a diet. He also took up gambling, and now he's got a new problem—bankruptcy.

"I couldn't get a job because I was too fat," Martin, 39, testified in bankruptcy court Tuesday. "Employers would take one look at me and say: 'Sorry, but your weight puts you out.'"

Martin said he used to be a truck driver. But when his waistline reached 60 inches he couldn't squeeze behind the wheel.

Then he took over a toy shop. But he couldn't bend down to pick up boxes, so he had to hire assistants.

And he had to buy a big, expensive car.

"It had to be large," he said, "because I couldn't get into a small one."

"When you're fat," he said, "you can't travel by bus. You get so many ignorant people staring at you because you take up two seats."

All this put him into debt. His money trouble really became serious, he said, when he tried gambling to get out of hock. Now he owes £2,854.

Martin's diet knocked off 76 pounds and 20 inches from his waistline. This enabled him to get a job as a cab driver—his present occupation.

The bankruptcy examiner asked how he managed to reduce so drastically.

"Partly by cutting down on starch and liquids — and partly by not buying over money," Mrstin said.

11 Maple Trees Saved by Children

LAMBETH, Ont. (CP) — About 80 children, swinging from branches, prevented work men Wednesday from destroying a row of 11 maple trees in this village just south of London.

The workmen were forced to quit after cutting only a few branches. The trees have been ordered cleared to make way for a road widening program.

But homeowners have protested their removal and when workmen arrived to remove the trees, children clambered into the branches, emptied gasoline from three portable chain saws and generally harassed the workmen.

They retreated to the cheers of the children and the music of a three-piece, teen age band.

Toni Cowlishaw Believes Husband Did Right Thing

VANCOUVER (CP) — Toni Cowlishaw, wife of the man whose "blood bomb" splattered across the House of Commons carpet Monday night, believes her husband "did what he had to do."

The petite brunette, mother of six girls, is the wife of David Cowlishaw, former newspaper reporter who formed an organization called Underdog to plead the case of the downtrodden.

"I didn't know he was going to do this thing," Mrs. Cowlishaw said in an interview. "But I know he must have felt he had to do it."

Cowlishaw said in Ottawa he threw the carton of blood to the floor of the House to publicize the grievance of Calvin Macdonald, who claims to have been an undercover agent of the RCMP working with the Communists.

Macdonald has been attempting for 2 year to obtain public confirmation from the RCMP that his connection with the Communist party was in the line of duty.

"Every wife must be her husband's advocate," Mrs Cowlishaw said.

DOESN'T KNOW PLANS

"I don't know what he plans to do next, but he's tenacious—he'll never let go of the Macdonald case."

Cowlishaw, still in Ottawa, said he would undertake a crusade against narcotics, "especially indignation for the case Calvin Macdonald."

Like her husband, Toni is a former newspaper employee. She met her husband while she was working for the Vancouver Province.

"When I met him, David had been seeking for something like Underdog for a long time. Now it's his whole life."

He works full-time at Underdog. Any time left over is for writing about his work on a freelance basis to pay household bills.

"Money is usually a problem," Toni said.

She said she does not think the six girls have suffered from their father's activities.

'MISSED NOTHING'

"They've missed nothing, think they've gained, if only in that they have travelled. Most homes the children are taught in our home they see a living example. You can't go wrong if you set a good example for your children."

The children range from 11 months to seven years. Janet was born in Montreal. Pamela and Sally were born in Victoria, Vicki in England, Yvonne in North Vancouver and Lisa in Toronto.

Toni Cowlishaw and her six girls live in an area about 20 miles from Vancouver. They have no telephone. She declines to pose for pictures.

"Underdog is David's baby—it's his whole life. I don't want to clutter the image."

Parliament At a Glance

By THE CANADIAN PRESS

WEDNESDAY, Aug. 26, 1964

Six members—five Conservatives and one Liberal—spoke in the 15th day of the Commons flag debate. There was no progress.

Prime Minister Pearson said in the question period "nothing could be more important than to bring the present debate on the flag to a decision."

Clement Vincent (PC—Nipissing-Yamaska) proposed a new flag design with a single green maple leaf as the centre of a cross formed by red, white and blue bars.

Finance Minister Gordon announced Canada and Japan have been unable to agree on a 1964 quote for worsted fabrics exported to this country by Japan.

Justice Minister Favreau said he will investigate a grievance against the RCMP which led to the "blood bomb" incident in the Commons.

THURSDAY, Aug. 27

The Commons meets at 2 p.m. to continue the flag debate. The Senate is adjourned to Sept. 15.

Nazi Party Members Put Out of Town

ATLANTIC CITY (AP) — Eight members of the Ameri can Nazi party Wednesday were given 90-day suspended sentences and ordered out of town on charges resulting from a disturbance in front of Convention Hall Monday.

The stormy troopers, still in the uniforms and red Swastika armbands they wore when arrested, lined up in military fashion before Municipal Judge F. Frederick Farris.

They pleaded guilty to charges of participating in a disturbing assembly and also molesting and interfering.

They caused a disturbance Monday when they marched on the boardwalk in front of Convention Hall, site of the Democratic national convention, with signs reading "President John son is a traitor."

LOSES LEG

HOF, West Germany (AP)—An East German refugee—his leg blown off by a Communist land mine — hung entangled in barbed wire for more than an hour Wednesday before, dragging himself to freedom in the West. His two children, unharmed, accompanied him on his escape.

Socred Leader Not Associated With Group

RED DEER, Alta. (CP)—Social Credit Leader Robert Thompson said Wednesday that the Social Credit Association of Canada has "nothing to do with the Christian Action Movement and attempts to associate me with the group are smear attempts."

Mr. Thompson was commenting on a Toronto Globe and Mail dispatch from Ottawa that the Social Credit leader supports the principles advocated by the movement but does not adhere to the group because of its leadership.

Mr. Thompson said in an interview reports that he is associated with the movement originated with George Dreidiger, president of the British Columbia Social Credit League.

"He (Mr. Dreidiger) is trying to associate me with the Christian Action Movement for reasons which I do not understand."

Mr. Thompson said Mr Dreidiger has a file of correspondence between them and "now I find these reports are being filed to members of Parliament and the press, repratsing statements out of context."

NAME IN LETTERS

Mr. Thompson said the movement has been using his name in letters bearing a Vancouver postmark.

The movement is headed by Ron Gostick of Fleshertos, Ont., publisher of the Canadian Intelligence Service newsletter.

The movement's literature says its policy of government is centred on faith in Christ and says every phase of national life should be responsible to divine law.

The group says its is royalist, pro-Commonwealth, anti-Communist and pro-private enterprise.

Mr. Thompson said the Social Credit Association of Canada has passed motions at its meetings disclaiming any connection with the movement or the Canadian Intelligence Service.

Two Killed In Explosion

HUDSON HOPE, B.C. (CP)—A miner and an electrician were killed Wednesday when a gas explosion ripped through a 1,000-foot drainage tunnel at the nearby Peace River hydro project.

Three other men, standing at the entrance to the tunnel, were injured by the force of the blast.

They were flown to hospital at Fort St. John, 40 miles east of this northeastern British Columbia community.

The electrician was John Robert Gillis, 50, of South Burnaby, B.C. The name of the second victim was withheld by police who said he is survived by his mother in Ontario.

Testimony of Former Mayor Of Orillia at Perjury Trial Admitted as Crown Evidence

ORILLIA (CP) — Testimony given by former Orillia mayor Wilbur Cramp at a perjury trial earlier this year was admitted as Crown evidence Wednesday at his own trial on charges laid in connection with Northern Ontario Natural Gas Company Limited.

Magistrate A. J. Marck allowed testimony given by Cramp at the trial of Ralph K. Farris, president of NONG, but delayed until today a ruling on other testimony given by Cramp at a 1962 hearing of the Ontario Securities Commission.

Cramp pleaded not guilty to three charges: Accepting NONG shares in 1956 as a consideration for granting a gas franchise in Orillia; accepting shares to block a franchise agreement with Consumers Gas Limited, and conspiring with Farris in these dealings.

Three other former Ontario mayors face similar charges, but have not yet come to trial. They are Mr. Justice Leo Landerville, who left the bench temporarily in 1956 to take a seat on the Ontario Supreme Court bench; Wanda Miller of Cornwall, and Glen Coates of Brantford.

FARRIS ILL

It was learned last week that Farris, 53, of Vancouver, has cancer and the Crown could proceed with two charges against him of conspiring with Landerville to obtain a gas franchise.

Chrysler Is Target Company For Strike Called for Sept. 9

DETROIT (AP) — The United Auto Workers Union has singled out Chrysler Corp. as its No. 1 strike target in efforts to obtain new contracts for 500,000 U.S. auto plant workers.

UAW President Walter Reuther told reporters early Wednesday night that the walkout at Chrysler would begin at 10 a.m. Sept. 9 if no settlement is reached during from the bargaining table by that time.

Reuther said Chrysler General Motors and Ford—the auto industry's Big Three—had adopted a "narrow, selfish attitude" in negotiations and are denying the workers a share of record - breaking profits.

The union's contracts with all three firms expire Monday, but Reuther said the strike deadline was set beyond that date to allow several days at the bargaining table in efforts to avoid a walkout.

Reuther said Chrysler was selected because it had what it termed "an economic and moral obligation" to repay the UAW for 1961 contract concessions.

At that time, he contended, Chrysler was in deep financial trouble and there was a question of whether the company would be around today.

"The UAW—without any pressure and without any precedent — accepted a share of responsibility for making conditions in the Chrysler Corporation as our contribution to getting this company back on its feet and giving the present management an opportunity to try and get the company out of its difficulties," Reuther said.

Chrysler now is the second largest profitmaker among the auto industry. Reuther said, earning $114,400,000 after taxes during the first six months of this year. This, he said, was a 25-per-cent return on its investment.

The UAW has rejected as "inadequate" virtually identical offers from the three automakers for three-year contracts providing higher wages, earlier retirement, larger pensions and other benefits.

Walter Hickey, president (administration), said Chrysler would make every effort to reach an agreement that is equitable to all concerned.

SUGGESTS SCHOOL

SASKATOON (CP) — Establishment of a journalism department at a western Canada university was advocated Wednesday by Professor John I. Wild, head of the journalism department at the University of Western Ontario. Prof. Wild said a western Canada journalism course would ease financial burdens for students who found it necessary to travel long distances for training.

Early Decision On Flag Issue Is Requested

OTTAWA (CP) — Prime Minister Pearson told the Commons Wednesday he has had "a great many communications" from people who hope for an early decision in the flag debate.

He had been asked by Douglas Fisher (NDP — Port Arthur) whether the extension of a substantial public opinion that favored neither the Liberal design nor the proposed three-leaf flag.

Gordon Churchill (PC — Winnipeg South Centre) asked whether Mr. Pearson would consider devoting two full days next week to departmental spending estimates, rather than one day as at present.

The prime minister replied that "nothing could be more important" than bringing the flag debate to an end. The House had spent 15 days on it and was still debating a substantive amendment related to the government resolution.

Stanley Knowles (NDP—Winnipeg North Centre) asked Transport Minister Pickersgill whether he would consider a request by all parties to discuss the redistribution legislation so it will not be subjected to a prolonged debate when it comes before the Commons again.

"An excellent idea" said Mr. Pickersgill. If there was willingness from all parties, a meeting could be held Monday.

Greek Cypriots March Streets In Protest

LIMASSOL, Cyprus (AP) — A half - mile procession of Greek - Cypriots marched through the streets of Limassol Wednesday in a massive anti-American and anti-British demonstration.

Between 2,000 and 3,000 marchers brought traffic to a standstill in this port on the Mediterranean coast. They waved placards reading "Shame, Anglo-American murderers"!

The crowd caught sight of two British soldiers wearing blue berets of the United Nations peace force. They hurled bottles at their jeep but the missiles missed the mark.

Police and some men from the crowd cleared a way for the Britons to escape.

CONVERSION PROGRAM—This mosque in Bukhara, Uzbekistan, undergoes repairs prior to its conversion into a building for secular purposes. Authorities say there still are 250 mosques in Soviet Central Asia operating under a law providing freedom of religion. But a government program to ease religion out of the everyday lives of the population has left a litter of decayed and locked-up mosques throughout the four Asian republics. (CP Photo)

HELP FROM BUILDERS—Crumbling and decaying mosques such as this one in Samarkand are seen regularly in the Soviet republic of Uzbekistan. One reason is because many of the followers of Islam have stopped worshipping. Uzbek historians believe that the conquerer Tamerlane forced its builders to hurry and they made serious mistakes. Completed in 1904, the walls began to crumble soon after. (CP Photo)

In a Soviet Province

A Corner of Islam Is Cut

Abandoned and converted mosques symbolize the Soviet attitude toward religion in the central Asian republic of Uzbekistan. In this story, John Best, Canadian Press correspondent in Moscow, describes the decline of Islam and the emancipation of women in the region.

BY JOHN BEST

TASHKENT (CP)—A symbol of present-day Uzbekistan is the crumbling or converted mosque.

Before the 1917 revolution this corner of the Russian empire was almost entirely Moslem.

Today Islam has been virtually obliterated as an important influence on the lives of the Uzbek people.

Hand in hand with its eclipse has proceeded the emancipation of women, kept deep in the background in Moslem times.

Their resurgence has been of immense consequence to the regional economy, since women now represent a vital component of Uzbekistan's labor force.

The official Communist party line is that social and economic progress, plus expansion of public education, has resulted in most of the population abandoning religion.

"But there is a certain section of the population (the exact number is not known . . .) which continues to profess Islam and freely perform all religious rites," says official government literature.

The laws of the republic ostensibly provide for both freedom of religion and freedom of anti-religious propaganda. But it's easy to see which has had the most powerful impact.

CONVERTED TO CINEMAS

The region is littered with decaying and locked-up mosques. Others have been converted into apartment houses, libraries, shopping centres, cinemas and public "monuments."

The term "monument" is sometimes a euphemism. One mosque in Bukhara, described as a monument by the local guide, turns out on inspection to be a pool hall.

The authorities say there are 250 operating mosques in Soviet central Asia, which embraces four republics of which Uzbekistan with 10,000,000 people is the most populous. However, some are only makeshift or part-time ones.

While there is no authoritative figure on the number of practising Moslems in Uzbekistan, one is told there are some 20,000,000 in the U.S.S.R. as a whole. It's impossible to verify the figure.

"We don't keep count," says Ismail Mahdun Sattyev, deputy mufti for the central Asian republics and Kazakhstan, discussing the situation here.

A soft-spoken, dignified man of about 60, he met with visiting newspaper men in a reception room on the grounds of Tashkent's main mosque, Hara-Khan, built in the 15th century.

FREEDOM GUARANTEED

Speaking in Usbek, he said the main problem facing Islam in central Asia is to "adopt dogma to modern circumstances."

Freedom of religion is guaranteed, he insisted. "There is propaganda against us . . . but we are convinced our faith is good and we are doing our business."

Anti - religious government propaganda attacks "mainly superstitions," he added, but it doesn't touch "the fundamentals of our religion."

Periodically new editions of the Koran are published here. In 1956 there was a printing of 4,000 copies and in 1960 one of 5,000.

On the grounds of the Tashkent mosque is a library containing 25,000 books and 2,000 manuscripts, many of them rare, some unique. Included are copies of the Koran in 10 different languages. One copy is 720 years old.

While most of Uzbekistan's madresas or religious training schools have been closed or converted into museums, one still operates. It's in Bukhara and has 35 to 40 students.

Vice-Premier Sarwer Azimov of Uzbekistan says that when a mosque is closed it is usually at the request of the congregation itself.

At the same time the administration tries to see that enough mosques are left open to meet the spiritual needs of the faithful, he adds. "It's not a good idea to have believers and no mosques for them to go to."

Of all those affected by the decline of Islam here, no group has been more profoundly affected than women.

The veil, without which they were not permitted to appear in public places in former times, has long been abolished. The new-generation Usbek girl is well dressed and educated and has little time for quaint customs.

She is deeply conscious of her role in the region's economic growth. Women account for one-third of all the labor employed in industry and 40 per cent of all specialists with higher education. Almost 70 per cent of Uzbekistan's doctors are women. And about 1,000,000 are employed in agriculture.

A government brochure, offering an insight into the sort of values that prevail here today, says many women cotton-picking - machine operators have become known far and wide in Uzbekistan.

"Twenty - eight thousand women of Uzbekistan have been decorated for their outstanding achievements in work. Eighty women have merited the title of Hero of Socialist Labor."

Pinch Hitting

By GARRY ALEXANDER

Bay of Quinte waters, just off Zwick's Island, will ripple to the surge of inboard and outboard racing craft this Saturday when the Quinte Hydroplane Regatta takes place.

Quinte Hydroplane president Doug Storey is spending a busy week preparing for the big event and says he expects everything to go off in fine style.

The Regatta is sanctioned by both the Canadian Boating Federation and the American Power Boat Association and top boats and drivers from Quebec, the United States and far-flung parts of Ontario, as well as many local stars, will be participating.

All in all, over 100 boats are expected to take part in the afternoon of racing, slated to get under way at one o'clock and end around five.

A schedule of the races has the C.O.D.'s running their two heats at 1.00 and 1.10; "A" stock at 1.20 and 1.30; "C" stock at 1.40 and 1.50; "B" stock at 2.00 and 2.10, and "D" stock at 2.20 and 2.30 p.m.

The Braden Trophy class, which should prove the highlight of the regatta, will hold its first heat at 2.45 with the second going at 4.30. "A" racing boats are set for 3.15 and 3.25; "C" racing for 3.35 and 3.45 and "B" racing for 4.00 and 4.15 p.m.

The Braden Class is open to boats with unrestricted construction and the event here will be the second leg of this year's competition. Saturday's winner will be presented with the Bill Braden Trophy, a much sought-after award in racing circles.

In order to win the Braden Trophy, a boat must race at least 20 statute miles, involving two separate races. All classes are eligible, with the exception of the heavy unlimiteds, providing they do not weigh over 1984 pounds. There are no restrictions as far as the minimum length or power units are concerned.

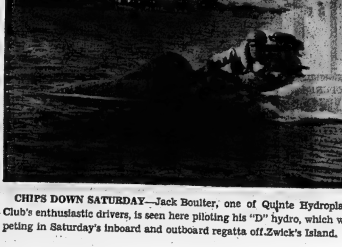
Competing in this main attraction Saturday will be 150's, 266's and 280's, assuring plenty of thrills and action.

Speed and more of it should be the rule of the day, especially if the water is calm and not whipped by unexpected winds.

In the hydroplane classes, "D" classes, for up to 60 h.p. motors, will provide speeds up to 75 miles an hour. "C" classes, for 30 h.p. entries, will see speeds in the 70 m.p.h. range; "B" classes, for 20 h.p. motors, up to 65 m.p.h. and "A" classes, the 7½ h.p.'s, up to 55 miles per hour.

In three classes for alcohol-burning racing motors, spectators can look for speeds up to 78 m.p.h. for 30 h.p. motors in "C" class, 70 m.p.h. for 20 h.p. motors in "B" classes and around 62 m.p.h. for the 7½ h.p.'s in "A" class.

A number of local drivers have racked up victories in various meets around the country and the "D" class races, for one, should see boys from the Quinte club battling hard for the honors.



The Canadian One Design class, commonly known as the C.O.D.'s, is popular in that it provides a very inexpensive type of one-design runabout, powered by a stock automobile motor.

All boats in this class must follow exactly the same design, the overall length being 15' 4", while the water line beam is 5' 7½". The motor chosen is a Ford V-8 automobile engine, of not more than 239 cu. in. displacement. A driver and passenger must ride side by side in all races. Keen competition, with driver skill of the utmost importance, is expected.

Facilities for spectators and for the boats themselves have been improved to assure the best possible meet, since a large crowd is expected throughout the afternoon.

And, of course, all arrangements must meet with C.B.F. and A.P.B.A. approval.

By the way, pictures of some of the boats and drivers, and the trophies they will be racing for, can be seen in Walker Hardware's window.

MOSOLF ON WAIVERS

OTTAWA (CP) — Ottawa Rough Riders announced Wednesday that import quarterback Mike Mosolf, a 23-year-old Californian, has been placed on waivers. Mosolf walked out of a Rider practice Monday with little warning, then reappeared Tuesday.

Associated Press Sports Writer

A turning point in the American League pennant race may have been in the eighth inning of the Baltimore - Cleveland game Wednesday night.

The Indians edged the first-place Orioles 3-2 Wednesday night, scoring two runs in the eighth inning for the victory. The loss, coupled with Chicago White Sox 2-1 13-inning triumph over Minnesota Twins, sliced Baltimore's lead to one percentage point over the second-place White Sox.

The victory, the Indians' sixth straight, increased their season edge over Baltimore to 10-5, making them the only team to hold an edge over the league-leaders. More specifically, Indiana have won five of the last six games with Baltimore in the eighth inning.

A five-run outburst in the eighth Tuesday night brought Cleveland a 5-3 decision. Wednesday night's game was tied 1-1 going into the eighth.

Slow-footed John Romano sent the tie-breaking run across with a two - out, two - strike bunt single. Romano was more than pulled on his own. Vic Davalillo followed with a run - scoring double.

EXPLAINS STRATEGY

Explaining the rare squeeze bunt, Romano said:

"I can't hit relief pitcher Stu-Miller anyway, so I had to do something."

Baltimore manager Hank Bauer, however, didn't have any explanation for the Indians' eighth - inning tactics.

Elsewhere in the American League, Washington pasters blanked New York Yankees 2-0, Detroit Tigers defeated Boston Red Sox 4-1, Los Angeles Angels knocked off Kansas City Athletics 5-2.

Norm Siebern slammed a homer for the Orioles in the eighth, but they could get no more scoring. A walk and singles by Earl Robinson and Russ Snyder had given Baltimore a 1-1 tie in the sixth and set the stage for the eighth-inning rally.

Don Buford singled home Gerry McNertney with Chicago's winning run in the 12th. McNertney led off the inning by reaching second base on a wild throw to first by the Twins' Rich Rollins. McNertney sent to third on a passed ball and two walks later, trotted home.

RECORD SIXTH WIN

Ed Fisher pitched the last three innings, holding the Twins hitless for his sixth victory in eight decisions.

The Yankees remained four games off the pace as Buster Narum clopped his on-five hits. He outpitched Mel Stottlemyre, who lost his first game after winning three. The Senators scored both runs in the fifth, Mike Brumley coming home with the first one on an infield grounder.

The Tigers' Dave Wickersham recorded his 16th victory in 28 decisions, hurling a five-hitter against the Red Sox. Don Demeter started a two-run rally in the sixth with a homer while Jerry Lumpe did the same in the seventh. Demeter's homer balled Bob Heffner's scoreless inning effort at 19.2 in the.

Dick Green and Rocky Colavito clouted solo homers for the Athletics, but it weren't enough to offset the Angels' attack. Los Angles scored three times in the fourth on singles by Lou Clinton and Jim Perry and Bob Rodgers' sacrifice fly.

OPEN OCT. 17

MONTREAL (CP) — Montreal Canadiens play their first home game of the 1964-65 National Hockey League season on Saturday, Oct. 17, against New York Rangers. It was announced Wednesday. Canadiens, defending league champions, play 22 Saturday night games. Toronto Maple Leafs will provide the opposition for seven Thursday night clashes at the Forum.

Piersall Turns Beatle

KANSAS CITY (AP)—Jimmy Piersall of the Los Angeles Angels gave Kansas City a preview of the Beatles Wednesday night.

Charles Finley, the owner of the Athletics, has hired the Beatles for a performance next month, and Piersall took the opportunity in the seventh inning to go into one of his routines.

As he strolled to the plate to bat, Piersall was wearing a Beatle wig.

Plate Umpire Frank Umont then held a small conference with the Los Angeles outfielder, and Piersall batted without the hairpiece.

Wins Opener 10-2
Oshawa Overpowers Ellis Jrs.

By GARRY ALEXANDER
Staff Sportswriter

WHITBY — Swinging potent bats in eye-opening style, Oshawa Senior Classen thumped Belleville Ellis Juniors 10-3 here last night in the opening game of their 5-of-9 OAAA Junior "A" playdown set.

Second game of the series is scheduled for Belleville's CNRA Park Saturday afternoon at 2.30.

Starting slowly with single runs in the second and third frames, the powerful Oshawa made it 5-0 and chased Belleville pitching ace Bobby Ethier in the fourth. They upped the count to 10-0 with a five-run rally against relief man Bob Boyle in the seventh before Ellis' bagged their two runs in the next inning.

The winners piled up 13 hits, including three home runs, a triple and two doubles while the losers helped them along by playing below par infield. Ethier took the loss, giving up seven of the winners' hits, fanning two and walking one. Boyle, who got out of a jam after coming on in the fourth, went well over the second, stopped three on strikes and passed a pair. The club was charged with six errors.

Robbie Mason spun a five-hitter on the Oshawa hilltop, three of these hits coming in the eighth inning. He claimed 14 strikeout victims and issued one free pass.

Oshawa opened the scoring with a long solo homer by Szyszka to left in the second and he also looked after his club's fifth run with another homer, this one to right field, in the fourth.

In between these clouts, Davis' single, an error and a mental lapse by an outfielder made it 3-0 in the third. Tilk walked and Gaskell followed him all the way around when Soule was unable to pick up the latter's double to centre in the fourth.

Solomon opened the seventh with a lined homer down the right field foul line. Rowden's double, Tilk's triple, singles by Gaskell and Senaco, mixed in with a walk and three hobbles, made it 10-0.

In the Ellis eighth, Boomhower singled and scored after a throwing error on Gardiner's infield hit. Muirhead doubled him home for the final 10-2 score.

Stu Muirhead's double and singles by Bob Ethier, Larry Soule, Carl Boomhower and Don Gardiner took care of the Ellis safeties.

Bob Solomon, who caught a great game for the winners, paced his team with a homer and two singles. Frank Szyszka homered twice, Brian Gaskell got a double and single and Stan Senaco two singles. Alvin Tilk added a triple, Ralph Davis and Bob Young singles and Jim Rowden a double. Soule also robbed Gaskell of a homer with a terrific catch near the distant trees.

Player Problem Adds To Giants Woes

Phils Increase Lead

By MIKE RATHET
Associated Press Sports Writer

San Francisco Giants have to be in trouble when Juan Marichal threatens to strike and Willie Mays starts moonlighting.

Mays tried to hold down two jobs for the Giants Wednesday night, shuttling between centre field and third base in a 3-2 loss to Los Angeles Dodgers that dropped San Francisco 7½ games behind National League-leading Philadelphia Phillies.

But a big labor dispute revolved around Marichal, ace righthander of the Giants' staff who holated his placard and said he won't pitch before he feels he's ready.

"I don't want to take any chances any more," said Marichal, who has been bothered by a bad back but feels his first start since July 30 against the Dodgers Tuesday. Marichal, who pitched five innings, said he didn't think he was ready to go.

"They wanted me to pitch. I'll tell you this: If it's still the same the next time, I won't pitch."

Manager Al Dark's comment: "He'll pitch Sunday."

Where Mays will play is another question.

He started in centre field against the Dodgers but had to take over at third base in the second inning after Jim Ray Hart was struck in the head by a thrown ball while running from first to second.

Mays, who also has played first for the Giants this season, moved back to centre field in the seventh inning, then returned as Dark juggled his lineup in an attempt to get the Giants' moving against Don Drysdale.

Drysdale, however, checked San Francisco on seven hits and came up the winner on Doug Camilli's run - producing single in the ninth.

The Phillies, meanwhile, rode Chris Short's six-hit pitching to a 6-1 victory over Milwaukee Braves and built their bulge over second - place Cincinnati Reds to seven games. The Reds were beaten 3-1 by New York Mets and Tracy Stallard's five-hit pitching.

St. Louis Cardinals downed Pittsburgh Pirates 4-3 and Chicago Cubs dumped Houston Colts 6-3.

Short, bringing his record to 14-6, snapped the Phillies out of their first two - game losing streak since July 26 with the support of four homers, two by Gus Triandos and one each by Ruben Amaro and Tony Gonzalez. Short was touched for a run in the ninth on a double by Joe Torre and Denny Menke's single.

Stallard, now 8-16, checked the Reds on four singles until Don Pavletich ruined his shutout bid with a seventh - inning homer. Ed Kranepool drove in two of the Mets runs off Joey Jay, 9-9, with a fourth-inning single and a sixth-inning sacrifice fly. Ron Hunt drove in the final run with a seventh-inning single.

Larry Jackson, 10-10, kept the Colts from becoming the first NL team this season to win seven straight, losing his shutout on Nellie Fox' run - producing single in the sixth. Jackson received home run support from Ernie Banks and Ron Santo.

Mike Cuellar of St. Louis, 5-3, was tagged for homers by Donn Clendenon and Gene Alley in the fifth. But the Cardinals pulled ahead, 3-2 in their half on Lou Brock's homer, a triple by Dick Groat and Ken Boyer's single.

Senior Baseball Cancelled

The proposed Eastern Ontario Senior Baseball playoff game, between Belleville Juyces and Oshawa Merchants here tonight, has been cancelled, according to Joyce manager Gord Vaughn.

Vaughn said that Oshawa would not come here for the third game of the series tonight and "we don't know now when it will be played." The series is tied 1-1.

Dave Hurst Beaten In Toronto

TORONTO (CP)—Top-seeded Marnie Siefred of Toronto and Mary Ann Gaskin of Galt both reached the finals Wednesday in the women's under-18 singles of the Toronto open junior tennis championships.

Miss Seifred defeated Michelle Morrow of Toronto 6-2, 6-1 in one semi-final match while Miss Gaskin eliminated Lilian Stamos of Toronto 6-1, 6-2, in the other.

In the boys under-18 division Mike Wilson of Oakville defeated Dave Hurst of Belleville 6-1, 4-6, 6-0 to advance to the semi-finals. Two of the other three semi-finalists were determined when Fleming Dunn of Toronto eliminated Mike Zimmerman, also of Toronto, 6-3, 6-1 and Bernie Holdup of Toronto defeated Ken Will of Clarkson 6-4, 6-4.

First Time In History

Ontario Sweeps Bowling Honors

VANCOUVER (CP) — Ontario Wednesday won the fours, pairs and singles events in the Canadian lawn bowling championships.

It is the first time in the history of the national championships that one province has won all categories.

Ontario ended up with 33 points in the over-all standings. British Columbia was second with 24 and Quebec third with 20.

Manitoba had 18, Saskatchewan 16, Alberta 12, and Nova Scotia, competing in its first national championship, 4.

Beacom upset favored John Henderson of Montreal 21-8 in the seventh and final round then went on to beat defending champion Sandy Houston of Vancouver 21-13 in an exciting tie-breaking match.

The pairs team, Ray Reidel and Joe Dorsch of Waterloo, retained the championship they won for the first time last year.

The Toronto fours team of Bill Cowling, C. J. Picken, J. A. Wheeler and S. E. Bond, have won 12 straight games. They won nine straight in the provincial championship and were undefeated here.

BAUER GETS POST

VANCOUVER (CP) — Rev David Bauer, coach of Canada's 1964 Olympic hockey team, has been appointed a director of the Garibaldi Development Association, president Jack Bain announced Wednesday. The association is preparing a bid to get the 1972 Winter Olympics for Garibaldi Park north of Vancouver.

D. Lewicki May Coach Hamilton

HAMILTON (CP) — Danny Lewicki, former National Hockey League player, appears to be the leading candidate for the coach of Hamilton Red Wings of the Ontario Hockey Association Junior A league.

S. J. Bibby, president of the Red Wings, said Wednesday he will meet next weekend with Lewicki and chief scout Jimmy Skinner of Detroit Red Wings of the NHL.

Lewicki turned pro with Toronto Maple Leafs in 1950. Since then he has played with New York and Chicago of the NHL and Pittsburgh, Buffalo and Quebec of the American Hockey League.

The Hamilton job was opened when Eddie Bush was named coach of Memphis Wings of the Central Professional Hockey League.

Upholds Action Of WBA

NORFOLK, Va. (AP)—They start punching today in the annual convention of the World Boxing Association but WBA national commissioner Abe Greene got in a few licks Wednesday.

"The WBA may outlast the Cassius Clay-Sonny Liston return bout for the heavyweight championship," Greene said, "but I don't think it would stop the promoters."

He said a federal law to regulate boxing is more essential now than ever.

He upheld the WBA's action in dropping Liston from the ratings and the association's position as "the total defender of boxing's general philosophy as a sport."

Clay and Liston representatives will appear before the WBA executive committee today to seek sanction for the title bout. It is expected to be held in November but no site has been selected.

Delegates will vote on the issue at Friday's business session.

Every home heating fuel claims economy, dependability, cleanliness, convenience.

But compared to other fuels Natural Gas is best.

Just how economical is economical? How dependable is dependable? Just how clean is clean? Compare one fuel to another and the facts will prove that Natural Gas is best no matter what the others claim.

Fact: Natural Gas costs far less than electric heating, and in most areas of Ontario less than oil.

Fact: Natural Gas is so economical that you can heat an entire house with normal insulation evenly, including basement . . . no need for individual room thermostats, for closed off rooms.

Fact: Natural Gas requires none of the extra thick wall and ceiling insulation, or the special basement insulation required by electric heating.

Fact: Natural Gas is dependable. Supply lines are buried underground. Weather and road conditions, power failures or burned out fuses do not disrupt the flow of fuel.

Fact: Natural Gas burns cleaner. All its volume is turned into heat energy. No soot. No greasy deposits. No baked-in dirt on walls or drapes.

Fact: Natural Gas forced air systems make living more comfortable and healthier. The warm air is circulating and being filtered constantly. Uncirculated air, as provided by electric heating, is stale air.

Fact: Natural Gas lets you conveniently and economically use your heating system for air conditioning during Summer months. Lets you humidify the circulating air too.

Fact: Natural Gas, properly installed, with Automatic shut-off and other modern safety controls is as safe a heating system as you'll find anywhere. Electricity leads the list of fire causes over all other forms of energy. (Ontario Fire Marshal's Report.)

Fact: With Natural Gas, service is free.

There is other evidence. But these facts are enough to show that although every fuel makes the same claims, if you compare one fuel to another, Natural Gas is best.

Leafs Nip Bisons; Suns In First

BY THE CANADIAN PRESS

Jerry Walker spun a brilliant one-hitter over 10 innings Wednesday night as Jacksonville Suns swept both ends of a doubleheader 1-0 and 8-3 over Richmond Virginians.

Fred Hopke was the only Richmond batter to reach Walker, touching him for a single in the seventh inning as the Suns regained sole possession of first place in the International League.

Eleswhere Syracuse Chiefs defeated Rochester Red Wings 11-4 in the first game of a doubleheader before the Wings rebounded with an 8-5 victory in the second. Columbus Jets defeated Atlanta Crackers 5-1 and Toronto Maple Leafs edged Buffalo Bisons 4-3.

Bob Wills cracked the sixth hit of the night for the Suns to drive home the only run and give Walker his ninth win against seven losses.

ERRORS COSTLY

The Suns took advantage of six Richmond errors in the opener to give starter Joe Shipley to his first win since joining the Suns from Indianapolis.

The Maple Leafs turned on a 13-hit attack to come within two games of fourth-place Rochester. Jim McKnight clouted a two-run triple to pace the Leafs.

Dave Wissmann hit his 10th homer of the season to drive in the winning run for the Jets in the top of the ninth. It was the 11th win in the last 14 games for Columbus.

Jim Northrup had led the Syracuse attack in the first game, clouting a grand slam homer. Joe Altobelli paced Rochester with two homers in the second game as Syracuse slipped out of a first-place tie by virtue of the loss.

Mosca Injured
Als Favored Over Cats

MONTREAL (CP) — Montreal's unpredictable Alouettes, picked to finish last by every one but themselves, are favored to stretch their unbeaten performance to four games tonight when they meet the stumbling Tiger - Cats from Hamilton.

The Als were installed as three-point choices to administer another dose of the medicine they handed the Ticats in the 33-5 Eastern Football Conference opener at Hamilton. The point spread is small, but expected to grow as the news of Angelo Mosca's injury spreads.

The burly Hamilton two-way tackle was pronounced unfit to play by coach Ralph Sazio Wednesday following a collision in practice with Joe Zeger. Mosca injured a knee and will sit this game out.

Sazio said Gene Gossage would fill in for Mosca on the defense while John Barrow goes both ways to take up any slack on the offence. It was another blow to Hamilton's shattered lineup.

Seven players have been added to the Ticat team since their initial loss to Montreal, subsequent defeat at Ottawa and 58th victory over Winnipeg. Montreal on the other hand, has just returned to full strength.

Both tackle Bob Minihane and linebacker Jim Andreotti have recovered from injuries that kept them out of two games and ready to buttress Montreal's defensive team, which has only surrendered 19 points in three games.

Al Irwin, the rookie end with a broken nose, returns after a one-game layoff and quarterback Vern Cole, hampered by a shoulder injury, has regained his form.

Halfbacks Johnny Counts and Bob Galters have been added to the Ticat backfield and a new end, Stan Crimson, may suit up. Inserted on the defensive team are linsmen John Autry and Gino Donabile, and halfbacks Scott Tyler and Jackie Simpson.

The game will be carried on the CTV eastern network.

Little League Title Won By Frankford

Frankford captured the South Hastings Little League Baseball championship last night by whitewashing Carmel to the tune of 11-0.

Carmel enjoyed an undefeated season in regular play but proved no match for Frankford in the playoff finals. Frankford took the best-of-five titular series three games to one, with one tie.

Brian Cook pitched a one-hitter on the champions' mound, the only hit allowed by Frankford pitching in the final two games.

Damond Richardson, one of several Carmel pitchers, was charged with the loss.

Andy Rowe paced the winners' attack, slamming a pair of doubles and one single. Fred Bedard, Brian Cook and Bob Chapman each chipped in with a pair of base knocks.

Murray Whitemore collected the lone Carmel safety, a single.

Lightfoots Reach Finals

Lightfoot Construction built a 4-0 third-frame lead and cut off a last inning rally to nip Point Anne Cementmen 4-2 before the biggest crowd in years at the Alemite Field last night.

The victory showed Lightfoots into the Commercial Softball League finals, against Barrington Landscapers, with the series to open at the Alemite Field Monday evening. Lightfoots won the hard-fought series with Point Anne four games to three.

The Barrage-Lightfoot winner, in a four-of-seven series, will receive the Frank Folwell trophy.

In the Lightfoot third, Sheridan singled, Smith bunted safely and Dickey doubled home the first run. Whiting's hit scored two more and an error at the plate, after Dickey had dumped the Point Anne catcher, allowed the fourth run to score.

Point Anne missed a good chance in the fourth when they had the sacks full with one out but could not score.

In the seventh the cementmen made it close when Rosebush and Cook hit singles, advanced on a passed ball and scored on an infield out and Ellis' pinch-hit single—but that was it.

George Young pitched seven-hit ball for Lightfoots, striking out six and walking five. He got errorless support from his mates.

Jim Hunter was touched for eight hits in defeat, claiming four on strikes and passing none. His club committed three errors and left nine men on base.

Don Smith got two of the winners' safeties and Bill Dickey hit a double. Jim Sheridan, Jack Whiting, Don Dolan, Ken Brooks and Jack Garvin also hit safely.

The Point Anne singles went to Jim Hunter with a pair, Mike Cook, Harry Powell, Jim Horwood, Ellis and Rick Rosebush.

Peewees Drop 8-7 Toughie

Belleville Merchants lost a heart-breaking 8-7 decision to Peterborough on a pair of tainted last-minute runs to bow out of the OBA Peewee playdowns in Peterborough last night.

Peterborough won the series two games to one.

Belleville had moved ahead 3-0 in the first and 4-1 after two frames. Peterborough got four in the third but the Merchants rallied for a 7-5 margin after four and led 7-6 going into the seventh and final inning.

Belleville pitcher Steve Moore had retired eight men in a row after taking the mound in the fifth inning. He had two out and none on in the seventh when the roof caved in.

Peterborough put together a walk, a stolen base, an infield hit, both of the latter on hotly-disputed calls, and a two-run overthrow, to move ahead 8-7.

Belleville, with a final turn at bat, could not overcome the slim deficit.

Belleville coach Moe Hunter this morning charged that "the Peterborough officiating stole that one from us and everybody in the ball park knew it." He claimed that on both the stolen base and the infield hit in the final frame, the Peterborough players were out by wide margins.

Belleville outhit the winners by a 12-8 count and each team was charged with four errors.

Richardson, relieved by Healey in the fourth, struck out nine and walked three on the Peterborough mound.

Jim Wood started for Belleville, Darryl Deers pitched to two men in the fifth and Steve Moore finished up. They fanned five and walked three.

Mike Healey collected three of the winner's hits and Dufresne got two.

Brian Coughlin rapped three Belleville singles, Steve Moore hit a triple and single, Paul Hall and Jim Blatchford a double and single apiece. Terry Meagher with two and Jim Wood, with one, completed the attack.

Charges Archery Crippled

JOLIETTE, Que. (CP)—The Canadian Archery Association was described Wednesday as a "private little club" that has crippled the growth of the sport in Canada through "archaic thinking."

Georges Rondeau, president of the Joliette Archery Club, said in an interview the association's attitude is the same as it was 100 years ago.

Rondeau said he has started a campaign to reform the parent body, or create a new one "with up - to - date, advanced ideas."

He said he has the full support of Quebec, Nova Scotia and "some of the Ontario members" to his proposals for promoting the sport across the country. Rondeau is a director of the association's Quebec branch.

Rondeau said he became disenchanted with the parent body after it turned down his proposals at the annual meeting here earlier this month, held in connection with the national archery championships at the Joliette club.

Rondeau's two chief proposals called for eliminations to select the top four archers from each province for the national tournament, and the establishment of a junior association to promote the sport among the younger set.

At present, any member of the association is eligible to compete in the championships.

FORGIVE FORGETFUL

New Entries In Little League Semi-Finals

WILLIAMSPORT, Pa. (AP) Tachikawa City, Japan, and Staten Island, N.Y., two newcomers to the Little League world series, advanced to the semi-finals of the tournament Wednesday.

Tachikawa City edged Valleyfield, Que., 1-0, and Staten Island eliminated Wiesbaden, Germany, 8-1, to complete first round play.

The winners will meet in the semi-finals today. The other semi-final game will match Mobile, Ala., and Monterrey, Mex., which won first round victories Tuesday.

On Eve Of World Tourney
Hogan Raps Golf Money Distribution

BIRMINGHAM, Mich. (AP)—High finance on the pro tour has dulled the incentive of many golfers and turned them into parasites, Ben Hogan said today.

"It's not a matter of the big purses but the way the money is distributed," the four-time United States Open winner said.

"A fellow doesn't have to work on his game any more. All he has to do is show up for a tournament. He can finish far down the list. Pick up a pretty good pay cheque and take a comfortable living on the efforts of others.

"The money distribution system is all wrong. The big money should go to the leaders, the fellows such as Arnold Palmer, Jack Nicklaus and Ken Venturi or who are out there always struggling to improve their game. The couldn't-care-less fellows should get little or nothing."

Hogan, now 52 and returning to the Oakland Hills scene where he won the third of his Opens 13 years ago, failed to specify a particular tournament but he virtually drew a map of the $200,000 World championship beginning here today.

The sport's richest event has a prize list scaled down from $35,000 for first and $17,000 for second to $1,000-and-over for 36 places. Each of the 150 players tieing off, 48 of them from 13 foreign nations, is assured $400. Three-fourths of them can count on at least $750.

"That makes this an exhibition, not a tournament," Hogan said.

"At first, the total prize money was $3,000, Hogan said. "First prize was around $700. Only six players got a cut of the purse. The others got nothing. Later purses rose to $5,000 and I'll never forget the first $10,000 tournament in the early 1930s in Agua Caliente. We thought it was a gold strike.

"Even then a player had to work on his game to survive. If he didn't he'd starve."

All the name players of the world are entered here, with Nicklaus bidding to nail down his position as the year's leading money winner ($99,000-plus) and Palmer, No. 2, and British Open champion Tony Lema, No. 3, in a position to take over through a victory.

The eight Canadians entered in the tournament include Canadian amateur champ Nick Weslock of Toronto and seven professionals — George Knudson, CPGA champion; Al Balding, Alvie Thompson and Moe Norman, all of Toronto; Frank Whibley, Kitchener, Ont., Wilf Homenuk, Winnipeg, and Bill Wright Jr., Edmonton.

Grabs Lead In World High Diving

TORONTO (CP)—John Deininger of Seattle, Wash., scored 200 points out of a possible 240 to take the lead with 492 points after three days of competition for the world's professional high diving championship at the Canadian National Exhibition.

The competition was from the 80-foot level and Deininger's performance pulled him ahead of Joe Gerlach of Jacksonville, Fla., and Dave Casper of Overland, Mo., who were tied after the first two competitions with 222 points each.

Casper now is in second place with a total of 476 points and Gerlach third with 460 points.

Top Canadian is Ross Collins of Waterloo, Ont., who holds down seventh spot with 419 points.

GERGLEY OUT

EDMONTON (CP) — End Larry Gergley from the University of Buffalo was placed on waivers Wednesday by Edmonton Eskimos of the Western Football Conference. He arrived here 10 days ago after a tryout with Hamilton Tiger-Cats.

Senior Lacrosse
Brooklin, Brampton Advance

By THE CANADIAN PRESS

Brooklin and Brampton demonstrated Wednesday night their first and second place finish—in that order—not to links in the Ontario Lacrosse Association Senior A series.

Brooklin defeated St. Catharines 11-7, and Brampton walloped Peterborough 16-8. Both matches were the deciding games of a best-of-seven semi-final series.

Brampton visits Brooklin for the first game of the best-of-seven Eastern Canada finals Saturday night.

Grant Heffernan, who was fourth in his season's scoring race, and Len Lotten, who finished third, were once again the Brooklin sparkplugs. Both players fired four goals. Doug Vipond, Don Craggs and Bob Hanna added one each.

Ted Howe and Ron Roy counted two each for St. Catharines, while Gary Ethel, Gary Moore and Wally Thorne added the others.

Don Spicer turned in a three-goal performance for Brampton and Wayne Thompson, Gord Thompson, Lou Madgett, Don Arthurs, Bert Naylor and John Ford fired two each. Bill Castator scored the other.

Larry Ferguson paced Peterborough with four goals while Roy Woods, Bobby Allen, Joe Todd, and Cy Coombes got one each.

Playing Role of Pa Kettle Made Percy Kilbride Ill

HOLLYWOOD (AP)—This is the boulevard. . . .

"What do I do? I do nothing," says Percy Kilbride. "I'm more or less a—well, you might call me a bum."

That's not likely. Kilbride, a spry, tweed-suited gentleman of 71, is the only boulevard regular who is recognized by the present generation of movie fans.

"Hey — you're Pa Kettle!" tourists shout at the brim-fig ured, hawk - nosed man. He gives them a half smile and hurries on his way. He spent a half century as an actor and finds that the public remembers him only as the haywood Pa of the Kettle family series, which he recalls with distaste.

Kilbride's career started in 1905 in his native San Francisco and nearly ended the next year in the earthquake there. He survived but his taestre didn't, and he began years of travelling with stock companies.

MADE BROADWAY

He made it to Broadway as a popular character man and came to fame in the role he created on the stage in George Washington Slept Here.

Then fate cast him and Marjorie Main as the rambunctious Kettles in The Egg and I.

Universal decided on a sequel featuring the Kettles.

The series was highly successful. But Kilbride was distressed at playing the same bucolic character, and the slapstick stunts were too violent for his delicate constitution.

"After my contract was up, I told the studio I wouldn't do any more," he said. "But then a new regime took over Universal. They offered me a limousine to and from work and an amazing amount of money. They made it awfully attractive for me.

"Well, I agreed to do one more. But I made them put in the contract that no one at the studio could even mention the possibility that I might do another one."

LIMPED THROUGH SERIES

Kilbride limped through Ma and Pa Kettle at Home, the seventh of the series. He was so ill and distressed by the end of it that he decided to close out his career.

That was 11 years ago, and he now appears as hale as in his prime as Pa Kettle.

"I live very quietly," he said. "I see some friends now and then. Mostly, I walk. I walk four miles a day or more—down to the boulevard or over to Griffith Park. I like to walk.

"At night I stay in my apartment and read. Don't watch television. Don't do much of anything. Don't miss doing anything. It's pretty easy to do, you know. If you set your mind to it. And I think it comes easy to actors. We spend a great deal of our lives doing nothing."

President Pulls the Cork To Start Convention Fun

By CYNTHIA LOWRY

HOLLYWOOD (AP) — Hours before the Democrats gathered to hear the familiar speeches for Lyndon Baines Johnson Wednesday, it seemed to those of us watching on television that someone pulled the huge cork that was bottling up the convention.

After two dreary days dampened by the civil rights problems of two states, it suddenly seemed that everybody was, finally, going to be allowed some fun.

The cork-puller, of course, was the president of the United States himself who by a mid-afternoon telephone call to Hubert Humphrey perhaps deliberately changed the entire focus of the television networks' concentration on the convention.

Convention - watching suddenly became a lively experience as the networks switched back and forth between Atlantic City and Washington.

The coverage, by all three U.S. networks, of the fast-breaking news events of the day was superb. It started shortly after 3 p.m. outside the Humphrey hotel suite immediately after President Johnson had invited him to go to Washington.

We viewers figured the senator was a shoo-in when all the network anchor teams suddenly starting calling him "Hubert Horatio Humphrey."

There is something eternally fascinating about watching convention demonstrations. Here the cameras are the stars, catching a girl in tears here, a bored delegate there, funny hats, hallooes and general exuberant nonsense.

Choice of the best coverage works is rather like choosing among mayonaise, French or Thousand Island dressing for a salad: It is simply a matter of personal taste. They all strove delightily and all did well in the day of covering all bases.

The Tracks

FORT ERIE, Ont. (CP)—Stafford Farms sent out their second best filly, Royal Spirit, in Wednesday's running of the Dutchess Stakes and she was good enough to win the 1 1-16-mile stake race.

The four-year-old mare, with Jesse Davidson up, challenged Court Royal for the lead for six furlongs and took over nearing the final turn. She held off Dancing Lark and Mesedict to win the $11,900 purse.

Minor Softball Results

In East Hill squirt softball playoffs last night Dodgers squeaked past Yankees 4-3 in a well-played game at Pine Street. Ricky Porcenka was the winning pitcher, allowing just six hits, including a triple by Freakie Lapanne and a double by Tony Sprackett, who took the loss giving up eight safeties.

Browns downed Redskins 10-5 in the other semi-final game which was marred by an unfortunate collision between two Redskin players, resulting in a broken collarbone suffered by Johnny Trunisch.

Billy Bleckman was the winning pitcher with a five-hitter, including a triple by David Pascoe in his sixth and a double by Billy Dotton in the last frame. The last five innings were played short-handed by the Redskins, due to the injury to their third baseman.

Brazilians Maintain Snipe Lead

OAKVILLE (CP) — Two Brazilians, Reinaldo Conrad and Axel Schmidt, didn't register a win Wednesday but both continued to hold first and second places respectively in the international three-day sailing championships of the Western Hemisphere.

Conrad, the defending champion, finished second in the first race of the day but fell to seventh in the finale, the final event to bring his five - race point total to 7,338.

Schmidt, the current world champion, was third in the first race and finished sixth in the second for an overall total of 7,157 points.

Luis Orellis of Argentina is third in the standings with 6,672.

Canada's top entry, Howie Richards of the host Oakville Yacht Club, built his points total to 5,477 after finishing in seventh and 12th place finishes to take over seventh place in the seven-race Hayward Regatta.

The Trots

TORONTO (CP) — Armbro Flight became the leading money winner among North America's two-year-old trotters in winning the Standardbred Futurity in impressive fashion Wednesday night at Greenwood Raceway.

The filly won the final by 11¾ lengths over Jimmy Frost, owned by Roy Kingston of Oshawa, and Jack Hutchinson of Alliston.

Armbro Flight, owned by the Armstrong brothers of Brampton, and Jimmy Frost also were 1-2 in the second qualifying heat held earlier in the card. On this occasion they set up a quinella at $2.60.

For the night's two victories Armbro flight picked up a total of $4,856.80 to push her earnings to $51,223. The filly has won 10 of 14 races and has never been out of the money.

Longshot players clicked in the first two races. Meadowview Champ ($22.70) won the opener with Jack Reid of Orono at the reins.

Beth C. Volo with owner Allen Colquhoun of Ancaster at the reins paid $21.30 in the second and set up a daily double of $201.60.

BUS REROUTED

A British double-decker bus arrives in Montreal in September for a six-week goodwill tour of Canada which ends in Vancouver on Oct. 26.

Buchanan Leading Rusher

REGINA (CP)—Ed Buchanan of Saskatchewan Roughriders has maintained his lead in the Western Football Conference individual rushing race. Statistics released Wednesday show that the WFC in Regina show the speedy halfback with 463 yards on 80 carries for a 6.4-yard average carry.

Fullback Lovell Coleman of Calgary Stampeders retained the runner - up position with 384 yards on 81 carries. Fullback George Reed of Riders has moved into third place with 350 yards on 61 carries.

Bob Swift, a rookie fullback with British Columbia Lions, is in fourth place with 234 yards on 34 carries and teammate Willie Fleming, in third place a week ago, is fifth with 215 yards on 46 carries.

Quarterback Eagle Day of Calgary is the league's leading passer, completing 40 of 61 aerials for a 64.8 percentage. Joe Kapp of B.C. has completed 63.8 per cent of 58 passes and Ken Ploen of Winnipeg Blue Bombers, who leads in touchdown passes with seven, has completed 56.8 per cent of 81 passes. Ron Lancaster of Riders, who has had the most passes intercepted with eight, has completed 50.5 per cent of 103 aerials.

LEAD PASS RECEIVERS

Hankey Bob Taylor of Calgary and Hugh Campbell of Riders lead pass receivers, Taylor catching eight passes for 233 yards and Campbell 20 for 293. End Pete Manning of Calgary is third with 261 yards on 16 passes.

Martin Pahl of Riders is the leading punter with a 42.9-yard average on 33 kicks. Neal Beaumont of Lions is averaging 41.1 yards on 34 punts.

Lu Bain of Calgary leads in punt returns with a 6.4-yard average on 17 runbacks. Leo Lewis of Winnipeg leads in kickoff returns with a 36.8 average on nine runbacks.

Beaumont leads in pass interceptions with three while Don Stephenson of Calgary and Gene Wlasiuk and Bob Ptacek of Saskatchewan have two each.

Weekly Fishing Report

TORONTO (CP) — Fishing conditions in Ontario this week ranged from good to excellent in several northern areas with northern pike and walleyes supplying the best catches.

The department of lands and forests, in its weekly report on fishing conditions, said anglers were also having relative success with lake trout in these regions.

However, conditions in most other districts in the province were mostly fair.

This week's report, as of Wednesday, covered 21 of the department's 22 districts.

The reports:

Astrological Forecasts

By SYDNEY OMARR

For August 28

Aries (Mar. 21 to Apr. 19): Stress practical approach to economic affairs. There appears a rosy hue regarding partnership proposal. But this requires close examination. Be versatile. Maintain sense of humor.

Taurus (Apr. 20 to May 20): Cycle moves up. You can impress very important people. But you might also arouse envy. Important to seek balance. Be independent, but also sympathetic. Be a "winner," but a gracious one!

Gemini (May 21 to June 20): Time for changes, frank discussions. Express true feelings. Throw off secret fears. Exude confidence and others will help you. Conserve strength, energy. Remember recent resolution concerning diet.

Cancer (June 21 to July 22): You may be inspired by affection fixed one displays. Work for harmony in the home. Be willing to make concessions. Obtain hint from today's Gemini message. Key is diplomacy, maturity.

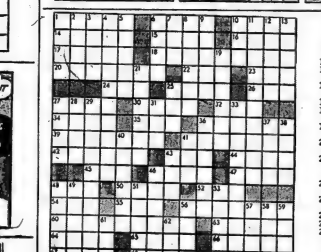
Leo (July 23 to Aug. 22): You can advance professionally through social activity in your own home. Better now to entertain than to be entertained. Make extra effort to please others. Be giving . . . and you will receive.

Virgo (Aug. 23 to Sept. 22): A certain amount of confusion exists. This is caused by a mix-up in communications. Be sure before embarking upon journey. Get facts, figures straight. Where promises are concerned, get them in writing!

Libra (Sept. 23 to Oct. 22): Money question can be solved. But you must realize others are extremely sensitive. Best to finish project. Necessary to get accounts in order. Leave no loose ends. Be thorough.

Scorpio (Oct. 23 to Nov. 22): Remember that you have ability, unusual personality. Otherwise, you could feel "neglected." This is time when you should be observer rather than "star." Applies especially to night.

Sagittarius (Nov. 22 to Dec. 21): Day is a puzzler. In all actions — be "passive." Listen — be receptive. Alert. Associate may try to "tell you something." Look for reasons for apparent inexplicable happenings.



Capricorn (Dec. 22 to Jan. 19): Spotlight on romance, recreation, activities concerning children. Much pleasure indicated. Key is relaxation. Give of yourself. Highlight creative endeavors. Say yes to travel opportunity.

Aquarius (Jan. 20 to Feb 18): Family pressures persist. You can take constructive step by initiating a break in the routine. Means get out — be seen. Dine in fine restaurant . . . attend theatrical performance.

Pisces (Feb. 19 to Mar. 20): The more analytical you are . . the better. You can perceive motives. You are able to judge solid indications for future. Day when your ESP works overtime! Take advantage of it.

If today is your birthday . . . you are an individual in the true sense — you prefer to make your own way . . . you puzzle your closest friends. And many times you even succeed in fooling yourself.

General Tendencies: Question arises concerning aid of banks, which has policy of arrogance. Controversy flares. But "real" story remains hidden.

States Suffer Setback In Khanh Resignation

By DOUG MARSHALL
Canadian Press Staff Writer

How do you win the ball game when you've gambled everything on your star pitcher and the fans force him to quit?

That is the question United States diplomats are faced with after the latest crisis in South Viet Nam.

Washington still apparently regards Maj. - Gen. Nguyen Khanh as the real ruler of the South Vietnamese despite his resignation of the presidency. But it is clear Khanh's effectiveness as a leader has been seriously weakened.

When Khanh took over in January, seizing control after the collapse of the corrupt Diem regime, he gave himself only one task: To beat the Communists and bring peace to his war — weary and disillusioned country.

MASSIVE U.S. BACKING

This he has manifestly failed to do, despite massive backing from the U.S. and an increasingly dictatorial grip on his power. It is still possible the military junta running South Viet Nam will re-elect Khanh head of state but he faces too much opposition from Buddhists and intellectuals ever to regain full control of the situation.

Observers in Saigon say the 36-year-old general's greatest danger now is that of assassination—South Viet Nam's stock solution to political problems.

Whether he goes quietly or is carried out after a bloody coup Khanh's departure leaves the situation back where it was in November and the U.S. out on a limb.

The American reprisal raids on North Viet Nam were intended among other things to stiffen South Vietnamese morale in the guerrilla war against the Communists. The results have been disappointing and it is said to avoid the conclusion the people of South Viet Nam are showing less and less stomach for the fight.

REINFORCE ADVISERS

The U.S. has promised to reinforce the 16,000 American "military advisers" already operating in South Viet Nam but experts think it doubtful the sort of guerrilla tactics employed by the Viet Cong can ever be beaten without the wholehearted co-operation of the local population.

The alternatives the U.S. seems to befaced with are to pull out entirely or carry the war north of the border.

It is unlikely any decision will be made until after the November presidential election. But either way the U.S. will be forced to admit the failure of its whole policy of indirect engagement with the Communists in Southeast Asia.

FOR BIRTH CONTROL

SOUTHAMPTON, England (Reuters) — The formation of a United Nations-sponsored organization to help control world population was advocated Wednesday by Lord Brain, British physician. Brain told the conference of the British Association for the Advancement of Science the average livestock breeder showed more concern for the future of his stock than did the ordinary human being for his own descendants.

CAMPBELLFORD

Cement Truck Is Overturned

CAMPBELLFORD — A truck carrying ready-mix cement returning from a trip from Campbellford to Madoc overturned on a curve going from the township line between Seymour and Rawdon to the ninth line of Seymour.

The truck was driven by Edward Fisher and turned over. The driver was not injured although Mr. Fisher who had accompanied him on the evening trip received shock and was taken to Bellerville General Hospital for observation.

Damage to the truck amounted to approximately $100.

The accident was investigated by OPP Constable R. Diamond.

Our Architectural Heritage

By LENNY WILLIAMSON

St. Thomas Rectory on Bridge St. East, is a Gothic Revival building in the sedate and serious manner befitting an Anglican clergyman of 1870.

While the Victorians justified their passion for the Gothic Revival on the grounds that it was "Romantic" and as such perfectly suited for domestic buildings, it gave them a feeling of snug satisfaction to realize that it was also "Christian" and "moral". After all was it not inspired by the soaring spires of England's medieval cathedrals? The Vestry's Building Committee of 1872 was careful to install their Rector behind an ecclesiastically correct facade.

OLD COUNTRY

When the Rev. Henry Patton D.D., asked the Vestry to repair "the internal parts of the rectory" in 1871, they debated for a few months before deciding to throw the whole thing up and build anew. It is said that the Rector, who was an Englishman, chose a design similar to that of a house he had lived in in the Old Country. Quite possibly he did, for the Gothic taste in architecture was popular all over the western world.

TUSCAN BRACKETS

The Rector picked a balanced plan, in the "pointed" style. The roof is steep, the dormers are peaked, and the upper windows have pointed tops. The Victorians did not mind jumbling their styles together in one building. They often, as in the Rectory, applied Tuscan brackets to a Gothic facade, and shrank the Italianate tower to a sort of entrance bay topped with a Gothic gable. Early English spires were braced with a pyramid-shaped masonry device called a "broach". The Rectory's Italianate entrance is firmly buttressed on either side with tiny sham broaches.

BOARD AND BATTEN

Originally the exterior finish was "board and batten." This vertical siding was supposed to suggest the upward thrust of the supporting timbers of the building. To the Victorians, this constituted "functionalism".

Only a portion of the wooden edging under the gables remains in the western end of the house. The boards are slightly sculptured and terminate at the point of the gable in a circle enclosing a trefoil. Even this gingerbread is Anglican — the circled trefoil, sometimes said to represent the Trinity, faintly echoes the motifs in the windows of the church across the street.

GOTHIC REVIVAL

The Vestry erected a dignified, "uplifting" dwelling for their Rector, a suitable companion piece for their English church across the way. Today, although shorn of most of its ornamental tracery, with its vertical aiding replaced by stucco, it proves that good design is possible even in late Gothic

Hurricane Cleo Destroys Haitian Port

124 Dead In Les Cayes Area, City In Ruins

Hundreds Left Without Food, Shelter, Crops

LES CAYES, Haiti (AP)—Medicine, food and other supplies began arriving here Thursday night for survivors of hurricane Cleo, which virtually destroyed this southern port of 20,000.

Officials said the storm claimed 124 dead in the Les Cayes area, injured hundreds and left the city in ruins.

Seventy of the dead were crushed in the market place when an iron beam collapsed. Others were trapped beneath the beam and could not be freed until the storm's 100-mile winds subsided.

Cleo destroyed or damaged nearly every house in the city, leaving hundreds without food or shelter. It tore up streets and ripped down utility poles and blew away part of a hospital roof.

In the countryside, Cleo smashed hundreds of the peasants' huts. It wiped out sugar, banana and other crops on which the government depends for revenue.

LACK FOOD

Many survivors were without food Thursday as the U.S. Marines awaiting help. The first supplies arrived in trucks over almost impassable roads.

Some of the injured were still to be flown to hospitals in Port-au-Prince, 90 miles away.

Cleo, weakened by a multi-million dollar rampage up Florida's populous east coast, slapped indirectly at the space centre at Cape Kennedy, Fla., Thursday. Hurricane Aleph slowly northward and coastal residents as far north as Cape Hatteras, N.C., braced for her approach.

Cleo, which left Miami and 200 miles of Florida's "gold coast" looking like a battle zone after striking with winds up to 115 miles an hour, hit Cape Kennedy with winds that peaked at 65 m.p.h.

The U.S. weather bureau at Miami said Cleo was expected to move offshore this morning and intensify. Hurricane warnings remained in effect for Brunswick, Ga., and gale warnings

Canada Trailing Western World In Subsidized Public Housing

OTTAWA (CP) — Canada is trailing the Western world in subsidized public housing even though 750,000 families are reportedly need it, but the public doesn't seem to care.

That was the theme of a 100,000-word report handed to the federal and Ontario governments Thursday, based on a two-year national study by the Ontario Association of Housing and Planning.

It urged an entirely new approach to the problem, warning that 1,000,000 additional housing units ought to be provided between now and 1980 to rescue low-income and elderly families from "really distressing" housing.

The report said there are two false ideas that distort the public attitude towards subsidized housing. One was that the people in need of such housing are shiftless types; the other that such housing is a crushing burden on the economy.

Both notions were termed ridiculous.

As for the first, "the truth of the matter is quite different—the cost of land and buildings, the cost of money and the cost of operation and upkeep simply do not equate with the earnings of many Canadians."

On the second, "it would appear that current levels of non - recoverable expenditures by government on housing are also something like one-thousandth of the total government expenditure."

Canada May Shed One Job

OTTAWA (CP)—Canada may be able to shed next month one of its seven peacekeeping jobs around the world, informed sources said Saturday.

Discussions now are in progress concerning possible withdrawal of the United Nations mission in Yemen to which Canada contributes 23 RCAF personnel and two Caribou transport planes.

Costs of the Yemen mission established a year ago, are shared by Egypt and Saudi Arabia, which were supposed to disengage their forces that have been supporting opposing sides in the Yemen civil war. Term of the mission expires Sept. 4 unless extended for another two-month period.

Meanwhile, the Canadian government refuses to accept the possibility that the UN force in Cyprus will be withdrawn because of lack of adequate financing.

External Affairs Minister Martin told a reporter it would be a "terrible indictment" of the UN and its peacekeeping efforts if lack of sufficient funds halted the UN operation in Cyprus.

Mr. Martin said in the Commons Thursday in reply to Douglas Harkness, former Conservative defence minister, that "the government has no immediate plans to withdraw any of the 1,130 Canadian troops from Cyprus. They comprise the largest contingent in the 6,300-man force.

The UN force's mandate expires Sept. 26 but can be renewed, as happened in June. The 1st Battalion of the Canadian Guards at Picton, Ont., has been told to get ready in case it is needed to replace the 2nd Battalion, Royal 22nd Regiment, in Cyprus next month. The Van Doos left month tour of duty expires Sept. 26.

Midnight Sittings Possible

By RONALD LEBEL

OTTAWA (CP) — The government proposed Thursday that the Commons sit until midnight three days a week to clean up the stalemated flag debate by the end of September.

Walter Dinsdale (PC—Brandon - Souris) appeared to shoot the idea down when he described it as "legislation by exhaustion." He indicated his party will continue to block the government's three - maple-leaf flag until the Liberals see reason.

Justice Minister Favreau said the government is ready to devote each Monday from now on to legislation other than the flag resolution, but he attached two conditions:

1. The opposition must agree to conclusion of the debate by the end of September (one week before Queen Elizabeth and Prince Philip open their Canadian visit).

2. Sittings on Tuesdays, Wednesdays and Thursdays would last from 2 p.m. to midnight, adding seven hours of "flag time" to make up for time lost on Mondays.

Thursday was the 16th day of the flag debate. Most speakers devoted more attention to the debate than to the flag.

RAPS TORIES

NDP whip Stanley Knowles accused the Conservatives of holding up government legislation and bringing Parliament into discredit and disgrace. Conservative MPs replied they are fighting for important principles.

Mr. Favreau, government House leader, accepted Mr. Knowles's suggestions that commons hours be extended in the flag debate and that Mondays be set aside for non-flag business. Tuesday is reserved for spending estimates. The commons opens study of the income tax reform estimates today.

Mr. Favreau said he is willing to end the flag debate Monday.

Opposition leader Diefenbaker appeared to reject the Sept. 26 deadline proposed by Mr. Favreau when he waved his arm downward in a dismissive manner. Earlier, Mr. Diefenbaker expressed his approval of Mr. Knowles's suggestion that Monday flag week. "Accepted here and now," he interjected. "It is up to the government."

The Conservative leader said he would accept another proposal for ending the flag deadlock—set up a 15-man House committee to study flag designs, with membership limited on the committee's deliberations, and limit the subsequent House debate to the committee recommendation.

But Mr. Diefenbaker stressed that he would accept a time limit on the House debate only if the committee's report is endorsed by 80 to 90 per cent of the committee members. This would require agreement among the Liberal and Conservative committee members.

SITTING TIME

Mr. Favreau said he will try to arrange a meeting of the House leaders of the five parties to see whether his plan could be put into effect next week.

Of 135 speeches delivered so far in the flag debate, Conservatives have delivered 58. Liberals have made 29 and the three smaller parties 18.

Wednesday, 17th day of Thursday's debate was taken up by heated exchanges, points of order, and procedural wrangles.

Transport Minister Pickersgill, on one such interjection, repeated that the government is ready to send the flag resolution to a committee provided a reasonable time limit is agreed upon. Mr. Diefenbaker said there should be no time limit if the committee brought in a recommendation with a simple majority.

Greek-Cypriots Plan to Resist Changing of Turkish Garrison

From AP-Reuters

NICOSIA (CP) — Danger of an armed clash between Greece and Turkey loomed anew today as Greek-Cypriots threatened to repel a landing by Turkish replacement troops on Cyprus.

Half of the 600-man Turkish contingent is to be sent home Monday and replaced by new troops. But an official source said Thursday the Greek-Cypriot government will use force if necessary to prevent any fresh Turkish troops from landing.

A spokesman for the Turkish embassy retorted that any such move will be met by Turkish force. He said the troop landings will go ahead as scheduled.

Both Turkish and Greek troops are here under treaties which gave independence to Cyprus. Turkey retains half of its contingent every six months.

Greek foreign ministry spokesman said today six country has "recommended" that Turkey postpone for a month replacement of its Cyprus contingent. He said his government was awaiting a reply from Turkey to the suggestion.

Meanwhile President Makarios prepared today to head for Cairo for talks with Egyptian President Gamal Abdel Nasser, reported aimed at securing Arab and Afro-Asian support when he takes his case to the UN general assembly in November.

Authoritative "government sources said here the main reason for Makarios' visit is political discussions on the Cyprus question, but the question of military aid might be discussed.

Reports from Cairo said a number of Egyptians have volunteered to serve with the Cypriot forces on the island.

At the general assembly meeting Makarios intends to demand "unfettered" independence and self-determination for the island in an effort to rid it of treaties of alliance and establishment signed at the time Cyprus became independent of Britain in 1960.

Report On Taxes Delayed

By DON HANRIGHT

OTTAWA (CP)—Prospects for major changes next spring in Canadian taxes faded Thursday with news of a delay, perhaps as long as six months, in the report of the royal commission on taxation.

This means that Finance Minister Gordon probably will not have the report while preparing his next budget, normally presented in the spring.

And he has stated as government policy that no major changes in Canada's tax structure should be made until the report is received and published.

The commission had hoped to report by the end of this year.

However, Commission Chairman Kenneth Carter met Mr. Gordon Thursday to say the report now is unlikely to be made much before the middle of 1965.

Later, a commission official said the delay was due simply to "the immensity of the task."

It is the first full-scale study of taxation in 20 years. It encompasses every tax law in the country, not only federal but provincial and municipal.

Appointed by the former Conservative government, the six-member commission was asked to report on — among other things—"the effects of the tax system on employment, living standards, savings and investments, industrial productivity economic stability and growth."

It started work in April, 1963. It held 99 days of hearings across Canada and collected 340 submissions and more than

Ford Agrees to Extend UAW Contract to Sept. 9

DETROIT (AP) — The first sign of "give" in new contract bargaining between the United Auto Workers Union and the automotive industry's Big Three came from Ford Motor Company Thursday.

Ford agreed in principle to extension of its current contract with the UAW until Sept. 9. Normally, the three - year - old pact would expire Monday midnight.

The UAW announced Wednesday night it had picked Chrysler Corporation as its first strike target and would call its 90,000 members in Chrysler plants out at 8 a.m. Sept. 9 unless agreement is reached on a new contract by that time.

UAW President Walter P. Reuther said Chrysler, Ford and General Motors Corporation would be asked to extend their contracts to the strike deadline.

GM and Chrysler bargaining was in recess Thursday. New sessions, however, were scheduled at all three today. Talks at Chrysler were to follow a meeting of the UAW's Chrysler council which would direct any strike activity.

While Reuther talked belligerently of announcing Chrysler as this year's target, John D. Lee, a Chrysler vice-president, and Douglas Fraser, the union's Chrysler chief, softpedalled strike talk in interviews Thursday.

Machete - Wielding Mobs Roam Streets of Saigon

SAIGON (AP)—Mobs roamed the littered streets of Saigon today, waving machetes and meat cleavers as they headed armed troops stood guard to prevent further bloodshed.

Street gangs battled gleas from Roman Catholic, Buddhis, and government leaders to lay down their arms and go home.

A mob of 200 predominantly Buddhist youths carrying clubs and hatchets set fire to a Catholic newspaper office and school while police looked on. The incident was a renewal of Thursday's organized violence that turned the capital into a nightmare of lawlessness and mob rule.

Scores were wounded in fierce battles that left the streets cluttered with rocks, broken bottles and glass. Hospitals reported more than 60 persons injured.

Police placed the death toll at four. Reporters, however, counted at least eight bodies.

Old political and religious antagonisms between Buddhists and Roman Catholics that led to the downfall last November of president Ngo Dinh Diem's government stirred the fighting.

The instability in the Communist-threatened nation posed a major test for the triumvirate of Maj. Gen. Nguyen Khanh and two other top officers selected by the military juntas to lead South Viet Nam for two months.

The role of the triumvirate remained cloudy as Khanh told a press conference the junta had not accepted his resignation as president. The 37-year-old leader also said the junta, which was supposed to have unchallenged power, was not seeking a political solution for the nation.

Focal points of tension today remained the junta general staff headquarters and Saigon's airport, the central market, Saigon's police station and a high school. Save at lunch dead demonstrators milled outside the gates of the general staff headquarters. Troops armed with tear gas stood guard behind barbed wire barricades strung across the entrance.

Some 2,000 students, armed with machetes, meat cleavers and other weapons, ringed the downtown market.

Student Loan Plan In Motion

By DON HANRIGHT

OTTAWA (CP) — The government has set its student-loan plan in motion. All provinces except Quebec will take part in the scheme.

Finance Minister Gordon told the Commons Thursday that brochures will be distributed next week to the banks, universities and other educational institutions.

These will explain how bright but needy students can borrow; how much they can get, how long they can take to repay, the likely cost of the loan, and where to apply.

Forms needed to administer the plan will be sent out Monday. Regulations under the Canada Student Loans Act also will be published next week.

Mr. Gordon reported:

Thanks to the wholehearted co-operation of all concerned, the Canada student loans plan will be ready to be utilized before the beginning of the academic year 1964-65."

Basically, the plan in its first year will see Ottawa guarantee up to $5,000,000 in bank loans to students.

However, to get a loan a student must be certified as eligible for one. He must meet provincial standards of academic achievement and financial need.

Mr. Gordon said the agencies filling the bill are those designated by the nine provinces and the Yukon and Northwest Territories.

In most cases, the agencies are the provincial education departments, or their branches. But in Ontario all the universities as well as a certain group of colleges and technical institutes also can issue eligibility certificates.

Armed with such a certificate, a student then can apply for bank loans of up to $1,000 a year for a maximum of five years.

The federal government pays the banks their interest charges on such loans while the student is at school — and for six months after he leaves. Then the student starts paying the loan principal as well as interest, taking up to 10 years to repay.

Greater National Unity Is Goal Says President

Splendid Tribute Paid To Late John Kennedy

By ARCH MacKENZIE

ATLANTIC CITY (CP)—The United States Democratic party embarked Thursday night on its election campaign, summoned by President Johnson to grasp "man's first chance to build the great society—a place where the meaning of man's life matches the marvels of man's labor."

And in a thundering 18-minute ovation for Robert Kennedy, the party offered a remarkable memorial to the late president John Kennedy.

It was a night of high oratory, color and emotion as the four - day national Democratic convention ended on this city's gaudy boardwalk.

About 20,000 people—including the 3,098 delegates and alternates—cheered Johnson in his nomination acceptance speech. He dedicated himself to creating greater national unity.

But delegates earlier had refused to be silenced in their roaring acclaim of Attorney-General Kennedy, the late president's brother.

MOVED BY DISPLAY

He stood solemn and moved. Then in introducing a memor ial film about his brother, he spoke simply of the assassinated president's goals, his ideals and his hopes.

"The gladness of this high occasion cannot mask the sorrow which shares our hearts," said Johnson, who was marking his 56th birthday. "Let us here rededicate ourselves to keeping burning the golden torch of promise which John Kennedy set aflame."

Johnson flew to the convention from Washington, the same thing he had done Wednesday for the unprecedented purpose of personally swearing his candidate for vice-president. As anticipated, it was Senator Hubert Humphrey of Minnesota, who in his acceptance speech Thursday night attacked Republican presidential candidate Barry Goldwater.

Humphrey called the Arizona senator, in a thinly veiled swipe at the crowd to its feet, a man who was temporary leader of opposition and out of step with it. He said Goldwater had voted against issues from tax cuts to civil rights that many of his colleagues had supported.

The president did not mention Goldwater by name but he said too many people in both parties had worked too hard, "to see the solid basis of prosperity erected in the last 30 years threatened now by policies that promise to undo all we have done."

LISTS VISIONS

"Our promises have become our deeds," he said Most Americans wanted medical care for older folks, decent homes in de cent neighbor hoods, fair and stable farm prices, education, jobs, victory against poverty and continued expansion.

Synopsis: A southerly circulation is bringing warmer air into Great Lakes area. It is also bringing moisture in quite different—the kind which will prevent temperatures from rising much higher than they have during the last two days. Showers and thunderstorms are expected to move eastward into southwestern Ontario late this afternoon and into eastern and central Ontario during the night. Northwest winds will herald a return to cooler weather once again on Saturday.

St. Christopher Medal Yanked From Neck of Beatle Ringo

NEW YORK (AP) — Though they arrived in the dead of night, The Beatles were met by 3,000 very - much - alive teenagers at Kennedy airport early today.

Screams, shrieks and moans assailed the ears of the mop-topped quartet, but nary a fan proved outside the hotel—mostly teen-age girls.

WABC said 155 girls telephoned the station, each saying she had the medallion.

A girl who identified herself as Angie McGowan, 15, a Manhattan high school student, turned up at the studio shortly afterwards and handed the medallion to Morrow, WABC said. How she got the medal was not stated. She was promised a meeting with the four lads from Liverpool this afternoon.

Bowling Notes

The Brighton Bowling Club staged a mixed trebles tournament on Wednesday afternoon and a local rink of William Brush, Mrs. Mary Hollis with Sam Netley as skip collected all the marbles. A Belleville rink of Mrs. George Dewey, who is in her eighties, drafted for the occasion with Mr. and Mrs. Winfred Price won the second three-game high. Another Brighton rink of E. Lord, Mrs. M. Allen with Art McConnell as skip won the two-game high score while Mrs. Larry Chouinard with Mr. and Mrs. Clinton Mitts of the Trenton Club won the one-game high.

Five rinks from the Belleville Club competed and included, Mrs. Lil Mascaro, Mrs. Grace Clapp with Hector Henderson as skip, Claude D. Tice, Mrs. Millie Smith with "Ab" Woodcock as skip, Mrs. Vera McIntosh, Mrs. Jessie Hunter with Wally Laverge as skip and Roy Hall, Mrs. Anne Avery with Jack Avery as skip. Most of the rinks won two games but not enough to get into the prize money.

• • •

A big tournament will be staged by the Quinte Lawn Bowling Club on the Belleville greens on Saturday when the Ontario Provincial trophy will be competed for. This is for men's doubles and there is a large entry at the present time. The greens are in perfect condition for this time of year and some fine bowling should be witnessed.—

Sunday Day the play for the John Shaw Memorial trophy will take place and Orlo Hall, the chairman for this tournament, requests all bowlers especially from the local club to be present at 9 a.m. because it is expected a full double draw will be the result of this popular tourney.

The Watkin Memorial trophy tournament, that was rained out a week ago will be staged on Saturday, September 19th.

On Thursday afternoon a rink of Mrs. May O'Hara, Mrs. Edna Jackman with Mrs. Grace Clapp as skip won bowling honors in the Afternoon League. Mrs. Blanche Smith with Mrs. Grace Clapp were the tea hostesses after the games.

On Tuesday afternoon the women's section will stage a tournament and on Thursday, play will be in progress for the Brading Cup.

Destruction Of Dog Ordered

Magistrate T. Y. Wills today ordered destruction of a dog after police said it bit a child.

The dog's owner, Mrs. Vera Lewis, R.R. 6 Belleville also was ordered to pay $11 court costs — or go to jail for three days.

"I have no income," said the woman.

"You have an income to keep and feed a dog haven't you," retorted the magistrate.

Highway Work Planned for St. Ola Area

Tenders will be called next week for grading, drainage and granular base on Highway No. 62 from 3 miles north of St. Ola Road northerly to the junction of secondary Highway No. 620, a distance of 4½ miles.

The announcement has been made by Clarke B. Rollins, MPP for Hastings East.

It is expected when the contract has been awarded, providing weather conditions permit, that the work will be under construction this fall.

3 Committed To Stand Trial By Magistrate

Magistrate T. Y. Wills today committed three Belleville men to stand trial by judge and jury for possession of safe - breaking tools.

Pleading not guilty at the outset of their preliminary hearing today were Bernard James Michael, 25, Raymond Wood, 42, and Robert Mondoville, 31.

The three were arrested July 12th in a car on Coleman Street after police quietly converged on the area.

Constable Sam Morgan told the court he kept the car under surveillance after seeing it parked near Coleman flats.

He arrested the three men as they returned to the automobile, he said. Found in the car were a railroad spike hammer and pry bar, bearing a CNR stamp.

Detective Dale Ashbury testified the implements were the commonest tools used for forceful safe - breaking.

Will Expose Undercover RCMP Methods

TORONTO (CP) — Calvin Macdonald Thursday night set forth on a speaking tour in which he will travel from across Canada exposing the undercover methods of the RCMP.

He opened his tour by telling how he spied on a speaker at a Communist rally in March in Ottawa five years ago.

Macdonald, standing on the sidewalk in front of his tiny onetime home, told a small crowd he was making the tour and the exposes in an attempt to force the RCMP to acknowledge that he became a Communist party member at the behest of and acted as an undercover agent for 10½ years.

He said he is listed by the department of veterans affairs as a Communist and is unable to find a job because of this. He also said he has lost the affection of his wife and two children because of his activities. The RCMP refuses to acknowledge him.

HAS SUPPORTER

Macdonald, whose cause is being championed by David Cowlishaw of Vancouver, organizer of a group called Underdog who Monday threw a mild assortment of cow's blood to the floor of the House of Commons to gain publicity for the cause, said he will speak in cities across Canada accusing the RCMP undercover methods.

Macdonald said that at Dominion United Church at the time of his activities there he set up recording apparatus in the church for a speech by James Endicott of Toronto.

Macdonald said Endicott is president of the Canadian Peace Congress and at that time spoke on recognition of Communist China by Canada.

He said his contact in the church was Const. Ernest Corrigan of Ottawa, and that Wednesday he called and asked Corrigan what time he intended to do.

Of Corrigan, Macdonald said: "I know what is going on here. He is going to be shipped out. I know what this is going to do to him."

He has announced when he is leaving on his tour or at what cities he is going to speak.

Parliamentary Notebook

By JAMES NELSON

OTTAWA (CP) — French-speaking members of Parliament now have the latest semi-official word on House of Commons rules and procedure to study in their native language.

For 45 years, the principal treatise on parliamentary procedure a handbook to help MPs play any trouble with the rules—has been the work of the late Arthur Beauchesne, himself a lawyer. It was published with a French edition, we can assure you that when we rise to speak we will be in order.

It was a costly project, but the full cost isn't yet known. It probably will compile out over year in publication of the House of Commons' public accounts. But the rules and precedents textbook in English now retails at about $23 a copy.

The translation had to be done outside the public service because of the private copyrights involved and the amount of time it consumed. Retired employees of the bureau of translation did the job.

Creditiste Leader Caouette this week pointed out that the government and Commons authorities for having finally produced the useful French translation of Beauchesne's book.

The proposal when the demands were only an undercurrent of discontent among backbench Quebec MPs; but no final decision was taken.

ASKED FOR FRENCH TEXT

As Lucian Plourde (Creditiste—Quebec West) put it last April: "How can we uphold our rights when we do not even have the regulations in our own language and we can't learn them. When we are provided with a French edition, we can assure you that when we rise to speak we will be in order."

If was a costly project, but the full cost isn't yet known. It probably will compile out over year in publication of the House of Commons' public accounts. But the rules and precedents textbook in English now retails at about $23 a copy.

Advance Party From Guards At Picton to Go to Cyprus

OTTAWA (CP)—An advance party of the 1st battalion, Canadian guards, Picton, Ont., will go to Cyprus Sept. 7 to arrange for the possible movement of the main body there as a replacement for the 2nd battalion, Royal 22nd Regiment, Defence Minister Hellyer said in the Commons today.

Mr. Hellyer said rotation of the two units will take place if a decision is made to extend the mandate of the United Nations force on Cyprus beyond the present Sept. 26 deadline.

WheatMarketing Board Cannot Pay Subsidies

CHATHAM (CP)—The Ontario Wheat Producers Marketing Board announced today that for the first time in six years it hasn't enough funds to pay a rebate to farmers who sold through the board during the 1963 marketing year.

Vice-chairman Harry MacKinnon said in a statement the cost of handling a record 12,000,000 bushels of wheat this year came from which the rebates are paid.

He did not elaborate on the board's financial position but said that considering "all factors and the financial picture "could have been much worse."

Farmers have been charged nine cents a bushel to pay for the costs of marketing their wheat and in past years have received a rebate of not less than five cents. This year the levy was increased to 12 cents.

The total cost of buying this amount (of wheat) plus all the costs of handling, transportation, storage and other charges involved in getting it sold in export markets exceeded the $1.365 nine-cent accumulated levy fund which is set up to cover these costs," Mr. MacKinnon said.

EXPORTS HIT RECORD

Exports were a record 13,457,000 bushels compared with 1,500,000 bushels in other years. The remainder was sold domestically.

"Under current world wheat prices it hasn't been possible to export at a profit," an official said.

He said the export wheat was sold at prices ranging from $1.67 to $1.80 a bushel compared with the domestic minimum price of $1.65, but added the costs of handling exports are much greater. The world price is set by international agreement.

The official said it is cheaper to export at 4 loss than to pay storage costs for surplus wheat.

The levy was raised this year "because we saw this coming this fall and we wanted to prevent it happening again," he said.

The biggest export buyer was Russia, which took 1,800,000 bushels. Other buyers were the United Kingdom, Ireland and China.

200 Chinese Report Illegal Entry in Canada

VANCOUVER (CP) — More than 200 Chinese here have reported to immigration officials for Chinese who had landed in Canada illegally to apply for amnesty making it legal immigrant status.

The minister later extended the deadline indefinitely.

Immigration officials here said it would take more than a month to process the latest flood of applications. There were about 400 other applications before the recent rush, and many of these were still awaiting processing.

4 Candidates In Byelection In Riverdale

TORONTO (CP) — Four candidates will contest the Toronto Riverdale seat in the Ontario legislature in a byelection scheduled for Sept. 26.

Contestants are Charles Templeton, 48, former evangelist and newspaper columnist for the Liberals; James A. Renwick, 46-year-old Toronto lawyer, for the Progressive Conservative Party; Kenneth G. Waters, 54, secretary-treasurer of a florist firm, for the Progressive Conservatives, and Fred Graham, an accountant, who admits to no political affiliation.

The byelection was called to elect a successor to Robert Macaulay, former minister of economics and development who resigned.

DONOR UNKNOWN

LONDON (CP)—An anonymous donor has given the Royal Holloway College, part of the University of London, £250,000 to build a man's hall of residence for 170 students. Royal Holloway was built in 1883 for women, but starting next year men will live there, too.

DEATHS

McDONALD, Ida — At the home of his son, 33 Ford St., Trenton, on Thursday, August 29, 1963, Ida McDonald of River Road, Shannpler, Ont., in her 91st year. Beloved husband of Isabel Slattery, dear father of Mrs. Earl Boyd (Kathleen) and Gilbert McDonald Sampler, Gordon of Dundas, Ont., and Leo of Trenton.

Resting at the R. Douglas Funeral Home, Trenton, where funeral service will be held on Monday, Sept. 2, at 2 p.m. Interment Mount Pleasant Cemetery. Visiting hours Saturday morning, then to Hillier, Ont., for service and interment on Monday at 2 p.m.

Interment, Hillier, Ont.

MANCHESTER, Mrs. Effie Alberta — Suddenly on Thursday, August 29, 1963, at her residence, Madoc, Ontario, Effie A. Cassidy, beloved wife of the late Percy J. Manchester, dear sister of Mrs. Jean Clement of Ottawa, Miss Jean Cassidy of London, Miss Ida Cassidy, Spokane, William Cassidy, Queensboro, and Robert Cassidy of Ochre River, Manitoba.

Mrs. Manchester is resting at the MacKenzie Funeral Home, Madoc, where funeral service will be held on Saturday, Sept. 31, at 2 p.m. Reverend D. W. Potter officiating. Interment Belleville. Visiting by Jean Maconachon.

DIGABLO — In loving memory of a dear wife and loving mother, Vera DiGabio, who passed away August 28th, 1952.

Fifteen years have passed since that sad day,
When our dear one was called away.
God called her home,
It was His will;
But in our hearts we love her still.
Sweet memories are all we have left us,
Memories treasured and lovingly remembered by her husband, Sons and daughter.

GOODFELLOW, Carrie E. — In loving memory of a dear mother who passed away August 29, 1962.

She suffered so much, her pleasure was very few,
She bore it with God and what she went through.
God stood over her hand and we had to see
He eased the pain but broke our hearts in three.
She couldn't say goodbye to us,
Perhaps it was just as well.
We never could have said goodbye,
It's much easier this way.
Lovingly remembered by daughter Joyce, son-in-law and grandchildren Steven, John and Rachael.

CARDS OF THANKS

The family of the late Harry Jones wish to express their thanks to friends, neighbors, relatives and Exhibitors at Belleville Fair for the floral arrangements, cards and many acts of kindness tendered them at this time.

We would like to thank all the people of Glen Miller for their kindness during the hour after our recent marriage. Especially would like to thank the people at Wallmans Corners for the shower in our honor. Words cannot express how much everyone was much.

Phyllis and Jim Bromley.

TRENTON'S LANDMARKS are coming down, one by one, in the name of progress. This week, workmen started tearing down Firhurst Manor on Dundas St. W. to make way for a new medical centre. In the grounds, a pagoda, shown above, is being torn down by a local photographer, Phillip Hebbard, who means to use the lumber to build a garage.

THE COAST GUARD CUTTER, "Relay" has been in Trenton harbor for the past few days, taking on fuel and waiting for six crew members to come from Prescott to replace six who are going on vacation. The Relay carries a complement of 12 men. Earmarked this year for duty on the Great Lakes, Relay has been on stand-by duty in Lakes Ontario, Erie and Huron, and will go on to Lake Superior in the fall. The ship comes under the jurisdiction of the Department of Transport.

Trucks Involved In 4 Mishaps; Father, Son Hurt

TRENTON — Four trucks were involved in a rash of accidents on Trenton streets yesterday. As a result of one accident, a father and son from Stirlerville, Ont., received treatment at the office of Dr. Kevin Flynn for minor injuries.

The truck-car collisions started off at 11.50 a.m., with a dump truck, driven by Gordon Chase Gregson of 99 Division Street, being involved in a collision at the corner of Lorne Ave. and Wilkins St., with a car driven by Frank Pearsall of Young St. in Brighton. The Pearsall car was damaged to the extent of $300, while the truck was not damaged.

Mr. Pearsall told police he failed to see a stop sign at the intersection, because the sign was partially obscured by detour signs. Neither driver was injured.

At 2.25 p.m., a collision between a small European car, driven by Mirrail Joseph Coe of Stittsville, with his son, Eugene as passenger and a small truck driven by Elmer James Demarsh of R.R. 1, Trenton, resulted in damages of $475. The accident occurred on Dundas St. W., near Fourth Ave. Coe was driving east and a Scaletta fruit truck, driven by Demarsh was said by police to have come out onto the highway from a private sideroad.

Mr. Coe was treated by Dr. Flynn for abrasions to his right arm and knee. He complained of sore ribs following the accident. Eugene Coe, 17, was treated for lacerations to his right elbow. The Coe car was damaged to the extent of $400.

TRAILER HITS POLE

At 6.30 p.m., a Mack tractor-trailer, driven by Charles Alexis of Toronto, struck a telephone pole at the corner of Dundas St. W. and Lorne Ave. with the trailer, shearing off the pole and resulting in damaged wires. The damage was repaired later by Bell Telephone employees.

At 6.15 p.m., a van driven by Robert Mark Fawcett of Alice St., Brighton, struck and damaged the roadside sign at the Twin Elms Motel on Dundas St. East, owned by Mrs. Elizabeth Bedford. The driver heard a noise as he drove under the sign, as the top of his van scraped the sign. The extent of damage to the sign has not been estimated.

Pearson Pennant Tacked up On Office Door

TRENTON — A well-known Trenton businessman, and well-known devotee of the Red Ensign, (with the Union Jack as second choice), arrived at work yesterday morning to find that "vandals" had entered his office during the night and tacked up a Pearson Pennant on the back of his office door.

To add "insult to injury," in the morning's mail he received an engraved invitation to the official unfurling of the Maple Leaf flag . . . in his office.

IN SECOND PLACE

The Campbellford Citizens' Band took second place honors in Thursday afternoon's competition for brass and reed bands (class three) at the Canadian National Exhibition.

RCAF Trenton-6BD (Volunteer) Brass and Reed Band, under the baton of Sgt. Howard Kelly, placed fifth in the stband competition.

Other standings were: first: Georgetown Citizens' Band; third: Beamsville Citizens' Band; fourth: the Delhi Community Band; sixth: Acton Citizens' Band.

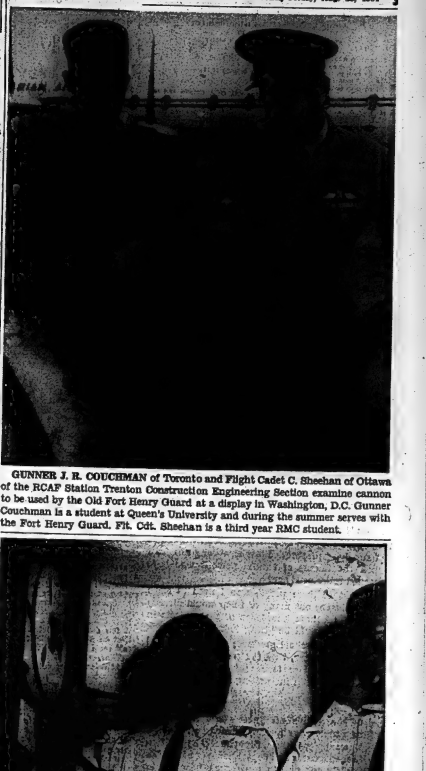
In the June 27th competition, Delhi beat out the RCAF Trenton-6BD band by two points for first place in a similar competition.

Quaker Oats Employees Get Bonus Cheques

Thursday was profit sharing day for Quaker Oats Company employees across Canada. In the mails, approved employees received their share of profits earned by the company for the year ending June 30.

Each approved employee received a cheque equal to eight per cent of his last year's gross earnings. In most cases, this was equivalent to four weeks' pay.

Company president, F. G. Wharry pointed out to the employees in a personal letter, accompanying each bonus cheque, that their share this year represented the largest amount paid since the war years. He credited the Russian flour order for a significant boost in company earnings, and while this order (in all probability) will not be repeated this year, he said he looked forward to new Quaker products making a sizeable contribution to the present year.



Quaker employee sharing has increased in its present per cent each successive year since 1961, when a two per cent profit sharing was paid. The company had a three per cent increase in eligible employees for the bonus last year and anticipates a greater increase this year.

The Trenton Pet Food Division of Quaker Oats has made changes this year in the processing of their product and plans further changes in the near future to make better products at lower cost to the customer.

Trenton manager Norman Harris said yesterday the changes were necessary to keep pace with competitive advances being made in the pet food segment of industry.

Three Injured As Cars Collide Early Today

TRENTON — A two-car accident on Dundas St. W. at Fairview Crescent, around 12.15 a.m. today, resulted in minor injuries to the driver of one car and to two passengers in the other car.

One driver, T. J. Pfeiffer, of 19 Fairview Crescent, suffered a cut to his forefinger on his right hand and complained of a sore neck, following the accident.

A Belleville woman, Diane Doris Mancuso, of 79 Church St., suffered bruising to her forehead and complained of a sore chest; Gary Thomas Ibbotson, 20½ Dundas Street East, Trenton, suffered an injury to his right leg. Both were passengers in a car driven by Ernest Howard Andrews of 15 College Street, Trenton. Another passenger in the Andrews' car, Shirley Jean Gilbert of 70 Church St., Belleville, was not injured

The impact of the collision sent the Pfeiffer car up onto the lawn at 397 Dundas St. W., where it hit a stump and toppled over onto its left side.

Damage to the Pfeiffer car was set by police at $600 and to the Andrews car at $200.

Reward Offered For Information

COOKSVILLE, Ont. (CP)—A $200 reward has been offered for information leading to the capture and conviction of an arsonist who has broken into the Clarkson branch of the Toronto Township library eight times during the last three months and set fire to it twice.

Police said they believe the man to be a pervert because he tore pictures of nude women from art books in the library during his visits.

One of the fires resulted in damage to the building and books estimated at several thousand dollars.

Parliament At a Glance

By THE CANADIAN PRESS

THURSDAY, Aug. 27, 1964

Eight members—five Conservatives, two New Democrats and one Liberal—spoke in the 16th day of the Commons flag debate, in which no progress was made.

Justice Minister Favreau, government House leader, said the government was agreeable to substituting legislation for flag debate Monday if the Commons sat longer hours on the flag other days.

Walter Dinsdale (PC—Brandon-Souris) rejected Mr. Favreau's proposal; it amounted to "legislation by exhaustion."

Opposition Leader Diefenbaker said he would agree to a limited debate on the recommendation of a parliamentary flag committee provided the committee was "substantially unanimous."

Stanley Knowles (NDP—Winnipeg North Centre) accused the Conservatives of bringing Parliament into disrepute and disgrace by their flag debate tactics.

Conservatives criticized minister without portfolio Yvon Dupuis for soliciting orders for car stickers showing the government's maple leaf flag design.

Finance Minister Gordon announced all provinces except Quebec are entering the program under which Ottawa will guarantee bank loans to needy university students.

FRIDAY, Aug. 28

The Commons sits at 10:30 a.m. to debate industry department spending estimates. The Senate is adjourned to Sept. 15.

Claims NDP Taking Some Liberal Votes

LONDON, Ont. (CP) — Some of the future Liberal support can be won from the ranks of the New Democratic Party, said Robert Nixon Thursday night when he addressed about 25 London and Middlesex delegates to the upcoming Liberal convention.

Mr. Nixon, one of six announced candidates for the leadership of the Liberal party in Ontario who will compete at next month's convention in Toronto, said the NDP is going nowhere.

Although it has only six members in the legislature, he said, the NDP drains off a number of votes that should be Liberal by people who are voting for reform and improvement.

Mr. Nixon, 36-year-old MPP for Brant, said he does not believe that cries of corruption alone are enough to turn the Conservative government out of office, although recent roads and stocks scandals have shaken the confidence of Ontario residents.

The Liberals must offer not only reform, efficiency and leadership, he said., but also outline long - range objectives. One of these would be to help smooth the transition to automation through co - operation among labor, management and the government. . .

Second Careers?

Two of Ontario's better daily newspapers, the Toronto Globe and Mail and The Ontario Intelligencer, carried stories on Tuesday of this week which were not entirely unrelated.

The story in the Globe and Mail told how a 52-year-old business woman at Ann Arbor, Mich., will become a kindergarten teacher this fall.

The report in The Ontario Intelligencer stated that many school boards across the country were facing a major problem in finding qualified teachers for the re-opening of schools this fall.

The first story suggests a possible eventual solution to the problem outlined in the second story.

The Michigan woman, of course, is not the first to turn to teaching from business. To make the switch, she has gone to college part-time for ten years. We know of one Belleville man who is in the process of acquiring a college degree by degrees, with the aim of eventually becoming a teacher.

The steady increase in teachers' salaries over the past decade or more will probably increase the number of recruits from the business and professional world.

But these people will have to be trained. It is in the provision of adequate facilities for training new teachers that one of the bottlenecks lies.

This suggests a slight revision in the source of supply of prospective teachers—why not draw upon the talents of trained persons who have reached retirement age?

Most of these people would need to learn how to teach, but many of them would already have an adequate knowledge of the subjects in which they would be giving instruction.

If a high school graduate can be prepared to teach in a year, then it should be possible to get a much better teacher by spending that amount of time in instructing some person with specialized training and experience in some related field.

Of course, this is not a new thought. Some retired people have already turned to teaching.

The supply, though, could surely be increased, if school boards and departments of education deliberately set out to draw such people into the schools.

There would be pitfalls. It would be bad for the young to find themselves surrounded entirely by teachers who were old. But a few old fogies would not do any harm if they were competent.

Somebody will ask why it would not be much better to encourage teachers themselves to continue past the normal retirement age. The answer is that a change is as good as a rest—many after a life work in business or the professions would find this new challenge of teaching tremendously stimulating. Familiarity, while it does not necessarily breed contempt, does manufacture ruts. The teacher wants the rest of a change.

Is there any reason why a chartered public accountant could not teach bookkeeping, an engineer give instruction in algebra, a well-travelled man teach history and geography, a stenographer instruct in typing, a public health nurse teach hygiene? Results might be interesting.

Page Kildare!

Kildare and Casey may be popular with TV viewers. But they are a joke to people in the business of caring for the sick.

A hospital's affairs are just not run that way, we are told.

Now we get proof of this assertion.

A Toronto woman was taken to the emergency ward of a hospital, was examined by a staff doctor and pronounced very ill and was then turned away to die at home, because the hospital doctor said she could not be admitted on the order of a doctor outside the hospital staff.

The TV directors, of course, would have had the staff doctor rush her to the intensive care unit.

And do you know what—we think the TV directors would be right.

Fiction, in this case, is not only less strange than truth, but more in keeping with our sense of what is right, what should be done.

All government—indeed, every human benefit and enjoyment, every virtue and every prudent act—is founded on compromise and barter.—Edmund Burke.

Strictly Personal
Newspapers Not Usually Run One Way

By SYDNEY J. HARRIS

Entering a currency exchange to cash a cheque, I showed my credentials to the man behind the window. When he saw the name of the paper I work for, he grunted: "Never read that paper — can't stand it."

I wondered if the press editorial defects he had discovered, and asked him.

"Couple of years ago," he said, "I was robbed in this exchange. The other papers just printed the story — but your paper said I was scared and ran."

"And wasn't this true?" I asked.

"Of course not," he snapped. "I was so scared I couldn't run."

I laughed, and after a moment he joined me. But then I detected that the reasons people dislike certain newspapers have little to do with the grand patterns imposed by editors or publishers. One reader, one reporter, one slight error, had alienated a reader forever.

It was a temptation to ask him "Why didn't you call the city desk and ask for a correction?" but I realized, from his manner, he'd be skeptical about the results.

To him, as to so many people, a newspaper was only one way: writer to reader.

Actually, a newspaper is tremendously responsive to the needs and reactions of its readers. Editors hunt down errors of fact as assiduously as a bear sniffs out goes after ants in the pantry. No adjective is more damaging to a news story than to be called "inaccurate."

The public, by and large, is not aware of its power or its responsibilities. It either meekly accepts or hotly resents what a paper prints — but never thinks that editors and publishers are eager to get the responses of readers, to correct the statements, and to improve the quality of the product.

A few dozen cool, intelligent letters on a controversial topic would seem like a tidal wave to an editor.

A newspaper goes out into a void — and a void every day, and unless some kind of echo comes back, an editor cannot be sure he is doing his job.

In a democratic society, the public has a responsibility to make its wishes felt. It has a right to treat its local newspaper as an integral part of the community and to insist that the facts be straight and the opinions honest. The man who didn't like the bird it got to be angry at what he didn't know was that he also had a duty to make his anger known — before it went to the most good — to himself and to the paper.

Dictionary Definitions

Financial Times

Flag: a piece of stiff (usually bunting), varying in size, color, and device, but usually oblong or square, attached by one edge to a staff or to a halyard, used as a standard, ensign, or signal, also for display.

Debate: (substantive) strife, dissension, disagreement; contention in argument; dispute, controversy; discussion, especially discussion of a public question; to fight, strive, quarrel, wrangle.

Parliament: the action of speaking; a discussion or debate; a formal conference or council for the discussion of some matter or matters of general importance; the Great Council of the nation.

This brief excursion into the Shorter Oxford English Dictionary may help to clarify the three words with which Ottawa is obsessed these days.

It does not help to describe the depths of impotency to which the great country of our nation has sunk in its dispute over a piece of stuff.

To do that, we rely on the Oxford definition of flag as a verb, namely "to become flaccid, to hang down; to flap about loosely."

As Warren Baldwin points out, there is no earthly end in sight to the childish and incoherent Commons' flap over the flag.

CLEANINGS FROM OUR FYLES OF BYGONE YEARS

20 YEARS AGO

August 28th, 1944

Volunteers at the Federal penitentiary in Atlanta are being used by American scientists in experiments with what they hope is a cure for malaria. Army and Navy doctors and other medical men are reported optimistic over the future possibilities.

When the Japs seized the Dutch East Indies they cut off most of the world's supply of quinine, which has been the chief weapon in combatting malaria, a disease that works havoc among people in the tropics.

War has its colapsecautions. Among them is the stipulation it gives human ingenuity to devise new ways of accomplishing ends. Add this malaria cure, if it pans out, to penicillin, and you have two outstanding scientific achievements that will surely be among the assets of the conquration of that city by the Germans in 1940, Miss Marguerite Fleury of Aurora, well known in Belleville, heard the English tongue spoken for the first time in five weeks when the French capital was liberated by the Allies. The story of her voluntary confinement and liberation was featured in a front page story in the Globe and Mail, on Tuesday morning.

Miss Fleury was formerly a grand opera singer, but during the past few years has been in semi-invalid. She escaped the internment camps through the action of friends, her name was struck off the list of British subjects living in Paris.

The hotel at Massassaga Park which at one time was the most popular summer resort in this section will soon be but a memory. It was sold this summer for the lumber in the building and wrecking has been at work for several weeks demolishing the three storey structure and only the bottom portion remains. Numerous Belleville residents and people from various parts of Ontario and the United States used to spend a large part of the summer at the hotel and a number of Belleville people own attractive cottages in the park. The steamer Annie Lake made a daily trip to the lake park, and sailing yachts and motor launches brought many there to spend the day. Basket picnic parties were held there and dancing parties took place several times a week in the evenings. Row boats and canoes were much in evidence and the large lake boats, by way of the Murray canal, passed up and down several times a week. Some Belleville people will recall many happy times spent at Massassaga Park.

Mr. C. J. Hickin and Mrs. Harold Fuller of Schenectady, N.Y., have arrived here by motor car to visit the former's parents, Mr. and Mrs. Charles R. Hickin.

Mr. Adolphus Burgoyne and wife have left on a motor trip to places of interest in the United States.

Mr. Charles Keeber, former physical director at the YMCA here, and now on the staff at the Sarnia Technical School, is renewing acquaintances in town.

Mr. and Mrs. R. T. Warner and daughter June, have returned home from Toronto, where they spent several days.

At three o'clock this afternoon 28 members of the 34th Battery in this city, who have enlisted for active service over-seas, left here by special train for Ottawa. Thirty-three of the same Battery left here last week. The men were escorted to the C.N.R. station by the band of the 15th Regiment and a large number of citizens.

Capt. Hope, a volunteer for active service with the 34th Battery was recently presented with a purse of gold by the members of Moira Lodge No. 11, A.F. and A.M., of which he is an officer. The presentation was made by Dr. J. M. Wilson, Wor. Master of the Lodge.

Mr. Charles J. Bowell of the Intelligencer accompanied the members of the 34th Battery to Valcartier today.

The Power to Claim Sleep

Montreal Gazette

When he was in his eighties Dr. Charles W. Eliot, the former president of Harvard, wrote an article on "How I have preserved my health." And he had this to say about sleep: "I have always been able to sleep well at night. . . . I could always spend a long evening in stirring debate or in public speaking, and go to sleep on getting home without delay . . . I could also write diligently all the evening on a subject which greatly interested me, stop at eleven o'clock, and fall asleep the moment I got into bed."

This ability to sleep—almost the power to claim sleep as of right—he has not belonged to many men, even though they were more demanding in their ways than Eliot. No man had a firmer face than Prince Bismarck, the Chancellor of Germany. While living under grim and massive chin, he was the very picture of self-command. He slept deeply.

In 1877, at one of his soirees in Berlin, he made an unexpected announcement. "I can never get to sleep before five in the morning, and it is often six or seven. Then I sleep till noon. Till five I lie awake, recalling all the unpleasant things that have occurred in the course of the past thirty years—which all come up again before my mind in the gloomiest form."

This gloom in the dreadful night, the crowding back of hateful memories also plagued a very different man from Chancellor Bismarck, the brilliant artist Sir Edward Burne-Jones. His paintings, soft and dream-like, reflect the artist's dread of the torment of his nights. Yet these are almost the same as Bismarck's.

"Ah! what would you do if you had to go to bed at nine, as I often do — and wake at two, as I mostly do, and lie thinking of all the mistakes and the ill-lucks and the many humiliations for three or four hours night after night."

"If I were a king I would make my prime minister sit up with me and read chronicles of other people's mistakes till I fell asleep . . ."

In 1815 Napoleon was on the H.M.S. Northumberland, on the way to his exile on St. Helena. The surgeon on board the Northumberland was William Warden. In the long days of the voyage Napoleon talked a good deal with Dr. Warden. One day they were discussing medical matters when Warden said to Napoleon, as he asked Napoleon a personal question:

"The conversation afforded me, as I thought, rather a fair opportunity of asking him, if his sleep was generally sound: I felt at the time it was an adventurous question; nor would it have surprised me, if he had turned away without giving me an answer; but, with a look more expressive of surprise than displeasure, he replied, 'No — from my cradle, I have been an indifferent sleeper.'"

During the day annoyances, or mistakes, or aching memories have to be pushed into the distraction among distractions. But at night the merciful distractions vanish and leave the mind disposed to capture the mind.

* * *

Sir Austen Chamberlain, in his delicate years in Parliament, fell back on the defence of memorizing poetry to control thoughts to counteract the painful:

"If you find that after the worries and excitements of a busy day you are too excited to sleep when you reach your bed — and it does happen — the capacity for thinking of nothing, visit your rock garden in imagination, and you will soon to sleep night after night in this way before my head had touched the pillow. I am very low, or I could have covered six paces of my small garden."

* * *

But such methods are not likely to be dependable. Nothing short of the power of command of being able to command sleep and having it obey. It is the political Napoleon.

Gladstone had it, even through the tensions of his Irish Home Rule bills. He was as much like Dr. Eliot's, as the words of Burne-Jones are like Bismarck's. "His words in my chamber door at night" he said, "I lock out all cares of state and of parliament, alas."

He could remember only once having been kept awake by a worry. He had been staying at the house of his brother-in-law in the country. That evening he had had a particularly exercise of chopping down a tree. Before he could finish darkness and a storm drove him indoors. He had lain awake that night, anxiously wondering whether the tree would be blown down.

Not many men can say that worry has kept them awake only one night in their lives.

Count Leo Tolstoy, one of the world's greatest writers, was born at Yasnaya Polana, Russia, 136 years ago today—in 1828.

Although he wrote many things in fair student, Tolstoy showed ability as a writer with brilliant sketches of the Crimean War. After his return from war, he freed the serfs on his estate and began his long campaign for improving the lot of the poor. He married in 1862 and began his two masterpieces, War and Peace and Anna Karenina. His writings as a social reformer eventually became more important to him than writing.

Try to Boost Sales of Fish

St. Thomas Times-Journal

Canadian housewives may soon be placing more fish before their husbands and families at the dinner table if the fisheries industry is successful in a new plan to promote its products. According to a report originating in Charlottetown, P.E.I., Jack R. Exley, general manager of Eagle Fisheries Ltd., and immediate past president of the Fisheries Council of Canada, the promotion program is nearly ready for launching.

An all-out drive to make fish, in all its commercial forms, more attractive to consumers, may be launched within the next few months. The promotion, to be developed by the Council, is expected to be similar to the national program carried out by the dairy foods promotion council of the Dairy Farmers of Canada.

Mr. Exley feels it may take some time to get the program rolling and before tangible results will be felt in the industry but he is optimistic about the success. He said the industry has been held back by not selling itself adequately.

Mr. Exley is right. It is a promotion that has long been needed in the industry in Canada and it is time to make a beneficial effect on the entire industry. Commercial fisheries in general, both fresh and salt water varieties, are doing their part in harvesting fish. But it is not enough to simply bring them in and dump them on the dock. Fishermen need a fully-skilled, fully-motivated sales force to take it from there and find new markets for the product.

To Your Good Health
Mother Nature Decides What Sex Baby Will Be

By JOSEPH G. MOLNER, M.D.

Dear Dr. Molner: I am a young woman with three children. I have been told that if you use either an acid or alkali douche you can have more or less control the sex of the baby. I would dearly like to have a boy next time. Is there any truth in what I have been told? — Mrs. J. H.

Dear Doctor: Please tell me who determines the sex of a baby? — Mrs. R.

There are all sorts of theories about controlling the sex of a baby but before tangible results will be felt in the industry but he is optimistic about the success. He said the industry has been held back by not selling itself adequately.

Mr. Exley is right. It is a promotion that has long been needed in the industry in Canada and it is time to make a beneficial effect on the entire industry. Commercial fisheries in general, both fresh and salt water varieties, are doing their part in harvesting fish. But it is not enough to simply bring them in and dump them on the dock. Fishermen need a fully-skilled, fully-motivated sales force to take it from there and find new markets for the product.

Dear Dr. Molner: I am supposed to have varicose veins "stripped" from both legs soon. The doctor says I'll probably lose my legs if I don't. Is this possible? — I have seen some worse than mine and they have not been told this.

My family has a history of these legs. No doubt I would be one of those who would have the "new veins" become bad, too. The operation wouldn't seem so pointless if we could afford it. I am 39.

I enclose the required 25 cents in coin and a long, self-addressed, unstamped envelope for your booklet, "How to Deal With Varicose Veins." — Mrs. S.

Your doctor is in far better position than I am to judge how seriously your varicose veins have interfered with circulation in your legs. The outward appearance of the veins doesn't tell the whole story. What matters is whether you are getting adequate circulation to keep the tissues healthy.

Should the "new" veins — meaning the ones which expand and take over the old ones' duties — also become varicose, you still will have the essential way of improved circulation in the meantime.

Dear Dr. Molner: My five-year-old boy had undescended testes. Can they be corrected by a series of shots, or is surgery necessary? — Mrs. C. S.

Hormone treatment often but not always, will correct this condition. If the hormones fail, then it is time to resort to surgery. You have several years before such a decision will be necessary. Try the hormones in the meantime.

Would Alter Fair Awards

Edmonton Journal

Harry Hays went to Ottawa with a reputation for having a good head.

After a shaky start in the House of Commons, he now gives the impression of being among the most sensible men in the cabinet.

Nothing happy, just down-to-earth common sense, as befits a man knowing personal success long before he went into politics—which is more than many politicians can say for themselves.

Take as an example his views about Canadian agricultural fairs, expressed while in Edmonton.

He wants the emphasis in livestock entries changed from "show to utility." Now, he says, fairs are "just not doing what they were designed to do."

What are they supposed to do? Mr. Hays wants them emphasizing productivity, quality and efficiency—in practical demonstrations of agricultural know-how.

Since Ottawa makes substantial grants to summer exhibitions, he's in a position to help call the tune.

Time after time, competitive events develop into what amount to two-year classes. On one hand, judges using conventional "show" standards are awarding prizes.

On the other, people actually in livestock production are making their choices. And as often as not, animals bringing the most money are not the ones getting the most ribbons.

Chips Keep Industry Busy

Troy Times Record

The next time the lady of the house sees signs of temper because a dish or a glass has been chipped, don't blame it on the dishwasher. More than likely it is because she realizes that this is part of an expensive process.

Crockery and glassware makers have gotten their heads together, and the subject of chipped dishes and they say that chipping is a big business. In fact, it is an important item in keeping the wheels of this particular industry turning.

It is estimated that of four in the United States, some 30,000 dishes per month. On an average, one dozen glasses are broken each month. Another percentage suffers that fatal chip which becomes so careless so disfiguring that the dish is discarded.

Lumped together all the chips and breaks have a total value of 700 million dollars in the replacement value every year. That breakage means big business. The average cost of the replaced dish is 73 cents, but in actual value the items are from a five - cent glass to a 25-dollar serving platter.

Next time there is griping because of a chipped dish don't be hasty about judgment. As the lady of the house she knows more about these things than we do. It's bound to happen to the best of dishes and glasses.

Toronto Stocks

TORONTO (CP) — Prices were mixed in light trading on the Toronto stock market today.

Industrials made a ragged advance with auto stocks showing sharp improvement. General Motors was ahead 3% to 103½ and Chrysler 3 to 63, both 1964 highs. Massey - Ferguson gained ¼ to 28⅝, Levy industries ¼ to 15¼ and Aluminium ¼ to 31. Loeb turned over more than 20,000 shares in the first hour but was unchanged at 10¼.

Empire Life slipped 5 to $375 in profit-taking. Earlier in the session it sold as high as $395 bringing its gain this week to $130. B.C. Sugar fell 1 to 44 and Algoma Steel ½ to 74.

Speculative mining issues were largely ignored by investors. New Calumet fell five to 72 cents and Windfall two to 44 cents. Raglan climbed three to $1.85, Genex 2½ to 34½ cents and Johnsmith two to 18 cents.

Senior base metals were quiet and firm. Inco teched on ¼ to 85½.

Golds and western oils were trendless.

On index, industrials added .12 at 159.14, base metals .04 to 67.13 and the exchange index .18 to 148.56. Golds were down .21 to 135.15 and western oils .03 to 93.75. Volume at 11 a.m. was 637,000 shares compared with 745,000 shares traded at the same time Thursday.

Empire Life continued as a buying target, climbing to a 1964 high of $395 with a $60 advance. Its gain so far this week is $115. A company spokesman said the recent activity is a result of a re-evaluation of the stock by investors. He denied rumors of a stock split or take over. Imperial Life climbed $7 to $212, its gain this week is $17.

Beverage issues were stronger with Distillers Seagram ahead ¾ to 61¾ and Walkers ¼ to 36⅜.

Algoma Steel teched on ⅛ to 74½ while B-A oil added ¼ to a 1964 high of 35.

Banks were weaker although Montreal countered the trend with a gain of ⅛ to 68¼. Nova Scotia dipped ⅞ to 76 and Toronto-Dominion ¼ to 68¾.

Speculative mining issues were relatively quiet. Iso slipped 16 cents to $1.50. Genex rose to 32 cents, Raglan eight cents to $1.82 and New Calumet three to 77 cents. Norbeau was ahead 18 cents to $1.33.

Rio Algom and Opemiska were each down 25 cents to $20 and $8.40 in the base metals group. Inco countered with a gain of 1 to 84¾.

On index, industrials were ahead .68 to 159.02, western oils .27 to 93.78 and the exchange index .37 to 143.47. Golds were down .52 to 135.36 and base metals .22 to 67.09. Volume was 3,242,000 shares compared with 3,140,000 shares traded Wednesday.

Letters Bring Heckling, Jeers In Commons

OTTAWA (CP) — The Opposition Thursday criticized Yvon Dupuis, minister without portfolio, for soliciting orders for bumper stickers with the maple leaf flag on them.

Mr. Dupuis said in the Commons that government servants were not employed at any time.

But Opposition Leader Diefenbaker said a letter by Mr. Dupuis offering to sell stickers had advised interested parties to telephone Gordon Marshall who occupies a position in Mr. Dupuis's office.

Mr. Dupuis said Mr. Diefenbaker must have an intelligence service because the letter was confidential.

Mr. Diefenbaker asked whether it was proper and fitting for a member of the government to send out letters seeking orders for bumper stickers and to use his office to handle them.

Prime Minister Pearson said it was "not too serious" when a member of the government supported the government's flag resolution.

Such action was proper if it was proper for Senator Wallace McCutcheon, Toronto Conservative and former cabinet minister, to solicit campaign funds from the Liberal government.

Revenue Minister Benson offered to table the letter from Senator McCutcheon which he received through his former Kingston law firm.

Weekly Livestock Review

TORONTO (CP) — Trading opened actlyey at strong to higher prices on slaughter steers, heifers and yearlings but tapered off on heavy receipts of unfinished cattle near the close at the Ontario public stockyards this week.

Cow prices were lower and bull prices higher. Replacement prices were unchanged.

Veal calf prices were higher. Hog prices were mostly steady and lamb prices opened higher and closed steady.

Cattle receipts were estimated at about 10,600 head, about 1,400 head more than last week and 2,000 head more than the same week in 1963. Western cattle receipts numbered 1,071 head, an increase over last week of 96 head. Western stock calf receipts were 202 head, as compared to 277 head last week. There were no shipments to Eastern Canadian slaughterers nor exports off the market to the United States.

Almost Loaded Up His Trucks And Went Home

TORONTO (CP) — Frederick W. Gurney, 70, of Paris, Ont., sheep exhibitor at the Canadian National Exhibition, "almost loaded up the trucks and went home, sheep and all" when he was asked to take down Red Ensigns from above his sheep pens in the Coliseum.

Jack Perdue, livestock supervisor at the CNE, asked Mr. Gurney to take down the Ensigns which were displayed along with photographs of sheep and certificates of awards he has won over the years.

Mr. Perdue said he asked Mr. Gurney, who hasn't missed a CNE for 60 years, to take the flags down because other exhibitors would have all kinds of displays up over their pens.

Mr. Gurney said he complied with the request, but no one could be ordered to take the flag down.

BEST GIRL AND BOY "SKIPLETS" of the Bay of Quinte Yacht Club classes were 13-year-old Nicky Gardener and 14-year-old Richard Gibbons. Prizes for the student sailors were presented at the Yacht Club last night.

Junior Sailors of Yacht Club Rewarded for Year's Work

Classes are over for 54 junior sailors at the Bay of Quinte Yacht Club. The children who took two-week, one-month or two-month courses in sailing at the Yacht Club this summer finished the season with a party and presenting last night.

Thirty-four of them had earned third-class certificates and one of them, John Andrews, had earned a first-class certificate. There were no second-class certificates awarded this year.

Prizes for the best girl and best boy "skiplets" in the first year class went to Nicky Gardener and Richard Gibbons. Prize for the most advanced student in the first year class went to Cindy Rickards. Best girl skipper in the open classification was Rosemary Soden.

John Andrews won first place honors in the annual keelboat race run with centreboarders this year, for lack of keelboats. Second prize for the race went to Albert Horlock and Paul Grant took third prize.

Albert Horlock took the prize for the best racing average and the prize for the most proficient skipper went to Rosemary Soden.

Prizes were presented by club commodore Orland A. Pinkston, assisted by sailing instructors Brian Yealland and Miss Shawn Doyle. Chief instructor, Jack Premsseler, was master of ceremonies. Ian Morch, director of junior sailing for the club, addressed the group.

Telephone Act Said Outside Jurisdiction

NORTH BAY (CP) — Magistrate M. G. Gould said Thursday that Section 113 of the Ontario Telephone Act is outside the jurisdiction of the province and dismissed charges against a North Bay man of, using indecent, obscene and grossly insulting language over a telephone.

Spyros Loukidelis, defence lawyer, argued that the section of the act was actually criminal law and was therefore outside the jurisdiction of the provincial legislature.

Magistrate Gould said: "There are many sections in the Criminal Code which deal with indecent and obscene language, conduct and publications, and when this particular matter is not covered by the Criminal Code, it seems very much the type of thing dealt with in the code.

"I do feel the argument is very strong that the particular section of the act we are dealing with is legislation regarding criminal law and therefore is not within the power of the provincial legislature.

"The Telephone Act is legislation regarding Dominion law rather than provincial and the province has no right to legislate for the Dominion."

The section in question reads as follows:

"Every person who, when using a telephone instrument or conversing over a telephone line, whether the telephone instrument or line is owned by a telephone system under the jurisdiction of the legislature or not, uses indecent, obscene, blasphemous or grossly insulting language is guilty of an offence and on summary conviction is liable to a fine of not more than $50 or to imprisonment for a term of not more than 30 days, or to both."

Darwin McIntosh, a North Bay businessman, was charged under Section 113 of the Telephone Act by police.

MR. MELTZER ON REAL ESTATE
"What's Your Problem?"

By BERNARD C. MELTZER

In view of our complex tax structure these days, the prudent investor is less concerned with the amount of return on his investment, than the amount he gets to keep after taxes.

Real estate investment offers unique advantages in this respect, as a friend of Mr. B. S. M. has apparently discovered.

Dear Mr. Meltzer: A friend of mine who has been investing in real estate mentioned to me that he doesn't pay any taxes on his income from these investments.

This seems fantastic, but I know so little about real estate that I was embarrassed to challenge him. It has been on my mind ever since.

Is my friend cheating the Internal Revenue Service? Is he lying? Or is this one of those benefits of investing in real estate you always write about?

ANSWER: Your friend probably is not lying or cheating. It is possible to achieve tax benefits from wise investments in income type real estate. Not only can they yield a good return but the income can be tax free for a considerable number of years as a result of the owner being allowed to deduct a yearly depreciation allowance on the building.

For example, a client of mine recently invested in a new commercial property which he purchased for $110,000. The land was valued at $10,000; the building at $100,000. He secured an $80,000 mortgage.

The net income of the property (after expenses) was $10,000, and since his mortgage interest payment was roughly $5,000, his taxable income was $5,000. The building had been assigned a useful life of 25 years and by taking advantage of an accelerated depreciation method (200 percent declining balance) he has a depreciation allowance of $8,000 the first year; $7,360 the second year; $6,771 the third year; etc. Since these depreciation allowances can be offset against income, not only will he pay no taxes on this income for several years, he actually will have tax losses to be applied against other income.

In my client's income tax bracket (60 percent) you can see the benefits of this, rather than another type investment. It isn't cheating, however; it's carefully applying investment know-how to a current tax structure that is designed to encourage investments and stimulate the economy.

The tax advantages of this type of investment vary with the individual's income and other investments. It is complicated; so if you are interested, by all means first discuss it carefully with your accountant or an attorney specializing in tax law.

Dear Mr. Meltzer: I can't stand this hot weather any more. I am eager to air condition my house, but have a problem.

Since I have a steam heating system, I must use window type air conditioners. My ranch type house is not large (in fact 4 of the rooms are quite small). But there are a total of 8 separate rooms, and the estimates of how much one unit per room will cost has my hair standing on end!

Is a future of debt or poverty the only alternative to heat prostration, or can you come up with another solution for a faithful reader?

ANSWER: I can suggest a solution that has worked well in similar situations. You will probably need 3 (no more than 4) units.

Install oversize units in the main rooms and keep the rest of the rooms sealed against outdoors (as if they each had units) except for a small exhaust fan at the far end of the house. This device permits one air conditioner to serve several rooms — or a very few to serve 8 rooms, enabling you to keep both cool and solvent.

• • •

Dear Mr. Meltzer: I'm a faithful wife and I'm not mercenary, but I am concerned about what would become of our house if anything happens to my husband.

Our house is the only thing of our own free and clear — our only asset. When we bought it 12 years ago, I was under age and to save complications my brother advised us to put it in only my husband's name. Several times since I have suggested that we change this to include my name.

My husband pooh-poohs the idea, claiming when he dies I inherit the house anyway. He has never made out a will either as he thinks it is bad luck.

Now he was in an accident last month, but fortunately was not badly hurt. When I got over worrying about him, I started worrying about what would have happened where the house is concerned if he had been killed. Do I have cause to worry, or is my husband right? — Mrs. T. L. O.

Answer: Your worry is not without some foundation. Should your husband die without a will, you may find yourself but one of several heirs with a claim against the estate (and house). Depending upon your State's Intestate Laws in addition to yourself, your children, your husband's family and collateral relatives could also end up with a share of the house upon your husband's death.

A simple solution is to have your husband prepare a deed transferring ownership to both you and himself. The only cost involved is a small fee to the attorney preparing the new deed and a nominal charge for affidavits and recording the deed; a cheap price indeed for protection and peace of mind.

• • •

Dear Mr. Meltzer: I'm a fellow real estate broker, and am honestly enthusiastic about the benefits of real estate investment. Too enthusiastic, I guess, as I can't always get my fellow Kiwanis members to believe me. They will believe you. So answer this:

If a man bought a house in 1940 for $10,000, what would it be worth today? — F. B. P.

ANSWER: As you know, the type of house and the location greatly affect value trends. All things being equal (and average), however, a $10,000 house bought in 1940 (pre-World War II) might be worth roughly $30,000 today.

Neither of Two Main Parties Has Any Desire to Make Colored Immigration Issue

By DOUG MARSHALL

LONDON (CP)—The problem of colored immigration into Britain is an iceberg both major political parties hope will stay safely submerged during the coming election campaign.

Neither Conservative nor Labor party headquarters have any desire to make immigration a national campaign issue. But there are signs the iceberg is about to surface anyway, creating a potential hazard to all concerned.

Both parties are under considerable pressure from certain local constituency organizations to include a statement on immigration in their election manifestos—or at least make their official positions on the subject clear.

Most of the pressure comes from the industrial Midlands where concentrations of West Indian and Asian immigrants have had the greatest impact on established social patterns. The Birmingham area, nucleus of the Midlands, now has an estimated 300,000 colored immigrants out of a population of 1,100,000.

Adding to the pressure is Lord Elton, a politically - independent peer who favors restricted immigration. He has written to several national newspapers accusing the parties of "something like a conspiracy of silence as to the racial problems that are steadily building up here."

PREVENT BLOODSHED

Elton's argument is that Britain now has a colored population of more than 500,000—compared with 80,000 in 1955—and it would be better to risk racial tension now by forcing the issue than have racial bloodshed later.

Officially, at any rate, the ruling Conservative party has the cleanest slate on immigration. The party chieftains stand by the Commonwealth Immigration Act of 1961, renewed for a further two years at the end of 1963.

The act controls immigration from all Commonwealth countries by means of work vouchers—issued by immigration authorities on the basis of education, technical capability or the promise of employment within the United Kingdom. The bill has effectively reduced the flow of about 115,000 in 1960.

The Tories argue these controls, although odious to those who conceive Britain as an all-welcoming mother of nations, are the best practical formula for coping with the colored problem without creating the sort of situation that led to the 1958 race riots in London's Notting Hill district.

Unfortunately for the Conservative central office, a Tory minority composed of men like Lord Elton are not satisfied with this central position.

FORESEE MILLIONS

Predicting a British colored population of 3,000,000 by 1980 and pointing to the recent racial strife in the United States, this group agitates for much stricter controls or a virtual bar on all colored immigration.

Labor's position remains unclear. The party opposed the Immigration Act and Labor Leader Harold Wilson a on record as favoring a system by which the Commonwealth countries exercise controls at their ends.

But most non-partisan commentators agree Wilson's plan is impracticable. Pakistan alone, for instance, has 120,000 people waiting for British work vouchers and has enough trouble trying to eradicate the flourishing trade in forged vouchers that complicates matters at both ends.

Without a clear alternative to the Immigration Act, Labor campaign leaders are beginning to worry that a "soft" line on the problem may cost them key industrial seats. They have some cause.

WOULD MAKE ISSUE

At a recent meeting five of the seven Conservative MPs in the Birmingham area indicated they would make immigration one of their campaign issues whatever the Tory headquarters said. Their statement, issued to local newspapers, discussed "inseparable fractions that could be "avoided by forethought.

Although Tory headquarters disowned this line of reasoning and some of the participating MPs have since recanted, the situation is explosive enough to make Labor concerned about the safety of the six Birmingham-area seats they now hold.

In particular they are worried about Smethwick rifle ing, held by shadow foreign secretary Patrick Gordon Walker who would certainly be a leading figure in the next British administration if Labor is elected.

It was in Smethwick earlier this year that Labor lost control of the local council after a bitter election campaign was fought on the immigrant issue and the unofficial slogan "If you want a nigger neighbor, vote Labor" was first heard.

Report

2,000,000 words of evidence. The commission also undertook a great deal of research.

The group now has sifted much of this information and actually has started work on a draft of its report, it was learned. But this job will take months.

INDICATIONS LAST MARCH

The implications for government tax policy are indicated by Mr. Gordon's statement in his budget last March 16.

After citing reasons for not following the United States example of a major reduction in personal and corporation income tax rates, Mr. Gordon said:

"Quite apart from the question of an over-all tax cut, the government has decided, after considering the numerous suggestions and views put before us, that major changes in our tax structure should not be made until after we have received and published the report of the royal commission on taxation."

At that time he expected to get the report by the end of this year, and its supporting technical material shortly after.

Mr. Gordon said this meant the government could have the report in hand this week for the budget of 1965, though "there will probably be more to be done than can or should be attempted in a single budget."

"In the circumstances it would be unwise and unwarranted to set about major changes at this time."

Delay of the report could have other ramifications.

The federal - provincial tax structure committee, for example, is scheduled to begin work this fall. It is understood that it is expected to have the commission's report in hand.

The committee was conceived at the Quebec City conference last April to make a "review in depth" of the country's tax resources in relation to the responsibilities of both the federal and provincial governments.

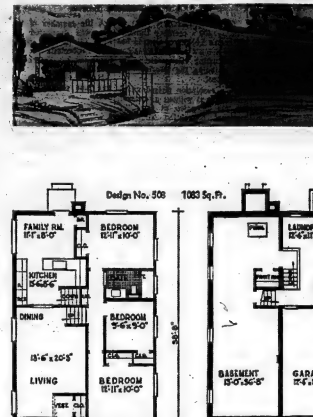
FLORIDA DAMAGE

First surveys of the Florida damage showed:

Metropolitan Miami — Eighty per cent of homes, trees and phones out of service, 12,000 homes damaged, store windows smashed and merchandise ruined, streets blocked by fallen trees and limbs, hotels, apartments and stores damaged without windows or electricity.

Fort Lauderdale — Streets blocked by drifted sand, power and telephone failure, buildings under construction razed to the ground, numerous fires, damage estimated at $15,000,000.

West Palm Beach — Power and phones out, places damaged at the airport, shipping centers and downtown merchandise from demolished shops, an 85 - foot ship beached to the north.



Fort Pierce — Fishing pier swept away, roads flooded, general power failure, shrimp luggers boats sunk in harbor, homes unroofed, cars flattened by falling trees, large portion of citrus crop lost.

Vero Beach — Power failure, roads blocked by fallen trees, windows smashed and some homes unroofed.

PAPER SWITCHES BACKING

OCALA, Fla. (AP)—For the first time in its 98-year history, the Ocala Star-Banner has endorsed a Republican candidate for president. The newspaper editorially endorsed Senator Barry Goldwater Thursday as "the man for the job" of president. The newspaper traditionally has backed Democratic candidates. It said it believes election of Goldwater would halt and possibly reverse the trends toward "a socialized economy."

HOME OF THE WEEK

Here is a split level Design that can be built on a 40 foot lot including the garage. One level houses the garage and laundry. There is also a lavatory in this area plus an outside rear entrance. A short stairway leads to the basement beneath the Kitchen-Living room area. There is also another short stair between the laundry and the kitchen, and still another from the dining area up to the bedrooms above the garage. This makes four levels available for full utilization. That's what makes it a model of efficient and sound planning. The design would be very applicable for a lot which sloped to the right, or to the left is built in reverse.

Standard Blueprints for this Design No. 508 cost $15.00 for the first set, and $3.00 for additional sets. They are available in Canada by return mail. (Ontario residents must remit 3% sales tax.) Now available at this newspaper office (or from address below) is our new Design Book entitled "Suburban and Country Homes designed for Canadians," price $1.00 tax free. This 1964 edition includes information on Cost of Building and Financing in Canada, Heating, Insulation, Constructional Details, etc., plus 100 outstanding new designs —Ranch, one and half storey, split level, two storey colonial, and duplex homes. Swords, Shaving Blades And Bullet-Proof Vests

LONDON (CP) — Two tired, man delivered 24 bulletproof vests to a fashionable London hotel just before the Second World War began.

"How are you going to get them out of the country?" asked Leonard Barratt, whose staff had worked overtime on the order.

"I have my yacht," replied an anonymous and muffled man with a thick German accent as he paid for the vests in small bills.

Whether the vests were for Hitler and his chiefs of staff remains unknown but it is probable that British-made bullet proof clothing stopped bullets and flak on both sides of the battlelines.

Wilkinson Limited, best known for swords, made more than 20,000 metal waistcoats during the war and the firm still gets thanks from many Allied airmen who owe their lives to a few leaves of metal sewn into canvas.

Today business is not what it was with the cut and thrust of modern politics the London firm in plush Pall Mall still sells about 100 vests a year.

Ex - King Farouk of Egypt trotted into the Wilkinson basement and bought four assassin-proof vests—and a necktie as an afterthought.

Madame Chiang Kai shek's portable shell had couri satin and piped edges.

Barratt recently shipped a vest to South Africa. "Thanks," the buyer wrote back. "It arrived just in time for the election."

An explorer bound for South America's Amazon jungle bought a special armed skirt supplementing the vest, to ward off poison-tipped arrows, and became "the biggest armadillo in the jungle," as Barratt put it.

Some French detectives are even wearing armored bowler hats.

Barratt's standard vest is made of aluminum alloy plates. It will stop nearly any pistol or revolver bullet at six feet and a powerful man's dagger can't pierce it either. At 13 pounds, it is light enough for the wearer to flee handily after the first shot.

Sunny Sunday Is Forecast By Weatherman

TORONTO (CP) — Weekend weather outlook:

The weather in southern Ontario this weekend shows every sign of being considerably warmer than during any other comparable period this month. However, a storm moving eastward across the upper lakes and the as-yet-uncertain influence of tropical hurricane Cleo indicate an unsettled aspect to the prevailing weather into the beginning of next week.

Present indications favor a pleasant, sunny Sunday and an unsettled Saturday with variable cloudiness and possible showers or thundershowers.

Plants Developed At Nurseries World Famous

WINNIPEG (CP) — As a farmer, 52-year-old Dr. Frank L. Skinner was a failure.

He saved the family fortunes, however, with $1 he spent on a packet of seeds in the 1920s.

Today the name Skinner, the Dropmore, Man., nurseries he maintains, and the plants he has developed are world famous.

Dr.-Skinner began his nursery enterprise near Dropmore, 250 miles northwest of here, and his 70-acre establishment is rated among the world's leading plant experimental stations.

Skinner-bred trees are found from Colorado to the Arctic and New Zealand and the Azores soon will have shipments from Dropmore.

He has been trading seeds and plants with other horticulturists for 40 years and periodically receives specimens from Russia, Manchuria, Czechoslovakia, Finland, Norway and other countries with a climate similar to Manitoba's.

He began his career in 1893 from Aberdeenshire, Scotland, and maintains his family's tradition of having a Skinner horticulturist in every generation for 200 years.

In 1949 he was awarded an honorary Doctor of Laws from the University of Manitoba in recognition of his experimental work with prairie plants. He has been awarded the Cory Cup by the British Horticultural Society for the outstanding plant produced in the British Commonwealth—the Maxwell lily.

Dr. Skinner remained a bachelor until he was 68, and today with five children under 15 years of age, he is one of the few in Canada to be receiving both his old age pension and family allowance cheques.

Greater

greater than any adversary and growing. Enemies and allies know where the U.S. stood. There was no place for weakness or recklessness in today's world.

He dealt specifically with racial violence by saying that "those who break the law—those who create disorder, whether in the North or South —must be caught and brought to justice."

WANTS MANDATE

Johnson said he wanted a mandate to "rebuild our cities, protecting America's natural beauty, giving educational opportunities and a full life. The alternative "is not between liberals and conservatives, party and party, platform and platform. It is between courage and timidity," he said.

As well as the Kennedy memorial film, the convention saw one of Johnson's political career. It also paid tribute to two departed giants of the party—Mrs. Eleanor Roosevelt and the late Speaker, Sam Rayburn of Texas, whose protege Johnson was.

While oratory and emotion filled the hall, outside thousands more jammed the boardwalk areas to watch parades, bands, fireworks and other diversions assembled to help Johnson celebrate his birthday.

There was a birthday cake and a fireworks "sketch" of the president, as well as a huge cake inside the hall.

LONG LIFE

A life insurance company has issued the results of a life expectancy survey: Persons of 45 may expect to live another 18 years in India to 32 in Norway.

U.K. Inflation: Serpent In Suburban Paradise

BROMLEY, England (CP) — The cost - of - living serpent is poisoning contentment in this London suburban area — Britain's No. 1 dormitory paradise.

Up, up, up go the prices and down, down, down goes the morale of such people as civil servants and salaried commuting to powerful Whitehall, constituency of former Prime Minister Harold Macmillan.

A Conservative national newspaper carried the cry of despair of a local Liberal parliamentary candidate. He gave up the fight for the fall general election because he couldn't afford to live in Bromley and campaign. The Labor candidate, a stockbroker, lives in a neighboring town.

Macmillan, 70, retiring from politics, doesn't live in middle-class Bromley either but that's because the millionaire publisher has long - established homes elsewhere.

"It's a little different in my case," John Bromley, 29-year-old school teacher and the former Liberal candidate, told a Canadian reporter.

Britain's election has been expected off and after for two years and it was partly the wait that eliminated Mumbo. Political chores kept him away from extra work that might help him support his wife and two children.

"I hoped I could hold out, but I cannot," said Mumbo, illustrating his dilemma by discussing finances.

"As teachers' salaires go, I am pretty well off at £1,250 ($3,780) a year. But the building societies will lend only a maximum of three times annual salary for purchase of a house.

"Semi-detached houses run to about £4,500 or £5,000—the new ones £8,000 or more. So I'm unable to buy a house. Instead I rent a house for about one-third my net income, but the building societies say advise one shouldn't pay more than one-fourth of income in rent."

Mumbo feels this problem is chronic in the congested London suburban areas as new workers continue to arrive from other parts of Britain. Young couples and salaried folk find it particularly tough, and "the business executives with expense accounts are the only ones able to take the strain."

"Young people who have lived here all their lives are having to move away as soon as they marry," said Town Councillor Brian Taylor. "They just cannot afford to buy a house here."

The weekly train fare of $4.45 cuts into the spending money of the affluent Briton who lives in Bromley and commutes to London. As The Sunday Telegraph puts it:

"Keeping up with the Joneses years and it was pretty fair to wait that eliminated Mumbo. Political chores kept him away from extra work that might help him support his wife and two children.

"I hoped I could hold out, but I cannot," said Mumbo, illustrating his dilemma by discussing finances.

"As teachers' salaires go, I am pretty well off at £1,250 ($3,780) a year. But the build-let's talk "cents" about entertaining!

Nearly everybody likes to entertain. And everybody wants to be considered a good host or hostess.

Problem is that a family income budgeted for mortgage, car payments, insurance and other fixed expenses won't stand big entertainment bills. It doesn't make economic sense.

So what to do —when you know that among your guests some prefer gin, others rye, vodka, sherry or beer—and your budget won't stand such an assortment?

Here's the solution that will delight everyone—and keep your entertainment cost at a minimum—

Buy just one liquor: A special brand of extra light rum. Its name: TROPICANA. Made by Woods, who have been distilling fine rums for over 75 years . . . And what's special about TROPICANA?

It's so versatile, it's practically a one-brand bar! Besides being a superior light rum by itself, your guests will enjoy it in any rum drink imaginable.

It makes delightful versions of almost any drink you can name! Just try TROPICANA with three or four quite different mixes. You'll realize you're on to something good!

Tropi-cola, for instance! Lots of people have already discovered Tropi-cola. They will be delighted with Tropicana and Ginger, Tropicana and Tonic, Tropicana and Bitter Lemon, or what have you!

"A refreshing change" . . . "a delightful idea" . . . "mighty satisfying" . . . With TROPICANA your reputation is established . . . and your budget saved!

Extreme Innovations Excluded

PARIS (AP)—Hubert de Givenchy Thursday revealed an elegant, immaculately tailored fall - winter fashion collection which notably excluded some of the more extreme innovations which marked other Paris showings a month ago.

Givenchy's new collection stresses simplicity, but also features a line of sophisticated designs for matronly ladies.

Only in hats does Givenchy move away from basic simplicity. He is showing a number of Chignon caps ranging from geometric cubes and rhomboid shapes to tiny hats made of dress fabric and glittering with mock jewels.

He employs a band-loomed, sequined wool in pale rose, black or emerald green colors in sweeping, full - length evening coats.

Givenchy's bias-seamed princess sheaths step forth again and again, giving effect to a great variety of rich fabrics.

Most of them have their own coats. Though sleeveless, or cut with deep, softly draped armholes to cover the top of the shoulders, these dresses all have demure necklines and only occasionally a deep dip in the back.

Miss Amy Fisher has recently earned her flight hostess wings following completion of the Trans World Airlines' training course at Kansas City, Missouri. She is currently based in San Francisco, California assigned to TWA's Star Stream Jet fleet. She is the daughter of Mr. and Mrs. Fredrick Fisher of 42 North Front Street, Belleville.

NEW WORK

VICTORIA (CP) — An 18th - century Japanese porcelain figurine of a peasant eating a sweet potato has become the world's first work to enter the collection of Greater Victoria Art Gallery. The work was presented by a San Francisco donor, Mrs. Fred Folland.

MR. AND MRS. WILLIAM PAUL EMERSON

Emerson – McQueen

Rev. W. C. Hewitt, Toronto was assisted by Rev. J. A. Dunlop at St. Margaret's-on-the-Hill Anglican Church for the wedding ceremony when Barbara Ann McQueen, daughter of Mr. and Mrs. George C. McQueen, Munro Avenue, Belleville, became the bride of William Paul Emerson of Oshawa, son of Mr. and Mrs. Edward F. Emerson, Hallowell.

Wedding music was provided by the guest organist, Mr. Donald Davenport who played during the signing of the register also. White and yellow gladioli were used to decorate the altar.

The bride was given in marriage by her father and entered the church wearing a self-styled gown of white peau de soie, floor-length with matching train attached at the waist. The skirt was bell-shaped and a chantilly lace bolero jacket with three-quarter length sleeves was worn over the sleeveless dress. The bodice had a bateau neckline and was buttoned at the back. Her shoulder-length veil was held with white roses, and she carried a bouquet of yellow roses, white shasta daisies and ivy.

Miss Jean McQueen of Belleville, sister of the bride was maid of honor in a pale yellow brocaded taffeta dress with jacket, elbow-length, styled in a fashion similar to the bride's. Miss Ann Emerson, sister of the bridegroom was bridesmaid wearing pale aqua brocaded taffeta dress and jacket in the same style. Their headdresses were two cabbage roses with short veils, matching shoes and white gloves.

Mr. Raymond Emerson of Hallowell was groomsman, and the ushers were John Emerson and Eric Emerson of Belleville. All were brothers of the bridegroom.

A reception was held at the Club Canara, where the bride's table was decorated with yellow and white roses and candles and the bouquets of the bride and her attendants.

The bride's mother received the guests in a two-piece dress of aqua lace over taffeta with matching hat and white accessories. She wore a corsage of gardenia and pink Sweetheart roses.

The bridegroom's mother assisted wearing a two-piece dress of pale blue lace over taffeta, white hat and accessories, and corsage of gardenia and pink Sweetheart roses.

The bride chose a white and yellow sheath topped with a yellow linen coat for the wedding trip to Niagara Falls, Windsor, Detroit and other points in Western Ontario. Her hat was yellow flowered with net and her accessories were white.

Guests were present from Lloydminster, Alberta; Toronto, Ottawa, Trenton, Oshawa, Peterborough, Perth and nearby communities.

Mr. and Mrs. Emerson will reside at 109 Hunter Street, Oshawa.

Before her marriage the bride was entertained at a shower at the home of Mrs. Charles Thompson, Munro St., Belleville, with co-hostess Mrs. Geo Hollinger. Dr. and Mrs. A. C. Locke entertained at a dinner and a presentation of cups and saucers and tea towels. The bridesmaid's classmates at BCI gave a miscellaneous shower at the home of Miss Amanda Parker, 77 Chatham St.

CBC Commended by CWL For Discontinuing Series

By BRENDA LARGE

CHARLOTTETOWN (CP) — The 150,000 - member Catholic Women's League of Canada has commended the Canadian Broadcasting Corporation for discontinuing the television series Quest.

In a resolution passed unanimously, and without discussion, by 300 delegates at the CWL national convention Thursday, the league called the program "offensive to moral principles and indecent for public viewing."

Two programs in the Quest series, For the Want of Better Things to Do and Crawling Around, were singled out in the league's resolution as being particularly offensive.

The resolution also criticized two programs shown within the last year on the Festival television series. They are A Very Close Family and Still Life.

The league praised the CBC for "such fine programs as Heritage and others."

Another resolution expressed concern at "mounting evidence that cruelty and neglect of children is seriously increasing." The resolution states that because of a lack of specific legislation, doctors, hospital personnel and social workers are seriously hindered in pressing investigations of suspected cases of abuse.

COMMEND MINISTERS

Members approved a resolution commending provincial education ministers for recent efforts to establish a basic secondary school curriculum which would be acceptable in all provinces.

The league decided to petition the federal government to increase income tax exemptions for single persons to $1,500 from $1,000 and for married couples to $3,000 from $2,000 when one is not earning more than $250, a year.

It also wants the government to make changes in estate and succession duties so that success duties on pensions left to widows or dependents would be collected annually in accordance with a definite schedule during the lifetime or period of eligibility of the widows or dependents.

The CWL will join a number of other Catholic organizations in petitioning the Congregation of Rites in Rome for the beatification of the late Pope John XXIII.

Catherine A. Toal of London, Ont., was elected national president.

Playground Activities

BAYVIEW HEIGHTS

Wednesday afternoon at Bayview Heights marked the beginning of pioneer day. Davy Crockett's fashionably dressed women of the west and Indians invaded the playground and formed a gay and colorful procession through the streets.

The winner of the best costume was Stephen Dawkins as a little old lady; 2nd were fashionably dressed Paulette Fairborne, Laurette and Carolann Fairborne, A tie for third resulted in Wayne Dawkins and John Shaxi being the winners. The winners in the originality prize was the old west family comprised of Cathy and Nancy MacDonald, Christine Dall and Brenda Otto.

Following the judging an old fashioned wiener roast was held and ninety children at the close of the playground day left full and happy.

Many thanks to judges Steve Glancey and Pat Burns and special thanks to Nancy Harrison who helped in the preparation and execution of the wiener roast. Supervisor Meg VanAlstine.

Small-Boy Antics Act Out of Place in Marriage

DEAR ANN LANDERS — I am going with a nut. Last night when he arrived to take me to a party he had a black patch over a perfectly good eye. At first I was frightened. I thought something terrible might have happened to him. I should have known better. He is always doing crazy things like that.

If the party is formal he wears a dinner jacket — and tennis shoes. Or instead of a formal shirt, he'll wear a turtleneck sweater or an ascot.

Last year he grew a half a mustache. I refused to kiss him till he shaved it off. (It took three weeks before he gave in.)

Last week he tried to pay a bar bill with Chinese money. He got into an argument with the bartender and I was embarrassed to tears. We were asked to leave.

Believe it or not, he has many fine qualities and is considered a good catch. I'd like to marry him, but frankly I'm afraid. What do you say? — SHAKEY SHEILA.

ANN LANDERS

DEAR SHAKEY — If these small-boy antics embarrass you now, I can promise you that after marriage they will drive you out of your mind.

Any guy who is as flakey as this one sounds would probably sign the marriage certificate with invisible ink — then where would you be, Toots?

* * *

DEAR ANN LANDERS — We gave our daughter a telephone of her own for her 16th birthday. It was what Linda wanted most in all the world. She begged for it for two years. To be honest, I was happy to see her get her own telephone because our line was constantly tied up by her calls. This is what happened:

The other evening my husband and I were out. He was expecting an important business call and tried to telephone home to learn if the call had come through. Well, he tried for 30 minutes to get our line without success. He finally got so mad he got into the car and drove home. There he found Linda, lying on our bed yakking on our telephone.

He asked her why she was not using her own phone. She replied, "I am expecting Bill to call and I wanted to leave my line free." what do we do NOW? — STONEWALL

* * *

DEAR STONEWALL — Now you tell Linda that if she pulls such a stunt again she will no longer have her own phone nor will she be able to use your phone. And tell her in terms that will leave no room for speculation.

* * *

DEAR ANN LANDERS — My husband passed away six months ago. He was a fine man, 14 years my senior, and treated me very well. He had three daughters by a previous marriage. (He was a widower.)

Before I married Jerrold I had a good position in a bank. I returned to work several weeks after Jerrold died just to keep occupied.

A man who is an officer of the bank is a long-time friend. His wife passed away two years ago. He invited me to have dinner with him, and see a play. I didn't know if it would be proper so I asked my clergyman. He said "Yes, go," so I did.

This morning two of my step-daughters telephoned me to say I had disgraced the memory of their father by going out with a man "before he was cold in his grave."

I am sick about this. Do you feel I should stay home for a full year as the girls said? I want to go out with this man again but not at the expense of creating trouble in the family. Your views are welcome. — ANNAMARIE.

* * *

DEAR ANNAMARIE — Before you accepted the date you consulted an excellent authority — your clergyman. He gave you what I feel was superb advice, and I hope you will continue to follow it. If the girls have any further criticism, direct them to him.

Readers' Friday Column

QUESTION:

. . . I would like to know how to bake and stuff a lake trout. How long it would take to bake per pound; what degree of oven and also how the stuffing is made. This is the first time we have had lake trout. My husband was lucky to make a nice catch. Mrs. T. M. R.

ANSWER:

Congratulations!

BAKED STUFFED LAKE TROUT (or other fish weighing 3 to 4 lbs. dressed weight):

Measure the stuffed fish at the thickest part and allow 10 minutes cooking time for each one inch of stuffed thickness.

Clean the fish by removing entrails, scales and fins. Wash and dry the fish. Head and tail may be left on if desired. Sprinkle it inside with salt. Salt it loosely (see below).

Fasten the opening with small skewers or tie with string. Place on greased baking pan and brush with melted fat or oil. Bake at 450 deg. F., allowing 10 minutes for each inch of stuffed thickness. Stuffing for Baked Fish weighing 3 to 4 lbs.: 1-3 cup chopped onion, 1-3 cup chopped celery, 3 tablespoons butter, 1 teaspoon salt, 1 tablespoon chopped green pickle or relish (or 1 teaspoon tarragon), 3 cups soft breadcrumbs. Cook onion and celery gently in melted butter for about 5 minutes. Remove from heat and add remaining ingredients. Bake (see above).

FRIDAY

Dinner Menu

Spanish omelette, corn on the cob, mashed turnip, mixed greens with Roquefort dressing, peaches and cream, sesame squares (see Thursday), coffee.

QUESTION:

We have a lot of Swiss Chard in our garden. Our family are fond of it but I have no ideas . . . other than buttered or creamed. I freeze it also, so your suggestions will be most welcome. Mrs. Ivan L.

ANSWER:

I have mailed to you a release from Aug./62 giving one method of serving chard. Other ideas follow:

CHARD AND CHEESE SOUFFLE (spinach may be substituted):

Into 3 tablespoons butter or margarine stir, over low heat, 4 tablespoons flour and 1 teaspoon salt. When blended stir in 1 cup milk until thick. Add ½ lb. grated Cheddar cheese. Remove from heat and stir until cheese is melted. Beat in 4 egg yolks and 2 cups chopped, cooked chard, 1 tablespoon grated onion. Fold in 4 stiffly beaten egg whites. Turn into greased casserole, stand in shallow pan of hot water, and bake at 350 deg. F. for 40 to 50 min.

NOTES:

1) Chard may be made into cream soup. 2) Chard may be prepared in any way spinach is prepared. 3) Try serving it creamed, adding ½ cup cooked, crumbled side bacon or sauteed mushrooms.

Question: I have to bring a small hostess gift to a friend, and was wondering if a make-up kit would be correct. It would fit my budget, but would it be appropriate?

E. S., Kew Gardens, New York

Answer: Make-up isn't the best choice. It may be the wrong color and not the type for a particular type of skin. Cologne or guest soaps would be more appropriate. If you're still stuck on the idea of bringing some sort of make-up, then you might consider the gift package of a selection of lipsticks in different colors. The hostess may either use them herself, or put a couple in the powder room for guest use.

Canadian Fashions Show Originality With Workmanship, Design Quality

Canadian women are specially blessed when it comes to buying clothes made in their own country, particularly those by Ontario manufacturers. This year the presentation at the C.N.E. is twice as large as last and covers sportswear for all, daytime elegance, junior lines, including children's clothes, and exotic evening wear, an array hard to beat in any country, where fashion is a major industry.

AMAZED AT CLOTHES

Last November the Ontario Government invited leading New York buyers, a group of 13 merchandise buying representatives, fashion co-ordinators and fashion magazine writers from Vogue, Harper's Mademoiselle to visit Toronto. These women, tops in their fields, were amazed and delighted to find our clothes much better made than many they bought elsewhere, even from among the hundreds of lines from their own country, and certainly from Europe and markets in the Far East. Prices are very good, fabrics and finishing simply wonderful," they all agreed. It was a real eye-opener to them that their northern neighbors were producing such excellent ready-to-wear, especially some original Canadian designs. They had no idea we had such a galaxy of creative talent.

As Canadians we sometimes think an import label means a better garment. But this is not always true. When you shop "Canadian" you not only help our economy, find jobs for many, but get quality workmanship, well-finished, inside and out seams, and have the benefit of superlative fabrics. Canadian-made fabrics are being used more and more as they become available — our synthetics are often better than imports of man-made fibres. Fraser's must import many of the unusual weaves of cotton, wool and silk from Britain and France, and they're because manufacturers insist on the best, but also to help maintain a healthy trade balance. Canadian manufacturers score too in that they benefit from preferential import tariffs on fabrics, particularly from Britain, more favorable than their U.S. counterparts enjoy. The result — more and more U.S. buyers are coming to Canada to shop, getting built-in quality at better prices, even after paying their own duty into the U.S. We Canadians automatically get these goodies at considerably less cost than our U.S. neighbors.

ORIGINAL ITEMS

There are many Ontario manufacturers, who have fabrics exclusively woven for them in Canada. These are the clothes particularly that foreign buyers are eager to get — distinctive, top quality and original — items they can get nowhere else in th world.

Mrs. Lilah Lyonhorner, chairman of the Women's Advisory Committee of the Ontario Department of Economics and Development, says already since last November, many more Canadian originals are being bought by prestige shops in New York. If our Canadian-made clothes are acceptable to sophisticated New Yorkers, and being prompted, financially, the other side by stores of this calibre, we should take advantage of our own and be proud of this. We are really getting the best there is anywhere in value.

As to style—Ontario manufacturers are completely abreast of trends, not only doing some original designing, but producing adaptations of Paris, New York and London originals almost as soon as they are shown to overseas buyers. So aware of newness are they that they journey constantly, and often, not only to New York, but abroad, bringing back designs, ideas, interpreted for us in luxurious mood.

FASHION IS INTERNATIONAL

Another indication of the increasing popularity of the "North American Look," especially in Canadian clothes, is the increasing number of visiting U.S. "shoppers" who throng our big stores. Of course, the premium on our Canadian dollar helps, but this alone would not tempt them to buy unless they detected basic good value, high style, generous cut and unrivalled quality. Fashion is really international these days, and visitors are not only looking for plaids and sweaters, which have always been popular Canadian resources. Our knitwear, lingerie, clothes made from imported tweeds and wools attract them and bring them back again and again to Canada. Visitors are not confined to Americans — many come from as far away as Australia.

BELLEVILLE FIRM DISPLAYS

It takes time and work to develop markets and there are tedious difficulties. American buyers claim it was not until after World War II that New York buyers shopped in California, for instance. Apropos of this, a group of Ontario manufacturers hope to show their products in Philadelphia in October. To belong to this group one must be original, top level at the price, and above all, make clothes of impeccable quality. This will assure that anything that is sold outside of Canada will be of the best. You will be hearing more about the "group," which is not government sponsored, financially, though they will have the Ontario Government blessing. Their aim is to create for Canada an image of superb quality, originality at comparatively modest prices.

The firm of Avon Jewellery is showing made in Belleville costume jewellery, including pearls at the C.N.E. fashion show.

Mrs. Kennedy Gallant Figure At Reception

ATLANTIC CITY (AP) — Serene and gently smiling in a setting that must have evoked poignant memories, Mrs. John F. Kennedy joined hands with thousands of Democratic delegates or their wives Thursday for a marathon reception in her honor.

Mrs. Lyndon B. Johnson dropped by for the reception prior to the former first lady. Her elder daughter Lynda had arrived earlier.

Senator Hubert Humphrey, who Wednesday night was designated by President Johnson as his running mate, was greeted by Mrs. Kennedy with a big beaming smile. "Congratulations," she exclaimed.

As many guests were invited, 5,000 delegates, that the reception had to be divided into three shifts.

At each session Mrs. Kennedy made a brief speeech in the hotel's ballroom.

"I want to thank all of you for coming who helped President Kennedy in 1960," the white clad widow said in a low muted voice.

In a V-neck sleeveless two-piece ribbed silk dress with white gloves and white pumps, hatless and without jewelry, Mrs. Kennedy was perhaps the most simply dressed woman there.

She remained dry - eyed throughout the reading by actor Fredric March and his wife Florence Eldrege of some of Kennedy's favorite prose and poetry selections — some sad, some humorous.

She preferred not to attend Thursday night's closing convention session at which a memorial service was being held for her late husband.

Friends Honor Bride-to-Be At Shower

WELLINGTON — Mrs. Wilfred Burrus of Wellington, entertained approximately a dozen guests in her home recently at a pre-nuptial shower for Miss Carol Zachariah.

Several games were played, with Mrs. Clifford McFaul, Mrs. Pat Bryant and Mrs. Elmer McFaul winning prizes.

The gift table was decorated with pink and white streamers and wedding bells, as was the chair for the guest of honor. Miss Zachariah opened the many gifts with the assistance of Miss Mary Dot Burns who will be flower girl at the wedding.

Mrs. Burrus collected the ribbons and bows as the gifts were opened and created a colorful hat for the bride to wear during the evening.

A wedding gift was presented by Mrs. Elmer McFaul and Mrs. Andrew Allison from the Swamp College neighbors.

Mrs. Norman Webster won a lucky plate prize during lunch Miss Zachariah is to be married to Guardsman James Mercer on September 5th, in St. Gregory's R.C. Church in Picton.

Back to School in a Skimmer!

THE A-LINE RATES HIGHEST with the back-to school set of all ages this fall! And that's good news for mom who sews, because the A-shape or skimmer breezes right past the waist — no stop for waist seams, and easy fitting all the way.

Shown here are four top pattern versions of the A-flared shape — a super-simple coat with raglan sleeves, back-pleat jumper, princess dress with low demi-belt, and the Chelsea-look skimmer with a vestee effect.

Choosing patterns is always fun; and this Fall the dazzling variety of fabrics adds an extra fillip of pleasure to home sewing. The rich, deep-toned plaids and checks are marvelous, and so are the paisley'and textured fabrics. You'll have a wonderful time!

4545—Daughter will love this A-line coat for chilly days. Easy sewing for mom — few pattern parts, simple lines. Printed Pattern in Child's Sizes 2, 4, 6, 8, 10. Size 6 takes 2½ yards 35-inch fabric. 50c.

4828—Jumper and blouse, always favorites of the school bus set. Printed Pattern in Child's Sizes 2, 4, 6, 8, 10. Size 6 jumper takes 1¼ yards 54 inch fabric; blouse 1 yard 35-inch. 50c.

4597—Princess skimmer to thrill the teens. They love the low belt, kick pleats — perfect for active school days. Printed Pattern in Teen Sizes 10-16. Size 12 takes 2¾ yards 54-inch fabric. 60c

4509 — Peppermint stripes, pert vestee, contrast binding — a dress to delight teacher's pet. Printed pattern in Girls' Sizes 6, 8, 10, 12 and 14. Size 10 takes 2 yards 39-inch fabric; ⅞ yard contrast. 50c

Teen-Age Canada
Writer Changes Opinion About Beatle Quartet

By JACK HUTTON

Dear Ringo: Although this letter is addressed to all four Beatles, I'm speaking directly to you, Ringo, because we have something in common. Neither one of us will ever win a beauty contest.

If anything, you're ahead of me by a nose.

I'm writing this on the occasion of your first Canadian tour to tell you how one listener has changed his mind about you over 12 months. And believe me, my opinion had nowhere to go but up.

I still don't understand exactly what causes girls in Copenhagen, London, Winnipeg, Hong Kong, Liverpool — even Toronto — to scream, shout, stamp and generally turn into something their parents don't recognize when you walk on stage.

But I understand a bit more than I did when we chuckled over the first wire service stories describing the gimmick of four mop-top fellows in a Liverpool cellar playing rock'n'roll. Oh, how we chuckled!

THROWING STONES

It's only fair to admit I've criticized your group as much as anyone else. Maybe more. But writing this column, which appears each week across the country in every province, can be a little like living in a glass cage. And every time I criticized you, more readers started throwing stones.

Oh, the names they called me. A 13-year-old girl from Sydney, N.S., topped everyone else by calling me a "tin-eared, left-handed fuddy-duddy." (And it's not true, Ringo. I'm right-handed.)

So I sat down and listened to all your first records. Then I knew exactly where you stood. "One - record wonders," I said. Loud amplified guitars. Bad melody lines. A British attempt to imitate the worst of North American rock'n'roll.

Hah, what a prophet, eh, Ringo?

Then we saw you on television. I still thought it was amateurish, but I saw something else. I remember turning to someone and remarking that you had a secret weapon working for you. You didn't care.

I still think that's true. You don't care what critics like myself say. When you play you're enjoying yourselves, and that's what matters. People (for some of us) scorned your haircuts at first, but you didn't care.

MONEY MAKERS

Which of us has made more money in the last year, Ringo, you or me? If I could make one-quarter of your salary, I'd grow my hair long too.

Maybe I was prejudiced too because I'd spent years playing in dance bands and combos beside fellows who had loads of talent. As far as I know, they're all playing or studying in their same home towns, talented but unknown.

But you don't care about that, and you shouldn't. Your natural come-back is that you never claimed to be great. You are simply yourselves, playing music you like, and you will destroy yourselves and your music wherever you start copying someone else.

I can't remember the first time I caught myself humming "I want to Hold Your Hand." I stopped guiltily and looked to see if anyone had heard me. Then I thought about it. You know, it's not a bad tune. Nothing great, but it swings and it's unpretentious.

NO COLLECTOR

I don't think I'll ever compile North America's largest collection of Beatle records. The habit of enjoying mainstream and West Coast jazz is too firmly ingrained in me. Jimmy Rushing is still my favorite male singer.

But here's one tin-eared, right-handed fuddy - duddy hoping all four of you keep playing for a long time.

TOP TWENTY TUNES

1 Viva Las Vegas, Elvis Presley; 2 Hard Day's Night, The Beatles; 3 I Get Around, Don't Worry Baby, Beach Boys; 4 Rag Doll, The 4 Seasons; 5 Everybody Loves Somebody Dean Martin; 6 Wishin' and Hopin', Dusty Springfield; 7 Can't You See That She's Mine, Dave Clark Five; 8 No Particular Place to Go, Chuck Berry; 9 Chapel of Love, The Dixie Cups; 10 Memphis, Johnny Rivers; 11 I'm The One, Gerry and the Pacemakers; 12 World Without Love, Bobby Rydell; 13 Little Children, J. Kramer; 14 My Guy, Mary Wells; 15 Don't Let The Sun Catch You Crying, Gerry and the Pacemakers; 16 Do You Love Me? The Dave Clark Five; 17 Beans in My Ears, Serendipity Singers; 18 Yesterday Gone, Chad; 19 C'Mon Everybody, Today, Tomorrow and Forever, Elvis Presley; 20 Three Window Coupe, The Rip Cords.

COLUMNIST JACK HUTTON, a jazz musician in his spare time (flugelhorn and piano), writes an open letter to the Beatles. "Believe me, my opinion had no place to go but up," he told them . . . and that's just where it has gone. Why? "When you play you're enjoying yourselves and that's what matters."

The Day of WW II

"A Sunlit Morning 25 Years Ago"

Twenty - five years ago, after months of high drama in international politics, the Second World War began. The tortuous trail of events that led to its outbreak are recalled in this story by a Canadian, From reporter.

By CAROL KENNEDY

LONDON (CP)—On a sunlit morning 25 years ago—Sept. 3, 1939—the British people gathered round their radios for an emergency broadcast by Prime Minister Neville Chamberlain at 11:15 they learned that for the second time in a generation they were at war with Germany.

Two days before, at dawn on Sept. 1, Hitler's armies smashed across the Polish frontier and his Stukas dive-bombed Warsaw. An alliance concluded only the previous week bound Britain and France to go to Poland's aid.

Many Britons, remembering the Czechoslovak crisis when war seemed even closer, had clung to the hope of another last-minute "Munich." But Britain could not sidestep her obligations as she had persuaded France to do in 1938.

Roused from the trance of "appeasement," the Chamberlain government at last faced up to a war that had seemed inevitable to some ever since Hitler marched into the Rhineland in 1936.

Ironically, one of the issues that finally sparked the conflict was the Polish Corridor, once part of East Prussia, for which Neville Chamberlain's elder brother Austen had said no British government would "risk the bones of a British grenadier."

Now it was risking much more. Australia and New Zealand declared war the same day as Britain and France; South Africa on Sept. 6; Canada Sept. 10.

25TH IN GERMANY

The powder trail to the Second World War was laid before the cannons of the First World War were cold. The decision to grant an armistice to Germany instead of beating her into the ground is felt by many historians to have led directly to the 1939-45 conflict. Soon a myth would grow in Germany that she had not really been defeated.

In the great Hall of Mirrors at Versailles the European powers gathered in 1919 under the benevolent leadership of U.S. President Woodrow Wilson, whose "Fourteen Points" for a just settlement would try to make the world safe for democracy.

Things did not work out as Wilson planned. There was a spirit of revenge abroad in Versailles. A determination Germany should be made to pay. From the moment it was signed the peace treaty was hated and despised by the German nation.

Reparations were the worst grievance. A British statesman plotted that they would squeeze Germany like a lemon—"till you can hear the pips squeak."

The armistice process was absurd. Until 1931 Germany paid with huge U.S. loans which were then handed back to Washington by Britain and France as war debts.

"Nobody was gypped but Ill will," observed Winston Churchill.

FORESAW NEW WAR

"This is not peace," declared the French commander-in-chief Marshal Ferdinand Foch when he heard the terms. "It is an armistice for 20 years.

Other clauses in the treaty restricted the size of the German army, handed over the navy to Britain, abolished the air force, gave some German territory in southeast Europe to Poland—including the corridor to the Baltic—and dismembered Austria-Hungary into such upstart lands as Czechoslovakia.

France wanted to extend her frontier to the Rhine but Britain and the U.S. made her accept instead a "demilitarized" zone guaranteed for 15 years.

It seemed the "German problem" had been solved. Bolshevism, which spread from Russia through Hungary, Italy and Germany in the early 1920s, was now the far worse menace, distrust of Soviet Russia by the Western democracies, though inevitable, did much to weaken opposition to Hitler.

The U.S. Senate, meanwhile, refused to ratify the Versailles Treaty and Wilsons League of Nations. Wilson himself was struck down by paralysis and in 1920 Republican Warren Harding was elected on a platform of "normalcy." The United States withdrew into isolationism.

Britain entered 14 years of bland, soothing government by two politicians who would govern successively and in coalition on the belief that British disarmament would lead to peace by example—the stolid, pipe-smoking Conservative Stanley Baldwin and the high-minded Socialist Ramsay MacDonald, who had been a pacifist in the war.

OCCUPIED RUHR

Germany seethed with discontent, accentuated when France occupied the Ruhr in a futile attempt to enforce reparations. The collapse of the German currency wiped out the savings of the middle class and aroused a revolutionary temper that swelled the embryo Nazi party.

An obscure rabble rouser named Adolf Hitler tried to overthrow the Bavarian government in 1923, was imprisoned for 13 months and wrote Mein Kampf, a blueprint for destruction.

The Locarno Pact of 1925 was to be his high-water mark of peace. It bound Britain, France, Germany, Belgium and Fascist Italy together by a web of mutual guarantees against aggression. And it brought Germany into the League of Nations.

The last year of tranquility was 1928. In the Reichstag the Nazis held only 12 seats. Within four years this would rise to 230.

The Weimar Republic, governed for years by precarious coalitions, was crumbling. The stock market crash of 1929, the worldwide depression and anarchy in a rioting Berlin combined to bring Hitler to power.

President Marshal von Hindenburg, the aged aristocrat who despised the "Bohemian corporal," was reluctantly persuaded by Papen, his arrogant chancellor, that Hitler was the only man to restore order. Hitler was appointed chancellor Jan. 30, 1933.

PURGED RIVALS

Within a month, with the burning of the Reichstag and mass rounding up of Communists, he had assumed the powers of a dictator. On June 30, 1934—the "night of the long knives"—he disposed of most remaining rivals.

Elsewhere in Europe under the complacent spell of Locarno, there were to be the years the locusts ate.

England slept. In March, 1934, she was the only big fifth-ranking air power. Prime Minister Baldwin pledged that her strength would never fall below that of any country within striking distance, but he seemed defeatist about air defence as "the bomber will always get through."

Later he was to confess with reckless candor that he opposed rearmament in the election year 1935 to ensure the pacifist vote.

The League of Nations withered. The Manchurian crisis of 1931, when Japan invaded China's territory, exposed its impotence to back words with action.

The soft-centred policies of the Allies tempted Hitler to exploit the opportunity by force to pursuit of his foreign aims. He ranted about "lebensraum" — living space—for Germany's swelling population.

One day in October, 1933, he contemptuously pulled Germany out of both the League of Nations and the Geneva disarmament conference. Japan also left the league that year and soon would wage full-scale war on China.

ISOLATED TREATY

In 1935, his prestige boosted by the Saar Valley's decision to reunite with Germany after 15 years of League of Nations rule, Hitler openly broke the Versailles Treaty by announcing military conscription.

At the same time he told the world Germany now had air parity with Britain. Through the years when Germany supposedly had only civilian flying facilities, she had been secretly building up a war potential:

A conference was hastily convened at the Italian Alpine village of Stresa, largely to woo Benito Mussolini into an anti-Hitler front. The Italian dictator and won Allied confidence in 1934 when he made Hitler back down from supporting a Nazi uprising in Vienna. He had since developed designs on Abyssinia, where Italy had once suffered defeat, and now calculated the Allies needed him enough in Europe to ignore his adventures in Africa.

Hitler reoccupied the Rhineland March 7, 1936, just two hours after signing a 25-year "non - aggression" pact with France. French historians feel this was the last moment at which Europe could have stopped Hitler. France was still stronger than Germany and by his own admission Hitler was gambling on Allied disunity.

'LAST CHANCE'

But France looked to Britain. "If England will act now, she can lead Europe," Foreign Minister Pierre Flandin told the Baldwin government. "It is your last chance. If you do not stop Germany by force today, war is inevitable."

Britain was not in a mood to act. Lord Lothian summed up a widespread reaction: "After all, they are only going into their own back garden."

In a phrase that would echo mockingly over Europe for the next three years, Hitler declared: "Germany's territorial ambitions have now been satisfied."

The Spanish Civil War destroyed any illusions about Mussolini's future allegiance. Germany and Italy both actively supported Francisco Franco's right-wing rebels against the leftist republican government backed by Soviet Russia.

In November, 1936, the Rome-Berlin Axis was forged. Japan joined Germany in the anti-Comintern pact. The lines of future battle were being drawn.

Belatedly and reluctantly Britain began rearming. President Roosevelt expressed a new U.S. mood with his "quarantine the aggressor" speech of 1937. He offered to mediate in Europe's disputes at a Washington conference. When Britain's new prime minister, Chamberlain, rejected this, Foreign Secretary Anthony Eden resigned.

SWALLOWED AUSTRIA

"England will not lift a finger for Austria," jeered Hitler when he summoned Chancellor Kurt von Schuschnigg to his hilltop lair at Berchtesgaden in February, 1938, and laid down plans for "annexing" Austria to the Reich. He entered Vienna in triumph March 13 and immediately ordered Austria out of existence.

Europe lurched nearer the precipice. Hitler then turned to Czechoslovakia, the dagger-shaped country he said threatened the "soft underbelly" of the Reich.

Outwardly he intended to "rescue" the 3,500,000 German-speaking inhabitants of the Sudetenland with Germany, disregarded that they had been Austrian subjects until 19.8. Secretly he also planned to destroy Czechoslovakia because it was a possible springboard for attack by France or Russia.

Hitler assured his generals, who had misgivings about Allied intentions, that he would only attack if certain France and Britain would stay out.

All hinged on France. If she marched, Britain and Russia were pledged to support her; again France sought British advice—and British advice was "do nothing."

Three times that autumn of crisis Chamberlain flew to Germany, confident he could handle Hitler at the conference table. At the first meeting it was agreed to occupy the Sudetenland —without consulting President Eduard Benes of Czechoslovakia.

'PEACE FOR OUR TIME'

Chamberlain felt Hitler "would be ruled upon to keep his word" that this would satisfy him. A week later Hitler said he would invade Oct. 1, now claiming additional Czech territory.

The Munich conference called by Mussolini two days before the invasion deadline is popularly regarded today as the biggest sellout in British history. On Chamberlain's side it can be said the odds looked heavily weighted against Britain. He obviously still distrusted Russia. Canada and Australia informed him they wouldn't fight for the Sudetenland. Britain was still pitifully unprepared.

At the conference Mussolini produced terms already agreed to by the German foreign office for gradual occupation of the Sudetenland. Mussolini's object was to lose its areas of predominantly German character. Chamberlain and French President Edouard Daladier accepted.

Two days later Chamberlain met Hitler privately and signed a statement symbolizing "the desire of our two countries never to go to war with one another again."

Chamberlain flew home to a triumphant reception and messages of congratulation from his Dominions. At the window of 10 Downing Street he waved the paper with Hitler's signature and declared he had brought back "peace with honor."

"I believe it is peace for our time."

'FATAL DELUSION

Winston Churchill warned: "The belief that security can be obtained by throwing a small state to the wolves is a fatal delusion."

Hitler again announced: "This is my last territorial claim in Europe."

The reaction in Britain was violent when German troops snatched the whole of Czechoslovakia, barely six months after Munich. Chamberlain introduced conscription; munitions factories worked round the clock.

Strengthened by the new mood, Chamberlain plunged aid to the remnant Czech state and Hitler's list — Poland. It was clear after Germany annexed Memel that Danzig and the Corridor would be next. Meanwhile, Mussolini invaded Albania and bound his satellite to the Axis in the "Pact of Steel."

Negotiations for an alliance between Britain and Russia dragged into the sand. Almost simultaneously the world word learned of the Nazi-Soviet pact, that the credible alliance of two bitterly hostile ideologies. Hitler now had his safeguard against the dreaded "second front" in a European war.

Hitler threatened to invade Poland Aug. 25, apparently confident there would be another Munich. British offered financial loans and a deal over Danzig if German troops would disarm, but she did not confuse her determination to go to war if she failed.

ATTACKED SEPT. 1

The Anglo-Polish alliance was signed Aug. 25. Hitler postponed invasion to Sept. 1. Mussolini tried to repeat his last-minute intervention of 1938 but left it too late. The attack went ahead on schedule.

For two days Chamberlain and Daladier hesitated in the Commons Sept. 2. Chamberlain said if Germany withdrew her troops Britain also might be able to confer with her as if invasion had never taken place.

This was too much for the temper of Labor MP Aneurin Bevan, who lived Leo Amery—who in 1940 would tell Chamberlain: "In the name of God, go!"—shouted the fire at Labor party Leader Arthur Greenwood and cried, "Speak for England!"

Chamberlain gave in. An ultimatum was sent at 9 a.m. Sept. 3 demanding German withdrawal from Poland. Two hours later Chamberlain broadcast to an anxious nation: "I have to tell you that no such assurance has been received, and that therefore a state of war exists between this country and Germany."

There was a moment of dramatic hush as the premier's voice went off the air. Then a strange banshee noise wailed across the British sky—the first air-raid siren.

The nation held its breath. And nothing happened.

The "twilight" or "phoney" war had begun. It was to last seven months.

At sea the passenger liner Athenia, bound from Glasgow to Quebec, was torpedoed nine hours after Britain went to war, with loss of 112 lives.

'WINSTON IS BACK'

A signal went to the Fleet—"Winston is back." After years in the wilderness, Churchill was back in his 1914 job as first lord of the admiralty.

Poland was wiped out in a two-pronged attack by Germany and Russia.

The British Expeditionary Force trickled over to France where the Maginot Line armies crouched behind their impregnable-seeming Maginot Line.

The British battleship Royal Oak was torpedoed in her Scapa Flow anchorage by a German submarine Oct. 17, the same day the first Canadian troops arrived in Britain.

As 1939 dragged to an end the Norwegian Vidkun Quisling, whose name would become a synonym for traitor, met with Adolf Hitler and plotted to Scandinavia. Germany invaded Norway April 9, 1940. Quisling was installed as puppet ruler. The Norwegian Army revolted and Norway called for Allied aid.

British troops were sent in to capture the strategic ports of Narvik and Trondheim. The attack failed from lack of planning and co - ordination, and caused the downfall of the Chamberlain government.

Winston Churchill became prime minister May 10—the day Germany invaded Holland and Belgium.

Two months later the Battle of Britain began and the twilight war was over. Now it was the real thing.

Wellington

WELLINGTON — Mrs. William Crawford returned to Wellington on Thursday after seeing her granddaughter, Miss Susan Silvery safely on a plane at New York airport, on her way home to Nevada after spending a six weeks' holiday in Canada.

This week Mrs. Crawford is entertaining her eldest daughter, Mrs. Marvin Levis, Mr. Lewis and family from Rexford, N.Y.

Alkenbrack Calls Proposed Flag 'Trifoliate Twig on Bedsheet'

PICTON (Staff) — A. Douglas Alkenbrack of Napanee, Progressive Conservative member of Parliament for Prince Edward-Lennox, delivered a slashing attack in the House of Commons last week against Prime Minister L. B. Pearson and his Liberal Government on its proposed new Canadian flag, which he described as a "trifoliate twig on a bedsheet".

Mr. Alkenbrack met rough treatment from some other members of the House during the debate, in which he said that Mr. Pearson's policy on the question was based on a hunger for political histrionics and mastery of the stage "and for a sweep of the 75 possible seats in Quebec, he would sell his birthright and the sacred symbols of the other remaining nine provinces".

Mr. Alkenbrack deplored the fact that neither the Union Jack nor the Red Ensign were included in the proposed new design and suggested that "at the end and thinking and proper use of compromise in the interests of all the people concerned, we should stop".

At one point, Mr. Alkenbrack said: "I was talking about the respect of the youth of this country to give them a live flag, a flag that could grow with the country. They say, do not give us a dead flag. This trifoliate flag cannot be added to. The maple leaves and the white background are confined by the blue bands at the end. This flag cannot grow. Whatever heraldic balance it possesses, that is the way it must stay down through the ages. We need a flag like the Canadian that has evolved, grown and developed with the country and whose make-up can accommodate further growth. Northwest Territories and the Yukon will soon be provinces, and when new provinces will need symbols on our flag.

"In looking over this scheme of collusion between the government and certain provincial premiers of the country, I note that honorable members on the government side have been most anxious to get the Prime Minister's flag through as quietly as possible. They reveal themselves by their own individual action. Orders have been given to their back benches. Do not debate the question; let the opposition flounder against our rocks of silence when the opposition carries on the debate long enough, then we will accuse them of obstruction. For some time now Liberal strategy has urged members to keep quiet regarding the flag, and this has been illustrated tonight.

"We are urged not to say anything to hurt the feelings of Quebec because of the fear of dividing the country. Now, Mr. Speaker, how deceptively naive can you get? How deceptively naive are the occupants of the government benches? How gullible do they think we are? How gullible do they think the rest of the country is? There is a cause for every effect and this debate, no matter how long it may take, is the effect of a cause. The cause is a bad performance, the deceptive politics of the government. The cause has already divided the country as it has never been divided hitherto and the scars will take many years to heal."

Mr. Alkenbrack said the Liberals reminded him of a herd of trained seals on an ice floe that is rapidly breaking up. "It is soon going to become uninhabitable in the gulf stream of truth."

GARBAGE HOLIDAY

LUTON, England (CP)—Some car workers, who earn about £20 a week, have taken a holiday in this Bedfordshire town as garbage collectors. A council spokesman said they do the job for a week, earn about £16 and have a jolly good holiday in their second week."

Boy Accidentally Hit by Pellets From Shotgun

PICTON (Staff) — At approximately 11 a.m. on Wednesday 10-year-old Gaylord Hollingsworth was accidentally shot by a 16 gauge shotgun fired by 53 year old Pierce Jones, who lives just outside the town limits and adjacent to Picton's Greenwood cemetery.

Jones is a deep ravine near here and Mr. Jones stated that some cows had broken from a field and were heading for the cemetery. He fired two shots down into the ravine to ward them off. The ravine contained much scrub timber and small trees He did not know there was anyone down there until he heard someone cry out. The Hollingsworth boy was going to pick some pears at the time the shots were fired. After hearing the shouts Mr. Jones rushed down the hill to discover the boy and then proceeded to take him to Prince Edward County Memorial Hospital where 12 pellets were removed. The pellets struck the boy in the head, left arm and hand and some in the thigh and lower leg.

The boy is being kept in hospital for observation. Picton OPP are investigating.

Five Injured, Heavy Damage In Collision

PICTON (Staff) — A two-car accident Tuesday night injured five people. The accident took place on Scotch Block Road, opposite the Picton drive-in theatre. A car driven by Capt. F. S. Dowe, 1 Burns Ave., Picton, struck an auto preparing to turn in to the theatre.

The second car was driven by 18-year-old John Lewis of R. R. Picton. Accompanying Capt. Dowe were his wife and two children. Capt. Dowe received chest injuries, multiple bruises and his left wrist was broken. Mrs. Dowe suffered facial fractures and was taken to Prince Edward Memorial Hospital by Bond's ambulance —later to be admitted to Hotel Dieu Hospital, Kingston. The two Dowe children were given X-rays at the hospital but it is not believed that they suffered any serious injury.

To the Lewis car, John Devries, age 19, suffered head injuries, while Lewis himself received only a laceration of the lower lip. Other passengers in the Lewis car were his sister, Margaret, and a brother, Gary Lewis.

Total damage to the two cars was estimated at approximately $1,100.

Both autos received severe damage to the front.

Charges are pending according to Picton Detachment OPP.

Construction Roundup

APARTMENTS

At the finishing stages now are the two largest apartment buildings in town. Plastering is almost finished and hardwood flooring is being laid at Al Horlock's four-floor Midtown Apartments on John Street. Most of the hardwood is done on the top floor and carpenters are working on the second floor down. Cabinetwork is started on all floors.

About three weeks of work are left for Albert Ravas on the Belleville Towers apartment building on Victoria Ave. No carpets are laid yet, most doors have still to be hung and some plastering and finishing work remains. Plaster on some of the ceilings is patterned. Only one apartment is painted so far, but plans are to paint the apartments after they are rented, giving tenants the choice of colors.

PLAZA GAS STATION

The ground floor slab was poured Thursday for the new gas station at Belleville Plaza. The basement slab was poured last week. Steel is up for the west-side window frames only; the rest of the steel will be supported on brick. A Toronto firm will start Monday, according to superintendent Roy Dort, on masonry. Excavations are complete for the footings, and concrete piers have been poured along the Bridge St. front of the building. Pidatti-Fabiet of Belleville is doing the concrete.

LIQUOR STORE

Brush is being laid now at the new liquor store on Station Street. Ken Brooks is in charge of masons for Bradshaw Construction. The building will be brick veneer backed up by concrete block, according to superintendent Don Jackson.

SMITH TRANSPORT GARAGE

Frames are finished for the beams and being started for the decking of the mezzanine at the new garage being built at the Smith Transport terminal. Donald Newton hopes to be able to pour the floor, equal to about half the size of the garage, Friday. All the steel for the job is on site now and work is going ahead full tilt.

BEAVER JOBS

Beaver Construction is working along College St. gow, on the sanitary sewer connection from the Fahey St. main to North St. Archie Savery says the connection between Jackson Ave. and the Fahey St. main is complete now, and other crews are working on Jackson Ave. and Highview Crescent.

LIGHTFOOT CONSTRUCTION

Work on the south end of the Sidney St. water main was held up Wednesday for lack of a "T" connection to lead the pipe into the filter plant. Norm Lightfoot has taken his men up to Moira St. at Sidney, where there are about 120 feet of main still to be laid — connecting with short piece laid two years ago under the C.N.R. tracks. The work might take a week but the intersection should be clear for the week-end.

STEVENSON FORD SALES

The masons are through at the new Stevenson Ford Sales showroom on North Front St., and the service area may be closed in by the end of next week. Finkle's crane dropped the open-web steel joists in place Thursday, the decking will probably go in place Monday and from then it is only a day or so work to finish it off. Steel went up late last week and earlier this week over the showroom area.

SIR MACKENZIE BOWELL SCHOOL

Wilson's put the precast column in Wednesday for the window-walls of the Sir MacKenzie Bowell School near Sidney, and came back Thursday to place the roof. Most of the walls are up to height now, continuous concrete sills are being poured along the top of the walls, as required, and it looks like the building will be ready for the start of the school year, in September. Tough luck, kids!

Gracie Allen, Scatterbrain Comic, Dies of Heart Attack Was Wife of George Burns

HOLLYWOOD AP) — Gracie Allen, whose scatterbrained comedy helped make Burns and Allen a top act in show business for 34 years, died Thursday night after a heart attack. She was 58.

Spokesmen for the family said Miss Allen died at 11:15 p.m. and that her husband, comedy actor George Burns, at her side at Cedars of Lebanon Hospital.

Contacted at the Burns home in Beverly Hills, William Burns, George's brother, said the popular comedienne had been in seemingly good health before being stricken.

He said she had experienced mild heart attacks in the past. They didn't, however, seem to slow her down much, because she was active in Hollywood society until her death. Ten days ago she and her husband were among the friends at the golden wedding reception for Edie Adams and her new husband, Marty Mills. She appeared effervescent and cheerful, as she has been since her retirement in 1958.

Until then, the strain of sustaining his nitwit role sometimes made her tense and withdrawn. At the time of her retirement, Burns explained why she quit:

"She's never missed acting for a minute. She never was a ham, anyway. Most actors are aware of playing to an audience. Not Gracie. The day she hit the stage toward the audience was a wall to her. She concentrated only on what she had to say and never gave a thought to cameras or lights or makeup or anything. . . .

"She deserved a rest. She had been working all her life and her lines were the toughest in the world to do. They didn't make sense, so she had to memorize every word. It took a real actress."

Miss Allen was born in 1906, one of four daughters of Edward Allen, a song and dance man then booked in San Francisco.

At 3½ she had made her stage debut. But she continued in Roman Catholic schools until she was 14, when she began a dancing act with her three older sisters.

Later, she joined an Irish song and dance act and at one time went to secretarial school in Hoboken, N.J. It was in New Jersey that she met George.

Born Nathan Birnbaum in 1896, Burns had been through the vaudeville mill and claims to have worked with 50 partners before encountering Gracie.

She saw him on a bill at Union Hill, N.J., where he was booked as Burns and Lorraine. They met after the show and George revealed he was seeking a new partner. He suggested that Gracie join him.

Gracie recalled later: "Of course George had written this act for himself, with himself as the comedian and I as the straight man. But the funny lines came straight from the big laughs. People laughed twice as hard at my not being funny as they laughed at George's being funny. When we came off after the first show, he said, 'We're switching parts, Gracie.' He rewrote the act then and there."

Burns and Allen played vaudeville for three years before he was able to convince her they should get married. They were wed in Cleveland Jan. 7, 1926. GOT TV BUG

They became headliners in vaudeville and starred on the bill that closed out vaudeville at New York's Palace Theatre. After broadcasting on Rudy Vallee and Guy Lombardo radio programs, they began their own show Feb. 15, 1932.

Their career continued in radio and television until Gracie's retirement.

They also appeared in such movies as Big Broadcast of 1932, International House, Love in Bloom, Damsel In Distress, College Swing, Honolulu and Gracie Allen Murder Case.

The Burns had two adopted children, Sandra, born in 1934, and Ronald, in 1935.

Burns continued his career after his wife's retirement. He has appeared as a single in nightclubs and on television and teamed for a while with Carol Channing. He also produced television shows and will star this coming season in a new series, Wendy and Me.

Attorney-General Wishart Denies Greene's Allegation

TORONTO (CP) — Attorney-General Arthur Wishart said Thursday a statement by J. J. Greene, Liberal member of Parliament for Renfrew South, asking for Mr. Wishart's resignation over an alleged conflict of interest involving a law firm, was "base and baseless and entirely without foundation and fact."

Mr. Greene, a candidate for the leadership of the Ontario Liberal party, quoted a press report Wednesday as saying Mr. Wishart is a member of the law firm representing Scott-Miner Steamship Company of Port Colborne in a dispute with some 45 families who want evacuation from their homes at Batchawana Village, 30 miles north of Sault Ste. Marie.

Since the Ontario department of lands and forests out the assessment of the property concerned the dispute, Mr. Greene said, "the provincial government and the cabinet are involved and the attorney-general should resign due to conflict of interest."

Mr. Wishart said Thursday he has not been in the firm to carry any legal business since his appointment as attorney - general and he has not seen or spoken with his partner, E. Bruce Noble, during the last eight weeks until Wednesday.

He said Mr. Noble, acting for the Scott - Miner Company, against the families which the company wants to expropriate land belonging to the company. The action is for the purpose of determining the matter of these people and the company title and possession between these people and the company to prevent any further "encroachment" on land which the company claims to own, he said.

COURT TO DECIDE

"Mr. Noble informed me that negotiations have been carried on with the individuals in question over a period of some six months, until it became apparent that the matter was one that should be decided by the court," Mr. Wishart said.

"No department of the government is a party, to the action. The only department which would have any interest in the matter would be the department of lands and forests which collects provincial land tax, which has heretofore been paid by Scott-Miner."

Mr. Wishart said that immediately upon his election as a member of the legislature on June 26, 1963, he instructed his partners that the firm would not act in any matter in which the government while he continued to be a member.

"If he is admitted to an Ontario hospital, even if he is insured, the Ontario government pays the cost."

F. W. Bartrem Chief Magistrate For Province

TORONTO (CP) — Attorney General Arthur Wishart announced Thursday that Magistrate Frederick W. Bartrem of Toronto will become chief magistrate of Ontario, effective Sept. 1.

Magistrate Johnstone Roberts of Niagara Falls was appointed early last spring but resigned before he took the post because of poor health.

Magistrate Bartrem will be senior magistrate for Metropolitan Toronto and will assume a seat on the police commission. He will have general supervisory powers over magistrates and will assign them for hearings.

Govt. Accused Of Spending Money Foolishly

TORONTO (CP) — Victor Coppa, a candidate for leadership of the Ontario Liberal party, Thursday accused the Progressive Conservative government of Ontario of up-ending the province's money recklessly in support of the Metropolitan Toronto government.

Speaking at a press conference in his headquarters at the Canadian National Exhibition, Mr. Coppa said "the people in Whitby and North Bay are saying the costs of government here in Metro. . . . It's only fair that all the cities and towns be treated equally."

Mr. Coppa, who is also mayor of Hamilton, told reporters the provincial government had initiated the metropolitan system, then, finding it failing was spending money recklessly in an attempt to make the experiment work.

The Ontario government agreed to pay the entire cost of the recent royal commission on Metropolitan Toronto, but when Port Arthur made a request for a similar amalgamation study it was told the city would have to pay the bill, Mr. Coppa said.

NOT OUTSPOKEN

The 45-year - old candidate also said that none of his opponents for the Liberal leadership has been outspoken enough to merit the leadership.

"You can't suddenly become a tiger two or three weeks before the election," he said.

Other candidates for the provincial Liberal leadership are Robert Nixon, member of the legislature for Brant; Joseph Sedgld, member of the legislature for Toronto Bracondale; Eddis Sergent, member for Grey North; Andrew Thompson, member for Toronto Dovercourt; J. J. Greene, member of Parliament for Renfrew South, and Charles Templeton, a former newspaper executive.

The leader will be determined at a party convention Sept. 17-19 in Toronto.

Wants Mentally Ill Included In Health Plan

TORONTO (CP)—Health Minister Matthew Dymond of Ontario said Thursday mental hospital care must be included in a national health insurance plan despite the federal government's opposition.

Dr. Dymond, speaking at a luncheon at the Canadian National Exhibition, said that from the first, Ontario has stressed for the inclusion of the mentally ill in any insurance plan. Every province has strongly supported Ontario.

"But so far the federal government has refused to include mental hospital care as an insured service," he said. "Paradoxically, if an insured patient is admitted to a psychiatric unit of a general hospital his care is insured.

"If he is admitted to an Ontario hospital, even if he is insured, the Ontario government pays the cost."

Commonwealth Peace Corps Plan Is Considered Despite British, Canadian Doubts

OTTAWA (CP)—Britain and Canada have expressed reservations about the desirability of establishing a formal Commonwealth peace corps, the third Commonwealth education conference was told Thursday.

However, delegates were informed in a progress committee report that the idea of expanding the use of young persons from developed countries to assist developing nations still is under review at the meeting.

At a full-dress plenary session Thursday, offers of increased educational aid to developing Commonwealth countries were announced by Britain, Australia and Canada. Britain, which plans to make the largest contribution, hopes to send out up to 1,000 young graduates. over the next five years to study for a period of one year at a Commonwealth university and then send at least another year working in the country.

Australia said it will be making a 50-per-cent increase in its Commonwealth educational activities directed mainly at increasing the teacher supply.

Canada announced that it will be granting fellowships to senior scholars and educationists under the Commonwealth scholarship and fellowship scheme.

T. L. Robertson, an Australian delegate and chairman of one of five conference committees which meet in closed session, reported on discussions so far on the peace corps proposal.

Ghana has suggested that a Commonwealth teacher training scheme be set up with terms of service similar to those enjoyed by volunteers of Canadian University Service Overseas or the American government supported Peace Corps.

Robert Carr, Britain's secretary for technical co-operation, had expressed the view that young volunteers could not replace fully-trained teachers. He was reported as saying the essential character of the volunteer schemes was that they bod had been voluntary. There was a danger that in a centrally-organized government - backed Commonwealth scheme. some of the idealism might be lost

Surface Winds Of Killer Storm Growing Weaker

CAPE KENNEDY, Fla. (AP) The surface winds of hurricane Cleo, the killer storm that left a trail of death in the Caribbean and destruction on the Florida coast, dropped today to 40 miles an hour around the eye.

A navy plane that penetrated the storm reported that high level winds, however, still circle the eye at hurricane velocity, and Cleo still has "comeback" capability.

Cleo was centred at the time near St. Augustine, close to the coast, and in position to draw more energy from the warm waters of the Atlantic Hurricane warnings to the northward were left in effect.

After slamming Miami with 115 - mile - an - hour blows, Cleo was gradually weakened by land friction in her progress up the Florida coast. She delivered only weak slaps at the rockets of Cape Kennedy and the resort city of Daytona Beach.

New Storm-Hunting Nimbus Satellite Rockets Into Sky To Take Pictures of Weather

VANDENBERG AIR FORCE BASE, Calif. (AP) — A new storm-hunting Nimbus satellite vehicle rocketed into the sky today with cameras designed to take 3,000 pictures of the world's weather every day.

The 91-foot-tall Thor - Agena booster rocket was aimed at a 575-mile-high polar orbit from which it could photograph every square mile of the rotating earth's cloud cover at least once a day.

Television cameras similar to those that took Ranger 7's closeups of the moon, and night-time infra-red picture gear reported to be adapted from secret Samos and Midas spacecraft satellites, are expected to improve forecasters' ability to spot storms brewing far at sea.

Only Western-world weather men will benefit. Nimbus is not designed to transmit pictures over Soviet territory.

MAY THREE SYSTEMS

launched last December. This daylight-only system is designed to relay 200 photographs a day to 50 U.S. and 12 foreign ground stations as the spacecraft passes overhead.

The other two systems are major advances in satellite photography.

One uses a hookup of three television cameras, similar to those on Ranger 7, designed to take 100 frames during each of Nimbus' 14 passes each day over the sunlit side of earth.

The second, sensitive to infrared (heat) radiations, is designed to record a similar number of images while Nimbus is passing over the dark side of earth.

Both systems store their pictures on tape and transmit them to stations in Alaska and North Carolina on command from the ground.

All of Nimbus' cameras are aimed continually at the earth. Gyro spinning devices satellites mlse up to 80 per cent of the satellite's surface in a 24-hour period.

Professor Leading Fight To Save Trees Arrested

LONDON, Ont. (CP) — Jourdain professor Earl Beattie, who has led the fight to save 11 maple trees from a road-widening project in nearby Lambeth, was arrested today and charged with obstruction.

A provincial police cruiser drew up at his home in Lambeth, a village six miles south of here, and took the London man where he was lodged in jail. He was to appear in court later today.

Police said Mr. Beattie, an associate professor of journalism at the University of Western Ontario, has been charged under a section of the Criminal Code which states:

"Everyone who, wrongfully and without lawful authority, for the purpose of compelling another person to abstain from doing anything he has a lawful right to do, or to do anything he has a lawful right to abstain from doing, hides an tools, clothing or other property owned or used by that person . . . is guilty of an offence punishable on summary convic-tion."

Meanwhile, a London subcontractor today began cutting down the trees — work which had been denied for two days by demonstrations.

Eight OPP constables were sent from London to maintain order.

The work was held up Tuesday and Wednesday by crowds of children who impeded treefellers by clambering in and out of the trees.

Thursday, Ray Powell, public relations officer for Graham and Graham Construction Company, the project contractors, said obstruction charges would be laid against anyone who delayed the work.

"If every job in the city of London was done under these conditions, we'd all be living in the bush," he said.

A group of residents have appealed in vain to London's suburban roads commission to save the trees. Mr. Beattie, their spokesman, said they would seek an injunction to stop the work.

Some Caution Is Expressed By Democrats on Prospects

ATLANTIC CITY (AP)—Democratic leaders are leaving this convention city expressing mixed feelings about the party's chances in the November presidential election.

Some admit to worry over the possibility of a while "back lash" against Democratic positions and the Civil Rights Act.

This is particularly true among leaders from southern states. Several from that area could see the Democratic ticket topped as no better than even. if that.

And some southerners expect to split their votes and not run separately from the national ticket.

Of the leaders of 37 states contacted by The Associated Press during the convention, 18 placed their states solidly in the Johnson - Humphrey corner in November. The are Arkansas, Connecticut, Delaware, Illinois, Iowa, Maryland, Massachusetts, Missouri, Nevada, New Jersey, New York, Oklahoma, Ohio, Pennsylvania, Texas, West Virginia, Wisconsin.

Democratic leaders in 17 other states—including some usually Republican ones—figure they have a good chance to win, or at least hold their own, next years.

These are Arizona, California, Colorado, Florida, Georgia, Idaho, Kansas, Kentucky, Maine, Montana, New Hampshire, New Mexico, North Carolina, Utah, Vermont, Washington and Wyoming.

The states in which Democratic chances were rated at no better than even were not rated — are Nebraska, South Carolina, Louisiana, Mississippi and Virginia.

Michigan Lumberjack Rows His Boat to Fair at New York

NEW YORK (CP)—A 45-year - old Sault Ste. Marie, Mich. lumberjack was due today a 2,000 rowboat trip from his hometown to New York was the boast of the World's Fair today.

Anthony (Seaway) Calery rowed into the fair's marina Thursday and was welcomed by officials.

"I'm the greatest boat rider in the world," said Calery. "I am the greatest. I'm not the greatest in the world, that's all.

"People were good to me along the way. Many times they would see me coming down a river or pull up to a lake shore and they would offer me a meal or lodging."

Calery was vague about his reason for making the 75-day trip.

Pinch Hitting

By GARRY ALEXANDER

When Jack Adams stands up to talk hockey, those in the know stop to listen.

So, on Wednesday, September 2, Adams should have a most attentive audience when he takes the main speaker's spot at the second annual Tweed-Hungerford Sports Celebrities dinner.

Hockey will be the main benefactor from funds raised by the dinner and most befitting is the fact that most of the celebrities attending the dinner will come from the hockey world.

The affair was a big success, with capital letters, last year when $2,200 was raised toward reducing the deficit of the $100,000 Tweed-Hungerford Community Centre.

Right now the hard-working men of central Hastings have taken care of all that total except a mere $8,000 — and they expect the dinner to help greatly in reducing that sum.

Matters are not standing still by any stretch of the imagination. Artificial ice is the next project for the arena and we don't mean in distant years to come.

A contract was signed last week which guarantees that artificial ice will be in use for the 1966-65 season.

The news will be more than welcomed by youngsters and oldsters alike of the area. Hockey has been near and dear to the hearts of Hastings youths for many a moon and the artificial ice should boost the sport even more.

Arrangements have been completed for the dinner proper to be held at the Tweed High School auditorium, beginning at 7.30 p.m. Earlier, the Canadian Legion, sponsors of the dinner, will hold a reception at their hall for those wishing to meet and mingle with big names of the sporting world. The reception is slated to get under way at 6.30.

Chairman for the dinner is Jim Halpenny and, according to those close to the scene, this dedicated gentleman is working just as hard as he did last season. He is aided by a six-man committee and they report that only a few of the limited number of tickets are still available. In other words, most of the 300, at $10 a throw, are sold, assuring another success.

Wally Moffat, helping Halpenny with the publicity end of the deal, released an impressive guest list, headed by Adams, last week. No introduction of "Jolly Jawn" is necessary, at least to hockey fans. A wealth of hockey knowledge, gained through a lifetime of experience in the game, and the speaking ability to truly "keep it interesting" makes Adams a much-sought head-table speaker at these affairs.

Ed Fitkin, former publicity director of Maple Leaf Gardens, will serve as master-of-ceremonies. He knows the guests through close association and will keep the show moving in great style.

Heading the list of present-day NHL stars will be colorful Eddie Shack, of the Stanley Cup Toronto Maple Leafs, and Chicago Black Hawks scoring ace Bobby Hull, two of the better-known players in the game today.

Brian Watson, up and coming young defence star of the Montreal Canadians, will not be far from home at the do. He hails from Bancroft and should get a big lift from local fans. Another active player will be Detroit Red Wing defenceman Ivy Spencer, hard-hitting native of Sudbury, Ont.

Ex-Toronto Maple Leaf star Harry Watson will also be a head-table guest. Watson, a star in the "Rocket" Richard - Ted Kennedy days, will be conducting a hockey school for boys of the Tweed Minor Hockey Association earlier in the day.

Another great, of still earlier years, ex-New York Ranger Davey Kerr, has also joined the head-table guest list. Mr. Kerr is now in the hotel business in Belleville.

Trading hockey puck for pigskin on the guest list will be "Red" O'Quinn, former Big Four star and at present general manager of the Ottawa Roughriders.

O'Quinn may be outnumbered by the hockey boys but he hopes to even that up a bit by bringing one of the Riders' better known stars with him. The football race should be near its peak at this point so O'Quinn will likely have a few interesting thoughts on the picture in general — and his Ottawa boys in particular.

It looks like a grand show for a good cause and tickets are available in Belleville at O'Connor's Jewel Box.

LATER: Three late additions to the guest list are Ex-Argo Fred Black, New York Ranger Coach George "Red" Sullivan and ex-NHL'er Gus Bodnar.

Snipe Championships

Brazil's Conrad Is Tops

OAKVILLE (CP) — Reinaldo Conrad of Brazil successfully defended his Western Hemisphere international snipe championship Thursday, finishing with 9,138 points on the final day of the seven-race competition.

The 22-year-old Conrad, who has won every major snipe sailing championship except the world title, placed first in the sixth race Thursday morning but dropped to 10th in the final event. He had clinched the championship before entering the final race. His seven-race each day.

Axel Schmidt of Brazil, the current world champion, finished second in the final points standings with 9,976. Schmidt had finished third and first in Thursday's two races. His record was 3-1-3-3-6-5-1.

The 15-foot, six-inch snipes were all built in Oakville but the 24 competitors were allowed to bring their own sails. Each boat was identical and each entry was given a different boat

Hiro-Hady Plus Midgets Tonight

Wrestlers of various styles, sizes, shapes and forms will provide wrestling fans here with plenty to howl about in tonight's weekly card at Memorial Arena.

The nine o'clock show gets under way with Hio DiPaolo pitting his speed and agility against a veteran roughie, one Lee Henning.

A midget tag-team bout assures laughs and action to boot in the semi-final affair. The team of Farmer Pete and Pancho Lopez tackles the combo of Billy the Kid and Irish Jackie. There will be a fifth man in the ring, wearing a referee's togs, and he will find the "little guys" making the official chore a lively one from start to finish.

Headlining the card, in the two-of-three falls main event, is the Japanese master of judo and karate, Professor Hiro, doing battle against the popular Gentleman Jim Hady. Hiro and Hady put on one ring makes for plenty of crowd-pleasing wrestling action - and enjoyable evening for the fans.

Tiger-Cats Burst Alouettes' Bubble

By TED BLACKMAN

MONTREAL (CP) — Montreal Alouettes had just been humiliated 33-1 by Hamilton Tiger - Cats, but coach Jim Trimble was sporting a wide grin.

"Stay, you're smiling," said an astonished reporter.

"Sure, I'm smiling," Trimble said. "We just ran out of balling wire and chewing gum, that's all."

As Trimble explained it, the Als had never expected to win their first three games in the Eastern Football Conference and Thursday night's defeat was overdue. Now they had fallen apart at the seams because "we don't really have that much stuff."

"We wasted this one badly," said coach Ralph Sazio, whose Tiger-Cats were beaten 33-5 by the Als in the opening game. "We beat them in every department."

The loss left Montreal still in first place with six games to more than Ottawa and Hamilton. Toronto trails with two points.

Quarterback Bernie Faloney left the bench late in the second quarter with a bad case of the Casentino failed to move the club and promptly led the Tiger-Cats downfield to open the scoring. Johnny Counts grabbed an 11-yard pass for the first of the two touchdowns.

Hamiltons' defence took over and Sid Montreal to six first downs and a total gain of 102 yards. But those figures don't include the 35 yards that quarterback Vern Lester's fumble deep in Als territory. Don Sutherin kicked a field goal, single and four converts.

Montreal's only point appeared to be a Hamilton gift. Gino Berretta punted the ball 65 yards to the Tiger end zone where Simpson conceded. The 27,417 fans knew he could have run it out and they cheered Hamilton's generosity.

Faloney was successful on six of 10 passes attempted. Hamilton's total attack measured 358 yards, 219 on the ground, for 19 first downs.

Diver Adds To World Event Lead

TORONTO (CP)—John Dellinger of Seattle, Wash., continued to lead 97 high divers competing for the world's professional diving championship Thursday after four days of competition.

Dellinger jumped from the 90-foot level into the water in front of the Canadian National Exhibition waterfront — Ward's Island. His dive earned him 216 of a possible 270 points to give him a total of 703 points.

The divers are competing for the $6,500 in prize money with $2,500 going to the winner.

Second place now is held by Dave Lundquist of Honolulu, Hawaii, with 665 points. Climbing into third place was Lucky Weal of Hollywood, Fla., with 625 points.

Hockey Gets $38,870

Twelve Sports Share In Grants

OTTAWA (CP) — Grants totalling $150,934 have been awarded to 12 national sports organizations under the fitness and amateur sport program, it was announced Thursday night.

The Canadian Amateur Hockey Association received $38,870 toward the cost of sending a team to the world hockey championships in Finland in March, 1965.

The Canadian Amateur Ski Association received $33,940 to assist in holding alpine cross country and jumping schools and clinics, and to send a team to the 1966 U.S. ski championships.

Other major grants include: The Canadian Soccer Football Association, $18,320 for coaching clinics and for a national championship; Canadian Amateur Basketball Association, $9,000 to conduct its Canadian senior A men's and women's championship; Canadian Olympic Association, $8,500 to finance the cost of a national sports medicine committee.

Other grants went to: The Canadian Association of Amateur Oarsmen, $3,114 to aid the national schoolboy rowing championships in 1964 and Canadian Yachting Association, $640 to assist in holding the international snipe sailing championships of the Western Hemisphere at Oakville, Ont., this month.

A.L. Powers To Discuss Yanks' Sale

BOSTON (AP) — At long last, after considerable discussion, consternation, unfavorable publicity and some apparent infighting, the American League powers are going to get together face to face and discuss the sale of New York Yankees to CBS.

What's more, says the Columbia Broadcasting System, if it doesn't come out right, they'll pull out of the whole affair.

"We will, of course, abide by the decision of such a meeting," CBS board chairman William S. Paley wrote Yankee co-owner Dan Topping.

The Yankees, in a formal statement, said Topping "wishes to make it known that president Joe Cronin has acceded to his request that a meeting be called to resolve any possible doubt as to the validity of the transfer.

Joe Cronin, American League president who had once declined to call such a meeting, said it was his own idea.

"I feel it is in the best interest of the league and of all its members that such a meeting be held," he said Thursday.

The meeting is set for Sept. 9 in Boston. At issue is the sale of 80 per cent of the Yankees to CBS for $11,200,000, with option to buy the rest in five years. The sale to become final in November, pending constitutional ity of the conditions surrounding the sale.

Bombers To Start James

EDMONTON (CP)—The road back after a one-year layoff has been a long one for Gerry James, but the former Winnipeg Blue Bomber ace gets a chance tonight to prove the journey is over.

James was named Thursday night to replace Dick Cobee as a starting halfback for Saskatchewan Roughriders who meet Edmonton Eskimos in a West Football Conference game as both clubs attempt to end three-game losing streaks.

Saskatchewan coach Bob Shaw said he was pleased with James's progress. "but he isn't going to be used to a great deal. It's tough to tell how his legs will hold out."

James, a bulldozing fullback with Winnipeg from the mid-1950- until 1962, laid off football last year to coach a hockey team in Europe. He has had only sporadic success this year as a pro quarterback but Shaw said Cobee had not played as well this year as last

So Say Promoters 'Only Fight Public Wants'

NORFOLK, Va. (AP) — The World Boxing Association decides today whether to sanction a return heavyweight championship bout between Cassius Clay and Sonny Liston, a bout called by its promoters "the only fight the public wants."

Before then a 15-man jury met in closed session here, delegates to the WBA's 45th annual convention had testimony that:

1. Inter - Continental Promotions, promoter of the bout, is willing to "put back into boxing" an unspecified percentage of the gate from a second meeting between Clay, the champion, and Liston, whom he deposed in February.

2. Liston, dropped from the WBA ruling since the fight to Clay, in which he suffered a shoulder injury, will submit to a rigid physical examination to prove that his shoulder now is sound.

3. Clay wants the bout in dispel doubts he could have defeated a sound Liston; and Liston personally "is not better or worse" than he was when he was recognized by the WBA first as a challenger, then as champion and then as heavyweight champion

This testimony was given to the WBA Thursday by the secretary of Inter - continental Promotions attorney Bill Cherry, and by Gordon Faver sham, a member of the 11-man Louisville sponsoring group which owns Clay's contract.

Football History Will Be Made

Canadians Seek Berths In Pan-Am

WINNIPEG (CP) — More than 450 young athletes from nine provinces, their major target a berth on Canada's 1967 Pan - American Games team, will compete in the two-day Canadian age-class track and field championships, which start here today.

James Daly, executive director of the Pan-American Games Society, estimates that 30 of the athletes entered in the 72 events will be members of the Canadian team to the 1967 Pan Am Games, to be held in Winnipeg July 22-Aug. 27.

Competitors from every province but Newfoundland will participate in three classes — midget, 15 years of age and under; juvenile, 17 and under; and junior, 19 and under.

TEAM STRIKES

ARMAGH, Pa. (AP)—A high school football team went on strike Thursday because the school board has ineligible boys may bar married students from sports. One of the team's best linemen is married. The entire 40-member United High School team didn't show up for afternoon practice session.

Cheesemen Defeat Belvedere

In the consolation round of the Belleville Commercial Softball League, Black Diamond Cheese edged Belvedere Hotel 3-2 last night at King George School.

Jack Gilby was the hero, slamming a two-on- two-out single in the bottom of the seventh to drive in the winning run.

The game developed into a tight pitching duel, as both pitchers hurled scoreless ball for the first four innings. Two runs were scored by each team in the fifth and it stayed at 2-2 until the last of the seventh.

Tommy Holoway pitched the victory, allowing six hits, striking out seven and walking four.

Junior Day was tagged with the loss, giving up only four hits, striking out eight and issuing four walks.

Belvedere's two runs came on a walk to Day, and back-to-back singles by Lucas and McLeod.

A walk to Jones and a home run by Clapp accounted for the Cheesemen's two counters.

Jones started things off in the seventh with a walk, and Archer got on by an error. Then Gilby singled the winner across.

Junior Day and McLeod hit two singles each, while Jack Lucas hit a lone single to round out the losers attack.

For Black Diamond, Clapp homered, Gilby singled twice and Hannah was good for a safety.

Unknowns Lead World's Top Golfers

Rookie Sets Pace

By BERNIE KENNEDY

BIRMINGHAM, Mich. (AP)—Under the terrific pressure of Oakland Hills' tricky bumpand-run greens and rookie nerves hold the answer today as three of the game's greatest golfers continue their bid in the second round of the $200,000 world championship tournament.

The unfathomable greens took their toll of the greats but the nerves of the untried youngsters held firm as 24-year-old George Archer, a pro of less than a year, grabbed the first-round lead Thursday for the $35,000 first prize with a record five-under-par 65.

Only four players broke Oakland Hills par 70. Three of them were young pros and the other was Jackie Burke Jr., the baby-faced Texan who has been called rookie of the year for the last 15 years.

Bruce Devlin, 26, a former Australian amateur star who has been a pro less than three years, was second at 68. Dick Sikes, 24, a former public links player who turned pro after this year's Masters, and Burke were next, tied at 69.

Others were 70 and over, including all the hotshot favorites, and most of them were fussing about the greens, which are big and rolling and are filled with all sorts of small mounds.

Can the champions—Archer, Devlin and Sikes—hold up under the terrific pressure of such a rich tournament?

Can the big name players—Arnold Palmer, Jack Nicklaus, Ken Venturi, Tony Lema and Bobby Nichols—solve the intricacies of the greens which proved so frustrating on the opening day?

Palmer, who led the 36-hole qualifying three with a 70, needed an 18-foot putt on the final hole to finish level with par, tied with nine others for fifth place.

Gary Player, bunched with almost two dozen players at 72, said "any man who could be sure of sinking a putt over two feet had to be a genius."

Nicklaus missed two putts of under two feet in a round of 73 and said, "I was driving well, but I missed seven greens and I couldn't putt."

At Balding of Toronto led the field of eight Canadians with a three-over-par 73, one stroke ahead of Will Homenuik of Winnipeg. Clivio Thompson and George Knudson, both of Toronto, were tied with 75s.

Frank Whibley of Kitchener, Ont., carded a 76, and Mick Weslock of Toronto, Canadian amateur champ at the club championship, shot a 78. Moe Norman of Toronto and Al Balding of Edmonton had 81 and 83 respectively.

Bisons Whip Leafs 11-3; Suns Win

By THE CANADIAN PRESS

Duke Carmel finally stopped hitting homers Thursday night but that wasn't enough to stop Buffalo Bisons from crushing Toronto Maple Leafs 11-3 in baseball action in the International League.

Three Toronto pitchers held Carmel hitless, after he had clouted a homer in each of the previous three games against the Leafs, but he managed a walk in his fourth trip to the plate and scored a run.

Elsewhere, Rochester Red Wings shut-out Syracuse Chiefs 3-0, Atlanta Crackers edged Columbus Jets 3-2 and Jacksonville Suns defeated Richmond Virginians 4-1.

Craig Anderson scattered eight hits for the Bisons and Buffalo batsmen collected five homers, including two by John Stephenson. Pete Green, Dick Smith and Choo Choo Coleman smacked the others as Buffalo built an 11-0 seventh-inning lead.

Glen Hobbie put down the Richmond attack on seven hits, fanning five and walking none for his sixth victory in the last seven outings.

Jack Cullen gave up only six hits for the Virginians but Richmond pounded them effectively.

Atlanta scored twice in the fifth inning when Woody Hundley doubled and added the winning run in the seventh on doubles by Joe Nossek and Bud Bloomfield. Jim Merritt gave up five hits in winning his fourth start in 13 days and bringing his record to 11 wins in 27 decisions.

Bill Short pitched a five-hit shutout against the Chiefs and Curt Blefary gave the Red Wings a 1-0 lead with a solo homer, his 30th of the year.

Can Shoot Redheads, Canvasbacks

OTTAWA (CP) — Removal of the sandhill crane from the protected list and a limited removal of hunting for canvasback and redhead ducks highlight the 1966 migratory bird regulations announced today by Canadian Wildlife Service.

Hunters will be able to shoot the turkey - sized sandhills in certain northern areas of Manitoba and Saskatchewan Sept. 1-16. Sandhill cranes have been protected almost 30 years, chiefly because they bear a close resemblance to the young of the almost-extinct whooping crane. Daily air patrols will be flown over the hunting areas and if a young whooping crane is spotted with sandhill flocks the remainder of the season will immediately be cancelled.

Canvasbacks and redheads have been off-limits to duck hunters for the last two years in the Prairies, Ontario and Quebec where they occur. This fall hunters will be allowed to include two of these ducks in their regular duck bag limit. They may take two canvas backs or two redheads or one of each, but not two of each species.

The wildlife service reported that populations of ducks and geese are at about the same levels as in 1963. Hunting seasons are unchanged from last year and there have been only minor adjustments in bag limits.

In OASA Sr. 'B' Trudeaus Bow To Kingston 8-2

By GARRY ALEXANDER
(Staff Sportswriter)

KINGSTON — Bunching their runs in the fourth and seventh innings, Kingston T.A.S. Men clipped Belleville Trudeau Motors 8-2 here last night to grab a 1-0 lead in their OASA Senior "B" playdown round.

Second game in the 2-of-3 affair is slated for Belleville's CNRA Park Sunday afternoon at four o'clock.

Trudeaus scampered into a 2-0 third-frame lead before the T.A.S. bats started to find the range. The winners bagged three in the fourth, one in the fifth and put the wrapping on with four in the seventh.

Big Babe VanHooser failed to overpower the Trudeau hitters but he did tame them on five hits, four of them grouped in the third and fourth frames. He struck out 11, six of those in the final three innings, and walked three.

Bobby Green, the first of three Trudeau hurlers, took the loss, charged with three runs and four hits in 2⅔ innings. Jim Clarke allowed four more runs on as many hits before Doug Ellis came on in the seventh, in time to give runs on as many hits before Doug Ellis came on in the seventh, in time to give up one run off three base knocks. They whiffed four between them and walked six.

Duggan doubled to right to open Trudeau's scoring and Green was hit by a pitch and Locke popped a ball down the left field line that hopped into foul territory, good for a triple and a 2-0 Belleville lead.

Kingston tied it quickly on a homer into the left-centre hole, by Anson, following a walk. When Wellar and VanHooser also hit safely, Green gave way to Clarke with men on second and third. Clarke's first pitch was in the dirt and Wellar raced home to snap a tie. Clarke finally got out of the inning after a hit batter and a walk loaded the bases.

Sloppy play cost the losers one in the fifth. Foster got an infield hit and was safe all the way to third when the bag was left unoccupied on Smith's sacrifice bunt. Another low pitch got loose and it was 4-2.

Two scratch hits ignited the final rally and Ellis came on after Ferguson singled one home. Davidson greeted him with a base hit, plating two. Wellar and Neasmith also rapped singles for the eighth marker.

The losers failed to take advantage of two hits in the fourth, two walks in the sixth and a final safety in the eighth.

Rick Locke had a triple, Gary Duggan a double, Ab Wright, "Pug" Kellar and Claude Carr singles in defeat.

Neal Neasmith and Barry Wellar collected two singles apiece to pace the winners' 11-hit attack. Bud Anson clouted his circuit blast, VanHooser, Larry Davidson, Jack Lynch, Charlie Foster, Haven Ferguson and Don Smith a hit apiece.

Canadians In Trapshoot Wins Six-Way Shoot-Off

VANDALIA, Ohio (CP) — F. M. Wallard Jr., of Marshalltown, Iowa, stormed out of a six-way shoot-off Thursday and won one of the clay target sport's most coveted crowns, the Preliminary Handicap at the 45th Grand American Trap shoot.

Wallard, 31, broke 99 of 100 targets in the 16-yard event to tie five others in the record field of 2,187 and then broke 25 straight to defeat them in the extra session.

Don Havens of Leamington, Ont., broke 96 of 100 birds from the 21½-yard line to rate as high Canadian gun in the preliminary handicap event. A total of 43 Canadians competed in the event.

Ten Canadians shoot today in the Grand American Handicap, biggest event of the tournament. It will attract more than 2,500 competitors.

Of the 27 Ontario shooters who shot Thursday, the leaders included: Ernie Williams, Leamington, 23 yards, 94; Leon Hartman, Kitchener, 23 yards, 93; Robert Byrks, Aylmer, 20 yards, 93; Harry Mathers, Exeter, 21 yards, 92; Gordon Emmett, Thorold, 22 yards, 91; Alan Turner, Stratford, 22 yards, 91; Ed Sayers, Leamington, 20 yards, 90; and Harry Crawford, Preston, 21 yards 90.

Will Try Goalie From Norway

TORONTO (CP) — Oistein Mellerud, a goaltender with Norway's national hockey team, will report to New York Rangers of the National Hockey League when their training camp opens at Winnipeg Sept. 15, general manager Murray Patrick said here Thursday.

Patrick, attending a two-day meeting of league general managers, coaches and referees, said he had learned that Mellerud had entered the United States and was living in Schenectady, N.Y.

Mellerud said he was interested in playing hockey in North America and was invited to the training camp.

Argos Take Ed Nickla, Cut Pair

TORONTO (CP) — Nobby Wirkowski, coach of Toronto Argonauts of the Eastern Football Conference, announced Thursday night that the team has placed two players on waivers and picked another one up on waivers.

Ed Nickla, an all-star tackle placed on waivers earlier in the week by Montreal Alouettes, was picked up by the Argos for the $350 waiver price.

Cut by the Argos, who are in last place in the conference with one win and two defeats in three games, were pitcement kicking specialist Jim Christopherson and defensive halfback Ed Hoerster.

Unitas Paces Colt Victory

WASHINGTON (AP) — Baltimore Colts whipped Washington Redskins 41-14 Thursday night under the leadership of quarterback Johnny Unitas, who passed for 251 yards and two touchdowns.

The exhibition game, with a sellout crowd of 43,018 packing D.C. Stadium, saw Unitas, National Football League leader in completions last season, connect on 16 of 25 passes, including a 71-yard touchdown shot to John Mackay.

Four-Time Winner of the Masters

TRY A 5-WOOD

If you have trouble executing 2-iron shots properly, especially if you tend to hit your shots low, try discarding the long iron in favor of a 5-wood.

To be sure, these are advantages that the 2-iron has over the 5-wood: It is easier for a good player to control a 2-iron. The long iron is best in wind because you can keep the ball low. However, the 2-iron does not require a swing that is in near-perfect rhythm and one that will generate free solid club-ball contact.

The 5-wood has slightly more loft than the 2-iron (1), This helps you get the shot into the air and offers a longer hit zone and less trouble if the ball is not struck exactly flush.

Play the 5-wood in case you would a 2-iron—half opposite your left heel (2)—but sweep the ball from the inside, right by the pinch it with a downward blow. Swing smoothly with no back-and-forth head movement.

When Canada's bid to stage the 1968 Winter Olympic Games was defeated at a closed meeting of the International Olympic Committee at Innsbruck, Austria, last January, some people put the rap—off the record—on Sidney Dawes. They felt this Montreal industrialist, Canada's IOC member since 1947, probably hadn't lobbied vigorously enough.

But, possibly, Canada wasn't destined to get the Games. It was only a 50-50 chance and Grenoble, France, won out by a two-vote margin over Banff-Lake Louise.

Some Canadians overlooked the fact that this country's chances received a serious setback a few months earlier when the unpredictable IOC awarded Mexico City the 1968 Summer Olympics over heavily favored France and the U.S. Up to this point, Canada's chances of getting the Games were about 85 to 15.

The odds against Banff tumbled for one reason: European countries would be faced with the problem of raising huge sums to stage Games on a long haul in one year to North America—Mexico in the summer, Banff a few months later. Two - thirds of the competing countries in Winter Olympics are European and it is likely they swung the vote to France.

The balloting is secret and no one on the outside can say for sure just what happened.

But immediately the vote was announced and the Calgary Olympic Development Association officials who sponsored the Banff-Lake Louise bid declared they would be in the running for the 1972 Games, Dawes commented: "Why flog a dead horse?"

This didn't win Canada's IOC member any friends, but then he has never gone out to win a popularity contest.

CONSIDER SITE

Things were quiet until a month or so ago when it was learned that the COA would meet Sept. 12 to endorse Canada's site for the 1972 event. At a meeting in Toronto the COA directors passed a motion directing sponsors of the proposed Garibaldi, B.C. site to "show why should not" carry Canada's bid.

The B.C. folks charged that the COA was discriminating against them and just last week Dawes said the choice of Canada's site should "be kept out of the realm of politics."

Dawes wants the decision deferred until possibly 1967. The Banff - Lake Louise sponsors prefer an immediate decision.

President Jim Worrall of the COA points out that the COA has the final say and that if its board of directors decides a decision should be deferred, "then that also is its responsibility."

But Dawes has been a powerful influence in Olympic matters for years and he'll certainly go for a deferment. Don't bet he'll lose his point.

The Trots

TORONTO (CP) — Fanny Symbol survived a claim of foul to win Junior Invitation Trot to register her fifth consecutive victory Thursday night at Greenwood Raceway.

The 9-to-2 choice in the $2,000 event, Fanny Symbol, hit the wire ahead of Kinloo Colby from the White Stable of St. Marys and Frisco Van R., driven by co-owner Clarence Lockhart of Collingwood.

It was Lockhart who entered the claim of interference but following a study of the films, the judges disallowed the claim.

Owned by Mrs. Orlie Witts of Toronto, Fanny Symbol increased her earnings by $1,000 to $6,340.

A dead heat for first place in the second race was dissolved by the judges who ruled Theis Sara, owned by Alfred Shrubb of Tillsonburg, Ont., broke stride when hitting the wire alongside Sheila F., owned by J. R. Ferguson of Chatham.

A 2 - to - 1 pick, Sheila F., teamed with first race winner Big Way C., owned by Michael Dipaolo of Stoney Creek for a daily double of $14.20.

Key Series Starts Today

Twins Clip Sox; Braves Clobber Giants

By MURRAY CHASS
Associated Press Sports Writer

The script has changed sharply for Hank Fischer, but Baltimore Orioles hope three Kansas City losers' Diego Segui aren't any alterations in it for them.

Fischer, who had failed in his last two innings in each of his previous four starts, pitched a three - hitter as Milwaukee Braves pummeled San Francisco Giants 13 - 0 Thursday night.

The American League - leading Orioles were idle, but they open a vital four-game series tonight with Chicago White Sox, whose 8-2 loss to Minnesota Twins Thursday put them a half game behind the Orioles.

The teams played a four-game series last weekend, with Baltimore winning three times and moving from a half game behind the White Sox to 1½ in front. The coming four games—two tonight and one each Saturday and Sunday—will be the last between the contenders. Baltimore holds an 8-6 edge.

Milwaukee Braves gave Fischer a quick edge against the Giants, and the 24 - year - old righthander used it to advantage.

GOT NO CHANCE

In three previous four starts, Fischer didn't get the Braves a chance to build a lead for him.

He was battered for 19 runs in four innings in the appearance, running from Aug. 2 through Aug. 11. Chicago White Sox rocked him for four runs in 1 2-3 innings, Cincinnati Reds scored four in one-third of an inning, Los Angeles Dodgers erupted for five in one-third and San Francisco took 1 2-3 to score five times.

Actually, only 15 of the 19 runs were earned, so Fischer kept his earned run average for that time to 3.33.

But his latest performance, he reduced his ERA to 3.32 and brought his record to 10-8, five of the victories coming on shutouts. The three hits off him were singles and only one Giant reached second base.

The game was the only one in the National League. In other American League games, Detroit Tigers nipped Boston Red Sox 5-4 and Los Angeles Angels bombed Kansas City Athletics 7-1.

Fischer received strong support from Rico Carty and Woody Woodward, who each drove in four runs. Carty ignited a six-run first inning with a homer and later tripled in three runs. Woodward climaxed the first-inning outburst with a three-run double and knocked in another run with a single.

DROVE IN PAIR

Jimmy Hall scored the tie-breaking run for the Twins' ninth on a double steal and a throwing error by Chicago catcher J. C. Martin.

Minnesota added two more runs in the inning as Bernie Allen hit a single and Ed Fisher's wild pitch. The game had been tied 2-2 since the fifth when the White Sox rallied for two runs on Pete Ward's homer and Mike Hershberger's run-scoring single.

Detroit, trailing 4-2, rallied for three runs in the eighth inning against the Red Sox when Dick Lumpe tripled in one and Don Wert knocked in the other one two with a double off relief ace Dick Radatz. Fred Gladding pitched a scoreless inning in the eighth inning, retiring Dick Stuart on a grounder with the bases loaded.

Joe Adcock's 300th career homer was one of three for the Angels. The two-run blast off Kansas City loser Diego Segui highlighted a four-run second inning. Willie Smith and Lenny Green also connected for Los Angeles. Adcock added two singles.

Constellation Again Clips Eagle's Wings

NEWPORT, R.I. (AP) — Constellation clipped American Eagle's wings again Thursday, beating her by two minutes and 58 seconds over a 15.5 mile course on Rhode Island Sound.

By beating American Eagle for the fourth straight time, Constellation bolstered her chances of being chosen to defend the America's Cup against a British challenger next month.

Lack of wind delayed the start of the race more than two hours and the New York Yacht Club gave the two 12-metre yachts a course that was nine miles shorter than usual. Even so, Constellation beat the 6 p.m., deadline by less than 20 minutes.

NHL Brass Meets To Read Rules

TORONTO (CP) — A meeting of National Hockey League managers, coaches and referees was held here Thursday in an effort to gain a uniform interpretation of the rules.

NHL president Clarence Campbell said the meeting was the first of its kind. He said the plan was to go through the 1966-67 rule book page by page and rule by rule.

The group will hold another meeting today, Campbell said.

The league president said the NHL intends to rewrite the rule book completely next year in conjunction with the Canadian Amateur Hockey Association.

Favorite Sport Is Fishing In Quiet Stream for Trout

By MICHAEL BLAIR

VANCOUVER (CP) — Ted Peck has been telling fish stories since he caught his first as a toddler. The habits earns him a living now.

Better known as Mr. Tides and Trails from the title of his weekly television show, Ted tells his tales via TV sets in living rooms from here to northwestern Ontario and in New foundland.

The adventurers recounted on film in the 30-minute show are more elaborate and exotic than the boyhood experience of hooking a good one from a stream at the foot of the Coast Range mountains here.

Although his stories now range from hunting in Australia to fishing in the Caribbean, Ted's favorite sport remains fly fishing in a quiet stream or lake.

But last year he took viewers to Hawaii, Jamaica and England and this fall will take them on a water buffalo hunt and shark fishing in Australia. Central and South America, possibly also a Siberian bear hunt, are in the future.

Ted, who divides his time between editing film at Vancouver's CHAN-TV studio, where his program originates, and his outdoors, was born in Minneapolis in 1929 but moved with his family the same year to West Vancouver.

BEST AT HOME

"I lived at the base of the Coast Range mountains where I learned a lot about wildlife and was only minutes away from some of the best fishing in the world," says Ted, who has four youngsters he is schooling in outdoor ways.

"My ambition was to become a fisheries biologist, but after three years at the University of B.C. I failed a German course —and ambition went by the board."

During the summers he was learning about the outdoors, working as a fishing guide on Vancouver Island, as a commercial cod fisherman, and tagging salmon during the great Bulkley and Skeena river runs in Northern B.C.

As an army cadet during the Second World War, and later as a lieutenant in the B.C. Regiment (Militia), he learned a lot about. In turn, he taught 2,000 army personnel the art.

Ted was a salesman for 10 years before breaking into radio in 1957 on a local station with a short outdoors feature. Then it came a longer program and in 1960 he took Tides and Trails to television.

SHARKS EXCITING

With photographer Bill Dennett, whom he settled on after trying five others in the first six months of his TV career, he went to Australia this spring and hunted water buffalo and kangaroos and went shark fishing off the coast.

"The shark fishing was the most exciting."

"I latched onto a white pointer shark and after the shark put up a vicious fight for 7½ hours—I collapsed.

"Someone else took over, but we just couldn't break the shark's spirit and had to cut him loose after a 12-hour 40-minute fight."

He estimated the white pointer which he lost, the most vicious animal in the seas, weighed more than 2,500 pounds.

"I shot one water buffalo in Australia which weighed 1,400 pounds and had a horn span over six feet, just a few inches off the world record of six feet, six inches."

NO SPORT

Kangaroo shooting is one thing he doesn't class as sport.

"They're just about as numerous as rabbits around Darwin in Northern Australia, and it's just a matter of deciding which one to shoot."

In New Zealand he was able to get in some of his favorite sport—fly fishing—in the rivers around Lake Taupo on the North Island.

"It's the greatest trout fishing in the world," said the man who has caught 33-pound fight-

Bobo Olson Fights Time, Thornton

SAN FRANCISCO (AP) — Bobo Olson battles time and Wayne Thornton tonight, aiming to keep alive his hopes for a shot at the world light heavyweight title.

Bobo, 36, could win a chance to meet champion Willie Pastrano if he can get by the 25-year-old Thornton again. When they met in March, Olson came away with a decision. Since then, though, he lost to Johnny Persol while Thornton was trouncing Eddie Cotton in a major upset.

Olson has a record of 88 victories, 14 losses and two draws. He has stopped 40 opponents. Thornton has a 31-8-1 record, including 19 knockouts.

Ken Thorpe Will Defend Lefty Title

ST. CATHARINES (CP) — Defending champion Ken Thorpe of Toronto heads a field of 164 in the annual Ontario amateur southpaw golf championship which gets under way here today.

The 18-hole medal-play tournament will boast three gross and three net prizes in both the 0-9 and 21-36 handicap, and six gross and six net prizes in the 10-20 handicap.

Open to left-handed golfers in Ontario and Quebec, the one-day matches will be held at the new St. Catharines Golf Club-ing lake trout on eight-pound test line.

In England he went on a fox hunt. "It's good exercise for the horse, rider and hounds, but it's something out of another era."

"I even rounded out my fishing experience in England by trying to catch three-inch gudgeon in the Thames."

But, even with the wide experience of international fishing and hunting, Ted feels Canada still offers the hunter and fisherman the most diversified sport in the world.

FOOTBALL PLAYER DIES

SALEM, Ore. (AP) — A 15-year-old high school football player died in a hospital Thursday after suffering head injuries in a practice session Wednesday. The youth, Gary Devon Nelson, collapsed after colliding with another player during the practice. He was wearing full protective equipment at the time.

BREAKS OWN RECORD

KIEV (Reuters) — Elvira Ozolina broke her own world record for the women's javelin throw with a throw of 201 feet 4¼ inches at the Soviet Union's national track and field championships. Miss Ozolina, 24, the 1960 Olympic champion, set her previous world record of 196 feet 1½ inches in Moscow last year.

RIDERS RELEASE BROWN

OTTAWA (CP) — Ottawa Rough Riders announced Thursday the release of halfback Mike Brown. Brown came to Riders of the Eastern Football Conference about two weeks ago after being cut by Chicago Bears of the U.S. National League. The 185-pound back played college ball at Delaware University.

CANADIANS BEATEN

MONTREAL (CP) — The United States kept the upper hand in junior Davis Cup tennis play in suburban Duvernay Thursday night with defeats over Canadian entrants. Tom Karp of Los Angeles beat Don McCormick of Vancouver 6-3, 10-8. Armistead Neely of Tampa, Fla., beat Pierre Lamarche of Montreal 6-2, 6-4.

LIONS CUT VICIC

VANCOUVER (CP) — Don Vicic, an eight-year veteran of the Western Football Conference, Thursday was released by British Columbia Lions. The 29-year-old graduate of Ohio State became expendable as one of Lions' two-way players when he was replaced at centre by Canadian rookie Bob Swift and at inside linebacker by Jesse Williams.

WINS GRAND PRIX

TORONTO (CP) — Blue Chip, a seven-year-old bay gelding owned by Mrs. Claire McGowan of Toronto and ridden by Jim Elder, a member of Canada's Olympic equestrian team, won the Toronto Grand Prix at the Canadian National Exhibition horse show Thursday night. The Toronto Grand Prix was a jumping event under the International Equestrian Federation rules and over an international course. Each horse was required to complete the course twice.

Successful Living

Various Things Could Be Causing Insomnia Problem

DEAR DORIS — I have the problem of always feeling tired. I work hard all day so that I will sleep at night and wake up refreshed, but I don't. I toss and turn all night.

What causes insomnia? I have considered taking sleeping pills but my mother says they are habit forming. — SLEEPLESSNESS.

DORIS CLARK

DEAR SLEEPLESSNESS — Your problem may be physical. Or mental. Or emotional. You may be too tired to sleep, or not tired enough. You may be working for someone who keeps you tense, even in off hours. Or boredom may be creating its own tensions.

Have you found the spare time for fun that delights you? I'll wager not. Our nervous systems are such that when we let up on work we have to let down, before we can rest.

For some the answer is tennis or bowling or curling. For others playing an instrument, or sewing. There are hundreds of choices. In your case a physical check-up is indicated then deliberately seek out the recreation which can fill the bill for you.

• • •

DEAR DORIS — I went steady with a boy for two months. Well all of a sudden I find out that we aren't going steady any more. I really never found out why we broke up. For some reason he thinks that we should be enemies.

Whenever I see him he just looks at me as if he didn't know me. Why is he acting this way? Should I act the same way? — E. S.

• • •

DEAR E. S. — He looks through you because he doesn't know how to act. A steady has first claim on the news that she no longer is one, but he hasn't found this out. Don't go out of your way to return the icy stares; it's childish.

• • •

DEAR DORIS — I am separated with two children, unable to obtain a divorce. I have been steadily seeing a foreign man for over four years. He lives and works in another city and lives with me on weekends.

He is good to us and helps us some financially. He says he loves us all but refuses to make a home for us with him in the other city. Doris, am I being a fool to continue seeing him? — UNDECIDED.

• • •

DEAR UNDECIDED — Has he told you why? Could it be he has another wife and family — or that he is ashamed of his unchurched union with you? Without knowing more, I'd say you are being very foolish. You have no status in the present situation and neither have your children.

• • •

CONFIDENTIAL TO HEAVY HEART — It's old hat to think people have to be crazy to need the help of psychiatrist — or social workers. The thing is, we are learning more about keeping sane. Your man is putting up straw men; proving only that he doesn't want solution. It takes a certain humility to put one's cards on the table.

• • •

DEAR DORIS: Just a few words to say I enjoy your column very much. I don't know if all the men enjoy it, but I do.

With regard to the one who wrote in asking if playing bridge, smoking, lipstick, drinking etc, is a sin, many churches today have rules and regulations and do's and don'ts. I feel the best rule to follow is ask yourself this question each time you are in doubt: What would Jesus do?—Child of the King.

• • •

DEAR CHILD: It's a well-tried formula. Requires, of course, a better than passing acquaintance with the Master, doesn't it?

• • •

(Putting it on paper helps. Then send it to Doris, along with a stamped envelope for a private reply.)

In USSR's Central Asia

A Steppe Called Hungry Awaits Fertility

By JOHN BEST

YANGI YER, Uzbekistan (CP)—The steppe called Hungry will soon be looking for a new name. A big irrigation project is fast rendering its present one obsolete.

This young town 100 miles southwest of Tashkent, capital of the Soviet central Asian republic Uzbekistan, is the nerve centre of the project.

It is aimed at bringing to life 2,500,000 acres of semi desert wasteland long known as the Hungry Steppe and converting it into productive farmland.

The name Yangi Yer in Uzbek means "new land." Ten years ago it didn't exist. Today it has a population of 12,000.

The first settlers in Yangi Yer in 1956, when the present accelerated phase of the land-reclamation program began, lived in tents. Now the inhabitants live in neat, semi - detached homes.

Fed by the Syr Darya, one of the great river systems of central Asia, which flows north and east of here, the operation is designed to bring 750,000 acres under cultivation by 1970. Subsequent phases will bring a further 1,000,000 acres into production.

MILES OF CANALS

The remainder of the ambitious design is being carried out in adjacent areas of Kazakhstan and Tadjikistan.

Uzbekistan, 80 per cent of whose 175,000-square-mile area is desert, semi-desert or arid mountain region, is not without experience in irrigation schemes.

The Fergana Valley, 700 miles east of here, is watered by irrigation canals — three main ones total 321 miles in length — using water from the same river system. A total of 750,000 acres have been brought under cultivation in the lush valley, which supports a population of 1,300,000 and produces cotton, silk, vegetables and vast quantities of fruit.

Here in the sun-scorched Hungry Steppe, where rainfall is less than 12 inches a year, water - bearing canals and irrigation ditches a total length of 450 miles have been constructed.

Boss of the project is Alexander Ishsam Nizhamov, a robust, energetic engineer. He directs operations from an office here that has direct radio contact with each of the 10 state farms, nine sovkhozes or and one producing fruit and vegetables, which have already been established on irrigated land.

TO GROW WHEAT

Nizhamov says that by 1970, 32 state farms of 25,000 acres each will have been built. Besides cotton, fruit and vegetables, the crops will include wheat.

This year, output of raw cotton in the steppe is expected to reach 80,000 tons compared with 54,000 last year. By the end of the decade, Nizhamov says, the region will be producing 20 per cent of the Uzbek cotton harvest. Uzbekistan already accounts for two-thirds of the cotton produced in the Soviet Union.

Twenty-five thousand persons are employed in the steppe, a quarter of them women. All told, the region now supports a population of 70,000 of whom 60 per cent are Uzbeks and the remainder—from other Soviet republics. There are 14 schools, plus a school for tractor drivers.

"One of our great problems," says Nizhamov, "is salty underground water which in some places goes down to a depth of 80 metres. These waters have to be evacuated before fresh water is brought in."

WAGES HIGHER

Wages, says Nizhamov, are 15 per cent higher than in Uzbekistan generally. For workers on the land they range from 100 to 110 rubles a month ($120 to $132) and for construction workers 100 to 130 a month.

The director likes to emphasize that most of the work being done is mechanized, both in harvesting and construction. He rhymes off machinery statistics: 300 excavators at work, 400 bulldozers, 400 scrapers, 750 cotton-pickers, 2,000 tractors.

The present Hungry Steppe project may prove a mere prologue to a far more ambitious scheme. This is to divert the great Siberian rivers southward and westward to central Asia, bringing further new life to the drylands.

The technical and engineering problems involved are being studied at an irrigation institute in Tashkent. However, it will be years before the plan is carried out.

Tomorrow: Tamerlane's capital grudgingly goes modern.

CAUSE AND EFFECT—About 80 per cent of Uzbekistan's 175,000 square-mile area is desert, semi-desert or arid mountain region. In top picture, a canal carries water to irrigate wasteland on the Hungry Steppe, Uzbekistan. Canals and troughs totalling 450 miles tap the Syr Darya, a river in central Asia, in a program of irrigation and cultivation designed to bring to use 750,000 acres by 1970. Bottom picture shows a portion of the Steppe area restored under the irrigation scheme. (CP Photo)

Lawyer Musters Teen-agers In Tough Clubs to Help Old

By CAROL KENNEDY

LONDON (CP)—Two of Britain's greatest problems — the loneliness of old age and the violent lawbook of youth that produces the "mod" and "rocker" gangs — are being tackled by a young London barrister who believes if you bring the two problems together they will cancel out.

For nearly five years Anthony Steen, 24, and a group of his friends have devoted their spare time to mustering teen-agers in London's tough youth clubs to help old folk in the neighborhood. The help is essentially practical — visiting lonely old-age pensioners for an hour a week, mending a radio or painting a room, doing odd jobs for those unable to get about easily.

Now, with a network of 2,000 young people in the London area marshalled and directed by eight "counsellors" in their 30s, the movement has gained government recognition and a £3,000 ($9,000) grant from the department of education. From Oct. 1 it will expand and intensify its operations as "Task Force '64"—a kind of domestic British peace corps.

LEND SUPPORT

One MP from each of the three political parties has agreed to serve on the executive council, presided over by Steen's brother and industrialists have lent their support. Lord Privy Seal Selwyn Lloyd, who is also leader of the House of Commons, has agreed to head an "advisory" council.

The idea of operation is the brainchild of the dynamic Steen, a single-minded young man in a hurry.

Steen is convinced that youth —all youth—wants to serve. It just needs to be shown how. He first became aware of the world's needs at the age of four, watching an out-of-work man playing for pennies in the gutter. At 16 he decided he must do something practical to ease the lives of the unfortunate.

"To me it's simply the natural thing to want to help one's neighbor. I believe it's natural with most people. We just have to stimulate the latent conscience of these dead-end kids. All that frustrated energy must be turned to some use.

"What we want to do is take the knives out of their hands and shove paint brushes there instead."

FIRST STEP HARD

Winning the confidence of the slum-born youngsters, the first link in the chain of service, was a hard task. They distrusted Steen's "counsellors," young upper middle - class men and girls, university - educated, well - dressed, speaking a different language from the argot of the east end streets.

Impressed by his own philosophy on his friends — when these kids really want is to be accepted into the world, though they pretend to despise it. Make them feel accepted.

Once he threw a party of leather - jacketed toughs to a concert at the Royal Festival Hall. They greeted the prospect of two hours of classical music with hoots and catcalls by buying tickets for another concert.

The counsellors' next step is to fire the teen-agers with enthusiasm for helping the old. Once they feel "accepted," they usually join in the communal projects with vigor, especially if challenged to finish a task in a certain time.

PAINTED APARTMENT

Recently a group volunteered to decorate an old lady's apartment in 48 hours. They each brought their own paint and when the job was done, one wall was green, one mauve, one orange and one pink. Fortunately the old lady was delighted.

"She said it was modern and what she'd always wanted."

The movement has many beneficial side - effects. Young people from Europe and all the Commonwealth countries are involved; the color bar is nonexistent and international understanding is promoted.

The weekly Spectator magazine, which has been carrying a stream of letters and comment on Steen's activities, remarked in a recent editorial: "He has shown what any sensible person knew already despite lurid headlines, that there is a great willingness to be of service among today's young people more than that, he has shown a way of using it."

Two Quiet Scenes Recorded In Democratic Convention

2nd Sidney

By CYNTHIA LOWRY

HOLLYWOOD (AP) — Amid all the sound and fury, the oratory and the cheers, two quiet scenes were recorded in close-up by the television cameras, provided emotion filled moments on the final anti-climactic day of the Democratic national convention.

First, around noon on NBC there was the moment at a reception for Mrs. John F. Kennedy after some of the late president's favorite prose and poetry had been read movingly by Mr. and Mrs. Fredric March. There was a suggestion of tears, it seemed to this viewer, as the former first lady, in a soft, almost inaudible voice, thanked "all of you who made his shining years possible."

Then, when the convention crowd unexpectedly almost blew off the roof in a 12-minute (Chet Huntley's estimate) demonstration, the cameras lingered on the sad face of its object. Attorney-General Robert Kennedy. He stood, as if alone, looking as one viewer said "like a young boy close to tears."

Although the television audience was estimated at 40,000,000 people the night President Johnson was nominated, on some of the less exciting earlier nights it was estimated that only about two out of every 10 sets were tuned in on the convention.

It could be that platform oratory resounds unconfortably in small rooms. Even great speakers, like Hubert Humphrey and John Pastore, seem shrill in the small screen, to be shouting at their television sets. Stevenson's style is the soft speech and the informal phrase.

All the other networks should be congratulated on the fine jobs each did, on being at the right place and on keeping their cool, time, explaining, speculating, intelligently clarifying — and just for keeping talking during the hours when really not much was going on.

Lo! How They Multiply In N. Z.'s Sunny Clime

By J. C. GRAHAM
Canadian Press Correspondent

Auckland (CP) — Just when New Zealand had won the upper hand in its fight to control rabbits, another pest introduced by man has appeared as an even greater menace.

This is the opossum—a different animal from the North American variety, though somewhat similar in size and appearance. Its favorites are bringing farmers in some areas close to despair.

New Zealand has suffered severely from animals, harmless enough in their native habitats, becoming a serious pest in the mild New Zealand climate. Deer herds have multiplied and threaten many forest areas.

Rabbits for many years swarmed in millions over pasturelands, eating grass needed by sheep and cattle, denuding the countryside and causing severe erosion. A comprehensive killer campaign throughout the country has greatly reduced their numbers and some run-down farming areas have recovered dramatically.

Now, however, opossums threaten to become an even greater menace. The animal, a species of phalanger, was introduced from Australia last century. It was claimed to be fur-bearing animal which would yield valuable fur for export and live in rough country of no use for anything else.

FAST BREEDERS

In practice, however, the animal has got completely out of control in some parts of New Zealand. The animals breed in millions in the forests causing serious damage to some species of trees, and invade farm lands, where they eat crops, raid gardens, destroy orchards and cause property havoc.

Pohutukawa trees, the beautiful New Zealand native tree which flowers in a blaze of scarlet blooms at Christmas time, are dying in hundreds in parts of northern New Zealand where opossums have defoliated them and left them gaunt skeletons.

Rabbit boards, formed in most farming districts to conduct the campaign against rabbits, now are turning their major efforts to a new attack on opossums, using poisoning, trapping and shooting.

Fulltime professional eradicators are being employed in increasing numbers to wage the attack. The cost is met partly by the government and partly by farmers.

Boyer Celebrates Birthday By Working in Two Films

By BOB THOMAS

HOLLYWOOD (AP) — Many men mark their 65th birthday by retiring from their life's work. Charles Boyer is celebrating his 65th by co-starring in a movie and television series simultaneously.

It seems incredible that Hollywood's version of Le Grand Charles could be 65, but he is the first to admit the fact. Today is his birthday.

"I have never tried to hide my age," said Boyer. "Oh, I know that actresses do it, and some actors, too. But it is silly. There are so many ways of finding out an actor's age.

"Besides, if you don't tell your age, people are apt to think you are older than you really are. I remember when I was a boy in France, I thought of Sarah Bernhardt as a very old woman.

'AMAZED AT VIGOR'

"When I went to Paris to the university, I went to see her in a play, and I was amazed that she seemed so vigorous—and this was after her leg had been amputated. I must have seen her in a half dozen plays when I was a student, and I believed she was ancient. When she died, I found out she was only 71!"

Boyer is one of the few actors whose birth date is plainly printed in his official biography. He has never made any fuss about his baldness: he plays roles with a voluptuous toupee, his hair having thinned at age 27.

Smooth-topped or wigged, he remains a handsome figure of a man, and his romantic flair is still present, and that is a factor he has had to live with all these years.

"It's really a misconception," he argued. "Mainly it has lasted because of all the night club imitators who use the one line (Come with me to the casbah!) After that line they don't know what to do.

FEW ROMANTIC ROLES

"I actually did very few romantic roles. Tyrone Adlai was one, and it remains one of my favorites. When I first came to Hollywood to appear in American films, they tried to make me play the role of the lover. After Caravan, in which I played a gypsy with a violin, I wanted to go back to France.

"But then Walter Wanger signed me to a contract and put me in films like Private Worlds and Algiers. In Algiers, from which that famous line was supposed to have come, I played a gangster who was with inside the casbah and was killed when he tried to get out."

Boyer has worked all his adult life. Right now he is appearing with Bobby Hudson and Leslie Caron in The Fabulous Two, the days off from the movie he makes for Paris Match, the new television series which he is partner David Niven (and Gig Young) are making for their Four Star Productions.

"I will always go on working," Boyer said, "although a few years ago I decided to do only the things I enjoy."

STIRLING

Horticultural Body Members Visit Ottawa

STIRLING — Early last Saturday morning 37 people left Stirling by chartered bus for Ottawa. The trip was sponsored by Mrs. Floyd Armstrong, president of Stirling Horticultural Society.

As they entered Ottawa the bus driver gave a descriptive account of various aspects of the Experimental Farm. This was followed by a view of the Rideau Canal filled with pleasure boats.

The tour of the city showed luxurious beds of white and red petunias and golden marigolds which stood like sentinels despite the rain. The group viewed the home of the Royal Mint, the new city hall, the official residence of Governor General Vanier with the guards in uniform on sentry duty. The tour continued through Rockcliffe Park with the many lovely ornamental trees, the R.C.M.P. barracks, and a view of the stables, and the airport with a large array of begonias in evidence here.

COLORFUL PARADE

Despite the intermittent rain the parade under the direction of chairman A. E. Campbell and his committee was given as scheduled. It was led through the main thoroughfare by a group of Royal Canadian Mounted Police and followed by the prize cars which were to be given to some lucky winner each night at the Fair. There were floats of all styles and colors with one representing the New York World Fair from Syracuse, N.Y. Large groups of majorettes from all nearby points gave demonstrations of their baton work and all wore colorful costumes. A variety of clowns and bands were in evidence.

The Shriners, Kiwanis Interbeckahs, Ottawa Hydro, also a national, Odd Fellows and Relarge number of radio stations all had a part in the parade. It took 45 minutes for the entourage to pass a given point. The closing floats depicted Santa Claus with his friends from the north pole.

VISIT EXHIBITION

The group spent the afternoon enjoying the Central Canada Exhibition with all the prize winning articles well displayed in the various buildings and the usual midway attractions.

The Ottawa Horticultural society featured a special booth where various questions could be placed in a box and the group will endeavor to find the answer and mail it at a later date. The flower and vegetable show was exceptionally good. One of special mention was a collection of vegetables, not more than five specimens with three of each, open to rural horticultural societies, Women's Institutes or garden clubs. In the floral section there were 13 different classes of house plants, 11 varieties in the open class of cut flowers and 14 classes of gladioli.

The prize winners in all classes were artistically arranged and placed together in groups of first, second and third so that it was easy for the visitors to view the results.

The grandstand performance featured the Red Skelton show and closed with a display of fireworks.

The group returned home well pleased with the trip, and expressed their thanks to the bus driver and to Mrs. Armstrong.

Rawdon

RAWDON — Mrs. Eva Farewell has returned to her home in New York State, U.S.A., after a holiday with her cousin Mrs. John Hay and son Lester.

Mr. and Mrs. Charles Peake and daughters of Dorland visited recently with Mr. and Mrs. Norman McConnell and family.

Mr. and Mrs. Beryl Carman of Eldorado, Mrs. Lottie Searles of Tweed and Mrs. Frank Sharp of Madoc visited Mr. and Mrs. Blake Sharp and Bert on Sunday.

Mrs. Thomas Sarles accompanied Mr. and Mrs. George Mason of Kenora to Kingston and while there were guests of Mr. and Mrs. Ben Mason.

Miss Shirley Potts spent a week at Ottawa with Mrs. Sam Craig.

Mr. and Mrs. Rosevear of Bowmanville visited their cousin Mrs. Donald Knight on the weekend.

Mr. and Mrs. George MacDonald and family spent the weekend with her father, Will Potts and other relatives, Miss Shirley Potts accompanied them home for a holiday.

Campbellford

CAMPBELLFORD — Due to the resignation of Dr. J. Trimble from the Northumberland District High School, D. M. Carswell was appointed to fill the vacancy by the Campbellford Public School Board.

Other business conducted at the meeting was the reading of a letter from the architect advising that the general contractor had completed all repairs except for concrete walks to various exits and entrances.

MOVIES RETURN

Bus routes were given annual review and any requests referred to the transportation committee.

Renovations have been made to the staff room and washroom and tiling has been done to older floors in the building.

The cadet training corps, which was a part of the activity in the high school a few years ago and which has not been carried on lately may be revived. Principal L. S. Caughill has been authorized to investigate the possibility.

The Department of Education is sponsoring a drama group which will tour secondary schools presenting live theatre. Principal Caughill has requested that Campbellford be included in the tour.

From this time the regular meetings will be held on the third Monday of each month.

HOUSING FOR B.C.'S UNTOUCHABLES—The Indians in Ahousaht village on Flores Island, midway up the west coast of Vancouver Island, live in a jumbo of negatives and frustration. The village gets earned a living from fishing, but the salmon have disappeared, cod have been over-fished, clams have died off, the sea otter is gone and the inhabitants are not allowed to shoot the seal. There is no ferry to take them off the island. A section of the village in the picture attests to their severe conditions. (CP Photo)

400 Ahousaht Indians Live In Ghost Town, 12 Have Jobs

AHOUSAHT, B.C. (CP)—On the far west coast of British Columbia, on an island isolated by grey fog and sea, live 400 Canadians, of whom 12 have jobs.

They live in rotting fire traps, as many as 16 to a room. They exist on hope and powerless and welfare in a no-man's land between provincial and federal government.

They are the people of Ahousaht village on remote Flores Island, midway up the west coast of Vancouver Island.

Terry Hammond, a Victoria Colonist reporter who visited the area, says:

"Ahousaht is a ghost town whose people haven't got the word. Its homes are covered with moss, ravaged by decay. Broken windows are boarded over or stuffed with rags. Ancient siding hangs in tatters.

"A government report recently claimed 49 of its 59 Indian houses were fit for human occupancy but it didn't say by whom standards—not by mine; not by yours."

The people of Ahousaht are traditionally fishermen in one of the cruellest areas of a cruel coast.

LACK FERRY

They are bewildered — the things they can do are more and more denied to them. There is no ferry to take them from their isolation so they may find other things to do.

Mark Atleo is a member of the Ahousaht band council.

"There is very much planning," he says.

"Always there are new plans for this or that. But after the planning, nothing."

Paul Sam, 70, hereditary spokesman for the band, was born in Ahousaht.

"The Indian and the white man are brothers now, but the Indian can no longer be Indian and can't be white. The white man has taken away the things of the Indian. The world is revolving ahead and the Indian has to go ahead too, but it is not easy.

"This was a fishing village, but the salmon are going because the white man has not cared for the spawning beds and the cod have been overfished by the trawlers.

"The clams have died from the waste of the herring reduction plants.

"The sea otter is gone and we can no longer shoot the seal."

ADVICE IGNORED

He looked toward the forests and said:

"Now we can't even cut down a tree to make a dugout. We must use a piece of driftwood and it spills.

"Many things we tried to tell the white man in the beginning, but he would not listen.

"We told the white man the secret of the salmon and after a little while they tied up a salmon with a seal and the seal did not eat it. We asked them if they touched the salmon with their hands and they said 'yes.' We told them that is why the seal won't eat the salmon—but they won't listen."

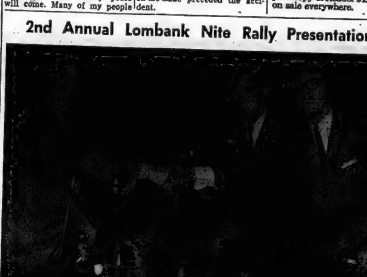
George Louie is in his 60s. He suffers with asthma. He lives in a house about 16 by 24 feet with his wife and 11 children—and a married daughter, her husband and their three children. He gets $125 a month in welfare plus family allowance for a total of about $200 a month.

FACE SHORTAGES

"It is very hard. We feed the children a lot of starches. It is not good for them. Maybe one day a week we have a little piece of meat. If we buy enough food, there is not enough for clothing. If we buy clothing, there is not enough food."

Hammond says the children of Ahousaht, like their parents, are solemn.

"Even at play a smile comes rarely. Some are ailing, but many are not and most of the younger ones have chronic ailments. A few have open sores on arms and legs."



Ahousaht is pressed against the sea by a wilderness. Lumber firms with timber rights have been asked to launch logging programs in the vicinity to provide work. Mark Atleo says, but:

"Nothing ever happened."

"Maybe by-and-by there be Ahousaht village," says Paul Sam. "But many years will come. Many of my people are not happy. They would like jobs.

WOULD STOP SALES

ST. CATHARINES (CP) — A coroner's jury Thursday recommended that the sale of liquor to members of the Canadian Army militia attending summer camp be stopped. The jury was investigating the death of Kenneth Ide, 22, of Toronto, a militia sergeant, who was killed July 7 when he lost control of his car and rammed a tree near here. Witnesses said a drinking party in a mess at the army camp at nearby Niagara-on-the-Lake preceded the accident.

Dave Duffy of LOMBANK Co. of Canada congratulates Mr. Jack MacDonald, right and Gord Smith, winners of the LOMBANK NITE "NAVEX" RALLY TROPHY. In second place J. Jenkins and J. Dodson. 3rd, Al Smith, and G. Keary. Celebrating the event a corn roast was held at the home of N. Storms, President of Quinte Auto Sport Club.

Monuments to Greatness

By CLARENCE W. CRANFORD

Almost every city has its impressive monuments to the great men and events of the past. Many of these monuments have become world - famous landmarks. Egypt has its sphinx, Paris its Arc de Triomphe, New York its Statue of Liberty, the U.S.'s capital has its towering obelisk in memory of Washington, and its impressive monuments to Lincoln and Jefferson. These monuments stand as enduring reminders of history.

One of the earliest, and most primitive, monuments of ancient times was a pile of stones taken from the bed of the Jordan river, and piled as a reminder of the historic day Israel passed over the Jordan into the promised land. They were left as a memorial so children would ask, "What do these stones mean?" and they could be told "Israel passed over this Jordan on dry ground." (Joshua 4:21-22 RSV)

These stones were a memorial of many things. For one thing they are a monument of faith and courage. Believing in freedom for his people, Moses had dared carry his people to the very throne of Egypt. Only the raw courage of this great leader could finally best down resistance of Pharaoh, and inspire the people to leave their only home they had ever known to start out on a dangerous trek through mountain wilderness to freedom. When the people's hearts failed them for fear, it was he who prayed them into the go forward to the Red Sea. His upraised arms inspired them to fight on against their enemies. When they wanted to settle down short of their goal, he called them to press on toward the north.

Joshua, and on, he led them, till at last from Mt. Pisgah they could see the land he believed they were to possess. But Moses had grown old in the struggle. His great heart was stilled forever in the land of Moab before he could claim the prize he had envisioned from afar. Now he deserved his reward. There has not arisen a prophet since in Israel like Moses."

INHERITANCE OF COURAGE

Who now could match Moses' faith and courage? But the generation is left without its men of faith and courage. Now it was Joshua to whom the word of the Lord came, saying, "Only be strong and very courageous, being careful to do according to all the law which Moses commanded you." Every man he was able to inspire the people to follow, they crossed over into the land of Canaan. Here he was also marked the place where the Israelites crossed the river to enter the promised land stood in Saraioga and Aqueduct.

minute testimony to the indomitable faith and courage that led them through heat and sand, hunger and thirst, misery and uncertainty to a land of freedom and opportunity.

The Uniform Sunday School lesson for August 30: "Possessing The Promised Land," Deuteronomy 34; Joshua 1 through 6; 21:43 through 24:33.

But these stones were not only a testimony to their faith and courage, they were a reminder of the watchcare of God. Both Moses and Joshua believed it was God who was leading them onward. But it was no sentimental view of God they cherished. They were mechanics of their worship were designed to remind the people of the greatness and majesty of God. The priests carried the ark of the law before the people to remind them of His leadership, but the people were forbidden to draw closer to the ark than two thousand cubits. "You did not get chummy with God, draw approachy. Him with reverence and fear. One kept at a respectful distance. One thought of Him as "The Mighty One, God, the Lord!" (Joshua 22:22)

SENTIMENTAL VIEW OF GOD

We have lost our awe and fear of the Lord. We treat Him as if He were a doting parent. We think of Him, as one theologian has put it, "as if He were one of us" . . . "God is not mocked." Whatever men sow that shall they also reap. (Galatians 6:7) His laws cannot be ignored or broken with impunity.

America is now the land of promise. Its monuments are to remind us of faith and courage. It has become the promised land for millions of people who have dared to leave the roots of the past, and strike out for freedom. Like them, we must be people of faith. Christians must have faith and courage to proclaim the true God, and in His name to work for freedom for all mankind.

For streams of prejudice and fear still keep many from crossing over into the promised land of equal opportunity. Like the priests of Israel, we must stand courageously in the depths and worth of every person, so as to hold back the tides of prejudice and fear, and not just presume to cross over into the promised land of a new day.

FOR U.S. TRACKS

Australian-made pari-mutuel equipment, valued at $4,000,000, is to be used at the Arlington race tracks of Belmont Park

SPEAKING OUT MUTELY—Paul Sam, 70, spokesman for a group of Ahousaht Indians on Flores Island of the west coast of Vancouver, has been speaking out about his people's social and economic conditions on the island. Four hundred people live in the Ahousaht village—twelve have jobs. Sam feels the white man has taken away the things of the Indian. "Many things we tried to tell the white man in the beginning, but he would not listen." (CP Photo)

Surprise Move In South Viet Nam

Western-Minded Civilian Named Acting Premier

Troops Smash Rioters' Barricades in Saigon

By MALCOLM W. BROWNE

SAIGON (AP)—In a surprise move after two days of bloody rioting, a Harvard - educated economist, Dr. Nguyen Xuan Oanh, took temporary command of troubled South Viet Nam today as the nation's acting premier.

Oanh, 45, told a crowded press conference he had a mandate to rule for two months as head of a caretaker regime. Speaking in fluent, colloquial English, Oanh said Maj.-Gen. Nguyen Khanh is still South Viet Nam's premier but now is "sick" and recovering at the mountain resort of Dalat.

The surprise announcement came only a few hours after government troops cracked down on armed rioters who had brought Saigon close to civil war between Buddhists and Roman Catholics.

Oanh had served since Jan. 30 as Premier Khanh's deputy premier for finance, but he was never seriously regarded as a contender for the top job.

There was strong signs of increasing U.S. involvement in the Vietnamese government.

TWO STILL RULES

Oanh, who has been jokingly called Jack Owen by Americans because of his closeness to the United States, said the nation still is ruled by the triumvirate of Maj.-Gen. Khanh, Lt.-Gen. Tran Thien Khiem and Maj.-Gen. Duong Ven Minh. He said he had been named acting premier by the triumvirate, and that he would retain the government Khanh created after he seized power from Minh last January.

During the two months, Oanh said, details will be worked out for a national election and a constituent assembly. This assembly will then create a body of lawmakers, he said, but details of this and any future government have not been decided.

Included in the provisional government will be the same members of the Dai Viet party whom Thuoc said they were now planning a coup against him.

Oanh earned a doctorate at Harvard University 10 years ago. He was an economics in-

Saigon City Of Butchery

By PETER ARNETT

SAIGON (AP) — Howling mobs of Buddhists and Roman Catholics — inflamed by religious and political passions — have turned this once languid South Vietnamese city into an arena of butchery.

The threat posed by the encircling Communist Viet Cong was pushed into the background again Friday as Buddhist and Catholics mobs roamed the streets, searching for victims. The demonstrators were armed with clubs, hatchets and machetes.

"This violence is terrible," said a young Roman Catholic priest, "and is against everything we preach. But when our survival is at stake we have no choice."

He was speaking to reporters inside a Roman Catholic compound in downtown Saigon. The compound, housing the Nguyen Da Tong secondary school and a church newspaper, had been under attack by the Buddhists all afternoon.

At one point during the attack, the Catholic defenders captured a Buddhist and battered him into a pulp. The Buddhists were later allowed to take his body away. As they did, they scooped up his blood in a bucket and smeared themselves with it.

GET THEIR REVENGE

Later, the Buddhists got their revenge. They paraded a Catholic prisoner through the central market and then deliberately attacked him with clubs and machetes. Western cameramen who watched the grisly scene said they were certain the Catholic was killed.

As the Roman Catholic priest spoke to the reporters in the compound, injured Catholic demonstrators were being treated in a nearby room for wounds received in earlier rioting. One of the youths still had a hatchet buried in his head.

Predicts Unemployment Increase As Rate of Growth Slows Down

KINGSTON (CP) — Economist Dr. O. J. Firestone of Ottawa today predicted a 1965 Canadian growth rate of about four per cent, after allowing for price increases.

He said that while this may be regarded as a remarkable increase in that the economy would be in a fifth year of expansion, it would not be enough to prevent rising unemployment.

Dr. Firestone, a former senior economist in the trade department, said a real economic growth of about 5 1-5 per cent would be needed next year to hold unemployment to four per cent of the labor force.

Reducing the jobless rate to three per cent, averaged over the year, would require a growth rate of about 6½ per cent.

He addressed the joint meeting of the Toronto and Montreal economic councils at Queen's University here.

Dr. Firestone left the trade department four years ago. He now is vice - dean of social sciences at the University of Ottawa. He was a member of the royal commission on health services.

In a lengthy appraisal of the economy, he said this year's increase in gross national product—the value of all goods and services produced — would be about eight per cent. Of this, prices would account for about two per cent.

His forecast for 1965 would place the GNP at a level of $49,200,000,000, an increase of $2,800,000,0 or six per cent over the $46,400,000,000 he expects this year. After price increases, the real increase would be four per cent.

Talk Out Bill In House

By DAVE McINTOSH

OTTAWA (CP) — One of the hardest things for an MP to take is to have the Commons shelve his bill by talking it out.

It was a doubly bitter pill for Chesley W. Carter (L—Burin-Burgeo) Friday because the debate which talked out his bill was a fellow Liberal who is not only from an Atlantic riding like himself but also occupies the bench next to Mr. Carter's in the Commons — Jean-Eudes Dube of Restigouche Madawaska.

Mr. Carter, parliamentary secretary to Veterans Minister Teillet, looked as if he suspected what was coming. A few weeks ago, he himself talked out a Liberal - sponsored resolution calling for a special health survey of Hong Kong veterans who were prisoners-of war of Japan for four years.

Mr. Carter's bill sought a limit on the powers of confiscation under the Fisheries Act. It was discussed at the end of a long day spent on debate of the $24,194,000 appropriation for the new industry department. The flag debate resumes Monday.

COMPARED WITH HUMANS

Mr. Carter said that under canadian laws fish enjoy better protection than human beings. He said minor breaches of the Fisheries Act are treated differently than minor breaches of other acts.

"The offence under the Fisheries Act, designed to preserve fish, a person could be jailed and fined, as under other acts, but also have his property confiscated.

When the boat and nets of a fisherman were confiscated, his means of earning a livelihood were cut off. This violated the modern concept of justice and there was a wide discrepancy in how the Fisheries Act bore on rich and poor.

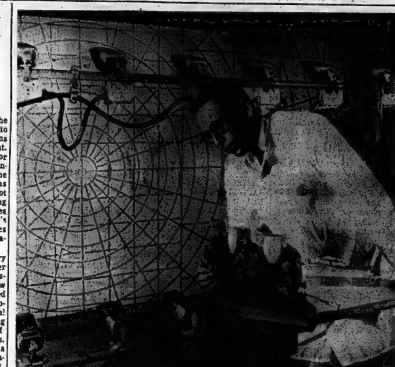
Marcel Lambert (PC — Edmonton West)—supported the bill. He said a magistrate might as well hand out a sentence of death as confiscate a fisherman's gear.

Tom Barnett (NDP — Comox-Alberni) said the Fisheries Act is very harsh. If there were the same concern for the protection of fish, there would be revision of a lot of Canadian laws.

Mr. Dube said the Fisheries Act had been revised in 1961 but there were cases of confiscators which will go aboard the reconstructed coast guard icebreaker Ernest Lapointe, representing the old passenger ferry S.S. Queen Victoria.

As the story is told by some history books, the real birthplace of Confederation was in Quebec City's Saint Louis Hotel which still stands and is the take-off point for today's ceremonies. The hotel was the residence of Macdonald, Cartier and George Brown, publisher of the Toronto Globe, during 1864 when the capital of the united provinces of Canada East and West was located in Quebec City.

Brown, a radical Reformer, had joined Conservative Macdonald earlier in 1864 to seek union of the British North American colonies.



Not only were the terms of their coalition settled in the cramped rooms of the Saint Louis, but many of the hard decisions were taken there and the terms of Confederation to be offered by the Canadian delegation to the Charlottetown conference.

Delegates from Nova Scotia, New Brunswick and Prince Edward Island at the Charlottetown meeting agreed in principle, after listening to the proposals of Macdonald, Cartier and Brown, to work toward Confederation. In Halifax they decided to hold a formal working conference at Quebec City in October.

The October, 1864, conference is to be commemorated this year with ceremonies that include a visit by the Queen and Prince Philip.

On departure today, Mayor Wilfrid Hamel of Quebec City was to deliver a send - off speech with replies from the actor - representatives of MacDonald and Cartier. Centennial officials said that in their public speeches the actors will use scripts drawn from original pre-Confederation documents.

After cruising down the St. Lawrence and around the coast of Quebec's Gaspe Peninsula, the Lapointe, officially renamed the S.S. Queen Victoria for the occasion, is to arrive Sept. 1 in Charlottetown harbor exactly 100 years after the original voyage.

Eight Professional Actors To Play Century-Old Roles

QUEBEC (CP) — Eight professional actors, playing century-old roles for the benefit of modern news, radio and television facilities, will re-enact today the departure for Charlottetown of the Canadian Fathers of Confederation in search of Maritimes support for Confederation.

Robert Christie of Toronto, playing John A. Macdonald, and Bertrand Gagnon of Montreal, representing Georges-Etienne Cartier, the joint prime ministers of Upper and Lower Canada, head a cast of characters which will go aboard the reconstructed coast guard icebreaker Ernest Lapointe, representing the old passenger ferry S.S. Queen Victoria.

As the story is told by some history books, the real birthplace of Confederation was in Quebec City's Saint Louis Hotel which still stands and is the take-off point for today's ceremonies. Cypriot Leader In Egypt

BULLETIN

ANKARA, Turkey (Reuter) — The Turkish government today announced today Turkey has agreed to postpone replacing its contingent of troops in Cyprus for a "short period".

From AP-Reuters

NICOSIA (CP)—Four Sabrejet fighters — believed to be Turkish reconnaissance planes — raced over Cyprus today as President Makarios opened peace talks in Egypt with President Nasser.

Makarios is seeking military and diplomatic support for his side in the Cyprus crisis, now being aggravated by a dispute over Turkish troop replacements.

Makarios arrived in Alexandria, Egypt, Friday. He and Nasser conferred there today.

Nasser was accompanied to the meeting by Field Marshal Abdel Hakim Amer, chief of Nasser's armed forces Makarios was accompanied by Cyprus Foreign Minister Spyros Kyprianou.

New Viet Nam Chief American in Outlook

SAIGON (AP)—With the temporary assumption of power today by Dr. Nguyen Xuan Oanh, a leader almost as American as Vietnamese, South Viet Nam may have two months to lick its bloody political wounds.

The lions of the government and various political factions, including Maj. Gen. Nguyen Khanh himself, have temporarily stepped out of the arena to give the nation a breather.

Oanh is not identified with any of the pressure groups jockeying for power. He probably is the most able administrator in South Viet Nam. There is a good chance that during his caretaker regime he will be able to carry out major reforms of South Viet Nam's inefficient and corrupt civil service.

With luck, he might even be able to bring together the warring political parties and religious groups enough to establish the framework of a new and stable government.

While Oanh has no apparent personal enemies, he will be the target of heavy attacks in the weeks to come.

The Communists, who have charged for years that the Saigon government is the lackey of the United States, will certainly redouble their use of this theme in attacks on the Oanh government. Oanh lived outside Viet Nam continuously for 16 years before returning here last fall. He spent most of that time in the United States.

United States officials regard Oanh as much as one of their own that some, including Defence Secretary Robert S. McNamara, have jokingly Anglicized Oanh's name as "Jack Owen."

There are many Vietnamese who actually believe Oanh carries an American passport.

Streets Filled With Negroes As Dawn Breaks

Looting Is Widespread, Property Damage Huge

By GEORGE ESPER

PHILADELPHIA (AP)—Rioters roamed through the Negro section of Philadelphia's north side Friday night and into the pre-dawn hours today, smashing windows, looting stores and attacking policemen.

Looting was widespread and damage tremendous.

The disturbances covered a four-mile-square area, where perhaps two-thirds of the city's 600,000 Negroes live.

At least 50 persons including 20 policemen were injured. More than 30 persons were arrested.

As dawn broke, it lit up a bizarre scene. Negroes were standing in the streets as far as the eye could see. There were many women and children. Every store in view, during a tour of the area, had smashed front windows.

Broken glass was everywhere. Every now and then a person, usually a teen - ager, could be seen running from a store, carrying merchandise.

A police car had been turned upside down. A few blocks farther a taxicab was overturned. It's fire - blackened interior smouldering.

The disturbances began, as has been the pattern in so many similar riots elsewhere this summer, with a comparatively minor incident. An automobile stalled at an intersection. Police were called to remove it.

PUNCH POLICEMAN

When they arrived, the driver refused to let them take the car away. The man's wife joined in, kicking both policemen on the detail.

They radioed for help.

Eventually 100 policemen — wearing steel helmets, carrying night sticks and revolvers, which they kept in holsters — were on the scene. Police Commissioner Howard Leary took personal control.

The main focal point was at Broad Street and Columbia Avenue, near the campus of Temple University and only a few blocks from downtown Philadelphia. Broad Street is one of the city's major arteries.

The disturbances broke out sporadically at perhaps as many as 20 different points during the night, starting shortly after the original incident, which involved Negro policemen and Negro participants.

Negro leaders hurried to the scene, many of them called out of bed by city officials.

Newly-Hired White Prosecutors Make Assault on Albertville

LEOPOLDVILLE (AP) — Congolese troops led by white mercenaries are expected to make another assault on the rebel-held city of Albertville in the eastern Congo.

Machine-gun fire drove off a government column after it had almost reached Albertville Airport on the outskirts of the city, according to reports from the area.

The battle Thursday was the first ground action involving newly hired white mercenaries. At the time, Premier Moise Tshombe's government was claiming government soldiers held the Albertville airfield.

Some 130 Europeans are still in Albertville. Recent messages received here spoke of a complete breakdown by law and order following the departure of rebel leader Gaston Soumialot. The messages said drunken teen-age warriors were looting and killing without restraint.

Estimates Cut By $600,000

OTTAWA (CP) — Conservative party charges of empire-building in the new industry department got fast, if temporary results in the Commons Friday.

Industry Minister Drury cut the $4,677,100 appropriation for administration of the department by $600,000. But he didn't promise any reductions in staff. He said the cut was being made because officers weren't being recruited as fast as expected.

Alfred D. Hales (PC — Wellington South) said Mr. Drury had revealed "one of the greatest empire-building programs in the history of this government."

Mr. Drury said the department will have 865 officers, of whom 290 had been recruited, and "supporting staff". At least 297 officers will get salaries of $8,000 to $25,000 a year.

In a debate on the $24,194,000 appropriation for the industry department — an increase of more than 60 per cent over confusion among the industry, trade and defence production departments.

No thought was given to the added costs which had to be borne by the taxpayer. The department, which could have remained a branch of the trade department, was spending $384,000 a year in rent for a building that included 119 private offices. To recruit staff the department had issued 20,000 booklets at a cost of $2,040.

George H. Doucett (PC-Lanark) said the size of the department is out of all proportion to the time it has been operating. The department was set up last year.

Gordon Aiken (PC — Parry Sound-Muskoka) said he has never been able to find out what the defence production department does. The time had come when the department no longer was fulfilling its original functions and should be absorbed by other departments.

Herb Gray (L — Essex West) said the industry department has helped-to bring new industries to Windsor Ont. Any amount spent by the government to stimulate industrial growth was well spent.

Lawyers for Four Accused Of Assault Ask Mistrial

TORONTO (CP) — Lawyers for four persons accused of assaulting a Chatham family of three at a shopping plaza asked for a mistrial Friday because of newspaper reports of the testimony of Crown witnesses.

T. Sommerville, representing Steve Montgenezy, 23, one of four Toronto men charged with assault causing bodily harm, said "all the newspapers have carried verbatim or what purported to be verbatim statements of witnesses' testimony. He said these reports were prejudicial to the accused, and said the proceedings should be declared a mistrial.

Hugh Locke, counsel for Gary Nicholson, 20, said one report that alleged his client had been part of an attacking "plaza gang." The reporter and editor should be cited for contempt of court, he said.

Peter Jones, representing Roy Trafford, 21, also called for a mistrial. Mr. Jones said Magistrate Hugh Fraser had ordered all witnesses excluded from the court until called upon to testify. Then he should read a full account in the press of what transpired while witnesses were excluded, he said lawyer said.

UNFAIR EVEN IF TRUE

Donald Wright, representing the fourth accused, James Flaherty, 21, said the newspapers were unfair whether their accounts were accurate or not. He accused the newspapers of printing the most inflammatory portions of testimony.

Magistrate Foster, after hearing the lawyers arguments, directed the press to report only more of the testimony until the Crown had completed presentation of its case.

The magistrate said he would not hesitate to call a mistrial if the nature of the evidence was such that the order to exclude witnesses had in effect been thwarted by newspaper reports. But he said he could not see that any harm had been done the accused. He said he did not regard the actions of the newspapers as contempt.

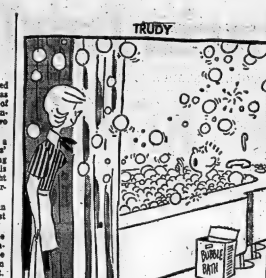
Meanwhile in another court, Magistrate James Butler sentenced three persons charged in "plaza gang" to 10 days in jail each, promising the same treatment for other hooligans.

"This is just a start," he said. "I'm serving notice from now on persons causing trouble around shopping plazas can expect jail sentences."

The youths were among a dozen rounded up by police specially assigned to patrol some 60 odd shopping centres in suburban Scarborough.

Charges Pending After Accident

Robert Hannah of 75 South George St. was released from hospital after examination last night, following an accident on Front St. south of Dundas. City police say his car was almost a total wreck after it collided with a parked tractor-semi trailer unit used by the Markel Metal firm. Charges are pending.



Armed Bandit Gets Popcorn And Paper

TORONTO (CP)—An armed bandit, who believed he was making off with a sack full of cash, carried off a bag containing only popcorn and two newspapers Friday night.

David Sweet, manager of a Toronto Independent Grocers' Alliance store, was getting ready to his car after closing his supermarket for the night when a bandit stepped forward with a revolver.

"Don't panic," the man said. "This is a holdup. Just give me the money."

Mr. Sweet opened over the bag of popcorn and newspapers and the bandit fled. The store's cash had been put in the safe before Mr. Sweet left.

"Now remember, Mom, don't tell any of the fellas about this!"

Woman Held For Questioning In Stabbing

MONTREAL (CP) — A man identified as Joseph Farkas, 27, was found stabbed to death in his Roy Street apartment today and a 23-year-old woman for questioning.

Patrolling constables noticed the woman walking along the street about 6 a.m. in a dazed condition. She directed them to the apartment where police found the man's body.

They contend that national guard troops, who arrived at a nearby training area Monday for a two-week stay, are being roused every morning with a peppy 15-minute rendition of Hello Dolly.

"I'm not against legitimate military operations, but this is the limit," snapped one vacationer.

"We were here first," replied Mal-Gen. John J. Seagrave, state adjutant general who referred to the length of time the training area had been in existence.

"If you move next to a church you've got to expect a choir," he said.

No Intention To Investigate Says Premier

EDMONTON (CP) — Premier Manning of Alberta said Friday the province has no intention of investigating its treasury branches, but will in three years before the government thinks of calling an election and no further cabinet changes are planned.

He made the statements in an interview when questioned about recent political rumblings in the province.

The council of the New Democratic Party, in a resolution last weekend, called for a treasury branch investigation. The reason was not specified. Premier Manning said he had not received a copy.

"I know of no reason whatever for an investigation into the operation of the treasury branches," Mr. Manning said.

"We have made no commitments and no change in the cabinet is contemplated at present. If changes are necessary, I will be the one to make them. I am not going to be stampeded into anything by anyone. You don't hold an investigation unless there is something to investigate."

NDP delegates had speculated that Premier Manning might call a snap election because of rumors and speculation surrounding the province's Social Credit party won 60 of the 63 seats in the legislature in the 1963 election.

Provincial Treasurer E. W. Hinman resigned July 28 at Mr. Manning's request and was replaced by Education Minister A. O. Aalborg. Randolph McKinnis became education minister.

Asked Friday if more cabinet changes are planned, Mr. Manning said: "Our reorganization is complete."

Night Watchman Stabbed To Death

TORONTO (CP) — Henry Rusin, 34, of Toronto, a night watchman, was stabbed to death early today in west end Toronto.

Police said Rusin had been stabbed in the back with a carving knife from the kitchen of the restaurant where he was working.

Rusin's body was found by another watchman at about 3:30 a.m. and police found an 18-year-old youth hiding on the premises when they were called.

He is being held for questioning.

Higher Prices, More Trading In Bond Market

By THE CANADIAN PRESS

The Canadian bond market showed a mixed picture of higher prices and heightened trading.

Both the short and long-term Canada markets advanced in a range of 10 to 37 cents.

In the long-term market, the 5¼-per-cent issue due in 1990 closed at $99.50 bid and $99.75 asked, ahead 25 cents.

Gains in the short-term Canada market were smaller. The 3¼-per-cent issue due Dec. 1, 1964 closed at $99.78, up one cent.

The amount of day money available rose by $42,000,000 to $182,000,000, with the day rate of ¼ at 3% per cent.

The treasury bill offering saw a reduction in yields. The 91-day bills were quoted at 3.80 per cent, and the 182-day bills at 3.85 per cent, both off .01 per cent.

The provincial bond market was generally higher. The Ontario 5¼-per-cent issue due in 1986 rose 37 cents to close at $98.12 bid and $98.37 asked.

Both the municipal and corporate bond markets were dull in light trading.

Two Cars Collide At Interchange

Charges are pending today in the investigation of an accident yesterday on North Front St., near the 401 interchange. City police resept that Eileen Grace Cleaver of Trenton was turning south off the Highway 401 interchange about 5.21 p.m. yesterday when her car collided with one driven by Ross Post, of R.R. 2, Halloway. Damage was estimated about $100 to each of the cars, there were no injuries reported.

Playground Activities

PARKDALE

During the last week Parkdale Playground has been the scene of many activities ranging from building sand castles to decorating bicycles.

On Friday, August 21, Vicky Stuart and Alan Rutherford built the largest castles. Other castles were built by Bonnie Wood, Kim Stuart, Sheila Christopher, Debbie Young, Karen Hardy, Katrina Stevenson, Kathy Glover, Eddy Stuart and Steven Conley.

On Monday, August 24, races were held. Patti Matter and Cindy Ross won the backward race; Katrina Stevenson, the walking race; Patti Matter and Leslie Cowsill, the hopping race; Katrina Stevenson and Patti Matter, the wheelbarrow race. The holding hands race was won by Patty and Karen Wright. The obstacle race was won by Cindy Ross, Katrina Stevenson and Vicky Stuart.

Tuesday, August 25 was bike decorating day. Best bike: Anne-Marie Forestell; most colorful: Barbara Rae; smallest bike: Billy Devolin; largest bike: Bobby Salisbury. A picture contest was also held. Bonnie Wood and Kathy McGovern tied for the prettiest picture. Vicky Stuart was first and Caroline Hardy second for the best picture.

Wednesday 130 children visited the Coca-Cola plant.

Thursday afternoon 12 talented youngsters went to East Hill park where Betty Bannon won a basket for her performance with a fire baton.

Friday a bottle cap contest was won by Larry Mays, Dougy Mays and Ronald Bell. Second place went to Katrina Stevenson, Anne-Marie Forestell, Rhonda and Margot Chapman, Sharon Coughlin and Susie Chapman. Alan Wood took 3rd and Laurie Gracie took 4th.

Ten Printers Returned to United States

OTTAWA (CP)—Immigration Minister Tremblay said Friday that the three Toronto daily newspapers were told last month to arrange the return to the United States of 10 persons employed by the papers, which have been publishing despite a strike by printers since July 9.

He told the Commons that the 10 persons involved left Canada by July 22.

"No suggestion was made to the newspapers that these persons were to be given the option of applying for landed-immigrant status," the minister added.

The statement was an elaboration of replies made Monday to Opposition Leader Diefenbaker and James Ormiston (PC—Melville).

Mr. Tremblay said Monday persons could not hold jobs in Canada without a work permit or landed-immigrant status. They 10 did not have work permits, available only to landed immigrants.

He also said that two American brought to Toronto by the printers' union were official union negotiators. They were in Canada legally to engage in their work temporarily.

Mr. Ormiston had asked Monday about the two union men. He identified them as George Hogan and Robert Asselin "who are reputed to have a record of strike violence in San Francisco and St. Louis".

FRIDAY, Aug. 28, 1964

The Commons debated the 1964-65 estimates of the industry and defence production departments, approving those for industry.

Alfred D. Hales (PC—Wellington South) said the industry department is a piece of government empire-building.

George H. Boucett (PC—Lanark) said the size of the department's staff is out of all proportion to its work.

Industry Minister Drury said tax incentives for depressed areas are generating $345,000,000 in private investment.

The Commons meets at 2 p.m. for the 112th day of the debate. The Senate stands adjourned until Sept. 15.

Deseronto Couple Injured

OSHAWA (CP) — A two-car crash on Highway 401 four miles east of here Friday sent two couples to hospital in serious condition.

Mr. and Mrs. R. B. Kane of Ottawa and Mr. and Mrs. Alexander Ramsay of Deseronto all received internal injuries.

The two late-model cars were destroyed. One was cut in half after it went out of control, crossed the median, struck an oncoming car and flipped on its hood.

Youth Charged With Car Theft After Mishap

Donald James Maracle, 17-years old, of 47 Furby Street, was charged with car theft after a minor accident on Bridge St. last night. Police reports indicate Maracle was driving east on Bridge St., about 12.30 a.m., in a car owned by Albert Faulkner of 10 Bradley St., when he lost control of the car. The car struck a lamp-post on the south side of Bridge St., just west of McDonald. Damage to the car was about $1,000, damage to Belleville Utilities property was estimated at $200. Maracle cut his chin in the accident.

Mr. Faulkner told police his car had been parked on Front St., across from the city hall.

IN MEMORIAM

HASLIP — In loving memory of our dear mother, Hattie Haslip who passed away Aug. 29th, 1962.
So many things have happened,
Since you were called away,
Had you been left to stay,
Everyday in some small way,
Memories of you come our way,
Though absent you are ever near,
Still loved, missed and always dear.
—Sadly missed and always remembered by daughter, Ann Phyllis, daughter Olive.

LUCAS — In loving memory of a dear father Raymond Garfield Lucas who passed away Aug. 29, 1962.
God knows how much I miss him,
Never shall his memory fade,
Loving thoughts shall ever wander,
From those who thought the world of you.

CARDS OF THANKS

We wish to extend our sincere thanks and appreciation to the nurses, doctors, Sister Anne, and Sister Gerardine of 2nd West, Belleville General Hospital, for their very kind attention and care to my husband during his illness. A special thanks to Dr. Gibson and to all those who visited him in hospital room, staff, Medical Association and Ward 3 members for their beautiful floral tributes and messages of sympathy. Also to our friends, relatives and neighbors for floral tributes, cards and those who brought so many gifts of food at this time. A special thanks to Rev. Fahner for his faithful visits, his consoling words and to the members of the Alliance Church choir, friends for their kindness and prayers. To Mrs. Genzia and Mrs. Tom Wright for their kindness, help in the home, to the ferry and all those who loaned us their cars, our sincere thanks to each and every one.

GM Workers' Council Called To Detroit

DETROIT (AP)—The United Auto Workers union summoned its General Motors council to Detroit today to combat what it said was a threat of widcat strikes against the giant of the automobile industry.

The UAW has threatened strike action against the smallest of the Big Three, Chrysler Corp., on Sept. 9 if no agreement is reached on a new contract. The union demands 40¢ an hour and Ford meet whatever terms it won at Chrysler.

In addition, a slaying unionreported threats of wildcat walkouts against GM, today's 30 member emergency meeting was called to marshal support against the company's 350,000 UAW members for the strike members who would be thrown out of work by a Chrysler strike.

Ford UAW chiefs were asked for similar support Thursday.

Leonard Woodcock, UAW vice-president in charge of its GM department, raised the possibility of GM wildcat strikes. He said there was unrest among rank and file over what he termed lack of progress in negotiations.

But local unions in general have raised the biggest howl for improvement in working conditions."

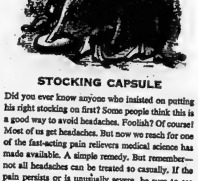
Market Offers Great Variety Of Produce

The market was busy today under cloudy skies with threats of rain. A surprising variety of farm produce was on sale, although some of it was in short supply.

Most exclusive item was the one small pumpkin offered at a price of 25c. One booth offered silver-skin onions at 45c a quart and one offered black berries at 35c a pint.

Beets and carrots were 15c a bunch or two bunches for 25c; yellow and green string beans were 25c a quart. Large cucumbers were 65c for a six-quart basket; leaf lettuce was 20c a bunch; Swiss chard was 10c a bunch.

Potatoes were 60c a six-quart basket; tomatoes were 65c for the same size; cabbage was 15c a head; radishes were three for 25c; corn was 50c a dozen cobs. Cooking onions were offered at 25c a quart.



Gherkin-size cucumbers were $1.50 for a six quart basket; dill size were $1.25 (dill sold for 10c a bunch, three bunches for 25c), and full size cucumbers were one dollar for six quarts. Lemon cucumbers—small, round and rough surfaced —were offered at two for 15c. Vegetable marrows were offered at 10c to 25c each; baby marrows (popular with the Greek-Canadian community), sold for 25c a quart. Pepper squash were 25c each, green and red peppers were 10c each; eggplants were 35c each and one booth had Canadian watermelon (small, spherical and sweet), at 30c each. Golden Hubbard squash were offered at 50c and cantaloupe were offered at prices varying from 5c to 45c each.

Clapp's Favorite pears were on the market, selling at $1 for six quarties, and early McIntosh apples were available at 90c for six quarts. Peaches were 35c a quart or $1.25 for six quarts; crabapples were 50c for six quarts and Green Gage and Bradshaw plums were both 25c a quart. Blueberries were offered at 35c a pint and at 70c a quart, with a spread of prices for the six-quart baskets.

Chicago Scout Leader Pays Annual Visit

TRENTON — Interested in youth work for most of his 68 years, Paul Price of Chicago, arrived in Trenton yesterday for his almost annual (since 1954), goodwill visit with local Scouting heads. Mr. Price, who is a neighborhood commissioner with the Scouts in Chicago, was accompanied by five U.S. Scouts.

The American boys will spend a few days camping with 11 Scouts from First Trenton (St. George's) Troop, and their Scoutmaster, Bernard Fox, at Presqu'ile Park.

Mr. Price first became interested in Trenton and area Scouting while on a train trip to Toronto, when he met the late Dr. Churchill of Belleville. The two men discovered their mutual interest in Scouting, and exchanged neckarchiefs. Dr. Churchill and Mr. Price then began to plan for an exchange camping trip for area Scouts. But death intervened for Dr. Churchill, and, as a tribute to his memory, Mr. Price and area Scouting heads set up the first camp at Point Anne.

Preparing to widen Division Street, between King Street and Dundas Street W., Public Utilities workmen and Trenton firemen co-operated yesterday in cutting wires from the old wooden hydro poles along the street. The poles were later cut down, and power is now being carried by new wiring, strung to new, concrete square poles. Hydro has no ladder as tall as the firemen's aerial ladder.

They tried to calm the crowd.

Congressman Robert Nix was among them.

Stanley Branche, head of the militant committee for Freedom Now of suburban Chester, said he was coincidentally passing through the area when he noticed one of the early disturbances on a street corner. Branche said:

"All hell was breaking loose. I went up to Commissioner Rizzo (Deputy Police Commissioner Frank Rizzo) and told him, "Let me talk to the people.' I did for three hours, as I walked up and down the streets."

BRANCHE STONED

Branche, who has led many demonstrations himself in Chester and Cambridge, Md., said bricks and bottles were hurled at him. He said his left leg was injured, not seriously.

Most of the stores looted were owned by whites.

Police had no luck in controlling the looting.

Several fires were set during the night, including one in a lumber yard. At one point, police called for an aerial fire truck and sent officers to several roof tops. Negroes had been raising bricks and bottles on the street below from some homes adjacent to those secured by police who climbed the fire truck ladders. They fled when police reached the roof.

Many store mannequins were lying in the streets, stripped of their clothing. A young Negro woman was observed wheeling an entire rack of clothing out of a store. A liquor store was broken into and most of its stock taken.

23 Boy Scouts, Five Leaders End Long Trip

TRENTON — Around noon yesterday, 23 Boy Scouts and five leaders from the Brule Scouting District in Toronto West, disembarked from 12 canoes at Lock No. Two after making a 240-mile trip down the Trent from Fort Severn. The trip took three weeks and the boys and their leaders slept out each night, rain or shine in pup tents or under their canoes.

Yesterday, the canoes were loaded on a truck and the boys left by car for the Canadian National Exhibition, where they will again show off their paddling ability on the waterfront, in front of the CNE grandstand. They will be guests of honor at a reception at the CNE.

Leaders accompanying the Scouts are: Bruce Keefe, of Toronto, senior leader; David Kleinfeldt, David Campbell and Roger Moores, all of Streetsville and "Bud" Wice of Toronto.

Also on the trip is Thomas Allan Sr., of Toronto, camp chairman for the Brule district.

European Press Behind LBJ In Election With Goldwater

By DOUG MARSHALL
Canadian Press Staff Writer

From the moment Senator Barry Goldwater materialized as a U.S. presidential candidate, President Johnson has been able to do almost nothing wrong in the eyes of the European press.

Johnson's choice of Hubert Humphrey as a running mate is no exception. Some British commentators praise Humphrey as a "fireball." Others, more sedate, speak of him as a potential "vice-president in a good tradition." Nobody appears less enthusiastic.

Interest in Humphrey underlines one of the great changes that has taken place in the Western world during the last 20 years. Whether Americans like it or not, responsible Europeans can't help but feel passionately concerned about political destinies in the United States.

Before the assassination of President Kennedy last November, nomination of a vice-presidential candidate in the U.S. would generate about as much interest in Europe as a Canadian football game.

The way things are now, the British press, at least sometimes, seems more preoccupied with what's happening in Washington than with events at home.

Humphrey seems generally regarded in Europe as a man who appreciates the subtleties that hold the Atlantic alliance together. Goldwater's grasp of them isn't so re-assuring, judging by the tenor of the press comment.

In British Humphrey is rather well known, possibly because he has been featured prominently in television and press reviews of President Kennedy's rise to power.

He is remembered as the poor man who battled the rich Kennedy machine in the West Virginia primary in 1960. Perhaps because U.S. politics seems to have become a battle of millionaires, the little man who fights his way up the U.S. political ladder is warmly admired in Britain.

Above all, Humphrey's record on civil rights, education and foreign affairs identifies him closely with political trends in modern Europe.

Says Johnson "No Conservative"

Senator Barry Goldwater says that President L. B. Johnson's choice of Senator Hubert Humphrey as a running mate "destroys the myth" that President Johnson runs a conservative administration.

We think he is right.

Right, at least, in the sense that many people give to the word "conservative"—cautious, always playing it safe.

It would be surprising, though, if Senator Goldwater used the word in this sense. He calls himself a conservative and there is nothing cautious or stick-in-the-mud about his views or the way he airs them.

What he meant, no doubt, was that President Johnson had embraced the liberal viewpoint of his vice-presidential choice. Of Humphrey, Goldwater says, "very articulate," "expresses a liberal point of view better than anyone in the Senate," "his philosophy is that of the Americans for Democratic Action, which proposes vigorous and bigger government programs and more and more government control."

Nothing in President Johnson's record suggests that he is prepared to be a yes-man to anybody. He is a sophisticated type of politician, who blends conservatism with liberalism and will probably continue to do so.

But, in the sense that he certainly showed no tendency for fence-sitting when he made his choice of Humphrey, he certainly renounced the do-nothing type of conservatism.

He could have picked a "safe" man, a Southerner who might be able to soothe the feelings of Dixie Democrats ruffled by President Johnson's forceful, endorsation of the civil rights bill. He had nothing to gain by picking a northern liberal, who might be popular with the intelligentsia and organized labor. These factions would never dream of supporting Goldwater in any event. From the standpoint of the political fence-straddler, the President had nothing to gain and much to lose by selecting Humphrey.

It may occur to some people, though, that he chose the Minnesota Senator, not because he was a liberal, nor in spite of the fact that he was a liberal, not because he was a northerner nor in spite of the fact that he was a northerner, but solely because he felt Humphrey was the best man for the job.

He might have been more concerned with Humphrey's qualifications to help the nation than his qualifications to help Johnson.

If that idea gets around, it might help President Johnson tremendously—and the President is shrewd enough to know it.

Want Equal Pay

Elementary school teachers in three major Saskatchewan cities, Regina, Saskatoon and Port Albert, may strike.

They are demanding the same kind of pay as secondary school teachers of equal training and experience.

We suspect that most qualified experts would support them.

The idea that elementary school teachers need less skill than high school teachers dates from the times when anybody who knew a subject was considered qualified to teach.

Obviously it took less time to learn the alphabet than the binomial theorem. Therefore, it was argued, the pay for teaching the alphabet should be less.

Today, though, it is generally recognized that the teacher has to be taught to teach.

Unfortunately, some teachers are still being turned loose in elementary schools after the addition of a single year's study to their own high school days. But the Saskatchewan teachers are not suggesting that these teachers receive the same pay as secondary school teachers who have gone through university. What they are asking is equal pay for equal training and experience.

If there is anything wrong with this, it may well be that elementary school teachers should receive higher pay. Scientists keep telling us that a child's future is molded in the earliest years. If, by the time the child enters school, it is not already too late to do much to influence the child's development, then the teachers in the first few years carry the greatest responsibility and should be the best trained, the most experienced and the most talented.

The highest reward for a man's toil is not what he gets for it but what he becomes by it.—John Ruskin.

Ottawa Offbeat

Progressive Conservatives Are Party of Togetherness

By RICHARD JACKSON
From The Intelligencer's Ottawa Bureau

OTTAWA — If you're been thinking that the Conservatives, especially in the Great Flag War, fought as an army, or at least as a team — you are right, they have.

Perhaps one of the reasons they display this party discipline, this co-operation of teamwork, is that more than members of the other four Federal parties, they have, uniquely for politicians, what the women's magazines like to call "togetherness".

They not only work together, but they play, dine, entertain, and some of them, even live together.

Often it appears they comprise a club as much as a political party.

Just knock, for instance, on the door of 300 Cooper Street, Ottawa. It is in the midtown section, and a goodly hunk of the Conservative caucus will answer.

Three Hundred Cooper Street is a big home, one of those grandly solid, roomy, turn-of-the-century residences built in what is still affectionately remembered as "The Old School" architectural style.

You know — great high ceilings, airy ceilings. Cool. Quiet. Elegant. Most of all, comfortable.

CLUBHOUSE

Now, the fine old mansion is hived into apartments occupied by a half dozen or more Conservative MPs.

David V. Fugh of Okanagan-Boundary, Stuart Fleming of Okanagan - Revelstoke, Gordon Aiken of Parry Sound-Muskoka, Cyril F. Jamieson of Colchester-Hants, Donald MacInnis of Cape Breton South, Wallace Nesbitt of Oxford — all stay there sometimes — too — the Bennett and the Bracken men — were on the Railway Committee.

In the current crop of Conservatives who call 300 Cooper either home or "the Club", are such contrasts as William Mackadam, well-heeled young Etonian and airlane wheeler-dealer who left the South Pacific and West Coast interests to do research here in the Capital for B.C. Conservative MPs and dabble in national politics (headquarters direction, for that matter, such party Old Guardsmen as Senator Walter Aseltine, Senator Gordon Stewart was a guest there often in his days as quartermaster of the Conservative Campaign Chest, and often drops in now for political and social sessions.

And Derek Bedson, who was Opposition Leader Diefenbaker's first executive assistant and now Manitoba Premier Duff Roblin's Privy Council Clerk, sleeps at 300 Cooper on safari to the Capital.

Former Ontario Premier Leslie Frost has been variously called in to catch up with the political gossip and Nova Scotia Premier Robert Stanfield has shelved the party rag over coffee cups there.

FRATERNITY

From time to time such other Conservative VIPs have called around . . .

. . . as Opposition Leader Diefenbaker with a new catch of fishing stories.

. . . former Labor Minister Mike Starr of Oshawa for a hand of bridge or poker.

. . . Stratford ex-Health Minister Jay Waldo "Monty" Monteith to catch the "club" up on what is new at the world-renowned Shakespearian Festival.

. . . even Calgary's former Defence Minister Douglas Harkness to mourn over the way "new boy" Paul Hellyer seems to be doing his best, or worst, to "sink" the Navy.

This political "fraternity house" is owned and operated by a dear old maiden lady, Miss F. C. Malone, who has been on the Ottawa scene long enough to have known Sir John A. Macdonald. (Matter of fact, among her most prized possessions is Sir John A's old coal scuttle.)

How is it that Parliamentarians — who now, with their $18,000-plus, are among the nation's financial elite and well able to afford it — do not revel in the new high rise apartment luxury, with a penthouse picture window perspective on the Capital, but prefer an "Old Ontario" mansion on a no-view midtown street?

It is like stepping back into Confederation, confides Stuart Fleming.

You open the door, step inside and it is like another world, like going back in time to another century.

There is place...

And quiet.

Horsehair sofas and antimacassars.

Rich old parquet floors of oak.

Harvesting Of Wild Rice

Winnipeg Tribune

The Whitesnell area in Manitoba has the reputation of producing the best wild rice. It is considered a delicacy by gourmets. Of the average production of about 100,000 pounds, which sometimes reaches twice that amount, 90 per cent is exported to the United States.

In early days the industry was featured by confusion and often exploitation. During the war the government decided to auction the harvesting rights to public tender. Successful bidders were given what they give right to buy the rice from Indian pickers on specified lakes. This system continued until one year when the bidding was so high that the Indian pickers received little after royalties paid to the government.

To ensure a return to the Indians the government then changed the system. It decided that buyers bidding for rights would do so on a basis that they would pay the Indians. The royalties would still take a royalty of 12½ per cent. However this procedure did not cure the disorganization endemic in the industry. If one buyer bid a higher price on his lakes, Indians were tempted to shoulder the harvest from the other lakes to him. In the past few years these inequities have disappeared because the rights to the lakes have gone to one bidder. Indians have been receiving 57 cents a pound for green rice.

Now the government has decided to go one step further. It has assisted the Indians in forming a co-operative with exclusive right to harvest the wild rice in all the lakes of the Whitesnell Reserve Area. This may not provide the Indians with greater returns initially, but it could improve the quality and quantity of production in future. In the past there has been the temptation to pick the mature rice. It was first come, first pickings. Now because it is in their own interests, the Indians should strive for more efficient harvesting.

But what is more important, here is another opportunity for Indians to manage their own affairs and stand on their own feet. This has been overlooked too often by the administration of Indian affairs.

Apartments Gain Favor

Windsor Star

Reports from Saskatoon state that half of the new dwelling units started on new during the first half of 1964 were apartments. This surge in apartment building is not popular to that Prairie city. It seems general in all Canadian cities. And in most cases, they are being filled up quickly.

There is a peculiarity about this in the years ahead for the emphasis was on single-family dwellings, especially in the suburban areas. This resulted in the suburban sprawl.

The theory then was that construction costs were so high apartments could not be built for reasonable rents. Yet the one floor (or sometimes 1½ floor) homes were about the most costly form of construction of all.

Now, with construction costs very much greater than a few years ago emphasis is on apartments. In true rents are high, but these must be taken in relation to the costs of buying and maintaining living.

The suburban sprawl has been costly, and not just in the prices of the homes. It has required a great expansion of services, streets, sewers, schools, etc. But, of course, the increasing population couldn't all be packed easily into the previous city limits.

Fine, inlaid woodwork.

50 YEARS AGO

August 29th, 1914

Mr. and Mrs. F. P. Clarke of St. Ola, are spending a few days in town.

It is claimed by many citizens that the granolithic walk should be extended on Bridge St. to Church St. The work can be done for less money while the paving men are here.

An interesting shoot was held at the range yesterday by members of the Belleville Association. A. J. Stewart won the match with 97 points. The scoring was as follows: A. J. Stewart 97; D. J. Corrigan 96; Arthur Harman 95; R. Day96; H. Holton 94; H. Sneyd 92.

Surplus of German Girls

By Erich Geiger in Vancouver Der Courier

The young lady was pretty and nicely dressed. It happened that she was sitting on my table in a Berlin Chinese restaurant. Soon I found out that she had been in Canada for a few years. What German economic miracle lured her back to the old country.

"This I regret very often," she said. And she wants to return to Canada.

Why? "Because the men are much nicer and kinder over there."

• • •

This remark describes the situation in Germany and Austria, where the pronounced surplus of females still is obvious 19 years after the end of the war.

"In Canada it was natural that my date invited me for supper," she said. In Berlin she was happy to get a date at all.

In most dance restaurants there are more girls than men. In most of them you find beautiful girls who cannot get a dance for the whole night.

This made it easier for the girls, there are a few dance restaurants in West Berlin where only the girls call for a dance.

An example is the Palais de Madame.

When I visited it, I saw a considerable number of beautiful girls. When the music starts in a Canadian dance restaurant, the men jump from their chairs and race for the girls.

Here it was just the reverse. The men took it for granted. They rose calmly from their chairs and followed their female partners to the dance floor. Some even did not care and refused to dance.

A paradise for the men looking for a girl is the Palais am Funkturm in West Berlin. Of the approximately 1,000 people that night, at least two-thirds were ladies. The latter truly were in the position of hunters, looking for desirable game.

Men who ask a girl for a dance are polite, but very nonchalant and—as I was told by dance ladies — very much arrogant. If some girl should refuse a dance, she does not matter at all. Often another girl who has already been asked will accept gladly.

In Toronto, on the other hand, the refused men trot away like dogs.

In the well-known restaurant Rheinische Winzerstuben I occasionally bought a drink for a young lady. The young men on my table were amused about my generosity. "Don't spoil our girls," one of them said.

In West Germany it is still normal for each partner to pay for himself or herself. It is not unusual that a lady financially can support her male escort a little.

• • •

On the banks and in the public swimming pools you can see the most attractive girls — mostly in the bikini or bikini — getting no attention from the men around them.

A West German marriage institute recently had a major scandal when it became known that half a dozen of their "available" men were really employees of the agency. Every week they met about a dozen ladies, looking for a marriage partner — in exchange for a reasonable fee. Naturally the men were not interested in marriage at all. Most of them were married already.

Consequently I should say, if a girl is looking for a marriage partner, she better stay in Canada. Or, on the other hand, looking for a girl, would really be well off taking a trip to the old country. I can guarantee that they will find a most attractive selection.

NDP Stand Medieval

Toronto Star

In medieval England, there was a curious custom known as "cutting off a sliver of blood." When a nobleman was convicted of high treason, not only was he beheaded but all his relatives were liable to lose their ranks, titles and honors—on the ground, apparently, that Cousin Hubert's misdemeanor had tainted the whole family.

A somewhat similar doctrine seems to prevail in the New Democratic Party. At the 1962 convention here, one Hugh Downan was excluded as a delegate on the ground that he was a brother of Ross Dowson, the Trotskyite leader. In vain Mr. Dowson protested that he was an NDP member and that his only contact with his brother was that they had Christmas dinner together. The convention was implacable.

Is Trotskyism considered a hereditary disease? Or is the barony supposed to be transmitted by the Christmas turkey?

Maple Leaves

Owen Sound Sun-Times

There are, according to Encyclopaedia Canadiana, nine varieties of maple growing in Canada. They list striped maple sugar, vine, mountain, red, black, Douglas, broadleaf and Manitoba. It's quite an impressive list, but it still apparently lacks — on the maple from which the leaves for Mr. Pearson's flag have been chosen. Those leaves are different in shape than any Canadians have been able to find anywhere.

To Your Good Health

Sponge Cushion in Shoe Relieves Spur Discomfort

By JOSEPH G. MOLNER, M.D.

Dear Dr. Molner: My husband has spurs on the inside of his heels. X-rays have been taken and ultrasonic treatments have been tried but he just don't seem to give any relief. What do you suggest? — A. W. H.

When an injury occurs, either from a sudden, severe trauma, or from slow persistent irritation, or from repeated, small incidents, and the body has to heal it, nature uses a good bit of calcium in the process.

This may be the knitting of a bone, or the formation of a scar. Either way, calcification — this accumulation of calcium takes place.

Heel spurs are calcifications of a tendon attached to the under side of the heel bone. The spur itself may not be the whole story. The tendon may be torn or there may be bursitis or some faulty aspect of posture or balance which puts too much pressure on a sensitive point. Being overweight is a common factor in painful spurs. For, you see, many people have spur without any discomfort.

Here are some methods of relief:

1 — If the patient is obese — reduce!

2 — A sponge rubber cushion for the heel, inside the shoe, is a good solution for some people.

3 —Shifting the point at which you carry your own weight may make a difference. A suitable arch support, or possibly raising the heel of the shoe, may help.

4 —Hot soaks of the feet are often helpful in reducing inflammation of the bursa (bursitis) if that is a factor. Aspirin or other forms of the salicylates can be taken for pain.

5 — Occasionally soft-soled or ripple-soled shoes ease the discomfort.

6 — Injection of the area with procaine or hydrocortisone will relieve the pain.

7 — Ultrasonics, infrared, or other such applications of "deep heat" are worth trying in suitable cases.

8 — In very severe cases, surgical removal of the spurs may be necessary. This is usually successful, but new spurs have been known to form. After all, something caused the spurs in the first place! So faulty posture, overweight, or improperly fitted shoes should be corrected if any or all of these are present.

An orthopedist (bone specialist) or podiatrist (foot specialist) should be consulted to ascertain the causes and proper treatment of these simple remedies do not ease the discomfort.

Dear Dr. Molner: I am trying to recall if I read in your column once that taking one of the B vitamins regularly will repel mosquitoes. — Mrs. C. J.

I have mentioned that thiamin chloride, which is one of the B group, causes an odor that repels mosquitoes. This vitamin contains a sulfur group which probably is the source of the odor. I have also had readers say it does not work for them. There's no harm in trying, however. Insect-repellents applied to the skin are effective, of course.)

Note to I.S. with Sciatica: I doubt that the type of practitioner you mention would be expected to help your trouble. I suggest that you go to an M.D. or a D.O.

Install Pastor Of Wesleyan Methodist Church

On Wednesday evening, the Rev. Eldon F. LeRoy was installed as the pastor of the Belleville Wesleyan Methodist Church.

Having received his B.A. from Houghton College and later a B.D. from Asbury Theological Seminary, Mr. LeRoy continued his service with the Middle Atlantic States of the Wesleyan Methodist Church. From 1958 to 1961 he pastored a church at Carney's Point, N.J., and from 1961 to 1964 in Hatboro, Pa.

Prior to the installation ceremony conducted by the Conference president, the Rev. J.S.A. Spearman, addresses were delivered by the Rev. R. L. LeRoy of Toronto Wesleyan Methodist Church, who is the father of the new pastor and by the Rev. F. S. Irish, pastor of the Ameliasburgh Wesleyan Methodist Church.

In his charge to the church, the Rev. R. L. LeRoy outlined some of the responsibilities of the church to its pastor. Mention was made of the need for congregational co-operation, esteem for the pastor and that, above all, the membership pray for the pastor.

Directing his remarks to the new pastor, the Rev. F. S. Irish took for his Scripture 1 Timothy 4:5-16, where the Apostle Paul instructed Timothy to devote himself to God, the doctrines of the church, and the people with whom he ministered.

Following the ceremony, the pastor's wife and seven-year-old daughter, Charlene, were introduced to the congregation.

A time of fellowship was spent in the Sunday School auditorium where a committee convened by Mrs. Clayton Young and Mrs. Bert Locklin prepared a delicious lunch. Tea was poured by the Conference president's wife, Mrs. Spearman and the girls from the Wesleyan Youth Society served.

Guests present from a distance included Miss Verda LeRoy, Mrs. R. L. LeRoy of Toronto and Mrs. L. McLennan from the Wesleyan Methodist Church, Detroit, Mich. The latter two are the mothers of Rev. and Mrs. E. LeRoy respectively.

Driver Killed In Car Race At Kingston

KINGSTON (CP) — Tom Vankoughnett, 27, of Kingston, was killed and another man suffered undetermined injuries Friday night in a three - car crash during a stock car race at the Kingston Speedway.

Injured was Richard Woods, of Belleville, driver of one of the two cars that rammed Vankoughnett's racer after it had spun out on a curve and rolled over during the first lap of a consolation race.

Four Elected Life Members Of Weeklies

TORONTO (CP) — Four men whose combined experience in weekly newspapers totals more than 170 years Friday night were made honorary life members of the Canadian Weekly Newspapers Association at its annual convention.

They are H. G. Franklin and Ronald W. Tuckwell, both of Winnipeg; Charles A. Clark of High River, Alta., and Harvey Johnston of Tillsonburg, Ont.

Mr. Franklin was president of the Manitoba Weekly Newspapers Association for three years and a director of the CWNA for eight years prior to selling the Roland (Alta.) News Times in 1928 and has worked on the paper since. He served for nine years as secretary of the Alberta Weekly Newspapers Association and for eight years as a director of the CWNA.

Mr. Johnston became editor and publisher of the Oil Springs (Ont.) Chronicle at the age of 17. He later became co-owner of the Tillsonburg newspaper which, through amalgamation, became the Tillsonburg News of which he now is president.

Ken Patridge Elected Head Weekly Papers

TORONTO (CP) — Ken Patridge, 56, publisher of the Canrose (Alta.) Canadian, was elected president of the Canadian Weekly Newspapers Association Friday. He succeeds Charles Nolan of Stouffville, Ont.

President last year of the Alberta Weekly Newspapers Association, Mr. Partridge has been on the CWNA board of directors since 1951.

He said in an interview he feels there has been a swing in recent years back to greater readership of weekly newspapers, which can provide a more informative and rounded report of a community's events than a daily.

"There is a definite readership need there and as long as weekly publishers fill it, and not try to compete with the dailies on national and international events, they'll be safe."

The CWNA represents 493 weekly newspapers, with a combined circulation of 1,300,000. About two-thirds of Canada's recognized weeklies belong to the association.

TEACHERS BRIEFED

MONTREAL (CP)—A highly-trained group of 162 Canadian teachers assembled here Friday for four days of briefings preparatory to postings to more than 30 countries abroad. They are being sent abroad by the federal external aid office to help needy countries develop their educational systems. The group includes 118 English-speaking teachers and 47 French-speaking teachers.

tion of Turkish troops stationed on Cyprus. There was no information as to the outcome of the talks.

Under the Cyprus independence agreement of 1960, of which Britain, Greece and Turkey are the guarantor powers, Turkey has the right to maintain 650 troops and Greece 950 troops on the island.

Half the Turkish troops are due to go home Monday. Makarios's government has said it will use force to prevent any fresh Turkish troops from landing.

WOULD RISK WAR

A high official in the Makarios government, which has been supported by Greece, told reporters any Turkish troop landings would be opposed "even if it means setting off a world war."

On Friday, the Greek government formally asked the Turks to delay the troop rotation for a few days. The Turkish government had no immedia'e reply.

Shortly after the Greeks requested the postponement, an anti-American and anti-Greek demonstration broke out in Ankara, capital of Turkey.

Turkish soldiers and officers joined thousands of students in a two-hour march through the streets.

The Turks are angry at the United States because it has refused to support Cyprus be united with Greece.

In Nicosia, Greek - Cypriote students staged an orderly demonstration accusing theUnited States and Britain of supporting Turkish demands for the partition of Cyprus.

DENIES SAYING A-OK

WILMINGTON, Del. (AP)—Astronaut Alan B. Shepard Jr. said Friday he never said "A-OK" when he made the United States' first suborbital flight on May 5, 1961. Shepard, vacationing here said it was a public relations man who picked up the term from the chatter of control stations. Shepard, however, doesn't mind the attribution. "It's part of American folklore, I guess we'll go along with it," he said.

Communist Party Boss Is Former Farm Boy

By GERALD I. MILLER

ROME (AP)—The new boss of the biggest Communist party in the Western world is a former farm boy who won a medal from the United States in the Second World War.

The medal marked one of the many tough and dangerous stages in the life that has put Luigi Longo from his country birthplace in the Italian north to leadership of Italy's Communists.

Longo, 64, took over as secretary - general from Palmiro Togliatti, who died last Friday at Yalta. He had been Togliatti's deputy for 18 years. The party directorship gave him the succession without a single dissenting vote.

It's not that Longo is so beloved in the party. He has made his share of enemies. He is a sombre man, a tough talker and a tough actor and many of the younger party notables relish his leadership.

But from the moment of Togliatti's death there was no doubt Longo would inherit the mantle—if only temporarily. It was felt the party had to choose him if for no other reason than to show unity in a time of transition.

Longo was born to fairly well-to-do peasant parents in Fubine Monferrato, a hamlet in a Piedmont region noted for sweet wines.

STUDIED ENGINEERING

As a student he flirted with engineering. But at 20 he lost his heart to politics. He joined the Socialist party for a while.

Then, dissatisfied with what he considered the party's shilly-shallying, he joined forces with some other Socialists who wanted to go farther left. They founded Italy's Communist party.

He quickly established himself as a hard-headed, capable operator.

Mussolini's Fascists jailed him. Freed after 10 months, he made his way out of the country. He worked underground in France and Switzerland supervising forgery of documents for other party members and agitpathisers.

From 1933 to 1935 he worked in Moscow as a member of the Comintern Political Commission.

When the Spanish civil war broke out, the Communist leadership sent him to Spain. He was wounded serving as an inspector general of the international brigades.

Longo's under ground code name was Gallo — rooster. He carried it with him when he went back to Italy in 1939 at the outbreak of the Second World War. He was promptly seized by the Fascists and confined on the prison island of Ventotene.

Freed in 1943, he joined Communist partisans fighting the Fascists behind German lines. His leadership in the resistance won him the American Bronze Star.

Only hours before his appointment Buddhists and Catholics fought in the streets with clubs, machettes, hatchets and lengths of pipe. Hoodlums—and perhaps Viet Cong agents—took advantage of the chaos and roamed the littered city, fighting, looting and burning.

Soldiers in battle gear swept aside makeshift barriers and erected barbed wire barricades blocking key approaches. Mobile radio units blared as troops with fixed bayonets raced around the city, arresting hosts of demonstrators.

All private and government schools in the city were closed. U.S. personnel were warned to keep off the streets.

An estimated 500 persons were arrested including some Communist suspects, police said.

The crisis was touched off 13 days ago when Khanh decreed emergency powers and elevated himself from premier to president of the U.S.-backed regime. Confronted by mounting student-led protests and the threat of religious strife, Khanh resigned five days ago. The ruling, 62-man military revolutionary council chose a triumvirate of three top generals, including Khanh, to lead the nation.

Turned Down On Application For Insurance

TORONTO (CP) — The regional office of the Unemployment Insurance Commission has turned down applications by striking members of Local 91 of the International Typographical Union CLC for unemployment insurance, a commission spokesman said Friday.

He said the decision was taken on the grounds that the printers, who walked out at Toronto's three daily newspapers July 9, are out of work as a result of a labor dispute.

The Globe and Mail, The Star and The Telegram have continued to publish since the strike, at first using supervisory and non-union personnel to do composing room work. Later, about 20 strikers returned to work and an unknown number of outside employees were hired.

Except under special circumstances claimants who are unemployed as a result of a labor dispute are disqualified from receiving unemployment insurance benefits.

A Lift for Living

Life's Real Riches Can Be Found Only in Man's Heart

By REV. HAROLD E. KOHN

One of the richest men in American history was John Muir, the naturalist. When in 1849, at eleven years of age, he arrived in this country from his native Dunbar, Scotland, his parents had little money, and when he died on Christmas Eve, 1914, his estate was not at all impressive. Nevertheless, John Muir was a rich man.

In 1899 John Muir joined the Alaska scientific expedition sponsored by the fantastically wealthy American financier E. H. Harriman. One of the other travellers spoke enviously to Muir about Harriman's immense wealth. Muir replied, "Why, I am richer than Harriman. I have all the money I want, and he hasn't."

Muir's contentment with his financial lot was founded upon the knowledge that he was rich in other things besides money.

One of the ways in which John Muir was wealthy was in terms of time. He believed in taking hours to expose his eyes to beauty and to indulge his soul in leisurely conversation and fellowship with friends. He profoundly pities the distinguished visitors who called upon him during his years in Yosemite and who were so time-poor that they could spare only one day among the beauties of the mountains and who rushed in and out of human contacts, never pausing to savor the spirit of a friend. Believing that people who travel fast see little of what they are passing, he one time set out on a thousand-mile walk from Wisconsin to the Gulf of Mexico, and all along the way he stopped to visit with children and old people, poor planters and well-to-do plantation owners, and to get acquainted with animals, birds, insects and trees, snakes and frogs, and any living thing that crossed his path.

UNARMED, UNAFRAID

Rich in courage, John Muir never carried a gun though he spent weeks at a time in the wilderness. He knew the flora of America so well that he was confident he could always find his food in the woods, and he was unafraid of any beast that walked. His courage was demonstrated too in the way he fought the timber barons and the mining interests which were denuding the Black Hills, the Big Horn Mountains, and the south California coast. When his cause of forest conservation was unpopular and the enemies of America's wilderness were many and backed by big capital, the slender, ascetic-appearing naturalist struggled almost alone against them until others pitched into the battle and helped him. At last he won the preservation of vast tracts of wilderness as national parks.

John Muir was rich in faith. While he was not conventionally religious, he had a profound trust in God and in the dependability of the Creator's work. Once, after he had pointed out that glaciers were instruments in carving Yosemite Valley, a renowned but dogmatic geologist, Dr. Josiah Whitney, contradicted Muir's findings. Dr. Whitney denied that glaciers had anything to do with Yosemite and insisted that the floor of the valley had fallen in some prehistoric violent shaking of the earth's surface. At this John Muir snorted derisively, "The bottom never fell out of anything God made!"

NOT MONEY ALONE

The greatness of John Muir's attitude toward money was not that he abhorred wealth, but that he saw that money alone did not make a person rich. And this is the position taken by the great men of all time. Some people glibly quote the Bible to support their contentions that it is impossible for a person to be rich and at the same time spiritually-minded. They quote Jesus' saying, "It is easier for a camel to go through the eye of a needle than for a rich man to enter into the kingdom of God." But they forget that He also said, "With God all things are possible." They remember His disappointment with the rich young ruler, but forget He praised one who wisely invested his money and said concerning him, "Well done, thou good and faithful servant." People think they are quoting the Bible when they say, "Money is the root of all evil." But at no place in the Bible is such a ludicrously untrue statement made. The Bible does say emphatically, "The love of money is the root of all evil." Some who have much money do not love it, but love the good things it can do, the wholesome benefits it can confer upon their community and world. Such wealth goes deeper than purse: it is soul-deep.

Again, there are people whose poverty is spirit-deep. They possess neither money nor the inner appreciation of the people near them, the beauties that surround them, the opportunities to do good that every new morning brings, the good that is unrelated to stocks and bonds, bank accounts and real estate, dollars and cents, the good that can be done with a warm smile, a kindly word and a helping hand. The rich can be rich or poor within. The moneyless person can be, too. The Bible does not oppose riches, but spiritual poverty. It does not denounce money, but it does condemn having nothing else but money and the things money can buy. It smiles approvingly on money as a good servant and frowns upon it as a tyrannical master. It condones having money in your purse and condemns having it in your heart.

Real poverty is not a matter of being moneyless. The poor of the world are the lowest, the thoughtless, the restless and hopeless, the joyless.

The world's richest people are those who have hearts full of love and peace and hope, minds full of high thoughts, memories packed with priceless experiences, and a record covered with gracious deeds.

Catholics In Cuba Troubled

By ARTHUR JONES

HAVANA (AP)—The Roman Catholic Church in Cuba is experiencing difficulties, despite an apparent "hands-off" policy by Premier Fidel Castro and an official government promise of religious freedom.

The church appears to have made some slight headway from its situation 10 months ago. But it is still dependent to a large extent on the Cuban government's policies as to how much better conditions could become.

It is through Castro — who rarely speaks publicly of the church—that arrangements are made for new priests to come to Cuba. The latest was a contingent of six Diocesan priests from Belgium.

The government has designated Jose Felipe Carneado, a lawyer and head of the Prensa Latina news agency, as responsible for church-state matters.

Church and government officials agree that conditions vary and that acts against the church are often the result of petty officialism on the local level.

GO TO STATE

Two bastions of Catholic strength surmount most local anti-church obstacles or going directly to the government.

Archbishop Perez Serantes of Santiago derives his strength from his personal stature as a man and priest and from being credited with saving Castro's life. He intervened with the Batista regime to prevent execution of the survivors of the Castro-led attack on Moncada Barracks July 26, 1953. The archbishop did not know Castro but was concerned with the fate of a band of young men facing death.

Msgr. Cesar Zacchi is treated as papal nuncio although in actuality he is only Vatican chargé d'affaires. He moves in diplomatic circles and the highest echelon of the Cuban revolutionary government. Catholics, lay and clergy, in trouble, usually can get their problems solved quickly through him.

Enemies try to discredit him as "the Red monsignor."

There are Communists who would prefer to see the church eliminated from Cuban life, and Catholics who would prefer to see a "church of silence" rather than one coexisting with a Communist regime.

Readers' Saturday Column

by Mary Moore

QUESTION:

I have been unsuccessfully attempting to obtain a recipe for plum pie. Would you have such a recipe, or could you give me some idea of how to make this? — Carol T.

ANSWER:

QUESTION:

I've been watching for the recipe for Mustard Bean Pickle but have not seen it so far this month. Would Fair please give it in your column at your earliest? — Maggie McC.

ANSWER:

MUSTARD BEAN PICKLE:

2 lbs. freshly gathered yellow beans (3 cups well-packed when cut into 1" lengths), 1 teaspoon turmeric, ¼ cup dry mustard, ½ cup flour, 2 teaspoons salt, 2 cups brown sugar, 3 cups vinegar, 1 cup water, 1 tablespoon celery seed.

Wash beans very well, trim off stem ends, and string them if necessary. (I should mention the blossom tip of the bean contains a little stronger concentration of vitamins than the whole bean.) Cut into 1" lengths. Cook in boiling salted water until barely tender. Mix turmeric mustard, flour, salt, and brown sugar to a smooth thin paste in ½ cup of the vinegar and the 1 cup water. Heat remaining vinegar, celery seed to boiling point. Stir in mustard paste and cook, stirring constantly, until slightly thickened, about 5 minutes. Do not overcook. Add drained beans to mustard sauce and bring to boil. Pour into hot sterilized jars and seal.

FRESH RED PLUM PIE!

NOTE:

You may use blue or green gage plums but if so reduce sugar to ¾ cup.

1¼ lbs. ripe red plums (4 cups well-packed when stoned and sliced), 1 to 1¼ cups sugar, depending on tartness of fruit, dash salt, 2 tablespoons flour, 1 tablespoon butter.

Make rich pain pastry; roll out half of it and line a 9" pie plate.

Wash plums, do not peel, remove pits and cut each into 4 or 5 pieces in bowl. Blend sugar, salt and flour, sprinkle 1-3 over bottom of pastry-lined pan. Pack the plums into the pie plate, sprinkle with half of remaining sugar mixture. Add remaining plums, sprinkle with remaining sugar mixture and dot with butter. Seal on gashed top crust. Bake 15 to 17 minutes at 450 deg. Fahr., then for this month. Would Fair please give it in your column at your earliest? — Maggie McC.

Ann Landers

Boy Friend Doesn't Count, Husband Is Legal Father

DEAR ANN LANDERS — In 1956 I married a man I hated because my mother talked me into it. He was 5 years older than I, had a little money, and my mother said I would learn to love him later. This man turned out to be an animal. He was mean and demanding.

I'm not making excuses for myself but I began to see a man at work and fell in love with him. He returned that love. I asked my husband for a divorce. His answer was "never."

ANN LANDERS

I became pregnant by my boy friend and still my husband refused to give me a divorce. When I checked into the hospital to have the baby I used my husband's name. On the birth certificate reads that he is the father.

Six months later my husband met a girl he liked, and he gave me a divorce. I married the father of my child. Now I want to get the birth certificate changed so it reads as it should. How can I do it? — B.F.G.

DEAR B.F.G. — The certificate does read as it should. Leave it alone.

The law doesn't care who you were going with when the baby was born. The law is concerned only with your legal status, and at the time the baby was born you were married to your first husband. So forget it.

• • •

DEAR ANN LANDERS — I'm almost 37 and have never had an honest-to-goodness date. Several fellows have asked me to go to the movies or to a party, but it was either fixed up by someone else or the invitation was made at the last minute. Judy got the measles, and I need a date for the dance tomorrow night. Can you go?" I feel more like a rescue squad than a female.

At least once a week some fellow drives over to talk to me about a love problem he is having with another girl. They all want advice, because I am so "sensible," but nobody wants me. I'm getting tired of lending them my shoulder to cry on. Does this role ever lead to romance? — THE SISTERLY TYPE.

DEAR TYPE — If the fellows cry on your shoulder it proves they know you have shoulders. Continue to give them your counsel and eventually someone will notice the rest of you.

The boy-girl relationship which begins on the platonic level are often the most solid. When the friendship catches fire — it's love.

• • •

DEAR ANN LANDERS — I am writing to you about a problem that is giving me an ulcer. I need your help, because I'm no good at telling people off.

My husband's sister has a 16-year-old daughter who smokes. They are over here about five nights a week to look at our color TV. This girl drops ashes all over the rug and has burned two holes in my coffee table.

She has a habit of going to the refrigerator and helping herself. You'd think she never saw a pie, or a cake, or a cookie before. — the way she eats her way through my pantry.

Last night she ate half a jello mold I had prepared for my bridge club which is meeting today. I'm afraid if I told my sister-in-law how I feel it will be the end of our friendship. Please advise me. — MYRTLE.

DEAR MYRTLE — What friendship?

These freeloaders are using you and your color TV as their major form of entertainment.

This is more your fault than theirs. People who allow themselves to be dropped in on 10 nights a week yet ! !), eaten out of house and home, and then get an ulcer because they haven't the courage to speak up, get no sympathy from me.

• • •

Ann Landers will be glad to help you with your problems. Send them to her in care of this newspaper enclosing a stamped, self-addressed envelope.

World's Fair Visit Need Not Be Too Tiring - - Or Expensive

- By SHIRLEY and BOB SLOANE

NEW YORK — There are a number of things wrong with the World's Fair.

It's a conglomeration of uncoordinated fat-out architecture that often pains the eye and stifles the impression the designers were trying to out-do each other in putting the public on.

There are too few water coolers and direction signposts. Transportation on the grounds is whimsical at best, frustrating at worst.

There's hardly any place to sit down and rest (the cops chase you off the grass, and many of the lengthy queues aren't worth the attractions at the end of them. Finally some of the attractions which charge aren't as good as most of the free ones.

But few of the problems are insurmountable. Here are some tips to smooth the way:

GETTING AROUND — The only reasonable way to get to the Fair from Manhattan is by subway. During most of the day, 12-minute expresses run from Times Square station every six minutes, and return express after nine at night. Even the locals take only 27 minutes.

You can forget about buses, taxis, and your own car in the face of New York's copious traffic. Helicopters and the 40-round trip hydrofoil boat ride are strictly for novelty, especially in view of the 15-cent subway fare.

On the grounds, 25-cent-a-ride Greyhound buses seem to do their best to circumnavigate everyplace you might want to go. Sightseeing trains and so-called Glide-a-Rides, are too slow. Of course, you can hire a private jitney — at $9 an hour.

NEED COMFORTABLE SHOES

Which leaves shank's mare and its two attendant requirements — making sure you're wearing comfortable walking shoes, and that you know where you're going.

You can get a map to the fair grounds in most filling stations in the country these days but the one to have is the $1 official map, available only at the fair. It has perspective drawings of the pavilions which are invaluable in getting you oriented.

COSTS — Reasonable enough, in spite of anything you may have heard. Entry is only $2 for adults, $1 for children. Some of the more popular pavilions have started charging admission, but rarely is it more than $1 for adults, if that.

DRESS — There are absolutely no inhibitions. Dress as comfortably as you like, consistent with staying out of jail. You will look like a nut in an out-of-towner, but so does everyone else.

DINING — As plain or fancy as you please. You can spend Manhattan prices for a good meal at the Spanish Pavilion's Casa Madrid or Toledo Restaurants, but there are better values. One is the Indonesia Pavilion which, along with a $2.50 nine-course meal featuring such exotica as chicken broth with water-lily flowers and chicken ear mushrooms, throws in a Javanese show not likely to be found elsewhere east of Bali.

The Hong Kong Pavillion has a fine and reasonable Chinese restaurant operated by a New York's outstanding Sun Luck chain. It also has some authentic Chinese "opera" (what we'd call vaudeville), including a Larry Lee whose reverse-Chinese treatment of Bugs Bunny's Walter routine is funnier than the original.

STRANGE SNACKS

There are, of course, endless hamburger, hot dog and pizza stands. But just as cheap and more intriguing are some snack snacks from Sudan to Srinagar, all unavailable away from their homelands otherwise not worth trying.

WHAT TO SEE — Before seeing anything, mark your choices on your map, then do the Fair by sections. Otherwise, long hours and much energy and shoe leather will be wasted.

The most highly touted attractions have the longest lines, naturally. The best — if not too satisfactory — way to beat this is to try them early in the morning or late in the evening. Saturdays are very crowded, Sundays surprisingly light.

The leaders already are well known: Pepsi - Cola, Johnson (Wax), Ford, General Motors, General Electric, RCA, IBM, Africa, Oregon, Spain and Illinois, among others. A few others about which you may not have heard as much, but are also worthwhile:

Indonesia — A fairyland of exotic Oriental arts, crafts and colors, almost as real as being there.

Japan — Tasteful Japanese styling and architecture, and a chance to see the tea ceremony.

New York City — The huge panorama three - dimensional model of the city, showing every last building, is fascinating.

The Vatican — Noteworthy mainly for Michelangelo's Pieta sculpture which, like all great sculptures, has to be seen in the stone to be appreciated.

National Cash Registes — In addition to wondrous machines, see the microscopic Bible on a single sheet.

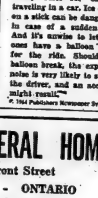
Also worthwhile are India, Malaysia, the Protestant-Orthodox Pavilion, Bell System, the United States Pavilion, Kodak and New York State.

Super nominations for the most tasteless exhibit go to Coca-Cola (an ostensible walk through of Pemote parts of the world where the pause refreshes, but the product is always too prominently in the picture), as an under an African waterfall, and seems like an endless TV commercial.

COOK AND SWAY

MONTREAL (CP) — Pauline LeGendre, who likes "a deck under my feet while I'm cooking," prepared a meal for the six-man crew of a Montreal tugboat. Now near the St. Lawrence river, she returned to cook from her mother, who prepared meals for eight children every day.

U.C.W. Meeting



U.C.W. UNIT 2

FRANKFORD — The August meeting of Unit 2 Frankford United Church Women, Unit 3, was held recently.

Fourteen members met in Rose Lowery hall for a potluck supper. Conveners for the successful event were Mrs. Ethel Bleecker, Mrs. Ada Bush and Mrs. Gertie Wessels.

If you wrap cut ham or bacon in a cloth that has been dampened with vinegar, you will find that it will keep the product from molding, report Home Economists at Macdonald Institute, Guelph.

Mother's Helper

VERY IMPORTANT are safety rules for children traveling in a car. Ice cream on a stick can be dangerous in case of a sudden stop. And it's unwise to let little ones have a balcony seat for the ride. Should a balloon break, the explosive noise is very likely to startle the driver, and an accidental might result.

WHAT'S YOUR E. Q?

Are you the sort of courteous good neighbor people like to live next to? Check these points of conduct, then see how you score.

1. Say a friendly "hello" when you meet neighbors on the street?

2 Mind your own business and avoid offering involved in others' arguments?

3. Avoid gossiping about the behavior of neighbors?

4. Control children and pets, so they don't damage a neighbor's property?

5. Avoid making so much noise that it becomes irritating to those around you?

6. Resist dropping in when you have nothing better to do?

7. If you have any cause for controversy with a neighbor, discuss it forthrightly instead of acting spiteful and peevish?

8. Borrow something from a neighbor only if there's no alternative, and return the object immediately and in good condition?

9. Return a favor whenever you have occasion to ask a neighbor to do you a good turn?

10. Keep property in neat repair and good trim to do your part toward keeping up the appearance of the neighborhood?

Bulletins From Birdland

CLIMBING

How amazed we would be if we suddenly saw a robin climbing up a tree trunk! No! many birds can do this. A few can, and at least two of them are so better equipped than a robin. All have different methods of maneuvring.

Black-and-white warblers are sometimes called black-and-white creepers, because instead of acting like other warblers they creep about tree trunks and branches. Yet they have no special equipment, their feet and tails being much the same as those of their close relatives. Unhurriedly and methodically they climb up the bark, hunting for insects and insect eggs that lie in the crevices, as this is their only food.

A true acrobat is the nuthatch. With toes like any ordinary song bird and so short a tail that it gives no help, this wonderful bird can clamber over a tree trunk upwards or downwards, forwards or backwards, perpendicularly or horizontally, even hanging upside down on a branch like a fly on the ceiling. Head first it may descend the twig, at the tip. No other bird can climb down a tree trunk head first. Like the warbler, it climbs for the purpose of finding food in the cracks — insect eggs and pupae.

PROPERLY EQUIPPED

There are a number of kinds of woodpeckers, and they should climb trees with ease because they are properly equipped for this feat. Most of them, though the three-toed woodpeckers are exceptions, are supplied with two toes which point forwards and two which point backwards, helping to prop up the bird in its perpendicular position on the trunk. Their tails also act like the back leg of an easel, for they end in stiff bristles which are stuck into the wood and keep the bird upright. Of course they, too, have their name suggests, are on trunks for the purpose of picking or "pecking" insects out from behind bark. They are noted for their ability to cling to either a perpendicular or an overhanging surface.

Brown creepers always seem to be playing hide and go seek. They wind around and up a tree trunk, supporting their weight (which is small) by bracing themselves against the trunk with their long, stiff tail feathers, which are worn at the tips. Their feet have quite a long and very much curved claws for hanging on to bark. They spiral up; then on reaching the place where branches begin they drop down, and start up another trunk. This should be easy because of their equipment.

Big-3 Test Ban Treaty Reduces Radioactivity

By MOHSIN ALI

LONDON (Reuters) — Mankind's first firm step toward averting a suicidal arms race —the partial nuclear test ban treaty—now has been in operation for 12 months with at least one major beneficial result.

The air is much freer of radioactive debris.

This is because the three major nuclear powers—Britain, the United States and the Soviet Union — have religiously observed the treaty's terms not to test nuclear weapons in the atmosphere, outer space or under water.

France is planning to conduct nuclear tests in the Pacific. Communist China has denounced the treaty, signed in Moscow on Aug. 5, 1963 So has Cuba. Of even greater importance, the big nuclear powers themselves have not advanced toward making the test ban complete.

This would involve agreement on outlawing underground nuclear tests, which have been continuing during the last year. All three nuclear powers agree this would be a good thing but they can not decide how to enforce the ban.

KEEPING WATCH

The United States and Britain insist there must be effective international on-site inspection to ensure there are no sneak underground blasts. Russia refuses to have foreign inspectors on her territory.

The three powers were able to agree on the partial test ban only because national detection methods are sufficient to ensure compliance. There is no need for international inspection.

There are several indications that the test ban treaty is even more successful than the words written on the historic document. Certainly it has won the respect of world opinion More, than 100 other nations have signed or adhered to the treaty

On the treaty's first anniversary, the big three powers issued a joint statement declaring their intention to do everything possible for the solution through negotiation of unresolved international problems.

There have been other signs that the treaty is having a impact on moves toward disarmament.

On Oct. 17 last, two months after the treaty was signed, the United Nations General Assembly approved a resolution banning the use of mass destruction in outer space.

Six months later, President Johnson and Premier Khrushchev made simultaneous but independent announcements of their intention to cut the production of fissionable materials.

Amaryllis Bargain in Beauty

By FLORA M. SAVILLE

Do you have an amaryllis bulb saved from last winter? It will soon be time to bring it in and give it a rest. This will prepare it for a new round of bloom. Bring it in well before the first frost, cut off the leaves to two inches above the bulb. Store in a cool dry place until December. You can lay the pot on its side and leave the bulb in the pot.

If you are planning to buy amaryllis bulbs look for them in florist shops, garden centres or the fall bulb catalogues. But only the top quality. They may seem expensive but when you know that they will bloom for 50 to 75 years with the right care you will see they are a bargain in beauty. Bulbs should be four to six inches in diameter.

QUITE UNIQUE

The new African Amaryllis are quite unique. It grows faster than the old varieties and blooms earlier. The blooms are immense measuring seven inches across. They have more blooms per plant and the color is a deep rich red. The original plants were found growing wild in Africa and they have been hybridized with the Dutch Amaryllis.

If you are buying the Holland bulbs ask for the pre-treated ones that are conditioned to bloom earlier.

The soil should be one part garden loam, one part leaf mold or peat moss and one part sand. With this mix in half a cupful of steamed bone meal. The pot should be just slightly larger than the bulb. Cover the drainage hole with chips of broken pots and fill the pot half full of the soil mix. Firm down firmly and water. Set the bulb in and fill up to cover lower quarter of bulb. Water again and firm soil around bulb.

WITEHOLD WATER

Place in a warm dark room until growth starts then move to a sunny warm window. Withhold water until scape grows. Too much watering before scape appears will produce leaves and no flower or very poor ones.

When scape is well started give half a cup of liquid fertilizer between watering. Feed every two weeks as long as the blooms last. Water often enough to keep soil slightly damp but not wet.

A south window at 75 degrees is best for good growth. This should bring the blooms out in four weeks. Cooler temperatures will delay the blooms to eight or more weeks.

Cut off the flowers as they fade with a sharp knife. When all the blooms are dead cut off the scape to two inches. Keep plant growing in sunny window. You can move it to a cooler room if you wish. The green leaves add much food to the bulb for next years bloom. Keep the plant growing and when all danger of frost is past, plant the pot and bulb in semi-shade. Water sparingly if weather is dry. Bring in before frost and treat as directed above.

Black-Maned Lion Shot In Remarkable Africa Safari

By JOE DUPUIS

MONTREAL (CP) — Take a typical hunter in Canada, accustomed only to stalking small game like rabbits and deer, and put him in front of a charging lion in east Africa. What happens?

Well, if his name is Jean Roch Beaudoin, he kills the king of the beasts with one steel-nerved shot from a 30-06 calibre rifle. Oh, yes. Make that a black-mane lion, coveted by the most daring of big-game hunters. Only 12 black manes were killed last year in all of Kenya, where Beaudoin got his Beaudoin, 29, is a shy, mildmannered surveyor for the city of Sherbrooke, Que., who got his once-in-a-lifetime chance to go on an African safari by winning a country-wide contest sponsored by a Canadian ammunitions firm.

All it cost him was the $5 he spent on a box of shells last fall which made him eligible. The winner was chosen by draw.

He had a remarkable hunt, even by big-game standards.

In the three weeks he was on safari near Narook, a small village in the Kenya highlands his bag included a lion, leopard, gazelle, two African buffalo, a boar, two warthogs, three zebras, snakes and several species of African antelope.

Besides each animal he displayed a deadly, slim, dispatching his quarry with the first shot in each instance.

"It was hunting in big - shot style," Beaudoin said on his return recently from his big adventure.

His hunting party included Swiss guide Stan Cedarcreen; a photographer, 17 native trackers and gun-bearers, and Lloyd Dunn, 35, a Sherbrooke insurance broker. Dunn, who hunted lions last year in South Rhodesia, went along on Beaudoin's ticket. The winner was allowed to take a companion, and Beaudoin said he asked Dunn, whom he had never met, to come along because "I wanted a good hunter with me."

Beaudoin's first kill was an Impala, a species of antelope about the size of the average Canadian deer. Then, he downed a 2,000-pound buffalo and a 100-pound leopard which measured six feet in length.

Beaudoin got the lion three days before the expedition was to end. They were scrambling an open plain in a land rover when a native seated on top of the vehicle shouted "Simba!"

SHOWED NO FEAR

"I thought I was watching a movie but there it was, a black-mane lion with a bulk and three cubs about 500 yards away," Beaudoin recalled.

"We crept up to within 200 yards of them. The black mane was walking in circles, pawing the ground, challenging us. The female and cubs had fled, but that lion wasn't afraid of us at all.

"The lion started coming towards us. I took a sight but I was so nervous I couldn't see the tip of my rifle. The second time I took my time and fired. The bullet hit him square in the shoulder and he dropped right there."

After the kill, the natives hoisted him on their shoulders and performed a traditional dance while chanting in tribal language:

"The Great White lion killer."

What did he learn in Africa that will help him in Canada?

"For one thing, I'll be a better shot," Beaudoin said. "In Africa, you can see your quarry quite clearly, and you know he can see you too. It's a game of nerves between the animal and you. So you know that first shot has to count.

Would stalking deer be a bore now?

"Oh, no, no," he replied quickly. "I'm real glad to be back."

Adventures of Tom Dower At Sea Sound Like Choice Chapters of Fiction Thriller

By CAL HOLLOWAY

HALIFAX (CP)—Tom Dower sails for solitude and some of his adventures at sea sound like choice chapters from a fiction thriller. He is a confirmed fatalist who keeps beating the odds.

Take the time the 45-year-old Newfoundlander's boat was barely missed by a whale twice the length of the craft. Or the time a savage sea swept over his boat and flung him into the icy Atlantic.

Tom Dower is a reticent man, a steel - muscled sailor who thinks like a poet and sometimes writes like one.

He has been following the merchant sea since his teens but in recent years, as a boat builder in Grand Falls, Nfld., he has taken to testing his boats on "holiday voyages" alone as far as West Africa or the Caribbean.

Since 1959 he has logged more than 16,000 miles in two boats powered by sail alone, both called Newfoundlander.

Dower didn't bring his first boat home when he attempted to sail from St. John's to West Africa in 1959. The 38-foot sloop was dashed to splinters against a cliff in the Canary Islands while he was ashore buying supplies.

MISSED TARGET

He was more successful on his second voyage which started in November, 1962, even though a broken bowsprit made him change course.

Intending to try again for West Africa, this time in a 30-foot ketch, he bowsprit broke four or five days out of St. John's. Deciding to use the trade winds instead of heading them, Capt. Dower went to the West Indies and sailed back to Newfoundland nine months later.

He told about his encounter with the whale during a recent stopover here.

Returning from the Caribbean, he struck "an oily calm" about 150 miles northeast of Cape Hatteras, N.C. Carrying full sails, jumbo, mizzen and mizzen—Dower was lying in a bot have waiting for wind when he heard a whale blowing and saw "an old loner about 70 feet long" heading straight at him.

When it became clear that the whale was not going to alter course, Dower began working the tiller like a paddle to turn the boat in line with the whale "so he would have less chance of hitting me."

JUST MISSED

"He just kept coming straight as a die and passed right along the port side. I could see the barnacles on him and I could have jumped on his back."

Next day the whale was around again, but not close to the boat. On the third day of the calm, Dower heard the whale blowing again and looked to see the beast "bearing down on me like an express train."

"He was driving water all over the place and I thought he was going to charge the boat. There wasn't time to cut the tiller and I figured, 'maybe this is it.'

"When he was no more than 10 feet from the beam, he dived, and went under the boat and came up the other side. . . . I didn't see him again."

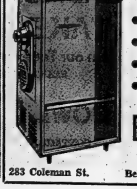
Dower, who believes his fate has long since been decided—"if you're going to drown, you'll drown" — barely missed being permanently separated from his boat one time a week out of St. John's.

Working in the dark to spike down the hatches during a storm, "a big sea blows in and floated me." In the turmoil he grasped a rope and hauled his 170 pounds back aboard.

PEACEFUL THERE'

But he says he doesn't go to sea for adventure and dismisses close calls as incidents.

"It's quiet and peaceful out there . . . It does something to a man."



He wrote a ballad about it on the long trip, describing the ocean after a storm with the little boat riding down the furrows, the sails slatting and ornered and refracting sunlight to create rainbows.

And the drift is just flowing and flying around,
Like really a strange thing to see.
For the ocean's just one mass of rainbows, my friend,
Rainbows there falling on me.
Aye, they fell from her masts, her bowsprit and all;
From her shroud and crosstrees as well,
And past the horizon I could no more see
For they rolled down the sides of each swell.

Front Tires Key to Good Steering

By EUGENE B. MILMOE

Good steering involves much more than the condition of the actual steering gear and linkage mechanism. Take front tires for example — they must maintain equal contact with the road surface. If one is softer (or flatter) than the other, it will set up more rolling resistance on its side of the car and in forward motion the car will therefore tend to bear (or steer) toward that particular side. This difference in rolling friction will also exist when one front tire is worn a lot more than the other, or has a different type of tread.

This is not to say that tires are the only influencing factors affecting steering control. . .but they are the most common. Other conditions to keep in mind are wheel balance, front end alignment, engine and shock absorber condition. Properly adjusted brakes, balanced linings and front bearing lubrication are obviously important, too.

C. G. asks: "When spark plugs are constantly oil-fouled, does it mean hotter plugs are needed?"

This could be the trouble — but it might be due to something more serious, such as oil pumping.

From T. N.: "My '60 sedan loses water but I don't know where. Hoses, hose connections, radiator and cap, and expansion plugs have all been checked out. I've also put newspapers on our garage floor but there's never a damp spot on them."

That leaves two suspects — a head gasket leak or some other leak which occurs only under pressure. A service station may be able to pinpoint it with a pressure test.

It is, if you wish to minimize engine and transmission wear.

Eleven Maple Trees Downed Under Protection

LONDON, Ont. (CP)—Eleven maple trees in nearby Lambeth village fell under the teeth of chain saws Friday as their chief protector appeared in court here on a charge of obstruction.

For the second day police had to pluck children from the branches of the trees bodily before workmen could move in to end a situation that has caused high feelings in the normally peaceful community of 3,500 six miles south of here.

Earle Beattie, a professor of journalism at the University of Western Ontario and chief spokesman for a group that had been trying to save the trees, was remanded on $500 bail until Sept. 15.

He was arrested Friday as he strode to the trees carrying a ladder.

The trees were ordered felled to make way for curbing and widening of a country road, but workmen were foiled in their first attempts Wednesday by children who clambered into the branches and refused to come down.

A dozen police accompanied the workmen Friday, but children ignored their orders to keep clear and made repeated attempts to climb the trees. One refused to move from under a tree and was finally taken away in a police cruiser.

Letter to Firm Is Released By Wishart

TORONTO (CP) — Attorney-General A. A. Wishart said Friday he prevented his Sault Ste. Marie, Ont., law partners from setting up a separate firm to handle government business after he was appointed to his cabinet post.

Denying charges of conflict of interest levelled by J. J. Greene, a candidate for the leadership of the Ontario Liberal party, Mr. Wishart made public a letter he sent to Ontario's official guardian April 2, shortly after he was appointed attorney-general.

He told the official guardian, who represents the estates of infants in certain matters coming before the courts, of the intention of his partners, Bruce Noble and G. F. Nort, to form a separate firm to carry on work as the guardian's agent in the Sault Ste. Marie area.

"While this is legal and proper, I'm taking the position as attorney-general that I would prefer that this new firm be not appointed as agent for your office," said the letter a copy of which Mr. Wishart showed to a reporter.

ABANDON PLAN

He said in an interview he has been informed by his partners that the idea of forming a separate firm has been abandoned.

Mr. Wishart released the letter in denying for the second time charges by Mr. Greene, member of Parliament for Renfrew South, that there is a conflict of interest in the case of Mr. Wishart's firm is representing the Scott Misener Steamship Company in an eviction dispute at Batchawana.

The firm claims ownership to a 226-acre farm at Batchawan, 50 miles north of Sault Ste. Marie, and is seeking to evict 250 Indians living there who claim squatters rights back to 1895.

Mr. Wishart, said Thursday that no department of govern ment has anything to do with the dispute. Only the lands and forests department which collects land tax from the company could be remotely connected, he said.

Miners Refuse Job Switch, Now on Strike

KERESLEY, England (AP) —Two desperately tired coal miners who began a sit-down strike half a mile underground last December have been awake every 15 minutes by mine officials conspiring with an accidents British law.

The two men, Graham Jones, 43, and Jim Pearce, 33, refused a job switch two weeks ago, company officials say, and forfeited a $6 bonus for that week. The men say they won't come up until they get the bonus.

Dr. McGregor Edwards, coal board medical officer, has examined the men daily. He said they were in a state of exhaustion Friday night but determined to continue their protest through the weekend.

Food and drink is sent down to the men every four hours by the national coal board, which runs Britain's Crown-owned coal mines.

Mine officials continued periodic visits to keep the men awake in order to comply with Britain's laws on safety in mines. A coal board spokesman explained the rule against sleeping in the pits was part of the Coal Mines Act passed at the beginning of the century.

SPIRIT OF PAST — Both the past and the present have their reserves in the Soviet republic city of Bukhara, Uzbekistan. Samarkand Still Belongs In Spirit to Tamerlane

By JOHN BEST

SAMARKAND (CP) — Lenin and the cosmonauts have a foreign time competing for attention in this ancient city with a name that conjures up visions of Arabian knights and oriental bazaars.

Statues and portraits of the father of revolutionary Russia are duly spotted here and there as in any Soviet city, and helmeted Gagarins and Titovs contemplate the heavens from a score of public billboards.

But somehow they seem out of place in Samarkand, second city of the Soviet republic of Uzbekistan. For Samarkand still belongs in spirit to Tamerlane, who made it the capital of a mighty Asiatic empire in the 14th and early 15th centuries.

The mayor, Rakmat Yulmatov, likes to dwell on modern statistics—Samarkand has 250,000 people; this year it's building 15,000 new apartments; it has 57 industries including one making tractors, another making cinema equipment and a third turning out super-phosphates for agriculture; and it has in recent years become an important scientific research centre.

STRESS THE PAST

But when it comes time for sightseeing, chances are the English-speaking guide will concentrate on the antiquities, especially those relating to Tamerlane, who was born not far away and who lies buried here.

Another place where the past seems to overshadow the present is Bukhara, 150 miles west of Samarkand. It has retained the flavor of an Eastern city, with mosques at almost every turn, although most now are closed or being used for purposes other than religion.

Economically, Bukhara has become important as the centre of a large natural gas industry. Reserves in nearby fields are said to be astronomical. A pipeline is being built to carry gas 1,500 miles north to the Ural industrial region.

Samarkand, apart from its antiquities, is best known as the home of the U.S.S.R. Caracul Breeding Research Institute. Caraculs are small lambs, usually black but sometimes grey or brown, raised in the Asiatic drylands principally for their fur.

Caracul culture is the only activity now possible in most of arid Uzbekistan There are 200 co-operatives and 50 state farms in the republic engaged in raising them. The institute itself has under its control farms with a caracul population of 500,000 out of the total of 13,000,000 in all of Uzbekistan.

FEW TOURISTS

An industry that has been sadly neglected here, and in Uzbekistan generally, is tourism. Last year 230 tourists visited Samarkand; this year it's hoped 1,500 will.

To help develop the tourist industry, says Mayor Yulmatov, Moscow is providing 1,000,000 rubles for a new 310-room hotel.

Fifty per cent of the income from tourism is earmarked for restoration of old buildings and monuments and religious shrines appears casual and perfunctory, at best. Many of the old monuments and religious are simply falling into ruin.

One centre that isn't being allowed to fall to pieces, however, is the Gur Amir, built 5½ centuries ago as the mausoleum of Tamerlane. Here he lies with his two sons, a grandson and his spiritual adviser, Mir Seid Berekeh.

A small light casts a glow over the burial chamber. Outside, in the courtyard, is Tamerlane's throne, carved in grey marble.

Only the occasional group of visitors passes by.

WET HEAT

VANCOUVER (CP) — City residents who heat their homes with natural gas are getting higher gas bills this summer. The B.C. Hydro and Power Authority says gas bills in June were on an average about $1 higher than in recent years..because of the unusual amount of wet weather. July and August bills are also expected to show residents used more heat than usual.

$439,600,000 Surplus Shown In Four Months

OTTAWA (CP)—The federal government's financial operations ran up a surplus of $439,600,000 during the first four months of the current fiscal year compared with a $52,100,000 surplus in the same period last year, Finance Minister Gordon reported Friday night in his monthly financial statement.

In July, latest month reported, the surplus was $88,400,000 on revenues totalling $635,900,000 and spending of $547,500,000. Last year the July surplus was $33,000,000.

For the April-July period this year revenues were $2,407,500,000 and spending $1,967,900,000. A year earlier the figures were $1,952,200,000 for revenue; $1,901,100,000 for spending.

Traditionally, however, federal bills tend to pile up towards the end of the fiscal year and Mr. Gordon has forecast a budgetary deficit of $455,000,000 this year, compared to a deficit of $619,000,000 in 1963-64.

Known Fact Gang Members Were Cheated Children

DEAR DORIS: Something that's bothering me is the number of children who come home from school to an empty house, get the key from the hiding place, let themselves in, get bread and jam or peanut butter and go out again to run about the neighborhood like a lot of stray dogs till 6 p.m. or 7 p.m. Then Mommy and Daddy arrive home irritable from the rat race.

One wee ten-year-old said, "I'm afraid of the empty rooms, but Mom and Dad must work for money. Gee, I wish my Mommy was home when I came from school. I get scared."

Then, Miss Clark, you know the rest of the story. They go to a neighbor's, she gets rid of them so they go to another and another. The only children they can find to accept them till their parents come home are derelicts or hoodlums where they get in bad.

DORIS CLARK

I feel parents should be forced to see that someone is home when the child arrives from school. No wonder children are confused, mixed up. They feel rejected, unloved and unwanted, so they fill up with resentment against their parents and society who have treated them so. They join gangs for the attention they never get at home.

They talk of parents loving their children, but there are those who do not, believe me.—ONE WHO LOVES CHILDREN.

DEAR ONE: It's a known fact that most gang members were cheated children. Cheated of the love and security of a serene home with a mother in it. Cheated of somebody to come home to: a somebody who said "Hello, Johnnie. I'm here. Have an apple!"

Nine times out of ten Johnnie then runs out to play. But she's there!

• • •

DEAR DORIS: I am in love with a boy three years older than me. It's hard to believe when you look at our ages. I'm also getting fonder of another boy who is only a year older. I know they both like me.

I think they're both cute and polite and nice but don't know which one to go with. They've both asked me. What should I do? —ANXIOUS TO KNOW.

DEAR ANXIOUS: In love, little girl? Then am I to believe that "love" makes the heart grow fonder for somebody else? If you didn't read my second, "What Is Love?", which appeared recently, write in for it, enclosing ten cents and a stamped, self-addressed envelope.

CONFIDENTIAL TO HATTER: The hat to go with a round face should be one which counteracts the impression of roundness. That is, the crown should be high. The brim, if any, should be wide; perhaps tilted. I would not recommend a pill box.

Your best idea is to go to a hat store or department and have the hat buyer help you to select a style which will do you justice.

(Doris Clark, Master of Social Work, is a graduate of McGill, Toronto and McMaster universities, and has had broad experience in social work. If you would like help with your problems, write to her in care of this newspaper, enclosing a stamped, self-addressed envelope.)

Pinch Hitting

By GARRY ALEXANDER

Swimmers of the Quinte area and fans alike are in for quite a thrill this coming Wednesday night at the Belleville Kinsmen pool.

Canadian National Indies' diving champion and one of Canada's top representatives at Olympic meets, Judy Stewart, will headline a gala water show there.

All the grace and excitement of championship diving and the beauty of synchronized swimming will be on display in what appears to be the best-yet in the series of annual fall swim shows here.

Miss Stewart will be accompanied by two other Canadian diving champions—but their performance will form only part of the show.

Don Webb, well known in this area, will also star in the diving exhibitions, as well as presenting a comedy routine with Lorne Ryan and Bill Kneshaw. This trio calls itself "the diving maniacs," and from all reports the boys are just as funny as they are good.

A big crowd which attended the show last fall will remember the Peterborough Ornamentals, a widely acclaimed group of synchronized swimmers. They will be back for a repeat performance Wednesday.

Along the same lines will be a performance by the Ontario duet champions.

Getting back to Webb for a moment, it might be pointed out that he is the former world high diving champion, losing his title this week in stiff competition at the Canadian National Exhibition. Don is married to a Belleville girl, Mary Ann Ray, and has appeared here before in both diving and trampoline exhibitions.

While Miss Stewart's performance will be the highlight of the show, it is not an "all-import" affair. Local swimmers will also be seen in action. Awards will be presented throughout the evening to all swimmers who have participated in the summer program at the pool.

The show will get under way at eight o'clock Wednesday evening and a large crowd is expected to turn out to see Miss Stewart, one of the world's top divers, in action.

Another rainy weekend will drive local sportsmen just about off the deep-end—and after a quick glance at the sports schedule, it's easy to figure out why.

The Quinte Hydroplane regatta is currently in full swing at Zwicky's Island, with final heats and trophy presentations slated for around five o'clock this afternoon.

The Quinte Driving and Riding Club, after a washout last Saturday, has another top harness card lined up for the Fairgrounds tonight, at 8.00. A number of top horses, including Black Diamond Stakes winner, "Fine-L-Touch," will be running for the money.

The city's two top softball squads face do-or-die situations in OASA playdowns.

Ellis Juniors hope to cut down the powerful Oshawa Scugog Cleaners' team in the second game of their Junior "A" series, at the CNRA Park this evening at 8.30. The chore won't be an easy one, since Oshawa has an excellent team, but don't count the battling Ellis boys out yet.

Sunday afternoon, at four o'clock, Trudeau Motors make their second run at Kingston TAS Men in senior "B" action. Also down 1-0 in the series, Trudeau are confident they can "take" big Bube VanHooser and his mates to square it. That game, too, is slated for the CNRA diamond.

Back to Ellis Juniors, this time the baseball edition: Oshawa will again supply the action, and again with a one-game lead, in tomorrow's OBA playoff tilt at the Fairgrounds. Game time is 1.30 and if Belleville can win the first tilt, the deciding game will follow as part of a twin bill.

Canniffton's Int. "C" baseballers open an OBA series at home against Campbellville this afternoon at 2. Sunday, the same team meets Fetboro on the latter's diamond in the seventh and deciding game for the South Hastings crown, also at 2.00.

Down Kingston way, Belleville Panorama meet the strong Italia club there in soccer action tonight at 8.30, while Trenton Commercial Printers go there for the final and deciding game of their OASA Int. "A" series Sunday, at 2.00 p.m.

Lawn bowlers are busy, too, with Trenton's Benedict-Proctor men's doubles tournament being played at the Belleville club all day today. Some 60 entries are taking part.

Three Behind Archer

'Old Man' Ben Hogan Bids For Jackpot

By BERNIE KENNEDY

With the third round coming up in the $200,000 World Golf Championship, there was the great Ben Hogan just three shots back of the leader, young George Archer, and giving no indication he might be ready to fall.

Hogan, is 52, in semi-retirement for almost 10 years, yet was one of the greatest players in the world from tee to green.

If Hogan could putt, they said, he could still win the big championships. How Hogan can putt, and he proved he is able to still play golf good enough to win.

In a drenching rain, Hogan sank putts of 35 and 40 feet on the 14th and 17th holes, respectively, for a second-round 70.

Making him even more formidable is the fact he is playing on the same course—only easier —where in 1951 he won the third of his four Open championships, shooting one of the two sub-par rounds of the four days.

Archer, the 24-year-old ex-cowboy from Houston bothered him a bit as he soared to a 67 for a total of 139 and a one-stroke lead over PGA winner Bobby Nichols and Briton Peter Butler.

Two strokes back were Arnold Palmer, Australian Kel Nagle and Richard Sikes. Palmer shot a 71 on the second round.

Tony Lema and Chi Chi Rodrigues were bunched in the group at 142, while Gay Brewer and U.S. Open winner Ken Venturi were at 144.

Of the 72 golfers in the international starting field of 155 qualified for the final two rounds with cuts of 148 and better.

Torontonians Al Balding and Alvie Thompson made it. Balding had a 146 and Thompson stayed in with 147.

Wilf Homenuk of Winnipeg carded 150 in the two rounds, George Knudson of Toronto shot 151 and Moe Norman of Toronto 160.

Sam Mele To Manage Red Sox ?

MINNEAPOLIS (AP) — Minnesota manager Sam Mele and club president Calvin Griffith shrugged off Friday a report that Mele is heading to Boston Red Sox as manager in 1965.

"All I can say is nobody has contacted me, and I certainly haven't or don't need anybody about it," Mele replied when asked about a front-page story in the Minneapolis Star.

"I'm very happy with my job here," Mele said.

Griffith was there to get permission from Mr. Griffith to talk to me, and as far as I know nobody has asked for that permission."

Griffith confirmed this point. Mele has been signed on a year-to-year basis by Griffith since he became Minnesota manager in 1961, taking over from Cookie Lavagetto.

CANADIANS LOSE

MONTREAL (CP) — New Zealand defeated Canada 2-1 Friday night in Junior Davis Cup tennis action to clinch third place in the tournament that started last Monday. The United States and Mexico, both undefeated, play off today to determine the first- and second-place finishers. Canada took fourth place.

WBA Bans Liston-Clay Rematch

NORFOLK, Va. (AP) — The World Boxing Association voted Friday to ban a Cassius Clay-Sonny Liston return bout for the heavyweight championship and said the world title would be stripped of his world crown if he goes through with the match.

"In the eyes of the WBA this would be no championship match," said U.S. commissioner Abe Greene.

He said the state accepting the bout would be suspended from the WBA, and the same suspension would apply to any individuals connected with it.

"If a non-member state puts on the match," Greene said "all boxers and managers and all others associated in WBA activities would be directed not to do business in the suspended state."

In a stormy morning session, delegates voted 27-2 not to approve the match. Kentucky and Nebraska cast the dissenting votes but later reversed their decision to put the convention into unanimous accord on the issue.

Despite the WBA ban, International Promotions, "Somewhere in the United States, the fight will go on in November."

"Now that Liston has been ruled out," he continued, "who is Clay going to fight? Floyd Patterson? Doubtful. Eddie Machen? Who's going to promote Clay against one of them?"

The WBA refused sanction of the fight because of its ban on return-bout clauses. Liston has been dropped from the WBA ratings and there's no indication he will be reinstated. It is believed Ernie Terrell will be moved up as the No. 1 contender.

States not members of the WBA are New York, California, Florida, Arkansas, Delaware, Georgia, Iowa, Kansas, Nebraska, New Hampshire, Oklahoma, South Carolina, South Dakota and Wyoming.

New York and California already have disapproved the match.

Healey Fans 21 In Tweed Victory

NAPANEE (Special) — "Flamingo" Blaine Healey was at his strikeout best here last night while pitching Tweed Lombanks into the next round of the OABA Intermediate "C" playdowns.

Healey struck out 21 batters and his mates made the most of opposition errors as Lombanks clipped Battersea 7-3 in the third and deciding game of the series.

Lombanks will meet the Madoc-Frankford winner, in the next series.

Tweed scored twice without a hit in the first inning and never trailed as Batterseas cut the lead to 4-3 after seven innings.

Healey gave up five hits and walked a pair but his 21 strikeouts never gave the losers a chance to rally.

McMahon also allowed just five hits on the Battersea mound but six errors helped Tweed to the win. McMahon fanned six and passed two.

Lorne Carleton got two of the Tweed singles, with one each for Don LeSage, Ray LeSage and Garry Gorr.

Tweed's home run was the big blow for Batterseas.

100-Foot Dive Don Webb Avoids Bad Injury

TORONTO (CP) — Defending champion Don Webb of Toronto failed to complete a flying back somersault Friday but has straightened in time to hit the water safely from the 100-foot level at the Canadian National Exhibition's world professional high diving championship.

Webb, competing in the fifth day of the championship which started at the 60-foot level Monday and progressed 10 feet each day, was unable to complete the back section of the dive that won him the title last year.

But the 31-year-old Webb hit the water feet first and waved to the fans as he surfaced. He was not awarded any points for the dive and fell to 14th in the points standings.

John Deininger of Seattle holds a narrow lead over 13 going into the finals today from the 110 - foot level with 933 points. A total of 945.00 is at stake, which includes a first prize of $2,500 and a second prize of $1,500.

Dave Casper of Overland, Mo., is second in the competition with 926 points. Other finalists of Waterloo, Ont. ,is the top Canadian with 730.

PLAN 43-MAN TEAM

Midgets Still Popular Hady Pins Own Shoulders

By GARRY ALEXANDER
Staff Sportswriter

Jim Hady forgot the "Gentleman" part of his name last night and tried to beat Professor Hiro at his own game.

Hady almost turned the trick, too, in a roughhouse main bout at the weekly wrestling show, but right about now he's probably still trying to figure out what happened.

Hiro and Hady had split the first two falls and our hero ripped into Prof. Hiro with murder in his eye entering the rubber round. He hammered manager Fred Atkins' pride and joy around the ring with body slams, hoisted him high in the sky and dropped him back with his favorite, a standing shoulder drop.

Into the corner dove Hiro and Hady latched onto him from behind. Both went to the mat, with Hady apparently in command of the situation, going for a shoulder pin.

Referee Joe Golioh lost no time in counting to three—only one thing was amiss. While Hady was planning his fellow wonders, his own were also pressing the mat and they were the target of Mr. Golioh's three count.

Hiro and Atkins celebrated with a short victory dance while Hady scratched his head in bewilderment.

Hady deserved a better fate. He came right back after taking plenty of Hiro judo chops in the first fall and gave the Japanese wrestler as much as he took in the knock-down, belt 'em action. Hiro finally got the opening nod with a couple of tremendous Judo blows to the throat after tossing Hady off the ropes.

That fall took 23 minutes but Hady wrapped up the second one in short order, using a series of body slams off the ropes and finishing Hiro with his shoulder drop after shaking off a few judo licks. The fall took just four minutes and the final was over in half that time.

The midget tag-team bout, moved into the final slot on the card, was jolly good fun for all concerned, as usual, and helped boost the attendance.

Pancho Lopez and sidekick Farmer Pete won the third and deciding fall when Lopez caught Irish Jackie in an airplane spin. Jackie, and partner Billy the Kid, had pinned the opener when The Kid leaped on Lopez from the top rope while his partner held him in place. Lopez had fought the "battle of the short tag rope" for 12 minutes while Farmer took a beating before finally getting the bout for the "good guys" in the second fall. DiPaolo re-topped the first bout of the evening over Glen Lenning, although "The Pro" has forgotten a few of his tricks.

Gold Medal Rowers Eliminated

NEW YORK (AP)—Four gold medal winners in past Olympic Games were eliminated Friday in the repechage — second-chance—heats in the trials for the U.S. Olympic rowing team.

A fifth, air force Capt. Wayne Frye, earned a place in Saturday's finals but not in the event in which he won his medal.

Frye, who was a member of the victorious Navy eight in the 1952 Olympics, teamed up with Richard Schwartz of the New York Athletic Club in the pair with coxswain event and won the second trial heat in the fairly good time of 7:31.5.

Eliminated in the pairs without coxswain were two teams of former Olympians Chuck Logg, a 1952 pairs winner, and another 1952 Navy oarsman, Capt. Henry Proctor, representing the NYAC, and the Yale pair of Charles Grimes and Don Beer, both of whom rowed in the 1960 Olympic eight, were beaten.

Friday's repechages filled out the five events being contested this week. The double sculls finalists were determined in Thursday's heats.

Qualifying with Frye and Schwartz in the single heat of the pairs with coxswain were one entry from the College Boat Club of Philadelphia and two from the Laconia, N.H., Rowing Association.

Orioles, Sox Split But Yanks Beaten

Baltimore Still Tops

By MURRAY CHASS
Associated Press Sports Writer

Hank Aguirre is notorious for his inability to hit a baseball. Norm Siebern is noted for his conspicuous nature.

Both stepped out of character Friday night.

Aguirre, reputed to be the weakest hitting pitcher in the majors, was hitless in 41 times at bat this season until he bashed a single and drilled a three-run double in Detroit Tigers' 12-1 victory over Los Angeles Angels in the first game of their two-night doubleheader.

The walls of inconspicuous fame came tumbling down on Siebern as he committed an error that led to Chicago White Sox' 2-1 triumph over Baltimore Orioles in the first game of their doubleheader.

Sensations in the spotlight, but in a more favorable manner, Siebern slammed a two-run homer in the Orioles' 8-3 second-game victory. The split enabled the Orioles to remain the first place in the American League, one-half game ahead of Chicago.

The Orioles led 1-0 behind rookie Wally Bunker's two-hitter going into the ninth inning of the opener. Pinch hitter Gene Stephens hit a routine grounder to second base. Jerry Adair flipped to Siebern, but the first baseman dropped the ball.

SINGLE PLATES PAIR

A walk to Jim Landis and a late throw on a sacrifice bunt loaded the bases before Floyd Robinson lined a single to center field, driving in two runs.

Siebern's homer in the nightcap, off starter John Buzhardt in the third inning, broke a 1-1 deadlock and put the Orioles ahead to stay.

In other AL games, Detroit completed a sweep of their doubleheader with an 8-7 nightcap victory over the Angels. Boston Red Sox outslugged New York Yankees 8-3, Cleveland Indians defeated Kansas City Athletics 4-1 and Washington Senators trimmed Minnesota Twins 3-1.

Bunker held the White Sox hitless for 6 2-3 innings of the first game until Pete Ward singled. He wound up losing his fourth game against 13 victories. Gary Peters, who gave up only a fifth-inning homer to Earl Robinson, brought his record to 15-7.

The Orioles broke out in a power barrage behind Steve Barber in the nightcap. Brooks Robinson singled, Siebern hit a two-run blast with his 22nd homer in the third and Sam Bowens connected with two on in the fifth.

FORCED TO LEAVE

Aguirre ended his batting average to .045 with his rare safety in support of the one-hitter he hurled through seven innings before he was forced to retire with a pulled leg muscle. The victory was only his fourth in 11 decisions but his second in six days.

Don Demeter, who earlier drove in two runs, knocked in the winning run in the second game with a seventh-inning sacrifice fly. Norm Cash, who batted in four first-game runs, collected three hits. Jake Wood-cock's two-run single capped a five-run rally for the Angels in the fifth, giving them a temporary 7-6 lead.

Al Downing appeared on his way to a victory over the Red Sox until he became wild and walked Ed Bressoud and Jim Smith in the seventh inning. Felix Mantilla followed with his 21st homer, wiping out a 3-1 Yankee lead. Dick Stuart added his 30th home run in the eighth.

Sonny Siebert scattered seven hits and socked his first major league homer for the Indians. Chico Salmon also smashed a Cleveland homer and Dick Howser stole home for another tally.

A boot by Minnesota's Rich Rollins led to two Senator runs in the sixth inning. Chuck Hinton was safe on the miscue that followed Ed Brinkman's single. A wild pitch helped the runners along before Don Lock's grounder and a single by Roy Sievers brought them home.

Burgess Stalls Phillies' Pennant Drive

By DICK COUCH
Associated Press Sports Writer

Smoky Burgess hadn't circled the bases in 5½ months but his 37-year-old legs had no trouble making the trip.

Burgess, Pittsburgh's scout, veteran catcher, rifled a home run—only his second of the season—and the three-run, ninth-inning shot lifted the Pirates to a 4-3 victory over the National League - leading Philadelphia Phillies Friday night.

The round man unloaded against reliever Ed Roebuck, capping a four-run rally in the ninth that temporarily snagged the Phillies' pennant drive.

Burgess, a .299 lifetime batter nearing the end of a 15-year major league career, had not homered since June 13. He had driven in only 11 runs and was struggling at a .240 batting clip while playing infrequently behind No. 1 catcher Jim Pagliaroni.

The loss, Philadelphia's third in 10 games, trimmed the Phillies lead to 6½ games over the runner-up Cincinnati Reds, whose game with Houston Colts was rained out.

Third - place San Francisco Giants nipped Milwaukee Braves 3-2 on Lee Maye's ninth-inning error, St. Louis Cardinals topped Los Angeles Dodgers 5-3 behind southpaw Ray Sadecki and New York Mets outslugged Chicago Cubs 12-10.

WEAKENED IN NINTH

Philadelphia's Jim Bunning, seeking his sixth straight victory and 12th of the season, had a three-hitter and a 2-0 lead going into the ninth. Bill Virdon led off with a bloop single to centre and, one out later, Jerry Lynch drew a walk.

Roebuck replaced Bunning and Willie Stargell hit his first pitch for a run-scoring single. Tony Taylor hit into the right field stands.

Bunning starred the Phillies' two-run eighth with a single, the fifth hit off Joe Gibbon, took second on Cookie Rojas' single and scored on Johnny Callison's double. Rojas also scored while Callison was being run down between second and third.

Milwaukee's Maye let Del Crandell's single get by him in the ninth and Jim Davenport raced home from first base with the Giants' winning run. Loser Wade Blasingame walked Harvey Kuenn in the sixth and Willie Mays' crashed a homer for a 2-2 tie after Joe Torre's two-run homer in the second had put the Braves in front.

Bill White hit a three-run homer in the Cardinals' five-run third inning that erased a 2-0 Dodger lead. Sadecki, touched for a two-run homer by Willie Davis in the first inning, checked the Dodgers on five hits thereafter for his 11th triumph.

The Mets snapped a 10-10 tie in the eighth on Joe Christopher's two-run single off the Cubs and won for the ninth time in their last 11 games. Ron Hunt singled home two runs before Christopher delivered the go-ahead run. Jim Hickman doubled the last run in.

Brilliant Offence

Riders Trounce Eskimos 56-8

By JOHN SHORT

EDMONTON (CP) — Saskatchewan Roughriders picked on the porous Edmonton Eskimos for a brilliant offensive performance on a soggy field Friday night and wound up with a 56-3 romp in a Western Football Conference game before 12,807 fans.

Leading the Riders into a tie with Calgary Stampeders for second place were quarterback Ron Lancaster, halfback Ed Buchanan and flanker Hugh Campbell.

Lancaster scored a touchdown, heaved four scoring passes and gained 198 yards on 15 completions in 27 attempts. Buchanan scored two touchdowns, gained 108 yards rushing and 102 yards on three pass completions. Campbell caught seven passes in 10 attempts for three touchdowns and 146 yards.

Riders' total offence was 562 yards.

Edmonton's points were collected on a one-yard touchdown charge by fullback Tiu Tobin and a safety touch. Bob Dimonton scoring plays were set up by pass interceptions.

RIDERS SCORE EARLY

Riders scored touchdowns the first three times they got the ball. They led 21-0 after the first quarter and 35-0 at halftime.

Only four plays after the kickoff, Saskatchewan went ahead. Lancaster threw a 10-yard TD pass to Campbell.

Next time Riders got the ball, they scored even faster. On the first play after a punt, Buchanan ran 54 yards behind fierce blocking for a 75-yard touchdown. Buchana contributed a 46-yard run before Lancaster's next touchdown.

Fumbles led to two Saskatchewan touchdowns. The first was committed by quarterback Gary Hertzfeldt on the Edmonton 44 and Saskatchewan moved in to score in six plays. Lancaster Hertzfeldt around the right side from the right.

The Roughriders' next touchdown came on a 10-yard burst by Buchanan.

Saskatchewan scoring wound up late in the fourth quarter when backup quarterback Lancaster to Campbell.

Edmonton's offence generated only 207 yards. Hertzfeldt and Lynn Amadee managed five completions in 10 attempts for 51 yards.

Jones, Ward May Appeal Big Fines

INDIANAPOLIS (AP) — Parnelli Jones and Rodger Ward, both winners of the Indianapolis 500-mile race, discussed Friday the possibility of appeals after receiving fines totalling $1,700 for ignoring the yellow caution flag in the Milwaukee 200-mile race Sunday.

Henry Banks, director of competition for the U.S. Auto Club, said the fine of $1,100 against Jones, the Milwaukee winner, was the highest ever imposed by USAC.

Ward, who finished second, was fined $600.

Jones finished more than two miles in front in a rear-engine Lotus-Ford and Ward was more than a mile ahead of the rest of the field in a rear-engine Watson-Ford. Jones' car won $13,000 and Ward's $6,000, with the drivers getting a percentage each.

USAC rules require drivers to maintain their positions at relatively moderate speeds when the track is dangerous because of wrecks or rain.

Ward said later he wanted to see the lineup before going records of the Milwaukee race before deciding whether to appeal.

"They're complaining because we passed some cars," Ward said. "I was not. Anna (Jones) did. I had to keep my position."

The Milwaukee race was under the yellow flag twice because of light rain and on other occasions because of wrecks.

Hawks Look At 80 Top Amateurs

ST. CATHARINES (CP) Ken Campbell, newly-appointed director of player personnel for Chicago Black Hawks of the National Hockey League, said Friday that 80 of the outstanding amateur players in the Hawk system have been invited to the amateur hockey camp for tryouts Monday.

The junior arm of midget and juvenile age and none have had previous Junior A experience. Hawk tryouts continue until Friday.

The Black Hawks, with 29 players, open their professional camp here Sept. 8.

But West Gets Records

Easteners Big Winners

WINNIPEG (CP) — Eastern athletes dominated the winner's circle but the West broke most of the records as the two-day Canadian age-class track and field championships ran through 33 events Friday.

With Pat Filipenko of Stettler, Alta. sidelined them off with a record leap of 21 feet, 7¼ inches in the midget men's broad jump—first final of the day—Western competitors shattered three Canadian records.

Don Kent, led by a strong central Ontario contingent, won 24 events, broke one national mark, equalled another and set standards in two events for which 60 records had previously been ratified.

Records set here are unofficial until ratified by the Amateur Athletic Union of Canada. The AAU does this once a year.

Filipenko's jump was 1¾ inches better than the AAU listed record established in 1961.

NEW HIGH JUMP MARK

Other record performances were turned in by Cathy Leipert of Vancouver, whose five feet, two inches in the midget women's high jump was one half inch better than a 1963 mark; Cathy Leipert of Vancouver, who set a new midget women's javelin record of 97 feet, 4½ inches with a throw of 128 feet, 10 inches; and a team from northwestern Ontario which shaved one-tenth of a second off the old record in the 4x220 men's 880-yard relay.

A four-man squad from central Ontario equalled the record of 49 seconds in the junior men's 440-yard relay.

Setting records in two events which did not have previous standards listed were Cathy Chapman of Toronto with an 11.3 - second clocking in the juvenile women's 80-metre hurdles and Ron Zanin of Windsor, with a time of 44.5 seconds in the juvenile men's 120-yard hurdles.

Bobo Olson Thumps Thornton

SAN FRANCISCO (AP) — Bobo Olson, who held the middleweight title 10 years ago, renewed his bid for a light-heavyweight championship shot by pounding out a unanimous decision Friday night over Wayne Thornton.

Olson, 36, of San Francisco, and weighing 171½, carried the fight to the 178-pound Fresno, Calif., Irishman throughout the televised battle.

Referee Frankie Carter, who several times warned Thornton for clinching and kidney punching, scored the bout 6-2. Judge Jack Downey also had it 6-3 and Judge Elmo Costa 5-4, both for Olson.

"Now, just a minute," Teddy Morris protested to Toronto Argonaut president Tommy Allison, "you don't have to apologize for me."

Allison was on the phone trying to explain to increasingly directors of the Big Four football club his reasons for hiring Morris as coach after Lew Hayman had turned down his offer. "But Teddy's all we've got to fall back on," Allison kept telling the chaps on the other end of the line who apparently had suffered a case of shock after hearing the news.

"I got mad when he kept repeating that line," Teddy recalled in an interview this week. "Nobody has ever had to apologize for me for anything in my life."

But he wasn't mad enough to shuck the whole thing and Argonauts, indeed, were fortunate that this one-time great little player chalk up (a) punch Allison in the nose or (b) walk out on the club.

That little interlude in the somewhat colorful life of Teddy happened in the late summer of 1945.

He carried only 170 pounds on his five-foot-nine-inch frame and he was one of the Toronto halfbacks in Canada during the 1930s with Argos. He played on three Cup - winning teams in 1933-37-38 and, before he left the scene after the 1940 season when the panic started for American coaches and players, he had piloted the club to three straight national titles starting in 1945.

And he laid the foundation for one of the most productive eras in the history of any club in the country—five Cup victories in eight years. Teddy sat in the stands in 1950 and 1952 when the Frank Clair coached Argos last won the big game.

NEVER MISSED GAME

Teddy, who played for Argos from 1931 to 1939 and never missed a game, has spent almost 40 of his 54 years preaching, playing and coaching football teams. He never received more than $600 a season as a player and his pay as coach was $5,000 a year.

Now, as a general farmer in suburban Toronto and scout for Canadian talent for Argonauts, he can buy and sell possibly the nine head coaches in the Canadian Football League and have a few thousand dollars left over in the bank.

He is one of the game's best salesmen and one of the most ardent supporters of Minor Football Week to be held across Canada Sept. 20-26, sponsored by the Canadian Rugby Union.

He was a product of the minors, playing in the Toronto Playgrounds Midget League. "I'd rather see kids of 13 and 17 playing football than wiggling around on a dance floor," says this sincere, unassuming man.

"If kids want to blow off steam, I say let them do it on a football field rather than on a dance floor and getting into trouble. You'll rarely find that kid under 20 who have played sport get into trouble. In my personal experience with football dating back to the late 1920s, I can think of only one or two fellows who had a brush with the law."

"Football is a tough bodily-contact game. It teaches kids to take physical knocks and come back for more. It teaches them to co-operate with others because football is a team effort and many things you learn on the field aren't in the school books and these remain with you for the rest of your life."

AID IN PROMOTION

There are about 100,000 kids playing the game "from St. John's, Newfoundland, to Victoria British Columbia," says Bill Leveridge of Toronto, secretary of the CBU Minor Football Week committee. The CBU receives $70,000 a year from the nine CFL clubs for promotion of minor football and the pros spend another $150,000-$200,000 annually on farm teams.

"Great," says Teddy. "There are 100,000 youngsters who aren't likely to get into trouble with the police."

He conceded that it was "rough" for young Canadians to graduate into the pro ranks. Only a handful make it but, as Morris points out, "a boy's goal as a pro player should come as an after-thought, not as an object."

Morris has dropped eight pounds to 162 from his playing weight. He used his football money to buy a couple of farms, sold 100 acres to the federal government for a sum well into the six figures. He's now sitting on another 100-acre farm, and working at it.

He isn't in any hurry to sell because he likes the life. Besides, with the booming price of land, he thinks it'll be worth a — million one of these years.

Not bad for a guy who didn't have enough for high school. "What I've learned about life and people has come from football," he says.

Oakville Pair Win Junior Tennis Crowns

TORONTO (CP) — Mike and Debbie Wilson of Oakville were among the winners in the Toronto city open junior tennis championships Friday.

Mike Wilson won the under-18 boys division with a 6-4, 6-4 victory over Ron Sloan of Toronto while his sister won the under-16 girls title, defeating Marie Kivisild of Toronto 7-5, 6-4.

The under-18 girls title went to Marnie Seiferd of Toronto Central, 6-0, 6-4 victory over Ontario junior title holder Mary Ann Gaszlik of Galt.

Karen Will of Clarkson, Ont., had an easy time defeating Vera Komar of Galt 6-1, 6-0 in the under-12 girls competition.

The Tracks

FORT ERIE, Ont. (CP) — Ninth Wave and Saucygate combined talents at Fort Erie Race Track Friday to provide a $1,024.10 daily double, the second largest double payoff of the season.

The largest payoff of the season — $1,589.20 — was returned Aug. 17 when Picture and Cluny Miss won the opening events.

There were 34 $2-tickets and two $5-tickets cashed on the 9 and 8 winning combination.

Ninth Wave, ridden by young apprentice Alan Cuthbertson came on the stretch to outlast Bar Hostess and Belsadia. He returned $72.20, $29.50 and $16.90.

Little Jerry Harrison piloted Sauvagette in the second race and the five-year-old mare returned $44.60, $16.30 and $4.70.

BRUMEL BEATEN

KIEV (AP) — Irina Press equalled the women's world record of 10.5 seconds in the 80-metre hurdles and Olympic champion Robert Shavlakadze upset world record holder Valery Brumel in the high jump Friday in the second day of Russian national track and field championships. Shavlakadze and Brumel each cleared seven feet, 1½ inches, with Shavlakadze winning on fewer misses.

The Los Angeles Dodgers' pitching star, 1965 on the season, has been out since Aug. 16 when his left arm swelled, making it impossible for him to bend it.

AT THE PARK — James Mitchinn plays a tenacious surfboarder in "Ride the Wild Surf," new Columbia Pictures release in color showing for its last times tonight at the Park Theatre. The June production also stars Fabian, Tab Hunter, Shelley Fabares, Barbara Eden, Susan Hilton, Jay Sayre and Frank Gorshin. On the same program a teenage musical "Just For Fun." Last complete show at 8:40 p.m.

Will Continue Long-Range Ski Team Plan

OTTAWA (CP) — The Canadian Amateur Ski Association Friday night and it will continue with its long-range plan for an national ski team despite the federal government's decision to remove financial support.

The association said in a statement that the recently-increased government grants for training coaches to the ski body made it possible for the plan, whereby skiers who desire to represent Canada internationally may continue their schooling.

Ray Grinnell of Manotick, Ont., press liaison officer and past president of the federation, said the team training school will set up this year at Nelson, B.C., where educational facilities are provided.

N. Wirkowski Breaks Nose In Practice

TORONTO (CP)—Nobby Wirkowski decided to put his nose to the grindstone Friday to see what was wrong with his all-star Toronto Argonauts.

One faked handoff and a half pirouette later Wirkowski discovered he and his nose were in the wrong place — it was broken.

Wirkowski, coach of the flourishing Canadian Football Conference Argos, decided it was time to investigate the inaccurate timing that was partly-circuiting the club's offence.

Former Argo quarterback Wirkowski moved into the pivot spot, without a helmet, and faked a handoff to George Hughley. As he turned, Ron Hatcher's shoulder connected with the pivot's nose.

The coach still has three days to improve his team before they go against Ottawa Rough Riders Tuesday.

Networks Plan Strategy: Grab Viewers Young, Early

By BOB THOMAS

HOLLYWOOD (AP)—A study of the television schedules for the new season indicates the networks have adopted this strategy for winning ratings: Grab 'em young and grab 'em early.

Never has so much money gone into series that begin the evening programming. The thinking appears to be that if a family starts out watching a certain network it is likely to stick with the same channel.

The rating record appears to bear this out. One network usually dominates an entire evening. For instance, CBS has traditionally locked in Monday night. ABC is strongest on Thursday, NBC does best on Sunday.

This season will bring an unusual amount of early-evening series seriously aimed at the youthful viewer. Will adults stick with the channel the kids turn on? The networks hope so.

FEATURES ATOM SUB

Thus we find ABC starting out its Monday programming with Voyage to the Bottom of the Sea, about the adventures of an atomic submarine. NBC is offering 90 Bristol Court, three separate half-hour comedies loosely tied together.

NBC starts Tuesday with Mr. Novak and its bullish teen-age appeal, while ABC offers the war series, Combat.

Thursday finds a three-way fight for the youngsters. NBC hopes Daniel Boone will recapture Fess Parker's Davy Crockett and its magical hold on young fancies. CBS is countering with a comedy about Frankenstein and other lovelies, The Monsters. ABC is stringing along with The Flintstones.

International Showtime begins Friday for NBC. CBS continues with Rawhide, beefing up the western with guest stars like Rex Hayworth and Dean Martin. ABC is bringing another cartoon series out of the Hanna-Barbera factory, Johny Quest.

Saturday finds NBC in an all-out campaign for the young stay-at-homes—Flipper, the educated dolphin; Mr. Magoo, the near-sighted bumbler; and Kentucky Jones, with Dennis Weaver as foster father of a Chinese boy. ABC will offer Ozzie Limits.

Astrological Forecasts

By SYDNEY OMARR

For August 30

Aries (Mar. 21 to Apr. 19): Keep promises to yourself about diet, relaxation. Key today is moderation. But still no time to be lazy! Excellent for variety, pleasure through stimulating company.

Taurus (Apr. 20 to May 20): In trying to impress member of opposite sex . . . you could go overboard . . . in sense of being extravagant. Hold tight to budget resolutions. Realize you can't "buy" love. Attend church of choice.

Gemini (May 21 to June 20): Security matters surge to forefront. Good day for family discussions. All may not be pleasant. But, nevertheless, cannot be hidden "under the rug." Good aslo for family outing.

Cancer (June 21 to July 22): Your dreams will come face to face with reality. Time to make adjustments. You must transform plans to action. Take time to analyze persons, situations, potential. Take off rose-colored glasses!

Leo (July 23 to Aug. 22): You may be called upon to prove friendship. Emphasize justice, fair play. Stress fact that you with sympathetic, concerned with welfare of loved ones. Do more listening than talking.

Virgo (Aug. 23 to Sept. 22): You face numerous obstacles as result of past obligations. Best course sees you fulfilling duties, taking initiative. There are pressures. But, interpret them as challenges. Stress optimism.

Libra (Sept. 23 to Oct. 22): Your intuitive feelings now ring true . . . react accordingly. Good lunar aspect highlights journeys of the mind. Piece together bits of information . . . arrive at profitable conclusions!

Scorpio (Oct. 23 to Nov. 21): Friends could lead you on merry-go-round path. Important to get directions straight! Marital or business partner needs word of encouragement. Give it. Be sincere. Offer aid, sympathy.

Sagittius (Nov. 22 to Dec. 21): Confiding in "wrong" person could prove embarrassing. Be wary of impulses. Maintain reserve. Familiarity just might breed contempt. Cycle is rising . . . act slowly. Exercise care with details.

Capricorn (Dec. 22 to Jan. 19): Amusement, pride indicated in connection with special interest. You can gain through simple pursuits. Avoid big parties, persons who brag and issue challenges. Make this a day of relaxation.

Aquarius (Jan. 20 to Feb. 18): If you pursue pleasure . . . it might elude you. Be selective. In this way the "good" things seek you out. Plan for planning for future. Include suggestions, desires of family members.

Pisces (Feb. 19 to Mar. 20): Best to remain aloof from petty quarrels. Don't become entangled in faimly dispute. Take time to analyze, think, decide. Day can be productive if you are perceptive. Insist on needed privacy.

If today is your birthday . . . You have the ability to gain accurate impressions about people and situations. You are versatile, possess excellent sense of humor. By October, there will be opportunity for a major, beneficial change. Be ready!

For August 31

Aries (March 21 to April 19) Much to learn through conversation, letter, "study." Be perceptive. Read between the lines. Strive for harmony. Keep promises made to family members. Short journey indicated.

Taurus (April 20 to May 20) Key is being resourceful. Your intuition provides many answers. But you must be self-starter. Don't wait to be told. Get going on your own! Much can be accomplished.

Gemini (May 21 to July 22) Activities spotlighted which emphasize personal interests. Push forward to get what you desire. Cycle high. Throw off false modesty. Speak up . . . make sure you are heard!

Cancer (June 21 to July 22) Be wary of deception. Check behind the scenes. You can find the reasons why in relation to recent happenings. By being sincere, you will gain backing of important persons.

Leo (July 23 to August 22) Good to achieve objective in connection with community or group. Be original. Stress independence of thought. Highlight willingness to cooperate. Friendly gesture to be made by associate.

Virgo (Aug. 23 to Sept. 22) Social status due to gain attention. Community project could elevate you into spotlight. Maintain balance, sense of humor. Beware of scattering forces. Keep promises.

Libra (Sept. 23 to Oct. 13) Be expansive. Time to spread influence. Show that you are willing to be generous. Catch up on correspondence, reading. Keep promise to yourself concerning creative endeavor.

Scorpio (Oct. 24 to Nov. 21) You may have to depend upon report made by associate. Read carefully. Find out where you are going -- and why. Day for self-analysis. Where money is concerned, be patient!

Sagittarius (Nov. 22 to Dec. 21) Self-identification is of vital importance. Find out who you are -- and not what your friends think you might be. Exercise discrimination -- and total honesty. Message very clear before day is over!

Capricorn (Dec. 22 to Jan. 19) What you need to do in order to obtain acceptance should receive priority. Review recent actions, statements, promises. And ask yourself if you are living up to potential.

Aquarius (Jan. 20 to Feb. 18) Your need for expression dominates. State your needs . . . present your talents. Be creative, provocative. Excellent for participating in sporting events. Good to go all out!

Pisces (Feb. 19 to March 20) Get yourself settled. Find "home base." Best to seek greater security. You have much to give. Time is ripe for major changes . . . important moves in new direction. Now get busy!

If today is your birthday you are capable of handling details, emergencies. While others fly off the handle . . . you analyze, prepare and take positive action.

GENERAL TENDENCIES:—Letter, purportedly written by VIP, makes news - - of controversial nature.

Only Token Integration Contention of Many Negroes

ATLANTA, Ga. (AP)—Southern states, applying their interpretation of the U.S. Supreme Court's deliberate speed rule for school integration, are opening additional previously-white schools to Negroes.

Registration of Negroes for the first time proceeded in a number of cities and countries during the week. In most instances the change is the result of court action. Negroes contend the rate still amounts to only token integration.

The threat of withdrawal of federal funds — a new lever brought into play by the Civil Rights Act — could be responsible for integration gains in some areas.

In Mississippi, rural Leake County opened its white school doors to Negroes Friday for the first time but none appeared. The county, along with Biloxi and Jackson, was under court orders to desegregate first grades under a grade-a-year plan. Biloxi registered 17 Negroes at white schools and Jackson 43.

Nineteen Negroes were accepted in four previously all-white Orangeburg, S.C., schools and attended classes Friday, without incident.

ADMIT RIGHT

In Montgomery, Ala., the board of education, acting on a court order, assigned eight Negroes to white schools. Twenty-nine had applied for transfer but the board, acting under the Alabama placement law, admitted only eight.

Elsewhere in Alabama, schools be desegregated at Birmingham, Mobile, Huntsville and Gadsden and in the counties of Mobile, Madison and Macon.

Seven Georgia cities have been named in integration suits. Atlanta, where a grade-a-year plan was started in 1961, has completed integration of high schools this year.

Tennessee began desegregating first grades at Clinton and several cities and counties are integrating classes for the first time this year. J. Frazier Ward, education commissioner, recently notified the 133 school systems they would lose all federal funds if racial barriers are not dropped.

In Louisiana, desegregation reaches the Grade 4-in New Orleans this fall and adds kindergartens. Baton Rouge integrates the Grade 11.

Token integration has occurred in 46 of 67 Florida counties since 1959 and Dade County (Miami) schools have desegregated.

Two Killed As Car Hits Side of Church

CHATHAM (CP)—Two youths were killed and a man injured early today when their car went out of control and crashed into a church at nearby Louisville.

Dead are Lee Allan Dunn, 18, and Peter Collins, 19, both of Melbourne, a suburb of London.

Richard James Corr, 32, of Appin, also in the London area, is in hospital here in satisfactory condition with a broken leg and lacerations.

Police said the car clipped a tree and a hydro pole before crashing into the side of the Louisville Baptist Church and bur ting into flames. One side of the frame church was severely damaged.

Challengers Shuffle Slate For Election

MONTREAL (CP) — Challenges for the leadership of the Liberal Federation of Canada (Ind.) shuffled their slate Friday and sent a different man in pursuit of the 1965 presidency.

The change has Rene Turcotte of Montreal running against fellow Montrealer Leonard McLaughlin for the top unpaid job. McLaughlin at present is executive vice-president.

Stan Devine of Halifax, originally proposed for the presidency by the challenging group, will run instead for the office of executive vice-president.

The forthcoming elections are the first to be held since Hal Banks was dismissed last March from the SIU leadership by the federal government-appointed board of maritime trustees. Banks has dropped out of sight and a bench warrant has been issued for his arrest for ignoring a recent court appointment.

Nominations close next Monday night. Voting will take place Sept. 15-Oct. 15.

Three Members Of Terrorists Sent to Prison

ST. HYACINTHE, Que. (CP) Three men who said they were members of the terrorist Front de Liberation du Quebec were sentenced Thursday to prison terms of up to four years each on charges of possessing dynamite, blowing up a section of the Lachine track and attempted bank robbery.

Judge Paul A. Peloquin sentenced Jean Castonguay, 28, Gaetan Laliberte, 29, both of Montreal, to four years on each of the three counts. The terms are made concurrent.

Georges Laporte, 30, also of Montreal, received three concurrent terms of three years on the charges.

A fourth man, Claude Prevost, 27, of Montreal, pleaded not guilty to the charges and was ordered held without bail for trial Oct. 2.

The four men were arrested May 3 after being found in possession of 200 sticks of dynamite in a suburb of this community 35 miles east of Montreal.

Canada's Scientific Sun-Watchers Maintain Space Vigil

Flare Patrol For Astronauts

As the searing noon-day sun scorches desolate Arabian sands two observers in the big dome of the Dominion Observatory in Ottawa lock onto it with a specially-designed photographic recorder. For them it is another early-morning start to a daily vigil from sunrise to afternoon during which their equipment tracks the sun's passage from the Red Sea, over the vastness of North Africa and the Atlantic Ocean and across North America. Part of an international study of the unceasing activities of the sun, the results of this photographic recording of our life-giving star, 93,000,000 miles away, will provide man with greater knowledge of the tremendous nuclear forces constantly flaring in turmoil amid its mass. From these studies a pattern may be found by which future astronauts may be warned of lethal radiation storms emanating from the sun at astronomical speeds and how interference with communications may be overcome. Canada's Flare Patrol, with full cooperation by the United States, is another example of shared international studies as technological advances open the door for mankind's physical entrance into the mysteries of space.

Chief of stellar physics, Dr. J. L. Locke, left, and Michael Miles of Sydney, N.S., check flare-patrol equipment which is attached to equatorially-mounted telescope.

QUESTION: Could you please give me any information you have on the Air Force Museum which is located in Dayton, Ohio. — J. B., Trenton.

ANSWER: The one you are referring to I believe, is located at the Wright-Patterson Air Force Base, Ohio. This air force museum, the largest military aviation museum in the world, exhibits aeronautical items including an impressive number of aircraft and missiles spanning the period from the Wright Brothers through the age of aerospace. This museum is approximately 11 miles east of Dayton on State Route 44, at the west end of Main St. in Fairborn, Ohio, and is open to the public without charge. Visiting hours: 9 a.m. — 4 p.m., Monday through Friday; 1 p.m. — 5 p.m. Saturday, Sunday and holidays.

QUESTION: We are going up to Georgian Bay next week and understand that Midland has some interesting historical sites and Indian relics. Could you please tell me about these. — P. McK., Belleville.

ANSWER: Archaeologists have been working in this area and it is well worth your while to plan to visit Midland on your trip. There is a reconstructed Huron Indian Village at Little Lake Park. The Huronia Museum, north end of Mill St. 4 blocks east of King St. has Indian, pioneer and natural history exhibits. Open June to Sept. 30. Monday through Saturday from 10 to 5, on Sunday and holidays from 1 to 5; there is an admission charge of 50 cents, children 10 cents.

Then there is the Martyrs' Shrine, 3 miles south on Hwy 12. It is built near the site of Old Fort Ste Marie as a memorial to the martyred Jesuit Missionaries. Fort Ste Marie was the central mission residence of the Jesuits from 1639 to 1649. Here may be seen the church, a miniature of the Lourdes Grotto, the Stations of the Cross, the Little Flower Island and a museum of Indian relics. Across the road at the site of old Fort Ste. Marie excavations are being made by archaeologists and the old fort is being rebuilt. Here, too, are the burial places of Fathers de Brebeuf and Lalemant, who were slain by the Iroquois Indians in 1649.

QUESTION: We are going up to be in Lexington, Kentucky next month and would like to visit Asbury College which we understand is located in a small town near there. Would you have any information as to just where it is and how it can be reached from Lexington? — D. F., Tweed.

ANSWER: There is an Asbury College located in the town of Wilmore, Ky., about 15 miles southwest of Lexington. It can be reached by taking U.S. route 68 south from Lexington to the junction with State Route 29. Then follow Route 29 in to Wilmore.

$40,000 Cruiser Set Adrift By Vandals

PETERBOROUGH (CP) — A $40,000 cruiser owned by John A. Godfrey of Toronto was cast adrift on the Trent Canal near Lakefield as he, his wife and a young girl slept.

"I have been up and down the Trent Canal system several times before but I have never had anything like this happen to me," said Mr. Godfrey, the retired president of a Winnipeg lumber company.

Mr. and Mrs. Godfrey and their guest, 11-year-old Charlene Burt, tied up for the night Tuesday at a lock just outside Lakefield. During the night vandals untied the ropes securing the cruiser.

As the three slept the cruiser drifted two miles down the canal toward Peterborough.

Mr. Godfrey reported the incident to the police, who are investigating.

Tracing of Family Descent Quite Easy in Britain But Cost Is Expensive

By ALAN WALKER

LONDON (CP)—Great-great great - great - great - grandpaw may have been a bishop or a sheep thief.

Want to find out? You probably can, but remember that no matter how disreputable your ancestors turn out to be, you're stuck with them.

Interest in genealogy—tracing of family descent—is widespread. Some people are greedy and seek a long-lost fortune. Others fear for the future in these uncertain times and want to find roots in the more settled ages of their forbears. Still others are moved by snobbery and hope theyll discover a right to a lapsed or abandoned title. And finally, there are people who are just plain curious.

Canadians eager to find long-dead British ancestors must trace backwards to their male relative that first crossed the Atlantic. Lines of descent can be traced through the female side but, because of name changes, this is difficult and expensive.

So let's assume that Ichabod Cruller from a small western Ontario village find his grandfather was born in Britain in 1875. His next quest stop will be the British registry of births, marriages and deaths at London's Somerset House. Records there are nearly complete and start from 1837.

PARISH RECORDS NEXT —

Before that date, parish records provide the main means of tracing relatives. Now the place your ancestors were born is more important than the dates. If a family remained in one area for a long time, it's fairly easy to fill out the branches of the family tree.

Our Canadian friend Cruller would have little trouble, because of his odd name. Shed a tear, though, for the eager Smiths and Browns who yearn for knowledge of their predecessors.

Parish registers have been kept throughout Britain since 1538 and survive complete in many cases. Tracing ancestors before that is nearly impossible unless they owned land or were consistently criminal.

There are about 12,000 parishes in England but you don't have to travel around the country looking in their registers. The Society of Genealogists has copies of about 2,000 registers and anybody can look at them for 17s 6d a day.

"There is no need to be frightened of unearthing a dubious ancestor as you will almost certainly not search the court records which would reveal this, at least for the last 150 years," said Anthony Camp, research director of the Society of Genealogists.

TIME MELLOWS ALL

"Surely you can live down even a major criminal after such a length of time.

"As regards illegitimacy, you will have to be prepared for this. I doubt if there are many families which do not have at least one illegitimate child amongst their ancestors."

The man who finds unexpected nobility or money through ancestor hunting is rare indeed. It is also uncommon to trace a family beyond 1538. Beware of friends who claim their relatives "came over with William the Conqueror." Camp says nobody has ever been able to prove descent from a man who fought on either side at the Battle of Hastings.

Only two English families can with certainty trace their pedigree through the male line to a Saxon ancestor before 1066. They are the Ardens and the Berkeleys.

Camp can trace his pedigree back to 380 but his is a Continental family.

The society, founded in 1911 by George Sherwood, has about 2,000 members, many of them in Canada. Camp, surrounded by thousands of musty books, manuscripts and a card index of about 3,000,000 references, operates in a large Victorian house in London.

COLLECT EVERYTHING

With a small permanent staff he keeps rein on the ever-increasing mass of documentary evidence. "We collect nearly anything with names in it," he told a reporter.

He and his staff will also undertake genealogical searchers for society members or non-members for £6 a day. This service is for people who find that foraging in the society's files doesn't produce enough information to satisfy them.

If our hypothetical genealogist Cruller manages to trace his ancestors back to the 14th century and then reaches a dead end, chances are he will be so firmly gripped by the urge to know that he will turn to what Camp calls "filling in the details."

This involves discovering how our ancestors lived; what they did; what sort of education they had; and sometimes, even what they wrote if they left diaries or published work.

And that's when genealogy becomes risky and embarrassing.

You might find a saint or a sinner; a pauper or a prince.

House Leaders To Meet

By STEWART MacLEOD

OTTAWA (CP) — With the Commons troops showing no sign of flagging in the flag fight, House leaders of the five political parties were to meet again today in an effort to dissolve the deadlock over the conference table.

It would be their second attempt in four days. A Friday meeting, like the three earlier ones of party leaders, was described as friendly, but without agreement.

Under discussion by the House leaders is a government suggestion that the Commons devote each Monday to legislation other than the flag, providing the House sits an additional seven hours a week to make up for lost flag time. Another condition is that the debate must be completed by the end of September.

There were said to be a number of other proposals put forth by the House leaders that were to be taken up again today, but no details were revealed following Friday's meeting.

Meanwhile, pending a break in the deadlock that has brought the debate to its 17th day, the Commons seems prepared to churn on indefinitely with the battle. The first speaker who rises today will be the 136th since the flag came before Parliament Feb. 15.

The Conservatives have contributed 36 speeches in defence of Red Ensign and the retention of historic symbols. The Liberals have spoken 29 times, and all but one speech was in defence of the proposed maple-leaf flag. The three smaller parties have a combined total of 18 speeches.

SOME FAVOR COMPROMISE

As the leaders try to negotiate an end to the prolonged battle, backbenchers from both the Liberal and Conservative parties are also involved in unofficial chats about possible compromises. Some Liberals are known to be willing to make compromises on the government's proposed design, and there are Conservative backbenchers who would settle for the inclusion of only a small portion of the historic symbols. A cross or bar from the Union Jack would be sufficient in many cases.

With individual members of Parliament now free to make agreements, there have been increased pressure on party and House leaders to work out some system to end the marathon debate. Recently, more and more speeches have been devoted to the debate itself, rather than the flags involved.

Revolutionaries Blamed For Two Deaths In Holdup

Fail to Rob Store In Montreal of Arms

MONTREAL (CP) — Revolutionaries are blamed for the abortive weekend firearm store holdup in which two shop employees were killed in a barrage of gunfire when police arrived.

Police said one of the victims was killed by the bandits "and we fear the other employee was shot by one of our policemen while the great confusion reigned at the scene of the robbery."

Inspector Roland Perron of the Montreal anti - terrorist squad said Sunday the five bandits had "revolutionary tendencies," but that four persons captured near the site will not be identified until a coroner's inquest is held. He said one was a French - speaking non - Canadian and none had criminal records in Montreal.

Dead are Leslie McWilliams, 58, vice-president of the International Firearms Company, and store employee Alfred Finlay, 37. Eight other employees in the store at the 6 p.m. closing time of the holdup were not hurt.

Insp. Perron said two of the bandits entered the store through the front door and three more waited in a car parked at the back of the store.

One of the first group had a rifle concealed under his coat and the other a loaded rifle magazine clip he quickly inserted into a weapon he asked a store employee to let him see.

An employee said the latter bandit then pointed the gun at the clerk and announced in French that "we don't want any money—just rifles and ammunition."

Mr. McWilliams, apparently thinking the bandit was a customer who should know better than point the gun, rushed toward him, saying: "Didn't he crazy, don't do that" and was gunned down.

The bandits then went to the back of the store, holding the employees at gunpoint, and let in their companions who started loading weapons into their automobile.

However, a store employee sneaked out of the store and summoned Constables Georges Brazeau and Regis Fortin. The constables were met by gunfire from a bandit at the door, retreated it, then advanced through the deep shot, led by employees and reinforcements.

MAN SHOT

A man with a loaded weapon came up a set of stairs and was shot dead. He was Mr. Finlaih, who had apparently managed to evade the bandits and make his way to the cellar to pick up a semi-automatic rifle.

Meanwhile, police converged on the car in the back lane and ordered one man in the driver's seat and two others to lie on the ground.

Police said the officers were then met by gunfire from another bandit standing in the doorway. The man then wheeled and dashed out the front door with another bandit. One commandeered a taxi and was still being sought by police. The other was captured.

Red China Will Boycott Soviet-Sponsored Meeting

TOKYO (AP) — Communist China has announced officially it will boycott a Soviet-sponsored conference to plan a world Communist meeting. It says the day such a meeting is held "will go down in history as the day of the great split in the international Communist movement."

Peking accused the Soviet Union of siding with the United States in the recent Gulf of Tonkin crisis by actively supporting the U.S. attempt to intervene in Viet Nam through the United Nations."

Red China's charge was contained in a letter dated Aug. 30 in which the central committee of the Chinese Communist party turned down a Soviet invitation to a scheduled Dec. 15 planning conference.

The official New China news agency broadcast the letter. Peking was one of 25 Communist parties invited to lay the groundwork for a meeting of 81 Communist parties next summer.

Red China also accused the United States of opening up a new "special warfare" theatre in Africa.

South Viet Nam is the "biggest testing ground of U.S. special warfare," the broadcast said, but added that American campaigns also were under way in Venezuela and Colombia.

The broadcast said Peking told Moscow:

"You have the effrontery to declare in your letter that, whether or not the fraternal parties participate, the drafting parties participate, the drafting committee you have designated will go ahead with its schedule and the international meeting unilaterally called by you shall begin on the date prescribed.

"We will never take part in any international meeting or any preparatory meeting for it, which you call for the purpose of splitting the international Communist movement.

"Today the most urgent common task for the Communists is an drevolutionary people of the world is to oppose U.S. imperialism and its lackeys. But you are bent on colluding with the U.S. imperialists and on seeking common ground uniting you with them."

Rebels Flee Albertville Leaving Weapons Behind

LEOPOLDVILLE (AP) — Premier Moise Tshombe says his army has recaptured the strategic city of Albertville in the Eastern Congo, but Communist-backed rebels are reported on the march again toward Bukavu.

Tshombe personally announced the government victory over Radio Leopoldville Sunday. He said the rebels left behind their weapons in the flight from the city. There was no confirmation from other sources. Tshombe said the rebels still held Albertville airport, 13 miles from the city.

A spearhead of white mercenaries approached the airport last Thursday were driven off by machine-gun fire. Five were wounded.

Tshombe said his troops freed 28 Europeans who had been held hostage by the rebels. He gave no details of the fighting that led to the rebels' forces in the northeast Congo. He recently began using white mercenaries, including some Cuban exiles, against secession, after the Congolese army suffered a string of reverses.

Albertville, the main Congolese city on the western shore of Lake Tanganyika, fell under control of rebel leader Gaston Soumialot in June.

Soumialot proclaimed a "popular Congolese Republic" with himself as president and Albertville as capital. He took the city after Baluba warriors rose up against provincial President Jason Sendwe, backing the rebels and several aides to death.

Soumialot, however, abandoned the city after the fall of the northern centre of Stanleyville to rebel forces. All semblance of order broke down after his departure and drunken young soldiers went on a rampage of killing and looting.

PRAGUE (CP-Reuters) — Soviet Premier Nikita Khrushchev returned here Sunday after attending a rally of former Slovak partisans at Banska Bystrica where he urged the West to drop the idea of "liberating" Eastern Europe.

Unsettled Weather Picture Blamed on Warped Jetstream

TORONTO (CP) — Ontario's unsettled weather picture during the last few weeks cannot be blamed on nuclear blasts or a return to the ice age, says John Knox, federal meteorologist in charge of the Toronto forecast office.

Blame it on a warped jetstream.

Mr. Knox said the globe-girdling jetstream, a high-speed westerly wind that occurs at latitudes ranging from 20,000 to 40,000 feet, flows east from the this August has been far from cold belt from the warmer climes.

However, the jetstream took a surprise turn southward this month, bringing cold weather to southern Ontario. Mr. Knox said there is no doubt of the cause of the cold but he is as baffled as the average person when it comes to explaining it.

"There are just too many intangibles," he said in an interview. "We can only work with what we have to measure. But there's so much we can't."

Mr. Knox said, however, that Pacific coast separating the the coldest and wettest on record.

The city of Toronto records, which go back 130 years, show a total of 13 August's colder than this one.

But Mr. Knox stresses that this is misleading since the era around the weather observatory in mid - town Toronto has become built-up—thus generally warmer—over the years.

This year's August has had 12 weather records set for specific days in the Metropolitan Toronto area and a total of 69 records across the province.

Some frost was reported in Haliburton and Muskoka districts, north-central Ontario vacation areas.

The August cold front also moved south of Ontario into the eastern United States as far as Virginia. But Ontario bore the brunt, said Mr. Knox.

The ultimate cause of these strange, but not infrequent, atmospheric cycles can only be guessed at, he said. But the major role is played by the sun's radiation and by abnormalities in ocean temperature distributions.

Mr. Knox said he rules out nuclear explosions or cloud seeding as possible causes.

"The atmosphere operates on a grand scale and detonations are really small potatoes by comparison."

Uneasy Quiet Returns to Riot-Torn Philadelphia

PHILADELPHIA (AP) — A tense, uneasy quiet returned to the riot-ravaged Negro section of North Philadelphia Sunday after a weekend of violence, looting, and pillaging.

Sporadic vandalism, window smashing and throwing of rocks at police continued into the early morning hours, but city and police officials said the situation remained under control and the four-square-mile trouble zone was returning to relatively normal operations.

Some 1,500 police continued to saturate the area, which remained under a 24-hour curfew.

Mayor H. J. Tate emphasized that, in a clear-cut statement, issued Saturday, remained in effect. The proclamation, falling under an 1850 law, made it a misdemeanor, with a maximum penalty of two years in jail plus fine, for anyone to be on streets without legitimate business.

Tate said in a statement Sunday night, some 50 hours after the Negro rioting broke out, that 225 stores had been looted and more than 350 persons arrested for various violations. The injured totalled 247, including 66 policemen. Almost all of the injuries were minor.

There was one shooting reported. Police said Robert Green, a 20-year-old Negro, was wounded Saturday night when he pulled a knife on a patrolman who was chasing persons throwing cans at a patrol car.

Tate estimated "several millions of dollars" in damages and other costs caused by the rioting, which broke out Friday night.

The mayor instructed Fredric R. Mann, city director of commerce, to meet with businessmen today to outline a proposed plan of assistance.

In a television appearance Saturday night, the mayor said the rioting had no relation to civil rights fights by Negroes, but was "criminal hoodlumism" and looting.

A special riot court at city hall worked into Sunday night to dispose of cases arising from the rioting. The defendants were to face charges ranging from burglary to aggravated assault and battery by shooting.

Mississippi Summer

JACKSON, Miss. (AP) — Mississippi studied a civil rights ledger today that was billed "the long, hot summer."

The story of Mississippi's summer is told in the ledger columns now received.

It reads:

Three civil rights workers slain at Philadelphia, Miss. Torsoes of two young Negroes found in a murky branch of the Mississippi River at Vicksburg.

Negro pedestrian mysteriously gunned down while walking a lonely road near Monticello.

Seventeen Negro churches ruined or damaged by fire.

Newspaper press at Laurel bombed.

Civil rights workers roughed up while in custody of Hinds County jail.

Some of the cases have been investigated.

Mother, Father And Child Die In Northbrook Crash; Father And Son, 4, Drown

7 Hurt in Highway 41 Collision; Tragedy Overtakes Bancroft Picnic

A mother, father and one child were killed yesterday, and five adults and two children were injured in a two-car crash near Northbrook. The two injured children are daughters of the dead couple. Names have not been released because the next-of-kin have not yet been notified.

Injured and in Belleville General Hospital are 19-year-old Gordon Barry of Kaladar, 25-year-old Garnett Thompson of Kaladar, Miss Catherine Ruttan of Griffith and Miss Dorothy Hawley of Northbrook. The four were in one car, Barry is believed to have been the driver.

Also in hospital are the two surviving children and one adult from the other car, a light English model.

The two cars hit head-on at about 4 p.m. yesterday on Highway 41 just south of Northbrook and Cloyne. Police believe the larger car, with the four identified survivors, was going south. Both cars are considered total wrecks.

AMBULANCE MIXUP

Ambulances from Tweed, Tamworth and Belleville were called to the scene, but because of confusion in communications the calls did not go out until, in one case, more than an hour had elapsed since the accident. The provincial police officer in Belleville, notified about 4.30 of the wreck, was informed that two ambulances had already been called. Stuart Meeks of LaSalle Ambulance in Belleville reports that his office was called about 5.40 p.m. The call was cancelled while the ambulance was on the road, then a second call came about 8.35 p.m. The LaSalle vehicle, he said, was the second of the three ambulances on the scene.

When the ambulances arrived, Meeks said, bystanders at the scene had improvised a first aid post by the side of the road. Several of the bystanders had medical training.

Questioned last night about his reaction to the delay, Cpl. Henry of the Kaladar detachment OPP said he was not satisfied with the ambulance service, but he does not blame any of the three ambulance operators for the delay. "It's always hard to get an ambulance in that neck of the woods," he added.

BANCROFT (Special)— A family picnic ended in tragedy Sunday afternoon when a father and his four-year-old son drowned in the York River about six miles east of here.

Dead are 32-year-old Norman Dillabough of Birds' Creek and his four-year-old son, Daniel Thomas.

Mrs. Dillabough and four other Dillabough children, Kalvin eleven; Elwood, six; Susan, three and Jane Marie, 16 months, saw the drownings from a near-by river bank.

Police said Mr. Dillabough and two of his children were in swimming when it is believed Daniel waded past a sandbar and dropped into a deep hole. Although the river in most parts is not deep, there are several deep holes in the river bed.

Police said Mr. Dillabough drowned as he attempted to save his son from the deep water.

After seeing her husband and son disappear beneath the water, Mrs. Dillabough ran screaming up the river bank in an attempt to seek help.

DIVER ASSISTS

About half a mile up stream, an ex U.S. Navy diver, Donald Trocke of Milwaukee, Wisconsin, was searching for rock specimens. He heard Mrs. Dillabough's cries for help, raced to the scene and jumped in without diving equipment.

The water is reported to be 25 to 30 feet deep where Mrs. Dillabough saw her husband and son go under.

Provincial Police here do not have diving equipment, but an amateur aqua diver, Thomas Welsh of Bancroft was located and he brought his equipment to the scene. It was given to Trocke.

After receiving the diving equipment, resumed his search, assisted by Mackie Burgess of Bancroft, who was not wearing living apparel. The

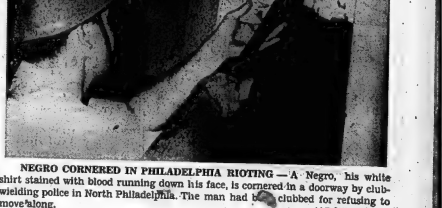
Makarios Supported By Nasser

By ALEX EFTY

NICOSIA (AP) — President Makarios won a pledge of support today from the United Arab Republic in his dispute with Turkish Cypriots on troubled Cyprus. Anti - U.S. demonstrations continued in Turkey.



President Gamal Abdel Nasser also warned against outside interference in the island's affairs, said a joint communique issued in Alexandria at the conclusion of talks between Nasser and Makarios.

However, Nasser did not specifically pledge military support.

Nasser's pledge to Makarios followed official talks between the two in Alexandria and came on the heels of renewed demonstrations in Turkey's key cities.

The United Arab Republic thus followed the lead of Greece and the Soviet Union in promising help if Cyprus were invaded by Turkey.

The UAR "is prepared to provide Cyprus with every possible support for the sake of strengthening the efforts of the Cypriot people in their struggle to safeguard the unity of their island," the communique said. "The two sides agreed that

Document Indicates Plan For Confederation Conceived Before First Parley Called

By JAMES NELSON

QUEBEC (CP)—A century-old document indicating the plan for Confederation was largely conceived have before the fathers of Confederation held their first conference in Charlottetown has been made public by the federal centennial commission.

The document is a cabinet minute of the pre-Confederation United Province of Lower and Upper Canada instructing John A. Macdonald and the other fathers from Quebec and Ontario to go to the Charlottetown conference.

It is dated Aug. 29, 1864, Centennial planners say the document has been among the pre-Confederation state papers of Canada in the public archives but so far as they can learn has never been published.

Photocopies of the hand-written cabinet record are to be presented on the mayors of Charlottetown, Halifax, Saint John, Fredericton and St. John's, Nfld., as well as the Mayor Wilfrid Hamel of Quebec, marking the centennial voyage of the fathers of Confederation aboard the SS Queen Victoria from Quebec City.

NOTES EXCHANGE

Couched in the formal language of the executive council of the Canada under the old act of union, the document notes that despatches had been exchanged between Governor General Monk of Canada and the lieutenant-governors of New Brunswick, Nova Scotia and Prince Edward Island "on the subject of the conference proposed to be held at Charlottetown for the future union of these provinces with Canada."

The document says the Canadian cabinet "entirely concurs with the opinion expressed by the lieutenant-governors that the proposed meeting (at Charlottetown) may necessarily be of an informal character."

"But they (the cabinet) consider that very great advantage will flow from the opportunity that will be thus afforded of considering the practicability of uniting under one government, if approved the respective provinces and, should it be found that reasonable prospects exist of such a union being practicable, the committee (the cabinet) consider that it will then be possible to proceed to a more formal conference. . . ."

The document acknowledges that in any union of the British North America colonies the British government must be consulted.

It speaks of placing "before the Imperial government such a general outline of the policy proposed as may enable her majesty's ministers to determine whether the interests of the empire will be promoted thereby and of giving the sanction of the Queen to the future negotiations on the subject."

RECOMMENDS TRIP

The document concludes:

"The committee, therefore, respectfully recommend to your excellency that such of your excellency's advisers as can conveniently be spared from their official duties at Quebec should be authorized to proceed to Charlottetown for the purpose of conferring informally with the representatives from the Maritime provinces."

Certified, Wm. H. Lee, secretary."

Macdonald and seven other Canadians sailed Aug. 29, 1864, from Quebec City and reached Charlottetown Sept. 1. After several days settling out their differences for confederation, the Maritime delegates decided to shelve their plans for Maritime union and later at Halifax the conference decided to hold a formal conference at Quebec opening Oct. 10, 1864.

E. A. Orr Accepted As Fellow

E. A. Orr of Belleville has been accepted as a Fellow in the Ontario Teachers' Federation, professional organization of the province's 61,500 teachers.

Fifty-one fellowships, created to mark the 30th anniversary of OTF, were conferred during the annual meeting of the federation this week at the Talisman Motor Inn, Ottawa. Hon. George Drew, premier and education minister in 1944, received the first OTF Fellowship. Also accepted as Fellows were Miss Mary Hodgins, secretary-treasurer of OTF since the inception of the organization; charter members of the first OTF Board of Governors, past presidents, and others who have served the organization during the past 20 years.

"During the coming years, the Fellowship is expected to gain recognition as one of the most valuable educational awards in the province. Recipients are entitled to use the letters "F.O.T.F." following their names.

Centennial Project For Ont. Named

TORONTO (CP) — Premier John Robarts announced today that Ontario's centennial project will be a $12,000,000 centre of science and technology and will be located on a 180-acre site in the Don Valley in Metropolitan Toronto.

The first phase of the project, to be known as the Centennial Centre of Science and Technology, will be ready for opening July 1, 1967, the premier said at a press conference. He said the project will be the first of its kind in Canada.

"We will create a centennial project which will be a living symbol, not only of our 100th anniversary as a nation, Canadianism in the best patriotic and national sense," the premier said. "But also of the great importance, it will be a means of looking into our bright dynamic future."

The premier announced that the project's permanent director will be Dr. Hugh Keenleyside, 69, previously director of the New Brunswick Museum at Saint John, N.B. The appointment is to take effect Sept. 1.

John Gais Crean of Toronto, a life member of the Royal Ontario Museum and a former president of the Canadian Chamber of Commerce, has accepted the post of chairman of a board of trustees responsible for construction and maintenance of the centre. They will be appointed by the provincial cabinet committee under James Auld, minister of tourism and information.

FULLY CANADIAN

"The project will be an inventory of the achievements of our people—one we can see and feel and touch those achievements; where we can say—this we are, this we have done—this was invited by a Canadian, so we can say this development is entirely Canadian, created by Canadians—so we can say this is the future of Canada," the premier said.

Premier Robarts said today's announcement is the culmination of studies which the Ontario government since September, 1963. The selection of a suitable site has been particularly difficult.

He said the offer of the federal government to make a financial contribution to provincial centennial projects required that they should be built in provincial capitals and that their accommodations must give an understanding that after the projects are completed they will be operated by the provinces, or designated agencies, as a living symbol of Canada's centennial of Confederation.

Ski Jumper Injured at Kirk Kove

Ken Kirk, well-known ski jumper and former junior jumping champion, is recovering in Peterborough Civic Hospital from injuries suffered in a skiing accident at Kirk Kove Sunday.

Kirk went into the side of the jump at 45 miles an hour during a practice session, suffering a broken elbow and minor injuries to his shoulder and neck.

In the jumping contest, Canadian Guy Wesse turned in a jump of 115 feet to win top honors. Wesse is a former Canadian intermediate record holder.

He defeated seven others from Galt, Tweed, Kirk Kove, Arnprior and Cyprus Gardens, Fla., yesterday. Wesse is now director of Kirk Kove.

In a ladies' meet, women were allowed to compete, with a handicap, in events against men.

Mrs. Bonny Wesse, also of Kirk Kove, placed second in the long meet with John Ross Hodgens of Tweed finishing third.

Milk Production Down Little In July

OTTAWA (CP) — Canadian milk production was down fractionally in July and up one per cent in the January-July period, the bureau of statistics reported today.

Preliminary figures for the month showed production down 0.7 per cent from a year earlier to 2,040,000,000 pounds.

In the seven - month period production was up one per cent to 10,861,000,000 pounds.

Production in the month was greater in five provinces and lower in four. Quebec, with July, 1963, figures bracketed:

Prince Edward Island 281519,000 pounds (2,900,000); Nova Scotia 35,000,000 (35,309,000); New Brunswick 45,315,000 (45,150,000); Quebec 802,302,000 (815,000,000); Ontario 740,904,000 (714,509,000); Manitoba 115,192,000 (115,956,000); Saskatchewan 135,000,000 (125,926,000); Alberta 175,884,000 (168,856,000); British Columbia 77,485,000 (74,738,000).

Prince Edward Islanders Greet P. M. and Premiers

By DAL WARRINGTON

CHARLOTTETOWN (CP) — Prince Edward Islanders approached the climax of their summer-long celebrations today. Months of festivities reached a peak Tuesday with re-enactment of the 1864 Confederation conference here that set the stage for Canadian union. 100 years ago to the day.

Prime Minister Pearson and all 10 provincial premiers are due here today. They plan to sandwich in a federal-provincial conference on how to amend the Canadian constitution without having to ask the British Parliament to do it.

An air of festive expectancy built up during the weekend. Downtown streets were decked with colored lights and flags.

At night the harbor was brightened by the illumination of four destroyers from Halifax, docked with colored lights. A navy repair ship and a United States destroyer were docked at a Charlottetown pier. A French frigate was due today to add to the international flavor.

Sailors swarmed through the streets. Warm temperatures brought out crowds for a stroll or to sit on a park bench or on the front verandah.

Flights into Charlottetown Airport were jammed. The arrival of scores of golfers for the Canadian amateur championships opening here today added to the rush.

DIRECTORS ARRIVE

Visitors who couldn't get into hotels here were billeted in private homes and college residences. The weekend arrivals included many directors of the Fathers of Confederation Memorial Centre, nearing completion in the middle of the city. They represent many sections of the country.

The centre, financed by the provincial and federal governments of Canada, is still in the hands of the builders. Included are some sections, including a theatre and art gallery, have opened.

Mr. Pearson and most of the premiers were due by air at 5:00 p.m.

Tuesday they will sit down for the opening session of their federal - provincial conference. This meeting will be held in the Confederation chamber at Province House, the same where the Fathers held their momentous session 100 years ago.

Re - enactment of the 1864 gathering will begin Tuesday afternoon with the arrival of the Queen Guard ship Prince Edward Lapointe, converted into a facsimile of life ferry Queen Victoria that brought the original Canadian delegates here from Quebec.

Beatles Have To Hide in Hotel Rooms

ATLANTIC CITY, N.J. (AP) —The Beatles hid in their hotel rooms today, safe from screaming young girls who jammed Convention Hall and the streets around it Sunday night.

After a single appearance, the four British rock-and-roll idols—Paul McCartney, Ringo Starr, George Harrison and John Lennon — remain here until Wednesday night when they travel 60 miles to perform in Philadelphia.

They won't budge from the hotel for the intervening three days, according to their manager, Derek Taylor.

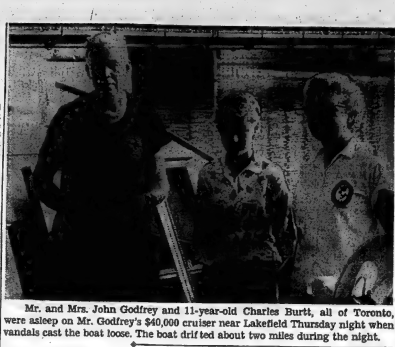
Reuther Set To Meet Owners At Bargain Table

DETROIT (AP) — Walter P. Reuther, United Auto Workers president, was to face his familiar foes today after apparently quelling a brief but stormy revolt within his union's ranks.

Reuther was set to put in another personal appearance at the bargaining table as the UAW and Chrysler Corp. continued efforts to hammer out a new and pattern-setting contract.

Current pacts with Chrysler and General Motors and Ford, originally scheduled to expire today, have been extended until Sept. 9.

It was the strike deadline handed Chrysler by UAW leaders last week.



Chrysler, the smallest of the automotive Big Three, showed no sign of plans to improve on the contract offer made to the UAW Aug. 17. The union rejected offers from all three companies last minute.

Reuther and top UAW officials faced a brief flurry of protest during the weekend at a meeting of the GM Workers Council which represents some 354,000 GM employees.

Leonard Woodcock, chief of the union's GM department, conceded that some workers are unhappy with the decision to pick Chrysler instead of the larger General Motors as the target for a possible strike.

DEGREE OF CLEANLINESS

Cruiser Owner 'Still Shaking' After Incident

TRENTON — Still "shaking," from a terrifying experience at Lock No. 26, at Lakefield, on August 27, the owners of "Restless III," their new 40,000 cruiser and the date at the East Trenton marina yesterday afternoon to gas up on their way back to Toronto.

Mr. and Mrs. John Godfrey and their 11 - year - old guest, Charlene Burtt won't forget the feeling they had early last Thursday, when in the middle of a pea soup fog they realized they were floating aimlessly down the Trent Canal, and that the dam at Lock 26 was dangerously near.

Mr. Godfrey had secured the cruiser well up above the lock, and the family settled down for the night aboard the luxury craft. Mrs. Godfrey awoke to hear the running water of the dam. She woke her husband, who switched on the lights. Suddenly someone filmed efforts to hammer out had cut the mooring lines and the craft had drifted two miles down the canal.

Marvin Earl Hickey a Lakefield milkman, who was on Lock No. 26, and realized the plight of the drifting boat, used his flashlight to guide Mr. Godfrey to safety. At 5:15 a.m., the cruiser was again safe and secure and her owners were vowing, "never to doet at Lakefield again."

The chief of police in the upper Trent town lays the cutting of the lines to vandals and is following a lead to apprehend the persons responsible.

After returning to Toronto the Godfreys mean to take the 44 foot cruiser down the inland waterway to Florida and then to the Bahamas, where they will spend the winter aboard. Mr. Godfrey is a retired lumber company president and calls Winnipeg his home city.

Ted Krystia On Leave From U. S. Army

TRENTON — When Ted Krystia of 7 Lorne Ave. graduated from Trenton High School last year, he decided he would like "to see the world," and joined . . . not the navy, but the United States Army. He spent two months at "jump school" in Fort Benning, Georgia, and then went on to 101 Air Borne Division of the army at Fort Campbell, Kentucky.

Ted is on leave right now in Trenton, visiting his parents. When he returns to the United States, he expects to be sent on a routine course to Turkey for experience in mountain climbing.

Commenting today on the segregation problem in the U.S., Ted said there wasn't any problem in the US army, which has been integrated since 1951. About half his division is Negro, says Ted, and the men are accepted as fellow paratroopers.

Truck Logs Cabin up to West Lake

TRENTON — The three McDonald boys, Donald, Bill and "Sandy", the sons of Dr. and Mrs. W. A. L. McDonald of 72 Byron Street, will be spending their summers from now on in what must be the oldest house in Canada.

Last year, Dr. McDonald bought a log cabin, vintage 1784, which was located along a riverbank at Williamston in Glengarry County, near Cornwall. The cabin had been lived in continuously from the year it was built until 1954.

Dr. McDonald and his three sons took the cabin apart, trucked it up to West Lake and started out to rebuild it. This year, the sides are up and the roof is on. A basement has been dug and the logs are being reinforced by cement.

The cottage will be finished inside with modern day plywood, and the McDonalds can boast they have a log cabin which is ten years older than the one on display at the Canadian National Exhibition.

Paper Objects to Princess Associating With Makarios

LONDON (Reuters) — A national newspaper today objected to Princess Anne being bridesmaid at the Greek royal marriage next month.

The Daily Sketch said in an editorial in the presence of Cyprus President Makarios "fresh from flirtation with Moscow and now dallying with Nasser in Egypt" would be the presence of any of the British Royal Family at the wedding.

The Sketch said the Sept. 18 wedding of King Constantine to Princess Anne - Marie of Denmark in Athens will also be attended by Prince Philip, Prince Charles and Prince Michael of Kent.

The Sketch asked whether Anne, 14, should be a bridesmaid because it was "an inescapable tradition" for the British Royal Family to steer clear of politics, especially the Cyprus issue.

The paper also claimed other members of the family will have prominent roles in the wedding.

"In a word, in this inflammable situation, is it wise to go at all?" the newspaper asked.

Hotel Manager Hit by Chair, Charge Laid

A 25-year-old Belleville man has been charged with assault occasioning harm after a city hotel manager was hospitalized unconscious following a bar-room brawl Friday night.

Thomas Edward Deline was arraigned Saturday and will appear in court Tuesday.

Recovering from severe concussions in Belleville General Hospital is Norman Hickson, 48.

Police say Mr. Hickson went up to a group of men at a beverage room table, when he discovered one of them had been barred from the hotel.

He was escorting the man off the premises when he was struck from behind with a chair, police allege.

The force of the blow knocked Mr. Hickson senseless, and he was rushed to hospital by ambulance.

His assailant fled and was sought by police Friday night and Saturday morning.

Woman, Age 78, Is Missing Berry-Picking

ORILLIA (CP)—Police, lands and forests officers and cottagers today were searching the bush around Kahshe Lake, 18 miles north of here, for a 78-year-old woman missing since Sunday afternoon.

The woman, whose name is not yet known, went blueberry picking in the bush near Kluxy Bay on Kahshe Lake about 2 p.m. Sunday and she has not been seen since.

She had been staying with her niece, a cottager on the lake identified as Mrs. A. Ross of Toronto. Children playing on a beach nearby saw her walking down the road.

The children told her the blueberry season was over but they could not stop her.

TAILGATERS TRESPASS on the protective space behind other cars by following too closely.

They caused over 7,000 accidents in Ontario last year because they didn't leave a safe stopping distance between cars.

Safe stopping distance is at least one car length between your car and the one ahead for every 10 miles of speed. At 60 miles an hour you should be six car lengths behind the car in front of you.

If a tailgater is following you too closely, here's a tip from the Ontario Safety League. Slow down a bit to leave more space between your car and the one ahead. With extra stopping room in front, you're not so likely to have to come to a quick stop . . . and not so likely to be rear-ended by the tailgater.

Which Bridge Comes First ?

Three years from now Belleville is scheduled to get a new bridge over the Moira River—at Dundas Street.

This project is in the capital budget.

Now some of those concerned with the difficult task of keeping our ever-increasing traffic flowing as smoothly as possible are wondering whether this is the bridge that should be built.

There is some feeling that a more pressing need is a new bridge over the Moira farther north—to handle the great increase of traffic on North Front Street which has followed the completion of another bridge, the impending and traffic speeding overpass above the CNR tracks.

• • •

The North Front Street overpass altered our traffic pattern.

What we need to ask ourselves, first of all, is which bridge, one at Dundas Street or one further north (at Church Street according to proposals made by an outside firm in a traffic survey some years ago), which of these two bridges, we ask, would have the greater effect on traffic patterns, and what these effects would be.

It is not easy to answer such a question.

Traffic counts alone provide us with only half the information we need if we are to attempt to base an opinion on probabilities. We need to know not only how many cars travel over a given route, but where these cars come from. The traffic pattern of cars from out of town is fairly easily controlled. The driver who has no intimate knowledge of a city follows signs. Local traffic, on the other hand, is less stable. Drivers know alternate routes. They will not be deterred from seeking them by any lack of signs. Even when we know the ratio of out-of-town to local traffic, we can only guess how local drivers will react to a new route.

In almost all cases, it is local traffic which holds the key to the solution of traffic jams. Local traffic causes most traffic jams.

• • •

Most of Belleville's troubles at rush-hour peaks arise from the fact that the city's biggest industry, Northern Electric, is located on the west hill, while most of the city's homes, especially those of new subdivisions, are on the east hill. (This may change; vacant land within the city limits is growing scarce on the east hill and major developments are under way on the west hill.) Assuming, however, there is no major shift in the places of residence of Northern employees, which bridge, at Dundas or at Church Street, would be heavily used by them?

The Dundas Street bridge proposal is tied in with plans to widen Bay Bridge road up the hill to Highway Two at a point just south of the Devil's elbow. Much of this traffic would then flow over the Dundas Street bridge. If Sidney Street were made a main artery and carried through the fair grounds, would not many Northern employees follow it to Highway 2 and then drive over the Dundas Street bridge to their homes in the east end? This would relieve traffic over what is now the Lower Bridge, on Bridge Street. It would also relieve traffic over the Upper Bridge, for many Northern employees now come down Moira Street and continue up Station Street to Emily Street, reaching the east hill at the northern end.

Would a bridge over the Moira at Church Street have much influence on Northern Electric traffic? Perhaps, but we do not see how. In any case, homeward-bound traffic would still come over the Upper Bridge, since it is proposed to make Pinnacle a south-bound street and Church Street a north-bound street, leading over the new bridge to North Front.

• • •

Making Church Street a through street would be very costly. There are hills, south of Bridge and north of Victoria, which would have to be levelled out. The street leads past three schools, one of them for elementary school children. Do we want this?

The Dundas Street bridge just might change peak-hour traffic to a degree which would make it possible to leave Church Street untouched and build a later bridge at an alternate site, from Pinnacle Street to connect with the present intersection of North Front and Moira Streets. Then the widening of North Front to the already adequate overpass over the CNR tracks and beyond should solve the existing problem on that street.

Another "relief valve" could be supplied by constructing an adequate, and relatively cheap, bridge on College Street, to replace the present dilapidated one-lane structure.

Some Practical Definitions

By JOHN FRIESEN
Executive Editor of the Fort William Times-Journal

It's high time lexicographers — people who compile dictionaries (we looked it up in a dictionary) — took into account that the fattening gods and phrases take on entirely new meaning in terms of daily family life.

In the event Oxford or Webster should some day become enlightened, we have research this area and compile a special dictionary for home use, we offer the following guide to common words and phrases and their meanings:

Pocket Money — A weekly pittance husbands are allowed to carry in their pockets so wives and children will have a ready source of cash.

Monday — The day after Sunday when dad can return to the restful peace and quiet of his job.

• • •

Squares — All fathers and mothers who won't let their sons wear Beatle hair - cuts or permit teenage daughters to stay out after midnight.

Money — A token of exchange which the boss thinks you get too much of; your wife claims you don't bring home enough of, and kids think grows on trees.

School — A form of penal servitude which would have the long out of an endless succession of costly dress shoes playing football and girls participate in a continuous fashion show.

Family Discussion — A democratic meeting of all members of the family to consider an important issue at which nobody is allowed to contradict dad when he lays down the law.

• • •

Dog — A family pet that never bothers a soul, is almost human and never strays from his own yard.

Dangerous Monster — A dog belonging to a neighbor.

Lawn — A useless square of grass covered with snow seven months of the year and over which dad worries himself into an early grave.

House — A structure that owns a family.

Car — A four-wheeled vehicle that supports a dozen huge installments, thousands of people, several governments and is always out of style.

Suit — Matching trousers and jacket that are shiny and frayed but good for another year.

Comic books — Publications from which children obtain all the information they need in life.

• • •

Noisy party — What neighbors have on Saturday night when they don't invite you.

Quiet social evening — What you have Saturday night.

• • •

Barbecue — A peculiar ceremony in which members of the family are required to compliment father on how delicious burnt steaks taste.

Weekend — A frenzied period of activity sandwiched between work-days.

Ancient history — What children can everything that went on before they were born.

Grandparents — Inexpensive baby-sitters.

• • •

Invasion — When the wife's relatives drop in for a visit.

Pleasant surprise — When your own relatives drop in unexpectedly.

• • •

Man-to-man talk — A father and son game in which father tries to find out if his son knows as much as he's afraid he does.

Campaign — What happens when butter up tactics fail and daughters learn up with mother to work on fathers.

Basement workshop — Where fathers spend their time when campaigns are under way.

Johnson Real Conservative

Montreal Gazette

Now that the Democratic Party in the United States has officially chosen Lyndon Johnson as its candidate for President, this crucial American election will begin to gather speed and momentum.

It will be a crucial election campaign because, as the Republican Party is saying so often these days, the issues at stake are being offered "a choice, not an echo."

In recent times, the differences between Democratic and Republican candidates have not been great. There have been differences of emphasis, of character, of confidence and of experience. But there have been no real radicals, whether of Left or Right.

Wendell Willkie accepted the bulk of Roosevelt's foreign policy. Truman's policy has been much is common. Stevenson, although known as a liberal, was not all that different from Eisenhower. Nixon and Kennedy almost had to invent points of disagreement.

The contest between Johnson and Goldwater is a break with this pattern. Senator Goldwater offers the American people "a choice, not an echo," he is offering them a chance to reject the status quo. This means that, almost by definition, he is appealing to the dissatisfied and the discontented.

• • •

Mr. Goldwater has provided any number of hooks on which this discontent can be hung — the graduated income tax, federal power versus states' rights, integration of Negroes into American society, Communism at home and abroad, the welfare state, and so on.

If Senator Goldwater ever became President it is possible that he would turn his back on his radical past, and would become a defender of the status quo he has spent his political life attacking. There is already a straw in the wind, in his recent surrender to General Eisenhower on several points.

But no one really knows. Perhaps Mr. Goldwater himself does not really know what he would do if he became President. There is just as much reason to believe he would try to carry out his disastrous program as there is to believe he would opportunistically throw it all overboard once it had served his purposes.

In fact, if he got elected by offering a choice, not an echo," he might well suppress whatever misgivings about his program he may have. He might become convinced that he had been right after all.

Mr. Johnson has shown the extent of his talent since succeeding to the Presidency. He has been able to do what Mr. Kennedy could not do — persuade Congress to pass the civil rights act and the tax cut. He united his country with great competence after the tragedy of the assassination. He has been firm but not reckless in foreign policy, even though this in the field in which he is least experienced. He has already begun feeling his way towards further progress in the political process in the area of poverty. And it need scarcely be added that his knowledge of the political process is virtually unique for an American President.

• • •

Former President Harry Truman put it well recently when he said that "the Democratic Party is confronted with a great political gift in the person of Lyndon Johnson. Only in my mind is the kind of leader who comes along once in a rare while to meet the needs of a particular period where the answer suits the need to perfection."

There can be no doubt who would be the better President. If reason and common sense prevail in the American election, President Johnson will be returned to office.

Why Canada Shuns Fair

Montreal Star

Certain people in New York are upset because Canada is not taking part in that city's world's fair. They complain that while the United States government will invest the solid sum of $13,500,000 in the 1967 Montreal world exhibition, Canada is not spending a cent in New York.

There is a good reason why Canada is not represented at New York. The International Exhibitions Bureau, of which this country is a member in good standing, has taken a resolution forbidding any member to exhibit in New York. So, like Britain, France, the Soviet Union and nearly 30 other countries which belong to the IEB, Canada has no choice in the matter.

Canada did participate in the Seattle fair. This was possible because the Americans, who do not yet belong to the IEB, submitted plans to the bureau for their Seattle undertaking to be recognized as a "second-category" international exhibition. The IEB liked what it saw and allowed member - nations to show their wares there.

It is believed that the United States now sees the advantages of belonging to the IEB. Recently Washington officially announced that the U.S. will apply for membership so that the world fair to be planned for the bi-centenary of Independence in 1976 can be sanctioned by the IEB as an official "first-category" exhibition — a status that has already been given to the Montreal exhibition.

Our critics in New York can rest assured that Canada will exhibit in the United States in 1976 — if, as seems certain, U.S. membership of the IEB is approved.

Epilepsy Muscle Disorder Not Mental Disease

By JOSEPH G. MOLNER, M.D.

Dear Dr. Molner: I have odne in elementary school with young people who are epileptic. Is this a mental illness? What should one do when an epileptic has a seizure? — J. S.

No, epilepsy is not a mental illness. It is a disorder in which the muscles go into convulsion. The treatment is the use of anticonvulsant drugs which prevent the muscles from going into sudden spasm.

Seizures are usually brief. In some types of epilepsy, they may last only a second or less, and nothing need be done. The patient, in such cases, may merely pause in the middle of saying a word, then continue, as though nothing had happened, when the convulsion passes.

In the more severe attacks, in which the patient falls to the ground, all you should (or can) do is to keep him from harming himself. See that he does not strike his head against some object.

Put a cushion or perhaps a folded coat or sweater under his head. Try to keep him from biting his tongue. A small piece of wood, a wooden pencil or the like, slipped between his teeth will accomplish this. You could also use a spoon, corner of a wallet or any similar object.

Loosen the collar; the strain on the muscles may make breathing difficult.

He will come out of the seizure automatically as the muscles relax, but he will be tired and shaky from his ordeal.

Then be helpful and understanding. There is no reason to be afraid of him, as some people are when they see a seizure. For the sake of his feelings, if people gather round and begin muttering and asking foolish questions, gently shoo them about their business. Just be calm and say, "He's had a seizure that's all. He'll be all right in a few minutes."

Dear Dr. Molner: How do stomach ulcers form? — M.

Nobody knows exactly. They can occur in childhood. They are more frequent in tense, hard driving individuals.

Think of it this way: An ulcer is a sore. Some people have more tendency than others to acquire them. If irritation can be prevented, such a sore tends to heal.

Spices and other such foods must be avoided. A most excessive flow of digestive juices as well as excessive movement of the stomach and intestines during the patient from becoming too tense and nervous, if possible, by helping him relax. Smoking is usually restricted.

I've mentioned some things which give ulcers a chance to heal. While we don't know precisely what causes them, we do know a good deal about treating them. To learn more concerning the subject, write to me in care of The Ontario Intelligencer, P. O. Box 158, Dundas, Ill., enclosing 25 cents in coin and a long, unstamped, self-addressed envelope for a copy of the booklet, "Your Healthful Ulcers and How to Keep Them Healed."

Dear Dr. Molner: My son, 8, has a birthmark, a third nipple. It does not grow but other children laugh at it and it has caused much heartache. — D. B.

This is an accident of nature which occurs sometimes. My advice would be to leave it alone and forget it — but explain to the little boy that this is just that, a mistake by nature, and not to let it or the remarks of other youngsters bother him. This is not an unusual occurrence.

Note to "His Wife": Indigestion from a glass of milk? Yes. It is possible, because some people can be allergic to cow's milk.

The Average Tennis Player A Decent Chap

By SYDNEY J. HARRIS

As a devoted, if ineffectual, tennis player since I have been old enough to lift a racquet, I am constantly chagrined at the hapless behavior of my heroes on the courts.

The average tennis player (like the average anything else) is a decent and affable chap; but the tournament player, whether amateur or professional, is a boorish, temperamental, infantile and conceited jackass, a pain in the neck wrapped up in himself as a cabbage head.

Technically, tennis is the most polite and sportsmanlike of games. In America, it is almost considered a sissy sport by the more rugged devotees of the masculine population, who suspect any man running around in a pair of white shorts as being deficient in male chromosomes.

Yet, neither the Neanderthals who play football, the balding rustics who lope across the baseball diamond, nor even the jutjawed avengers of the hockey rink can approach the tennis player for sheer petulance, vanity and the kind of tantrums commonly associated with a three-year-old who throws spinach in his mother's face.

It would take some profound psychologist to explain the reason for this — but I am sure that part of the cause lies in the adulation given to these spoiled brats by the higher echelons of society.

Football and baseball heroes may be adored by hoi polloi, but the tennis champion is ardently courted (or you intended) by the gilded set, and is rapidly introduced to a way of life that many other athletes feel contrast to his own average or underprivileged background.

The top tennis stars are not subsidized as crudely as their contemporaries in other sports, but the perks of sportsmanship quotidian is subtle and stupefying to a lad from the wrong side of the tracks who suddenly finds that up and finds that he is sitting on top of the piano being serenaded by the Duchess of Somerset Glee Club.

Of course, bad manners on the courts are not limited to the boys from the lower bourgeoisie who treat mere umpires and line-judges like dirt, and throw tantrums over close calls by the referees; the behavior of spectators is equally disgraceful.

Toronto Stocks

TORONTO (CP)—Prices were fractionally higher in stepped-up trading on the Toronto stock market today.

Algoma Steel led industrials with a gain of ¾ to 74¾. Steel of Canada was up ⅛ to 25¾. CPR and Massey - Ferguson were ¼ gainers at 47¾ and 28 ¾ respectively. Distiller Seagrams and Imperial Bank of Commerce were other ¼ gainers at 62 and 68¾ respectively. Empire Life, last week's sensation when it climbed as much as $130 to $395, fell $25 to $310 on one transaction.

Base metals made an erratic advance. Inco tacked on ¾ to 84¾ and Hudson Bay ¾ to 68¾. Noranda was down ⅛ to 47⅛ and Falconbridge ⅛ to 75¾.

Speculative activity increased although volumes in individual stocks was not impressive—the breadth of the market was. Most price changes, however, were restricted to one or two cents. Windfall 5½ cents to 33¼ while Raglan was ahead two cents to $1.81 and Norpax 1½ to 21 cents.

On index, industrials were ahead .06 to 158.96, base metals .01 to 67.1, western oils .17 to 80.85 and the Exchange index .04 to 148.43. Golds dipped 1.39 to 133.78. Volume at 11 a.m. was 1,030,000 shares compared with 657,000 shares traded at the same time Friday.

Foreign Policy Key Target In Campaign

NEWPORT BEACH, Calif. (AP) — Republican presidential nominee Barry Goldwater winds up a week-long floating vacation today after stating out foreign policy as a key target in his campaign against President Johnson.

Goldwater and his wife were due to cruise back to Newport Beach aboard their borrowed motor yacht, the Sundance. They have been cruising southern California's coastal waters since Tuesday. Goldwater said it would be his last respite before the Nov. 3 election.

Politically, Goldwater has been silent most of the time, but twice he has fired ship-to-shore salvos at President Johnson's foreign policy. He said the speech with which Johnson accepted the Democratic presidential nomination last Thursday was a clear withdrawal from leadership in international affairs."

Saturday he accused Johnson of trying to "avoid all questions regarding foreign policy." He demanded that the president tell the U.S. "just how deeply we have been involved in the runaway inflation and governmental musical chairs going on in South West Nam."

But on land — Goldwater's hours afloat have been spent in relaxation. With four guests — Mr. and Mrs. Bert Holloway of Burbank, Calif., and Mr. and Mrs. John Martini of Los Angeles — the Goldwaters have fished, engaged in some seagoing target practice with shotguns and pistols and watched side of the Republican national convention.

Goldwater has spent hours at a portable ham radio set, contacting more than 300 fellow operators in almost every state. He formally launches his race against Johnson at Fresco't, Ariz., Thursday.

2 Departments Refused Calls To Fight Fire

OSHAWA (CP) — A German immigrant couple, in Canada three months, watched helplessly Sunday morning as almost all of their belongings were destroyed in a truck fire on Highway 401 about five miles east of here.

Despite efforts by police to extinguish the flames, the truck burned to the wheels along with about $700 in furniture belonging to Mr. and Mrs. Helmut Hartter, who were moving to Toronto from Orono, 15 miles northeast of here.

The Oshawa and Bowmanville fire departments both refused calls to fight the fire.

Fire Chief Tom Lyle of Bowmanville said Sunday his department was prohibited from answering the call by a town bylaw which states it cannot go on provincial highways to fight a fire.

Oshawa fire department officials were unavailable for comment.

Girl's Ankle Broken, Scooter Hit by Car

One Belleville girl's ankle was broken and another girl was shaken up yesterday when their motor scooter was hit by a car.

Pat Burshaw, 16, of 78½ Station Street, broke her right ankle; Sharon Elizabeth Thorn, 19, of 64 Cannifton Road, was shaken but unhurt. The scooter was badly damaged.

John Kent of Shannonville, driver of the car, was unhurt. Damage to the car was estimated at $10. Both vehicles were eastbound on Dundas E. near Belleville Plaza at the time, the scooter was ahead of the car.

Canadian Mother of the Year Is Wife of Indian Counsellor Mother of Twelve Children

The Women's Division of the Canadian National Exhibition had as its guest on Monday, Mrs. Agnes Gottfredson of Kamloops, British Columbia, "Canadian Mother of the Year."

Mrs. Gottfredson is the wife of a counsellor of the Kamloops Indian Band, the mother of twelve children and one adopted. She was chosen as British Columbia Mother of the Year in 1963 by the Florist Telegraph Delivery Association, and named "Good Citizen of the Greater Kamloops District." She was selected from more than three hundred nominees for the Florist Telegraph Delivery Association award of "Canadian Mother of the Year" 1964 by five contest judges which this year included two Canadian senators and Jack Passmore of Brantford, Director of PTDA.

While in Ottawa to receive her award, Mrs. Gottfriedsen was received by the Prime Minister, had lunch with the Honorable John Diefenbaker and was entertained at tea by Her Excellency, Madame George Vanier.

LEADER IN FIGHT

Mrs. Gottfredsen has long been a leader in the fight against Indian problems. She is membership chairman of the British Columbia All - Indian Association, and a director of the Sisterhood of the North American Brotherhood and a director of the Nika Club — an organization with an equal number of Indian and non - Indian directors, formed to help integrate Indians into community life.

M... Gottfriedsen encourages young Indians of today toward education. Success, she says was limited to that available to children of her generation. And while she is well aware of the importance of education in today's society, she is equally cognizant of the value of young people of her race retaining the fine things of their own heritage. Language, she says, she has encouraged the learning of the native Salish and Shuswap languages, re - introduction of tribal dancing and the preservation of native costume so that these good things may be handed down to future generations with pride.

Final Approval Given Plans For Hospital

At a special meeting of the Board of Governors held Thursday, final approval was given to the plans, with the exception of certain departments, for the hospital expansion program. These plans have been forwarded to the architect for cost estimates and submission to the Hospital Services Commission for approval. When this approval has been granted by the Commission, the architects will proceed with the working drawings which will be used as a basis for tenders.

The board also awarded the tender for the boilers to the Dominion Bridge Company Limited whose bid was the lowest, and promised the earliest delivery.

It is hoped that the new power house, which will be large enough to service both the new and the existing buildings, will be in operation soon after the first of next year.

Experimental Fitness Project Is Launched

TORONTO (CP) — A coast-to-coast experimental project in adult physical fitness, sponsored and financed by the national directorate for fitness and amateur sport and promoted by the national councils of the YMCAs of Canada, will be launched today and will conclude to Aug. 31, 1965.

Mrs. Clare Luce Out of U. S. Senate Race

SARATOGA SPRINGS, N.Y. (AP) — Clare Boothe Luce withdrew Sunday as a potential Conservative party candidate for U.S. senator, and the party prepared instead to nominate a history professor to run in New York State against Republican Senator Kenneth B. Keating.

The Conservative party is a small, right-leaning group organized only in New York State. It staunchly supports Republican presidential nominee Barry Goldwater.

Keating has refused to endorse the Arizona senator's candidacy for president, saying there are basic disagreements between himself and Goldwater.

Governor Nelson A. Rockefeller's Republican state organization threatened to withdraw support from the national Republican ticket unless Mrs. Luce bowed out. Her removal paved the way for a head-on clash between Keating and Attorney - General Robert Kennedy, the probably Democratic nominee.

Sir John Would Have Taken Nip If He Had Sailed on Such a Ship

Confederation with 79
By JAMES NELSON

ABOARD SS QUEEN VICTORIA (CP)—It was enough to send John A. Macdonald back to the bottle.

A stesdy downpour of rain Saturday dreached the ceremonial departure of this reconstruction of the ship which carried the original Quebec and Ontario Fathers of Confederation to Charlottetown for their Sept. 1, 1864, confe&ence.

Decked out in top hats, false whiskers and knee length Prince Albert coats, eight Canadian actors hired by the federal centennial commission weathered the storm manfully. They drove in Quebec City's colorful horse-drawn calèches from the ancient Saint Louis Hotel through the narrow, winding streets to dockside.

A band hired to give them a sendoff played one number before they arrived and then clambered aboard a bus out of the rain and drove away.

Ceremonies which were to have been held on the quay took place instead aboard the ship, the Canadian Coast Guard icebreaker Ernest Lapointe, fitted out with reefed sails and an elaborate bow sprit to make her look like the Queen Victoria of 100 years ago.

Quebec Mayor Wilfrid Hamel said the departure not only commemorated the event of 100 years ago to the day, but should spark renewed dedication to the principles of good will and mutual confidence that went into the creation of the federal union of Canada.

Younger Brother Should Get Some Encouragement

DEAR DORIS — I am 15 and have a brother 11. He sucks his thumb continuously and wets his bed about once a week. My mother occasionally talks him to stop but that's all she does. I've tried telling him the consequences if he persists in sucking, but nothing does a bit of good. Now I fight with him constantly about it.

He has horrible buck teeth and is sometimes kidded and teased about it by others but he soon forgets. I think that in later years this will cause him to develop a complex.

My brother quite frequently loses his temper. This is a trait also of my father and of me. He is afraid to learn how to swim (afraid of water) and of rides such as the ferris wheel, while most of his friends are avid swimmers and quite unafraid.

My brother is now in the process of getting braces costing $500. I don't see what good they can do if he keeps sucking his thumb — WORRIED SISTER.

DORIS CLARK

DEAR WORRIED — Call off the nagging. It only fixes the habit more firmly.

Thumb sucking, bedwetting, temper, intense fears — all point to unsatisfied needs. Neglect, boredom, not enough affection — what is it?

He should be getting encouragement and praise for what's good about him; and new ways to express himself. Affection from his older sister — you! And his mother and father to take the situation seriously enough to seek guidance from a counsellor.

• • •

DEAR DORIS — I'm glad you got permission from "Sharing" to print "Broken Things". I have been very ill and in the long uphill climb to health this little magazine is such a source of inspiration and uplift.

You, as a social worker, know what healthy attitudes of mind (and the reverse) can do to our physical bodies.

"For of the soul the body form doth take,
For soul is form and doth the body make." — EDMUND SPENCER.

"Sharing" lists many helpful pamphlets for the sick. — MRS. M. I. McK.

• • •

THANK YOU, MRS. McK. — I'll pass on "Sharing's" address to anyone who writes in for it.

• • •

DEAR DORIS — I'd love to get my hands on that 15-year-old boy who wrote to you about the song he had written, saying, "It's not bad at all compared to the songs of those four freaks from Liverpool."

If he thinks his song was better than any of their songs I'd like to see him become a millionaire in one year. — ANOTHER F.A.B.F.P.

• • •

DEAR ANOTHER — What would you do if you could get your hands on him? (My guess is you'd fall for him too.)

• • •

CONFIDENTIAL TO IN DOUBT — I can tell you where to write for a— book on vocations for women, but since you have asked for a reply by mail, I will need your name and address!

Skirts Full, Swinging on Many Models

PARIS (AP) — The ladies who couldn't get a glimpse of the famed fall and winter fashion collections over here, finally got a look at them Sunday.

Photographs, strictly embargoed against fashion scouting, were released for press use about a month after fashion writers and buyers saw the real thing paraded by mannequins in the haute couture houses of this fashion capital.

The freshest wearable look seemed to be Dior's peasant skirt silhouette, called the "new new look" by some. Dior's skirts are full and swinging on many of the models, with long and loose jackets or small and fitted basques.

Yves Saint-Laurent presented no surprises, coming out with mid-calf length dresses for dinner wear as his most eye-catching style.

Many who saw Saint - Laurent's collection were amazed at the similarity to Chanel, with both showing simple suits and tiered skirts.

Sour Cream Coffee Cake

by Mary Moore

In September of 1963 and in April of 1963 I gave here recipes for sour cream coffee cakes, both of which proved popular with you.

I have another recipe for sour cream coffee cake which is better, in my opinion, than both of the former.

I shall identify it by calling it Muriel's Coffee Cake. Muriel is my cousin and often pigeonholes her recipe discoveries, for my benefit.

MONDAY

Dinner Menu

Baked stuffed pork chops, spiced applesauce, buttered poppy seed noodles, creamed carrot dice, lettuce salad, orange sherbet, sponge fingers, coffee.

MURIEL'S COFFEE CAKE
(baked in tube pan):

Batter: ¼ cup shortening (half and half butter and shortening are recommended), 1 cup granulated sugar, 2 eggs, 2 cups sifted all-purpose flour, 2 teaspoons baking powder, ¼ teaspoon baking soda, ½ teaspoon salt, 1 cup soured cream or dairy sour cream, ½ cup Sultana raisins, ¼ cup chopped walnuts or shaved almonds or Brazils or filberts (optional).

Topping: ⅛ cup flour, ½ cup brown sugar, 1 teaspoon cinnamon, 1 tablespoon soft butter.

In beater bowl beat together shortening and sugar until light, then beat in eggs well. Sift together the sifted flour, baking powder, baking soda and salt. Add dry ingredients alternately with the sour cream but do not overmix. Fold in raisins and nuts (if used).

Turn into well-buttered tube pan. (I used my 10" angel food pan but the batter only half-filled it).

Blend together well the Topping ingredients and sprinkle evenly over top.

Bake at 375 deg. Fahr. for 35 minutes.

NOTE:

Muriel told me she baked hers 45 minutes. Now I'm wondering if her tube pan was narrower than mine, thus making a deeper cake. So test your cake at 35 minutes with toothpick to see if batter is baked at centre.

If possible, serve this cake shortly after it is baked, — even warm — for then is when it is at the peak of its perfection.

Wonderful for a morning coffee party.

"Raise your right hand!"

SPEAKING OF MANNERS

BY PATRICIA LEWIS

DON'T BRING POLITICS TO A PARTY

A man I know unwittingly convinced me the other night that political pundits in a fevered election year belong on the editorial page of the newspaper or under the by-line of an expert.

It certainly doesn't belong in a home where the hostess has thoughtfully assembled what she thought was a genial group of guests.

This man was a bear about his political opinions. Everyone has a right to express his opinions, of course, even over the salmon mousse that the hostess had spent hours preparing.

But he went further than the expression of opinions — he seriously questioned the sanity and intelligence quotient of those who disagreed with him.

As the boys on the editorial page have been saying, the election will give voters a clear choice for the first time in many years. It translate this to mean freedom of choice.

Not for my "expert" the other dismal evening. Having made his choice, he was intolerant, about the choice of some of the others.

At one point, the opposing candidate's name was mentioned in glowing terms by a little lady in the corner.

"Anyone who would vote for him is a dunce," the expert snorted.

The lady paused, obviously torn between answering him in kind or overlooking his insulting statement. Finally she answered "Well, I just decided this minute to vote for him, thanks to you."

The conversation thereafter lagged, then came to a grinding halt. It was resumed in another part of the room, leaving the pugnacious pundit alone with his thoughts, his choice and his cigar.

EVENING IS SPOILED

Naturally, the episode spoiled this carefully-planned evening for the hostess and, as it developed, for most of the guests.

When they phoned the next day to thank her for the party, they invariably got around to discussing the bad behavior of their politically-obsessed obligator.

Emotions are bound to run high during he many weeks before election. It's sufficient that you are strong enough to have an opinion and willing to discuss or to defend it.

But attacking the opinion of others — in the wrong place and at the wrong time — is a distortion of freedom of opinion and a violation of the rights of others.

There is a right time and a right place. And that's in the voting booth on Election Day.

Soaking wooden-handled kitchen knives in water may damage them, warn Home Economists at Macdonald Institute, Guelph. Water rusts the blade, deteriorates the wood and loosens the handle.

SOCIAL and PERSONAL

"AT HOME"

Mr. and Mrs. Stuart W. Howell, 32 Northwood Crescent will be "at home" to their friends and neighbors on the occasion of their 25th wedding anniversary, on Saturday, September 12, from 7 to 9 p.m.

* * *

Mr. and Mrs. E. C. Gowsell of 91 Hunswood Drive were honored guests at a recent surprise party sponsored by relatives and friends to celebrate their 25th wedding anniversary.

After enjoying dinner at the home of Mr. and Mrs. R. Clements of Harold, Mr. and Mrs. Gowsell returned to their home to be greeted by a large number of relatives and friends who had quietly assembled in their absence.

The living room was decorated in white silver and satin. The centre-piece for the table was a three-tier wedding cake surrounded by bouquets of roses and many beautiful gifts.

A pleasant social evening was concluded with a buffet luncheon.

Hostess for this portion of the celebration was Miss Bonnie Gowsell, daughter of the honored guests.

Model and TV Actress Likes To Sky Dive

TORONTO (CP) — As far as the Royal Canadian Air Force is concerned, Mari-Lou MacDonald is a real "bombshell" and not just because she is a tall, redhaired model with a perfect figure.

The 23-year-old actress from King City, Ont., will be the first woman sky-diver to perform in the RCAF's international air show at the Canadian National Exhibition this week.

Mari-Lou straps on a parachute, climbs and then dives out of a de Havilland Caribou at 9,500 feet. More than 2,000 feet later, she calmly pulls a cord and floats into Lake Ontario.

Lou, as she is known in sky-diving circles, leads two lives. As a model, TV and movie actress she wears imported evening gowns and a Grecian hairdo while she describes cars of the future in the CNE Automotive Building.

As a swim coach, pilot and sky-diver, she dons an oil-stained shapeless coverall with a parachute hump front and back before taking the jump.

"It is all for the love of the sport—Mari Lou receives no money for her air stunts. Any fee that may be arranged will go to the Parachute Club of Canada.

Mari-Lou says she was introduced to sky-diving by Canadian champion Darell Henry of Toronto and became an "addict."

"I decided to try it just once and now I'm up to 250," she says.

MR. AND MRS. NORRIS ELWOOD EMPEY

Empey – MacLean

Standards of white gladioli decorated the chancel of Trinity United Church, Napanee, for the wedding of Miss Alice Joyce MacLean and Mr. Norris Elwood Empey. The evening candlelight marriage ceremony was performed by Rev. Irvine Johnston and traditional wedding music was played by Mrs. W. Aylesworth, who accompanied the soloist, Mr. W. Aylesworth.

The bride is the daughter of Mr. and Mrs. Jesse MacLean, R.R. 1, Napanee and the groom is the son of Mr. and Mrs. Melvin Empey of Belleville.

Given in marriage by her father, the bride joined her groom at the altar wearing a full length gown of Italian peau de sole designed and made by the bride. Covering the bell skirt was a chapel train. The bodice and elbow-length sleeves were tipped with appliques of lace. Her four-tiered veil was held by a headdress of leaf silk tulle with seed pearls. She carried a crescent of pink roses and lily-of-the-valley.

Bridal attendants were Mrs. Jack Empey of Coboconk as matron of honor. Miss Jean MacLean of Kingston, and Miss Sandra McLeod of Kars, both cousins of the bride, as bridesmaids. They wore similar bell skirted gowns of blue ocean spray peau de soie, headdresses of blue veiling held in place by a rosette matching their dresses. They carried cascades of pink 'mums and lily-of-the-valley.

Miss Roxanne Empey, niece of the groom, was flower girl. She wore a white embroidered dress and a headdress similar to the bride's. She carried a basket of pink 'mums and lily-of-the-valley.

The groom was attended by his brother, Jack Empey as best man and ushers were Mr. Barton MacLean, the bride's brother of Napanee and Mr. Frank Curtis of Belleville.

A reception was held in Trinity banquet hall. The bride's mother received the guests wearing a gown of heavenly blue with white accessories and wore a corsage of pink 'mums. She was assisted in the receiving by the mother of the groom, who wore a gown of island green satin-peau with beige accessories and wore a corsage of mauve 'mums.

For a wedding trip to Manitoulin Island, North Bay, Montreal and the Adirondack Mountains, the bride chose a shell pink dress and jacket with matching hat and black accessories. She wore a corsage of gardenias.

Out-of-town guests attending the wedding were from Toronto, Peterborough, Kingston, Manotick, Ottawa, Osgoodey Metcalfe, Kars, Prescott, Ivanhoe, Eldorado, Madoc, Belleville, Coboconk Bancroft and Marmora.

Mr. and Mrs. Empey will reside at 23 Linton Park Road in Belleville.

Prior to her marriage the bride was honored by two miscellaneous showers, entertained by Mrs. Ron Davidson, Kingston and Mrs. Pauline Hutchinson, Mrs. Raymond Fretts and Mrs. Ann Stephens of Napanee. Presentations were given by the Trinity United Church choir and the Napanee Women's Federation of Agriculture.

Bake an angel food cake the day before it is to be served and freeze it. Economists at Macdonald Institute, Guelph, say it can be frozen while it is still frozen and the cake will not tear.

Bloch-Bauers Enjoying Prominence in Vancouver

VANCOUVER (CP) — Mrs. Charles Bloch-Bauer has lived in the aristocratic mode from the theatre boxes of Europe to the elegance of Vancouver's Shaughnessy Heights.

It is a story of two lives—of Continental nightingale and cultured Canadian. And it has sharp chapters of romance, hardship and high comedy.

Today the Bloch-Bauers enjoy prominence in the social and artistic life of Vancouver. Mr. Bloch-Bauer is president of several lumber firms, a former co-chairman of programming for the Vancouver International Festival, a governor of the new Simon Fraser University, the president for seven years of the Alliance Francaise, and the unofficial ambassador of all things French.

The Bloch-Bauers entertain often. Writers, singers and ambassadors are among their guests. It is a life both seemed designed for, but one that 20 years ago seemed to both impossible of realization.

Europe was a troubled place when they met in a Viennese opera house. Mrs. Bloch-Bauer was then Rita Georg, Berlin-born daughter of an actor. She had been on the stage since the age of five, and later was educated in Berlin and Vienna.

BEGAN AT TOP

"I started at the top," she says. "I was never in the chorus."

Maurice Chevalier watched her perform, and so men such as Bruno Walter and Von Karajan came backstage for champagne.

On the fateful night in Vienna she was starring in the Spanish Nightingale when Vienna-born Charles Bloch-Bauer was out front. He prevailed upon a mutual friend for an introduction.

"We met. We fell in love," she says.

When the Second World War broke out, Mr. Bloch-Bauer was in Paris, attached to the French Army. Rita Georg was doing a concert in The Hague. He wired her he had a 24-hour leave and she left to marry him in Paris May 1, 1940.

Hardly had the vows been exchanged when the young officer was recalled to his regiment. She returned to Holland and on May 6 was picked up for interrogation by the German Army and was pestered about her husband.

"Had they known he was on his way to England, I wouldn't be here today."

She was imprisoned for four months.

"I had been spoiled by my personal maid," she recalls.

"And there I was suddenly confronted with making up my own bed of straw."

FIVE YEARS APART

After her release she worked with the underground and did not see her husband for five years. He found her in Amsterdam. She recalls that he bounded up the stairs of the house where she had a room.

"He was gay and jolly," she says.

"You have two hours to pack,' he said."

She was the first civilian to cross Europe in an army jeep. With her husband and a colonel she arrived in ravaged Cologne, where the young couple were granted the only private room available anywhere in the city.

But they had the only bathroom for blocks around as well, and Mrs. Bloch-Bauer laughs when she remembers 45 officers parading through their room during the night.

They lived in Vienna until the end of 1946 and a holiday visit to Vancouver in 1947 turned into a permanent stay.

She practises with a gymnast weekly and visits a masseuse.

"You have to learn to relax," she says. "Think nothing, with a dark mask on your eyes. It's a discipline."

Visits every two or three years back to Vienna stir an old homesickness, but she says her second life "fills me up."

AIDS AGED

LONDON (CP)—Wealthy London dot, widow Edith Earle, 89, known as the "gambling granny" because of her success in gambling, is to invite 12 old people to lunch at a West End hotel. The object is —, to record their conversations for the Queen, "to bring off a better deal for the old people of Britain."

Nurse at 76 Still Working In Winnipeg

WINNIPEG (CP) — A nurse here is sharing in the memories which come flooding back to those who served in the First World War.

Stella Johnstone Pollexfen, 76 and still an active nurse, is a floor supervisor at Winnipeg's Tache Chronic and Geriatric Hospital. She joined the Canadian Army Medical Corps in 1917 after graduating from the General Hospital school of nursing here.

Overseas, she recalls, "we were short-handed most of the time and the hours were long." The first night she arrived at a hospital in Brighton, England, she had to sleep on the floor because beds hadn't arrived.

She served in three hospitals on England's south coast—"because we were near the coast we got the soldiers early from the trenches.

"To bear the suffering as some of the wounded did took real courage."

She and other First World War nursing sisters often recall the "old days" when they meet regularly at reunion dinners.

Authority on Fertility Gives Pertinent Facts

HOUSTON, Tex. (AP) — A Houston authority on fertility says women with small breasts generally are more intelligent than the bosomy kind.

Dr. Erwin O. Strassman, a clinical professor at Baylor University College of Medicine, has published his findings in the current issue of the International Journal of Fertility.

He said after a study of 717 childless women, he could offer doctors this rule of thumb:

"The bigger the brain, the smaller the breasts, and vice versa, the bigger the breasts, the smaller the I.Q.

"There is a basic antagonism between intelligence and the reproductive system in infertile women."

He said women with large breasts usually have an intelligence based not on logical thinking but on instinct and intuition.

Dr. Strassman said he had been studying the relationship of body build to fertility for 40 years and only recently added the I.Q. component to the equation when he observed that infertile patients "stood out by their active minds and high intelligence."

83-Year-Old Is Taking Flying Lessons

Her husband, 86, is "amused." His son is proud. Her granddaughter, aged 4, is so impressed she prattles of being a parachutist some day.

Mrs. Hobday, a native of New Zealand, is taking flying lessons at nearby Black Bushe field and her instructors say her sureness at the controls is remarkable.

Flying dual controls is one thing, flying solo is another. That will be the greatest day of my life." Mrs. Hobday said.

Will she get a license?

That may be doubtful at her age. But she said:

"I pass a test every year to drive my car. And I don't really need these glasses. I take 'em off in the cockpit."

Views of President On Variety of Issues Given In Speeches and Conferences

WASHINGTON (AP)—Following are the views of President Johnson on a variety of issues, as expressed in speeches, magazine articles, press conferences and other public remarks and messages:

FOREIGN POLICY

In a speech Oct. 23, 1963, in Houston, Johnson said:

"If anywhere in the world—by any means, open or concealed — communism is to surpasses upon the soil of the free world, we should unleash all the power at our command upon the vitals of the Soviet Union."

In an article in the Texas Quarterly, winter, 1958, Johnson wrote:

"An international stalemate with communism would, I believe, be the greatest of waste of American resources and the resources of freedom, even though stalemate produced no war. A vital government cannot accept stalemate in any area—foreign or domestic. It must seek the ultimate interest of the nation, vigorously and courageously and confidently."

In his first speech before a joint session of Congress as president, Nov 27, 1963, Johnson said:

"In this age when there can be no losers in peace and no victors in war, we must recognize the obligation to match national strength with national restraint. We must be prepared at one and the same time for both the confrontation of power and the limitation of power. We must be ready to defend the national interest and to negotiate the common interest. This is the path that we shall continue to pursue."

In a television interview March 15, 1964, he said:

"... As long as we are living in a world with 120 nations . . . we have got to realize that we have got such foreign problems . . . I realize that we have discouraging incidents from time to time, and we have problems, and because we try to help with those problems, sometimes the role of peacemaker is not a very happy one. And so, for that reason, we have to do things that we don't want to do sometimes, and are rather infuriating—and sometimes are abused because we do them, and sometimes we are misunderstood, but the final result is good, then our action is justified. . . .

"But there are going to be these demands from time to time—people who feel that all we need to do is rush a button and determine everybody's foreign policy. But we are not living in that kind of world any more."

CUBA

On April 20, 1964, speaking to the annual meeting of The Associated Press in New York, he had this to say about Cuba:

"The use of Cuba as a base for subversion and terror is an obstacle to our hopes for the hemisphere. Our first task must be, as it has been, to isolate Cuba from the inter-American system, frustrate its efforts to destroy free governments, and expose for all to see the ugliness of communism. That policy is working.

"The problems of this hemisphere would be far more serious if Castro sat in the councils of the OAS. (Organization of American States) disrupting debate and blocking decision and communications along which constructive effort could flow—if his economy had been a successful model rather than a faltering one.

"The effectiveness of our policy is more than a matter of trading. It has increased awareness of difference and danger, revealed the brutal nature of the Cuban regime, lessened opportunities for subversion, reduced the number of Castro's followers, and drained the resources of our adversaries."

AGRICULTURE

In a message to Congress on agriculture, Jan. 31, 1964, Johnson said:

"The agricultural commodity programs developed during the past 30 years have served us well. They now are an indispensible bulwark of our agricultural economy. Without them our food supply would be much less secure than it is today.

"But they are in need of improvement. New conditions arising from the technological revolution in agriculture present a special challenge—a challenge based upon the problems of abundance rather than scarcity . . . ."

CIVIL RIGHTS

On March 9, 1949, speaking of a proposal by President Truman for a civil rights law, Senator Johnson told the Senate: "This civil rights question brings into play all those strong and evil forces of racial prejudice. Perhaps no prejudice is as contagious or so dangerous as the unreasoning prejudice against men because of their birth, the color of their skin, or their ancestral background. Racial prejudice is dangerous because it is a disease of the majority, endangering minority groups. . . .

"When we of the south arise here to speak against . . . the civil rights proposals, we are not speaking against the Negro race. We are not attempting to keep alive the old flames of hatred and bigotry. We are, instead, trying to prevent those flames from being rekindled. We are trying to tell the rest of the country that this is not the way to accomplish what so many want to do for the Negro."

In a speech at San Angelo, Tex., Nov. 12, 1948, Johnson said he was opposed to racial integration, but he added:

"There is no room in our section in recognizing that all men are created equal. I wish that Negroes in my state would give us a chance to evolve a solution to this problem."

In explaining his vote for the 1957 Civil Rights Bill, Johnson said: "I support the 1957 Civil Rights Bill because I think everyone ought to have the right to vote, be he white or black."

On Nov. 27, 1963, in his first speech as president to a joint session of Congress, Johnson said:

". . . No memorial oration or eulogy could more eloquently honor President Kennedy's memory than the earliest possible passage of the Civil Rights bills for which he fought so long. We have talked long enough in this country about equal rights. We have talked for 100 years or more. It is time now to write the next chapter, and to write it in the books of law."

DEFENCE

In a Senate speech Jan. 23, 1958, Johnson said:

"There can be no adequate defense for the United States except in a reservoir of trained and educated minds.

"Military equipment, however, is the fact that there can be no security for the United States in nations that lack it foreign military bases are a threat to international peace." OPPOSES BASES

Nasser is known to be opposed to the presence of Western military bases in the eastern Mediterranean. Britain retains two military bases on Cyprus under the 1960 treaty of independence. A British base on Cyprus was used as staging area for the British-French attack on Egypt during the 1956 Suez crisis.

Reliable sources said Makarios and Nasser also discussed a possible shipment of Soviet arms to Cyprus via Egypt, but the communique did not indicate this has been discussed.

Makarios said Sunday that Nasser "reassured me of his support in several ways."

In an address in the Greek Orthodox cathedral in Alexandria Makarios, Archbishop of Cyprus, reaffirmed "our determination to carry on our struggle to the end . . . we won't surrender."

"We believe that with people who have the strength to fight we will win in the end and live free and united with Greece."

In other developments Sunday, angry Turks staged anti-Greek and anti-U.S. demonstrations for the fourth successive day while the United Nations command in Nicosia charged that Turkish and Greek flights over Cyprus had heightened tension.

MARCHES STOPPED

Some 2,000 to 3,000 Turks marched toward Greek and U.S. embassies in Ankara, the Turkish capital, but police stopped them with barricades. In the Aegean port of Izmir, firemen used high-pressure hoses to drive back about 500 persons attempting to demonstrate at the international trade fair.

The demonstrations followed an appeal by Premier Ismet Inonu for an end to the rioting. As troops in battle gear patrolled Turkey's largest cities, Interior Minister Oban Ortrak warned that the government was ready to use force to restore order.

Inonu said that while Turks had a legal right to free assembly, there would be no security if unlawful demonstrators tried to set national policy. He said Turkey's National Assembly is expected to convene soon to consider the Cyprus crisis.

The demonstrators accused the United States, Britain, Greece, the United Arab Republic and the Soviet Union of seeking a Cyprus settlement unfavorable to Turkey.

RUSSIA PROTESTS

The Soviet Union protested to Turkey about an attack on its pavilion at the Izmir fair Saturday. A half dozen pavilions were wrecked and looted including a U.S. building.

In northwest Cyprus a Greek Air Force transport plane circled over a recent battle area for more than an hour. Two Turkish Air Force jets also made a reconnaissance pass over the island.

The UN command said both sides were violations of Security Council resolutions calling for a lessening of tension. Both sides said the flights were non-aggressive purposes.

Turkey began an investigation into the sinking of a Turkish patrol - torpedo boat off the northwest coast of Cyprus Saturday. Rumors circulated it might have been sunk by enemy action. It's eight-man crew was rescued.

two men located the bodies about 4.00 p.m.

Trooke said he was not hampered during the search by any undertow.

The accident occurred about 1.30 p.m. Mr. Dillabough and Daniel were pronounced dead at the scene by Coroner Dr. O. W. Anderson of Bancroft.

Constable R.L. Phillips of the Bancroft OPP detachment is conducting the investigations.

It is believed Mr. Dillabough was employed by Polo Construction Company of Pandash, near Bancroft.

A neighbor, Mrs. Elwood Muscow, said the family have lived in the Bird's Creek community most of their life and were a well known family in the area. She said Daniel was to have observed his fifth birthday sometime in November.

LION, DOG POISONED

TORONTO (CP)—Police are investigating the poisoning of 11-month-old Tommie, a 200-pound African lion cub, and his inseparable companion, Bridget, a three-year-old female collie which has been his foster-mother. Both were found unconscious early Sunday in a cage they share at the Canadian National Exhibition.

Europe - 25 Years After Its Second World War

By CARL HARTMAN
Associated Press Writer

Twenty-five years ago tomorrow—Sept. 1, 1939—Hitler marched on Poland. Three days later, British and France went to Poland's aid. Europe once again plunged into war.

When the holocaust ended six years later, the old Europe was gone.

In its place, a quarter of a century later, the new Europe is rising. On the surface, at least, the antagonisms and the territorial jealousies of 1939 are gone, and Europe is being drawn together by many ties of mutual advantage.

Statesmen no longer speak of creating a "united Europe," but of creating "Europe." Only if they build a tightly-integrated continent, they are convinced, can it have the world influence it deserves.

Quarrels about provinces and colonies that excited politicians 25 years ago sound like ancient history in the Europe of today. Political leaders have much more time trying to sell strawberries or steel to their historic enemies, or dredging how much foreign aid money their taxpayers will send to new nations that were once the colonies they owned or coveted.

CURTAIN IS RUSTY

The Iron Curtain is still down across the centre of Europe, but it is rusty in many spots. Behind the curtain are the provinces of Silesia, Pomerania and East Prussia, now marked on the map as "under Polish administration." From here that Hitler marched. But in the atomic age, is this still a prime recipe for war? It seems unlikely.

Today, Western Europe is united in the North Atlantic Treaty Organization, with 15 members reaching from Canada all the way to Greece and Turkey. Economically, six big nations, traditional business enemies, have united in the Common Market. France, West Germany, Italy, Belgium, Holland and Luxembourg have made great progress in a joint approach to the problems of coal, steel and atomic energy. Their goal is to make the area a single economic unit.

By 1966, if all goes well, they will have no tariff walls against one another, and a single tariff wall—a low one—against goods from outside countries. Even more important, they hope to have uniform farm prices and farm policies, and a system of making major economic decisions for the whole area by a weighted majority vote—against the interest of any one member if necessary.

The European Free Trade Association (EFTA) unites seven other countries on the edges of the Common Market: Britain, Denmark, Norway, Sweden, Portugal, Switzerland and Austria. They also are working toward the razing of all internal tariff walls in 1966.

LOOK FOR WAY

Advocates of a "big Europe," like West German Chancellor Ludwig Erhard, are looking for a way to bring these two organizations together.

President Charles de Gaulle of France says he wants to see Europe united "up to the Ural Mountains"—that is, including European Russia. He does not say how this should be done.

The closest East-West contacts come through trade, which both sides are eager to promote, and by cultural contracts on which Europeans set great importance. West Germany will not recognize the existence of East Germany when it is a question of exchanging diplomats or signing treaties. But trade is another matter. The two Germanys do half a billion dollars' business every year.

For 18 months, the West Germans have been busy setting up trade missions in the capitals of East Europe, though they have no diplomatic relations with them.

West Europeans feel so materially secure they can afford to argue about what form their joint defense should take, disregarding the U.S. complaint that none of their countries is pulling its weight in the common task.

MAY GIVE UP BOMB

Britain has its own H-bomb, but may give it up if it can get a bigger voice in the use of U.S. weapons. De Gaulle is trying to develop one. West Germany officially doesn't want one, but it would also like to have a bigger say about America's.

Britain would like to keep its ties with the Commonwealth and the U.S. at the same time it feels drawn to continental

West Germany and France are trying to end their old enmity. At the same time, West Germany wants to stay on good terms with Britain and some smaller nations, who fear a French-German attempt to run the continent.

These cross - currents have altered the progress of the Common Market. But they do not signify the kind of conflict that leads to war.

Reports from Belleville General Hospital today indicate that Barry and Thompson may not be seriously injured, and may be released within a few days. Catherine Bottan appears to have a broken leg and head injuries. Dorothy Hawley has head injuries and was in shock. Both are considered in serious condition. The third adult in the death car, whose name had not been released by press time, may have a fractured skull.

FIGHT AT FAIR

DETROIT (AP) — An additional 60 Detroit policemen were assigned to the Michigan State Fair Sunday night following a series of fights and robberies involving Negro and white teen - agers. The 100-man police detail was more than twice the number patrolling the fairgrounds Saturday night when, police said, seven youths were injured in brawls and at least three holdups were reported. Detroit Police Commissioner Ray Girardin said he did not think the fighting should be considered racial in character.

Pinch Hitting

By GARRY ALEXANDER

Up in London Town, where Junior "B" hockey has been packing them in for the past few years, the players are pocketing some of the money, according to Peterborough sports editor Cec Perdue.

Ike Hildebrand coaches the London Nationals.

Here is a short item on the matter which appeared in Perdue's daily sports column last week:

"We're surprised to hear from London, Ontario, that many of the junior "B" puckists are pretty well paid. Many junior "B" clubs in Ontario cannot afford to pay their boys a dime. Yet, the London scribe says a lot of their Nationals, under Ike Hildebrand, received up to $50 a week last winter.

"Most of them, we expect, were the boys sent to the Nats by Toronto Marlboros. On-the other hand, some of the boys with that squad claim they just received $2.50 a game, or something like $10 a week. The Nationals last winter spent more than $60,000, quite a sum for a junior 'B' club, eh? However, they will have the gate sponsoring Toronto club, and also drew real big crowds in a fine new arena, London being starved for hockey."

London was to have turned junior "A" this coming season but it did not work out that way. . .

I wonder if the boys will be shooting for $75 a week this season for junior "B" play?

That seems to be the hockey trend when salaries are paid so-called amateur-players. It used to be so each senior and pro-bound junior "A" cases but it looks now as if, wherever the fans are willing to pay their way to watch, players are going to shoot for some of the loot.

And the sad part of the story is that the clubs start paying, and hockey men across the province know where that leads.

One can't help but wonder how long before the bubble bursts in London?

Cannifton Caps Comeback

Cannifton Plane's Concrete, down 7-4 at one point, outslugged and outlasted Foxboro to capture the South Hastings Baseball League championship yesterday afternoon. The score was 13-11.

The triumph was Cannifton's fourth in a row after Foxboro had won the first three games of the series. The champions received the Lee Grills and the Buck Pascoe Trophies for their titular win.

Foxboro moved ahead 7-0 with six runs in the top of the third but Cannifton had opened up a 10-7 lead after seven innings. Four runs in the eighth shoved Foxboro back in front 11-10 but Plane's came up with three in the last half of the inning to end the slugfest scoring, holding the losers down in the ninth.

Cannifton came up with their second triple play of the season to help the cause. Pitcher Butch Clapp speared a low liner, doubled a man off first, and the play went on second where another runner was caught off for the third out.

Butch Clapp was the winning pitcher, getting relief help from Don Dafoe in the ninth. They gave up 14 hits, fanned nine and walked two.

Gary Little, Gerry Mann and Gord "Soup" Campbell all saw action on the Foxboro mound. They were tagged for 18 hits, striking out six and passing five.

Hugh Petrie paced the Cannifton hitters with two doubles and two singles. Butch Clapp had one double and two singles, Don Parks rapped three one-base blows and Ron Urch got a double and single. Harry Cole and Don Fenwick hit safely twice each, Ken Forsythe and Pat O'Connor once apiece.

Pete Young clouted a homer and single, Howard Skelly and Brian Skinner a double and single each, Gerry Mann and Turcott two singles apiece, for Foxboro. Glen Reynolds added a two-bagger, Bill Charlton, Roy Belanger and Gary Little one hit each.

Nips Palmer By Stroke ★ ★ ★ ★

Bobby Nichols Enjoys Rich Pay Day

Arnie and Jack had to be content with 1-b secondary prizes again Sunday when Nichols, 28-year-old PGA champion, walked off with the game's biggest tournament haul of the year, the ,35,000 first prize in the $200,000 Carling world golf championship.

It was the fifth time in seven tournaments that Palmer, the defending money-making champion, had come in second. In the other two tournaments, he was third.

"I'm getting darned tired of it," Palmer said. "I hope it doesn't become a habit."

Nicklaus, who hasn't won a major championship this year, fell farther behind. He tied for 11th and 28th and collected $2,800. It was the first time in two months that he hadn't placed at least in the top six.

Since the Masters tourney, Palmer won, the big two have captured only three tournaments between them. Palmer won at Oklahoma City and Nicklaus the Tournament of Champions at Las Vegas and the White Marsh near Philadelphia.

Others have been taking the big ones. Besides Nichols in the PGA, Ken Venturi won the U.S. Open and Tony Lema the British Open.

Palmer poured the pressure on Nichols Sunday by knocking in a 35-foot putt for an eagle on the 526-yard 12th hole, which brought the lowl with Nichols moving toward the showdown holes.

Once, I knew Arnie made an eagle at the 12th," said Nichols, playing in the final threesome just back of the Latrobe larraquer. "I heard the roar and the fans always let you you know a thing like this."

But Nichols, a six-foot-two athletic from Louisville, Ky., refused to be flustered.

The $35,000 prize boosted him into the top five of the money winners with $76,087.36. Palmer went to the head of the list, which he has led the last two years, with $110,742.36.

Gary Player of South Africa won third money with a 72 for 281. Fourth was shared by Ben Hogan and Pete Brown, from Los Angeles, at 282. Hogan shot a final 68 and Brown a 69.

Hogan, 52, proved he still is the game's master shotmaker who, if he could putt better, might dominate the game.

Al Balding and Alvis Thompson of Toronto, the only survivors of the eight-man Canadian contingent, finished well down the list. Balding won $840 for his 297 and Thompson $400 for his 302.

Season's Fastest Mile

'Lint' Sets New Track Record

G. Dolby, taking advantage of the fastest track of the year, drove "Lint" to a new track record for the season in the Quinte Driving and Riding Club's weekend meet Saturday night.

"Lint" captured both heats in races five and nine and set the Quinte mark of 2:02 for the length ninth race, a sparkling 2:02.4 mile. The time compares with the fastest turned in on the track in some years.

Close races were the order of the night as photo-finishes in several heats heighted a crowd of 543-paid happy. The mutual take for the nine heats was $7,910. A number of entries were scratched, due to the fact that 16 horses are stabled in the district, attracting a number of the regular drivers here.

"Hals Fesse" was timed by "Lint" in the record run with "Sunday May Gratton" grabbing the show position. "Lint" paid $2.80, $2.40 and $2.10.

In the shorter fifth race, "Lint" ran down the wire to win, and $2.10. "Hals Fesse" was second in this heat as well with "Bradford Jet" third. Time for the ¾ mile heat was 1.35.

"Fine-L-Touch" also swept both heats in easy fashion in races four and eight, chased by Ben Allaway in the "Hot Gun" in the fourth and by "Double Star" and "Moonlight Dolly" in the eighth.

"Space Pick" won the first race, a one-heat, one-mile event, paying $5.60, $2.80 and $2.10. "Jethro" was second and "Dilly Direct" was third.

"Mr. Spudkey" wrapped up both heats in races two and six. "Lido Bars" was second and "Miss Cheer Grattan" third in race two while "Ben Attawa" was second and "Gaytona" third in the other. "Ben Attawa" paid a good $11.90 for place position in the sixth but fell short of "Lill Bars" $13.80 for the same position in the second.

"Magic Charm" paid $15.00 to win the dash heat of races three and seven, cashed by "Dynamite-Hi-Lee" in the second and "Jackson" came back to make it

Others have been taking the big ones. Besides Nichola in the PGA, Ken Venturi won the U.S. Open and Tony Lema the British Open.

Palmer poured the pressure on Nichols Sunday by knocking in a 35-foot putt for an eagle on the 526-yard 12th hole, which brought the lowl with Nichols moving toward the showdown holes.

Al Balding and Alvis Thompson of Toronto, the only survivors of the eight-man Canadian contingent, finished well down the list. Balding won $840 for his 297 and Thompson $400 for his 302.

split heats for the only time in the night's racing by winning the seventh. "Betty Chief" capped the double for "Magic Charm" dropped to third. "Jackson paid $5.00 for the victory.

The daily double of "Mr. Spudkey" in the second and "Magic Charm" in the third paid a handsome $115.70.

The quinella on the tight race paid $6.70, and on the fifth $6.50.

THE RESULTS

Sixsec Race (one mile)
Mr. Spudkey $4.20, $2.60, $2.10; Jethro $3.50, $2.80; Dilly Direct $2.10. Time 2.05. Also started, Topsy Lee also started. Time 2.22½.

RECORD FALLS

NEW YORK (AP) — One of Babe Ruth's records fell Sunday when Mantle of the New York Yankees struck out for the 1,333rd time in his major league career.

Leafs Keep Playoff Hopes Alive

By THE CANADIAN PRESS

Toronto Maple Leafs took a pair of games from third-place Boston Red Wings during the weekend while Buffalo Bisons obliged by losing two games to Syracuse Chiefs.

As a result, the Maple Leafs kept their playoff hopes alive in the International League by creeping to within 1½ games of the Bisons.

Toronto defeated Rochester 6-1 Saturday and 7-2 Sunday. The Chiefs outlasted the Bisons 10-9 in a 22-hit slugfest Saturday and then defeated Buffalo 9-2 Sunday in the first game of a scheduled doubleheader. The second game was cancelled due to rain.

Syracuse is tied for first place with Jacksonville Suns. The latter split a doubleheader with Atlanta Crackers Saturday, winning the opener 3-2 and losing the nightcap 4-0, and then lost 16-4 Sunday.

In other league action, last-place Atlanta Crackers defeated seventh-place Richmond Virginians 4-3 Saturday and then lost 11-6 Sunday in a 33-hit slugging contest.

Don Loun went the first eight innings for Leafs in Saturday's opener and Dick Ellsworth the win in six-decisions. Rochester starter John Miller was the loser.

In Sunday's game, El Grba picked up his eighth win in 15 decisions as he shut down eight innings. Tom Phoebus (10-0) was the loser.

Stop Oshawa 7-4

Ellis Softballers Tie Series

By GARRY ALEXANDER
(Staff Writer)

Sporting a team that beat you 10-2 the last time out three runs in the first inning sounds like a good way to end the ball season fast.

Not so for Belleville Ellis Junior softballers.

Ellis' gave Oshawa Scugog Cleaners a 3-0 start in the first but came back to slop the visitors 7-4 here Saturday night, deadlocking their OASA Junior "A" playdown set at one game apiece.

Third and deciding game of the series will be played tonight in Port Hope's Beach Park at 8.15 p.m.

Oshawa grabbed the early lead on a walk, single, Scugog error, run triple and a wild pitch before Belleville got to bat.

Starting pitcher, and loser, Murray Hobbs ran into trouble early against Ellis'. Gardiner's hit, a hit batter and a fielder's choice that got no one on Murphead's sacrifice loaded the bases with none out in the one run against him, that on a single by him, that on a sacks-full walk.

Two more walks and an error on Hobbs' wildthrow tied the score 3-3 in the second.

Scugogs caught the error bug, good in the third, giving Belleville three runs on as many errors, wild pitches, a walk and hits by Scrule, Boomhower and Moon. A walk and Ellis's base hit made it 7-3 in the fourth and Belleville did not have another base runner for the rest of the game.

Solomon honored to centre to get one-hacker for Oshawa in the fifth but they too were blanked after the first couple of runners for the remainder .

Bob Ethier hurried six-hit ball, striking out half a dozen and walking three to earn the victory.

Hobbs was chased in the third, tagged with the loss off two hits, good for five Ellis runs when errors combined with three walks and as many errors. Robbie Mason gave up three hits from then on, whiffing three and walking two. Hobbs had seven strikeouts in his short stay.

Belleville hits, all singles, went to Boomhardiner, Moon, Moon, Bob Ethier, Larry Soule and Carl Boomhower.

Pete Norris had a double and singled for Oshawa. Frank Szyszka hit a triple, Bob Solomon a homer, Mason and Jim Rowden a single apiece.

Quinte Trap, Gun Club

Jack McMechon scored a perfect 25 round to pace the field in the Quinte Trap and Gun Club's regular weekend shoot yesterday morning.

Earl Marvin was second with 24, followed by Gary Gow, Garn Hart and Doug Johnston, each with a 23.

Other good scores were: Don Fordham 22, George Hammett 22, Dr. Jim Hale 22, Garn Skinkle 20 and Bill Naylor 20.

Campbellville Trounces Cannifton 23-5

A powerful Campbellville team gave Cannifton a baseball lesson on Saturday, trouncing the local nines 23-5 in the opening game of their OBA Intermediate "C" series, at Cannifton.

Second game in the two-of-three set is scheduled for Campbellville next Sunday afternoon at 2.30.

Campbellville racked four Cannifton hurlers for a grand total of 22 hits. Bill Hill, Gerry Hill, Lorne Cronkright and Terry Cole were victims of the onslaught.

Roberts, with Heffernan taking over in the eighth, let the losers down on nine hits, striking out four.

Cairns paced the winners' attack by slimming a home run, double and two singles. King had a solid visit with a home run and three singles. Windgrave contributed a double and two singles while Moore and Heffernan three safe hits.

Cannifton hits were all singles, divided among Lorne Cronkright, Gerry Hill, Bud Hill, Ron Parks, Gerald Brennan, Harry Cole, John Tweddy, Hugh Petrie and Ken Forsythe.

Minor Softball Results

A misunderstanding of an exhibition series between Belleville and Oshawa Merchants led a strange mixup in Hamilton Saturday.

Three Belleville teams made the trip expecting to play softball. They found Hamilton was the games were to be baseball. The teams split the difference, with the Belleville team part softball and part baseball.

Belleville Peewees edged Hamilton 4-3. Belleville Juniors nipped the home club 4-3 and Hamilton Midgets clubbed Belleville 15-2.

Oshawa Wins 8-1

Baseball Juniors K.O.'ed

By ROBERT SNEFJELLA

In a game that was highlighted by a booing match and an 18 strikeout performance by the losing pitcher, Oshawa whipped Belleville 8-1 to win the best of three O.B.A. Junior series in two games straight.

Oshawa managed only five hits off Bill Barberstock, the Belleville burler. He walked nine and set down 18 via strikeouts.

Gerry Nekkers was touched for five hits in the winning role, while he walked two and threw third strikes past nine batters.

Oshawa scored one in the first, three in the third, another in the seventh, and added three in the ninth for their eight runs.

Belleville's lone tally came in the ninth.

A missed third strike, stolen base and a passed ball by inexperience catcher Carl McKane scored Roger Reeson for the first Oshawa run.

In the third Dave Ferries walked and scored third on a single by Reeson. Both men scored when the Belleville shortstop threw the ball away on a routine grounder by Ron Bell. Bell was singled home by Ted Lutton.

Ferries smashed a double in the seventh and trotted home when the left fielder failed to hold the drive. Barberstock struck out the next three men to face him and retired the next outs after seven innings.

Nekkers walked in the ninth and Ferries lined a shot into centre field for a home run. Reeson followed him and hit an identical round trapper.

Nekkers had allowed Belleville only three hits up to the ninth. Gardiner reached first on a throwing error and got to third on Elsher's single.

Bob Boyle also singled to knock in Gardiner for Belleville's lone run, and Elsher tried to reach third and collided with Oshawa third baseman Ferries.

Wallbridge Reaches Semi-Finals

Wallbridge whipped Eldorado 23-3 in Frankford Saturday night to advance to the OASA Intermediate "D" semi-final playdowns.

Wallbridge ousted Eldorado two games to one with the win Saturday.

Townsend Centre will supply opposition for Wallbridge in the semi-finals and that set is expected to get under way this Saturday. Site of the first game is yet to be announced.

Season's Fastest Mile

'Lint' Sets New Track Record

G. Dolby, taking advantage of the fastest track of the year, drove "Lint" to a new track record for the season in the Quinte Driving and Riding Club's weekend meet Saturday night.

"Lint" captured both heats in races five and nine and set the Quinte mark of 2:02 for the length ninth race, a sparkling 2:02.4 mile. The time compares with the fastest turned in on the track in some years.

Close races were the order of the night as photo-finishes in several heats heighted a crowd of 543-paid happy. The mutual take for the nine heats was $7,910. A number of entries were scratched, due to the fact that 16 horses are stabled in the district, attracting a number of the regular drivers here.

"Hals Fesse" was timed by "Lint" in the record run with "Sunday May Gratton" grabbing the show position. "Lint" paid $2.80, $2.40 and $2.10.

In the shorter fifth race, "Lint" ran down the wire to win, and $2.10. "Hals Fesse" was second in this heat as well with "Bradford Jet" third. Time for the ¾ mile heat was 1.35.

"Fine-L-Touch" also swept both heats in easy fashion in races four and eight, chased by Ben Allaway in the "Hot Gun" in the fourth and by "Double Star" and "Moonlight Dolly" in the eighth.

"Space Pick" won the first race, a one-heat, one-mile event, paying $5.60, $2.80 and $2.10. "Jethro" was second and "Dilly Direct" was third.

"Mr. Spudkey" wrapped up both heats in races two and six. "Lido Bars" was second and "Miss Cheer Grattan" third in race two while "Ben Attawa" was second and "Gaytona" third in the other. "Ben Attawa" paid a good $11.90 for place position in the sixth but fell short of "Lill Bars" $13.80 for the same position in the second.

"Magic Charm" paid $15.00 to win the dash heat of races three and seven, cashed by "Dynamite-Hi-Lee" in the second and "Jackson" came back to make it split heats for the only time in the night's racing by winning the seventh. "Betty Chief" capped the double for "Magic Charm" dropped to third. "Jackson paid $5.00 for the victory.

The daily double of "Mr. Spudkey" in the second and "Magic Charm" in the third paid a handsome $115.70.

The quinella on the tight race paid $6.70, and on the fifth $6.50.

White Sox, Orioles Trade Shutouts

Birds Half Game Up

By MIKE RATHET
Associated Press Sports Writer

Moose Skowron's first homer in six weeks has put the cap on the 24-day period in which the three leading American League pennant contenders finished firing against each other and left unanswered only one small question: Who's going to win the American League pennant?

Skowron, who has a chance to play in his third consecutive World Series with as many teams, slammed a fifth inning homer Sunday that broke up a scoreless battle and started Chicago White Sox on the way to a 3-0 victory over the first-place Baltimore Orioles.

That lifted Skowron's average to .308 since he was acquired from Washington Senators this season after pennant winning years with New York Yankees in 1962 and Los Angeles Dodgers last year. It also lifted the White Sox within one-half game of the Orioles at the end of the contenders' round robin.

The Orioles, who started the 24-day stretch Aug. 7 in second place by four percentage points, compiled a 9-6 record against Chicago and New York during that period and took over the lead. The White Sox were 9-7 against the other two, moving up after being third, 1½ out.

The biggest losers were the Yankees, who started the swing against Baltimore and Chicago in first place, lost 10 to 15 of the other leaders and fell to third, three games off the pace after walloping Boston Red Sox 9-3.

WON'T MEET AGAIN

Apart from a possible playoff, the three contenders won't meet again this season and none is enjoy any particular advantage by the remainder of their schedule. Baltimore has 31 games left, 16 at home. The Yankees play 17 of their 33 on the road and the White Sox have 16 at home and 14 away.

In other AL games Sunday, Tony Oliva's 28th homer brought Minnesota Twins a 5-4 victory over Washington, Ken McBride won his first game in 2½ months as Los Angeles Angels edged Detroit Tigers 5-4 and Kansas City Athletics ended Cleveland's eight-game winning streak with a 9-3 victory before the Indians won the second game 6-5.

On Saturday the Orioles blanked the White Sox 6-0, Cleveland nipped the Athletics 4-3 in 11 innings, Minnesota outlasted Washington 4-1 in 10, the Angels nipped Detroit 3-2 and the Yankees slammed Boston 10-3 and 5-1.

Skowron smashed a 390-foot shot off Robin Roberts for his first homer since July 17 and that proved to be enough for the White Sox Sunday. Pete Ward of Montreal took care of the other runs, driving in one with a triple in the ninth inning and then scoring on a wild pitch.

Joel Horlen nursed the 1-0 lead into the eighth inning, then departed for a pinch hitter Gary Peters, making his first relief appearance, took over in the eighth but left with two outs and a man on second. Hoyt Wilhelm struck out Brooks Robinson to end the threat, but set the Orioles down quietly in the ninh.

ALLOWS FOUR HITS

Horlen, who checked the Orioles on four hits before leaving, did not allow a runner past second and brought his record to 10-8. Roberts is 11-6.

The Yankees got the job done early against the Red Sox, scoring two runs in the first on a double by Phil Linz, Pedro Gonzalez' triple and an error, then adding three runs in the fourth on consecutive homers by Johnny Blanchard and Hector Lopez.

Mickey Mantle, meanwhile, fanned him in the fourth as Fenway Frenzy struck out record when Bob Heffner fanned him in the fourth inning before Blanchard and Lopez connected. The strikeout was No. 1,331 of Mantle's 14-year career.

Oliva's homer in the eighth inning snapped a 4-4 tie and ended a see-saw home battle. Don Mincher had put the Twins ahead 4-3 with a two-run pinch homer in the seventh, but Don Lock pulled the Senators into a tie with a homer in the top of the eighth.

The Angels chased Dave Wickersham, the Tigers' 16-game winner, with a four-run first built on two-run homers by Jim Fregosi and Willie Smith. Tim Mahaffey was the winner, came across in the fifth when Albie Pearson tripled and scored on a wild pitch by Ed Rakow.

Jim Gentile drove in five runs with two homers and a single and Nelson Mathews knocked in four with a pair of homers in the Athletics' victory. Mathews also connected in the nightcap, but the Indians finally won on a two-run single by Max Alvis in the ninth inning.

Score Was 11-3

Kingston Ousts Trudeaus

By GARRY ALEXANDER
Staff Sportswriter

Kingston T.A.S. Men made short work of Trudeau Motors, disposing of the Belleville squad by an 11-3 count at the CNRA Park Sunday afternoon.

Kingston won the OASA Senior "B" seniors in two straight games to advance against either Peterborough or Oshawa.

The visitors led early yesterday and after Trudeaus tied it 1-1 in the second, went on to score almost at will against a lifeless and butter-fingered Belleville crew. Trudeaus' makeshift infield committed all eight of the club's errors, most leading to Kingston runs.

Bubs VanHooser pitched the win, his second five-hitter of the series. He had a one-hitter going into the seventh, striking out six and walking two. He received strong errorless support by his mates.

Bob Green was the loser, giving way to Doug Ellis in the sixth. They gave up ten hits in all, fanning two apiece. Walks led to Green's downfall as he passed five. Ellis did not walk a man but allowed six of the ten hits.

Davidson singled home the first T.A.S. run but Carr got that back for Trudeaus when he popped a double to short centre and raced home on a passed ball.

A two-out split-second bobble gave Kingston their chance in the third and they made the most of it when Wellar slammed a two-run homer. Another error and Ferguson's hit made it 4-1 in the fifth.

Green walked two on before leaving in the sixth, an error and Wellar's base knock upping the count by three. Another trio scored in the seventh when Gilmour tripled, Ferguson and VanHooser singled and Trudeaus erred again. Arniel singled home the last Kingston tally after a boot in the ninth.

Trudeaus staged a rally, far too late and too little in the eighth. Ellis singled, Locke tripled and Wannamaker doubled, scoring two, but that was it.

Belleville's hits went to Rick Locke, Claude Carr, Bob Wannamaker, Ralph Plane and Doug Ellis.

Haven Ferguson got three Kingston singles while Barry Wellar homered and singled. Doug Arneil, Neal Neasmith, Larry Davidson, Don Gilmour and VanHooser split the others.

F. Brouse Wins Braden

THE WINNER, Lil Soopee driven by Ken Holway of Sarnia crosses the finish line in the first heat of the second half of the Bill Braden Memorial Trophy races here Saturday. Fred Brouse of Iroquois won the series and the trophy.

Rough Water Mars Hydroplane Regatta

(Staff) — A little breeze caused a big wave in the Quinte Hydroplane Regatta plans here Saturday, marring some of the action that did take place and causing postponement of a number of the classes altogether.

Highlight of the regatta, and providing the best action of the day, was the Bill Braden Memorial Cup race, captured by hard-driving Freddie Brouse from Iroquois, in his 220 class "Miss Valleyfield".

Race officials expressed regret over the delays and postponements which disappointed many of the 90 boat owners and drivers present. Boats, motors and other equipment jammed onto Zwicks Island for the meet was valued at over $200,000.

The compact schedule which called for 18 heats to be run off in four hours went out the window early. The bay was choppy at the 1.00 p.m. starting time and throughout the afternoon waves were finally bated by darkness a few minutes after eight.

Postponements, delays, drivers' meetings far outnumbered the heats raced. Some thought was given to moving the course to the other side of the bay near bridge, in search of calmer water, but the idea was turned down. A log lurking somewhere on the 1 2/3 mile course also caused delays but never was found, despite knocking several boats out of action with ripped bottoms during the day.

The C.O.D.'s were put into action in the opening heats which saw Lloyd Smith of Scarboro, cop overall honors. He finished second to H. Gifford in the opening heat and copped first in the second, when only two boats finished. Gifford was the first victim of the log and could not take part in the second heat. T. Gifford finished third in the first heat with Ron Milligan, who stayed the rough route for runner-up honors in the second heat, coming fourth.

The "A" stock Hydros were cancelled because of the rough water, a driver's meeting was held and the Braden class was moved in ahead of the smaller boat divisions.

Even the larger inboards found the going rough but six starters got away in the first Braden heat. Brian Butson of Whitby, fell by the wayside early and Murney Carter of Point Anne, this area's only entry, throttled the crowd by moving quickly into third place. Carter, driving his compact "150" against the more powerful "320's" was running a strong third when his motor conked out, with about two laps to go. A later examination disclosed a hole in the boat, thought to be a result of hitting the log.

Ken Holway, of Sarnia, held on to win this first heat, with Brouse taking second and Burt Schroeder, of Niagara Falls, third.

Carter and Butson were unable to repair their boats for the second heat and the fourth entry, Caledonia's Alf Joseph, got off to a bad start and dropped out early.

Brouse timed his start to perfection, passing Schroeder at full tilt just at the starting gun. Schroeder chased Brouse through ten laps, with Holway running a distant third, until the checkered flag.

Schroeder threw caution to the winds in the late laps, closing the gap to a few boat lengths on the rough bottom corner of the course on several occasions, but each time Brouse held off the challenge.

The point totals for the two heats gave Brouse the race with 700, followed by Holway with 622 and Schroeder with 536.

More delays kept matters quiet for some time and the races which were held later saw Robert Kullberg get the overall nod in "A" stock hydro, followed by Spike Burns and John Webster.

In "C" stock hydro, John Findley was overall winner with Jack Lyons second and Bill Hodgson third.

Bud Tomlinson copped the overall win in "B" stock hydro, with Ken Kullberg second and Dave Storey third.

John Dunbar was first and Jack Boulter second in "D" stock hydro competition while in "A" racing Hydro, John Hannon got first and Al Redmond second.

In some cases only the first laps of races were held. Many of the smaller craft attempted to beat the waves but gave it up for a bad job. Lack of entries, also due to conditions, forced the cancellation of some heats while in other cases heats which did start were called in after staggered starts and rough water made competition next to impossible.

Among officials in charge were: chairman Jack Edmonds, tee, Doug Storey; referee, Bill Beasley of Picton; starter, Herb Hodgson of Oakville; public address announcer Fred Shorney; and chief scorer, Mrs. Doe Shorney.

Water Ski Champ
David Lean Wins Title

David Lean of this city captured the Canadian open water ski championship against top competition at Dunnville over the weekend.

Lean assured himself of the title by placing first in the tricky, event.

He placed fourth in jumping and fifth in the slalom to pile up his championship winning points total. Competitors were entered in the three events with the overall totals compiled from these results.

Lean has won the championship on three other occasions, in 1959, 1961 and 1963. He added two trophies to his shelf with yesterday's victory.

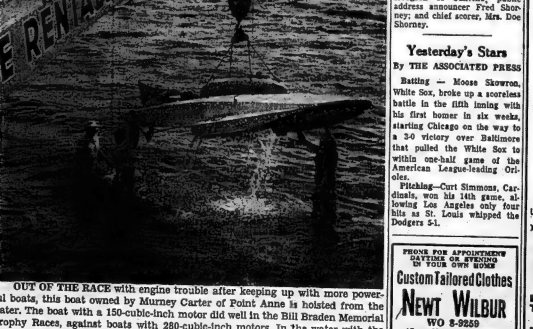
He is an employee of Union Carbide, in Belleville, and water skis on weekends and whenever possible.

Another Belleville entry in the championship meet, Miss Elaine MacDonald, placed second in the girls' tricks competition.

WINS BIKE RACE

MONTREAL (CP) — Jacques Lepage of Montreal won the 53-mile Dunlop Alpine bicycle race from Chomedey, Que., to Ste. Agathe, Que., Saturday.

Bulldogs, Maroons To Merge



CHATHAM (CP) — Chatham Maroons and Windsor Bulldogs, both members of the International Hockey League, announced Saturday they will merge teams for a 1964-65 schedule of exhibition games.

Last year both teams suspended operations within the league because of poor attendance at home games.

Stan Dorrance, spokesman for the group, said the combined team will be based in Windsor and will play about a 30-game schedule of exhibitions. The games will be split between the two cities.

Dorrance said all IHL teams and the American League teams have expressed an interest in playing the combined team.

OUT OF THE RACE with engine trouble after keeping up with more powerful boats, this boat owned by Murney Carter of Point Anne is hoisted from the water. The boat with a 150-cubic-inch motor did well in the Bill Braden Memorial Trophy Races, against boats with 280-cubic-inch motors. In the water with the boat are owner-driver Carter, his son Bill and a friend, Bill Brooks of Point Anne.

Actors Sometimes Inject Little Humor in Scripts

By CYNTHIA LOWRY

HOLLYWOOD (AP)—All the humor that turns up in television's situation comedies is not necessarily injected by the writers. Even though filmed it is sometimes added by collaboration during rehearsal.

The other day on the Andy Griffith Show set, the sheriff of Mayberry and his new light-of-love (played by Anita Corsaut) were walking through a rehearsal, scripts in hand. The scene required Andy to take lingering leave of the girl in front of his office, to be joined inside by his deputy, played by Don Knotts.

The script had Andy leaning forward to kiss the girl, then turning away to enter the building.

Griffith thought for a minute and said: "Wouldn't it be funnier if Don broke it up by walking between us? Let's try that."

They rehearsed again Knotts rushed across the set, cut between the pair and disappeared into the building.

"Boy, that works better," said Griffith with a smile.

ABC has announced a "major overhaul" of its daytime programming starting early in October. It consists of abandoning, after all those tear-stained years, Queen for a Day, in favor of still another soap opera, The Young Marrieds, and of changing the title of The Tennessee Ernie Ford Show to Hello, Pea-pickers.

Meanwhile, the creative department at NBC has got wheeling—it has changed the name of The Jack Benny Show to The Jack Benny Program.

GAMES BERTH

NEW YORK (AP) — Chet Jastremski, 19-year-old University medical student who narrowly missed the 1960 Olympic team, climaxed a comeback Sunday by twice breaking his own world record for the 200-metre breaststroke and gaining a berth on the Tokyo-bound U.S. Olympic squad Jastremski, 23, was timed in 2:29.4 while lowering the record of 2:29.6 he set in August, 1961. He won the final in 2:28.7.

The Great White Way Readies for a New Season

By WILLIAM GLOVER
Associated Press Drama Writer

NEW YORK (AP) — Broadway's new season is starting with a rush.

In quantity and variety, the early premiere schedule contrasts markedly with recent theatrical practice.

The star list includes long-absent Madeleine Carroll and Shirley Knight, Chita Rivera, Jeanmaire from Paris, Ulla Sallert from Sweden, perhaps Jane Wyman and Alan Alda. Among the men, Sammy Davis, Jr., Zero Mostel, Sam Levene, Mort Sahl, Buddy Hackett, England's Alan Bates and Donald Pleasence.

Represented in the authorship ranks are Lorraine Hansberry, Jean Kerr, Pulitzer playwrights Arthur Miller and Joseph Kramm. The overseas writing contingent features Friedrich Duerrenmatt, the satiric Swiss; and most conspicuously, France's Jean Anouilh, provider of 'Becket.'

Labor Day traditionally marks the start of activity that continues through June, but first nighters turn out sooner than usual with arrival from Athens of Melina Mercouri in the star, at City Centre for a two-week exhibit of Medea and Electra starting Aug. 31.

DEBUTS SET

A big batch of attractions is slated for debut during September, while there's also room for a handful of shows. The production pick-up is due in large part to a scarcity of hold-overs. Fewer than the usual number are available because of the exceptional quality of hold-over hits from last season.

Here, in order of premiere, are some of the major productions announced to arrive by Oct. 31:

Sunrise Blut, Johann Strauss' Blue Danube operetta, performed by a company imported from Austria. Dreweatt, on visit, mid-way in a national tour, starts at the Lunt-Fontanne Sept. 1.

Traveller without Luggage, Anouilh whimsy about a Frenchman who can choose his past, and therefore, his future. With Ben Gazzara, Mildred Dunnock and Blanche Yurka, at the Anta Theatre, Sept. 17.

A Girl could get Lucky, a two-character comedy-mystery and directed by Don Emilk and Honey Appell. With Betty Garrett and Pat Hingle, at the Cort, Sept. 20.

IS COMEDY

The Absence of a Cello, comedy by Ira Wallach about a scientist's bizarre family. The players include Fred Clark, Ruth White, Ruth McDevitt and Mila Powers. Ambassador, Sept. 21.

Fiddler on the Roof, musical based on Sholem Aleichem's folk tetrity. Imperial, Zero Mostel. Imperial, Sept. 22.

A Severed Head, London hit concerning a strange romantic triangle by Irish Murdock and J. B. Priestly. Cast unannounced. Booth, Sept. 24.

Golden Boy, musical version of the Clifford Odets drama. Sammy Davis, Jr., Billie Allestic, Sept. 28.

Sign in Sidney Brustein's Window, Lorraine Hansberry's account of an offbeat young couple, featuring Mort Sahl and Rita Moreno. Longacre Oct. 5.

CARROLL TO APPEAR

Beekman Place" brings Madeleine Carroll to Broadway as the wife of a playwright, portrayed by Fernand Gravet. The Samuel Taylor comedy reaches the Morosco, Oct. 7.

The Physicists, with Hume Cronyn and Jessica Tandy exploring the subtleties of Friedrich Duerrenmatt satire set in an insane asylum. Beck, Oct. 8.

Ben Franklin in Paris, a musical starring Robert Preston as the great statesman and Ulla Sallert leading lady of the swedish stage in her U.S. debut, as Madame fatale Lunt-Fontanne, Oct. 13.

It was Dancing, a play by Edwin O'Connor based on his novel about an elderly vaudevillian and the younger generation. Longacre and Schwartz, Raymond, Oct. 19.

Cactus Flower, Richard. a comedy by Jean Kerr, with Alan Bates and Shirley Knight, follows the author's Mary, Mary into the Hayes on Nov. 12.

IT'S HIS SECOND

Poor Bitos. Anouilh's second exhibit of the season, takes place after the Second World War and during the French revolution. Donald Pleasence, the Roboseplerre tops the cast. Cort, Nov. 14.

Zizi, a French revue that gets its title from the nickname of its dancing star, Renee Jeanmaire, at the Broadway, Nov. 19.

Not in her Stars, concerned with a group of middle-aged widows and divorcees, has enlisted the services of Jane Wyman and is tentatively listed for late November premiere. A similar provisional setup exists for an untitled musical in which Jan Sherdian is to portray evangelist Aimee Semple McPherson.

One by One, a romantic comedy written and directed by Dore Schary. Dec. 2. Theatre to be announced.

WRITTEN BY MILLER

Incident at Vichy, Arthur Miller's study of an episode in French occupation, to be directed by the Lincoln Center Company under Harold Clurman's direction. Anta Washington Square Theatre, Dec. 3.

I had a Ball, with Buddy Hackett depicting an unpublished Coney Island fortune-teller, at the Broadhurst, Dec. 10.

All Honorable Men, a drama by Joseph Kramm about the conflict between Alexander Hamilton and Aaron Burr that led to their duel. George Grizzard portrays Hamilton. Dec. 12, theatre to be announced.

NL Race Tightens

Allen's Boots Costing Phillies

By MURRAY CHASS
Associated Press Sports Writer

Richie Allen may boot Rico Carty of Milwaukee or Jim Hart of San Francisco right into the Rookie of the Year award in the National League

Allen, Philadelphia's offensive spark, continued his less than red-hot defensive performance Sunday, committing two costly errors in the league leading 10-2 loss to Pittsburgh Pirates.

Carty and Hart, meanwhile provided lusty batting displays as the Giants won the first game of a doubleheader 13-10 and the Braves the second 7-4.

Carty belted his 16th inclining his 16th homer, in five at bats in the nightcap after slamming a homer in three trips in the first game. Hart went 3-for-6 in the doubleheader, hitting a homer in each game and driving in six runs.

Allen's errors increased his season total to 33, a rare height even for an entire season. Allen has done it in 129 games, giving him 33 more games in which to surpass the most misplays made by a National League third baseman in two years. That figure is 41, set last year by Ubby Sisti of Boston Braves in 1941.

Allen, 22, has been Philadelphia's most potent batting threat, compiling a .312 average with 24 homers and 73 runs batted in. But some of his bobbles—he has made 27 in the last 64 games — have been costly.

BALL HITS KNEE

On Sunday with the bases loaded and one out in the second inning, Bob Bailey grounded to third. The ball bounced off Allen's knee, and two runs came across. Gene Alley went to third on the play and scored on Manny Mota's bunt single.

Then with two out in the inning, Allen fielded Bob Veale's grounder and threw high to first, permitting Donn Clendenon to score from second Bailey then singled in another unearned run.

In other NL games Sunday, Cincinnati Reds nipped Houston Colts 7-6 after losing 8-5, St. Louis Cardinals whipped Los Angeles Dodgers 3-1 and Chicago Cubs knocked off New York Mets 7-3.

In Saturday's games the Phillies outslugged the Pirates 10-8, the Giants downed the Braves 4-2, Chicago outlasted the Mets 4-3 in 10 innings, the Reds whipped the Colts twice, 2-1 in 11 innings and 8-7, and the Cardinals defeated the Dodgers 4-1.

The Phillies' loss Sunday cut their league lead to 5½ games over the second - place Reds. Veale (14-10) struck out seven to third. The ball bounced off Bailey's knee, and two runs came across. Gene Alley went to third on the play and scored on Manny Mota's bunt single.

Then with two out in the inning, Allen fielded Bob Veale's grounder and threw high to first, permitting Donn Clendenon to score from second Bailey then singled in another unearned run.

The Phillies' loss Sunday cut their league lead to 5½ games over the second - place Reds. Veale (14-10) struck out seven Philadelphia batters, bringing his season total to 183 to a pitch record.

BATTING AVERAGE CLIMBS

Carty, who has 63 RBI, increased his average to .324 with his second 5-for-5 performance in a week. It was Hank Aaron's three-run homer in the four-run eighth inning, though, that brought the Braves the second-game victory. The Giants had taken a 4-3 lead in their eighth on Orlando Cepeda's two-run single.

Hart's six RBI, four in the opener, gave him 68 for the season with 24 homers and a .326 average. The Giants won the first game with four runs in the eighth. Jim Davenport broke a 10-10 tie with a two-run single. Frank Robinson's run-scoring double in the ninth inning gave the Reds their second game victory. Jim Maloney had pitched a 6-0 lead, but the Reds tied it in the second, Vada Pinson's two-run homer capping the six-run uprising.

The Braves batted in four runs with two triples in the opener for the Colts.

The Cardinals ended their sixth straight game as Mike Shannon drove in three runs with an eighth - inning double off Curt Simmons to his 14th triumph against nine defeats.

Larry Jackson continued his mastery over the Mets, boosting his lifetime mark with them to 10-0. Jackson (17-10) scattered nine hits and Billy Williams slammed his 28th homer, a two-run sock, in the Cubs' third.

AT THE PARK — Alain Delon, posing as a debonair summer visitor to Cannes, actually is Jean Gabin's accomplice in an audacious plot to rob the Casino of a billion francs in Metro-Goldwyn-Mayer's suspense-thriller, "Any Number Can Win", opening tonight at the Park Theatre. The surprise climax of the picture will have audiences sitting on the edge of their seats. On the same program Albert Finney stars in the hair-raising thriller "Night Must Fall". One complete show at 7.30 p.m. "Any Number Can Win" at 7.40, "Night Must Fall" at 9.40 p.m.

Nine Trotters Named For Hambletonian

DU QUOIN, Ill. (AP) — A field of nine three-year-old trotters, the smallest since 1941, was named Sunday for Wednesday's Hambletonian Stakes.

The lineup of the Kentucky Derby of harness racing is without a filly for the first time since 1960.

The total worth for the race will be $115,281. The winner's share will be $56,487, with $28,243 for second place.

Astrological Forecasts

By SYDNEY OMARR

For September 1

Aries (Mar. 21 to Apr. 19): Be aware of matters which affect home, security. Also, situation may arise involving one who performs service for you. Be wary! Be very specific about details.

Taurus (Apr. 20 to May 20): You may have to take short journey to effect reunion with loved one. Be co-operative. Say "yes" to challenge. If you are versatile, you will find a way! Keep mind and heart open.

Gemini (May 21 to June 20): Unsettling conditions indicated temporarily. You may be required to stretch budget. But what you can obtain is worthwhile ... affects welfare of family member. Best to stress logical approach.

Cancer (June 21 to July 22): Cycle high. You can get what you need. Insist on your right to privacy. Ideas may be erratic. Sift through emotions. Concentrate on quality. Ask for the best — you'll get it!

Leo (July 23 to Aug. 22): Secrets involving financial matters may explode into open — you could be in for real surprise. Handle responsibility. Know that you can favorably influence very important persons.

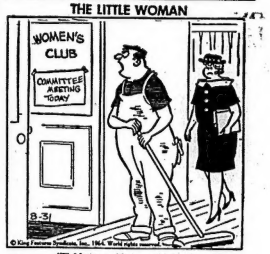
Virgo (Aug. 23 to Sept. 22): Take special care where travel, driving is involved. Tendency is to act on impulse. Friend who should "know better" may encourage carelessness. Heed your own counsel. Be wary!

Libra (Sept. 23 to Oct. 22): Behind scenes intrigue may now affect position, standing in community. Be alert. Take initiative. Be independent, original in approach. Up to you to take the lead!

Scorpio (Oct. 23 to Nov. 21): Your future can be determined to large degree by current thoughts, actions. Your intuitive intellect will serve as reliable guide. No time to be wary of "unknown" factors.

Sagittarius (Nov. 22 to Dec. 21): Money of partner or mate grabs spotlight. May involve minor disagreement. Face facts as they exist. Confusion indicated but it will be a kind of ordered confusion.

Capricorn (Dec. 22 to Jan. 19): Hold off on legal agreements. Too much pressure indicated. Wait for air to clear. Insist on added information. Delaying tactics could pay off. Know this — and be willing to wait.



Aquarius (Jan. 20 to Feb. 18): You realize a basic change is required — but the tendency is to procrastinate. Analyze motives. Seek advice by member of opposite sex. Throw false pride aside. Be a listener!

Pisces (Feb. 19 to Mar. 20): Domestic situation requires special attention. Outside interests have complicated current situation. You cannot permit problem to simmer. Either turn "heat" on or off!

If today is your birthday . . . you are an original thinker, a self-starter, a natural diagnostician — one who leads rather than follows.

General Tendencies: Cycle high for Cancer, Leo, Virgo. Special word to Capricorn. Cycle has been higher in past. Best advice in general sense is to lie low.

OLYMPIC TEAM LOSES
TORONTO (CP) — Canada's Olympic basketball team Saturday was defeated by the Americ an Lithuanian All-Stars 96-86 in overtime of an exhibition game here before 1,200 fans. The Canadians, playing together for only the same time since being assembled June 1, led for most of the game.

Whip Bombers 21-4

Lions Still Undefeated

VANCOUVER (CP)—A masterful defensive performance by British, Columbia Sunday led the way to a 21-4 victory over Winnipeg Blue Bombers and left the undefeated Lions with a three-point lead in the Western Football Conference.

A crowd of 33,607 saw the Lions hold Winnipeg to the net yards on the ground, without a touchdown. Inside B.C.'s 20-yard line.

The B.C. defence also grabbed the ball deep in Winnipeg territory for one of Lions' three touchdowns, and left the visitors physically battered for the game they must play against Calgary Stampeders in four days.

The Lions have nine points, Calgary and Saskatchewan Roughriders and Winnipeg three. Edmonton Eskimos are winless in four starts.

Two touchdowns in the second quarter spelled the outcome, as Lions polished off a 30-yard ramble with a 34-yard pass from Joe Kapp to flanker Sonny Homer, and then took charge at the Winnipeg 13 on Tom Brown's pass interception, scoring again on a three-yard plunge by rookie fullback Bob Swift.

GETS TWO

Swift scored his second touchdown of the game and his second of the season in the third quarter after Lions had converted all three. Swift's 12 points ranked him into a fireplace tie in the scoring race with Hugh Campbell of Saskatchewan with nine.

Bombers had a 3-0 first-quarter lead on a 27-yard field goal by Gerry Fleming. Their only other point came on Lions' lone visitor's third-quarter single.

Kapp hit 15 of 25 of his passes and threw seven of them to Homer for 118 yards. Stand in quarterback Joe Zuger added two completions in three attempts for a total 214-yard gain in the air, compared with 165 yards by Winnipeg. Kenny Ploen hit on six of 11 passes, Hal Ledyard and Zuger on two and Delveaux missed a reliever when he fumbled a snap and was forced to punt from deep in his own end.

Lions held Winnipeg to 14 first downs while rolling up 22.

Parsons Cleaners Lose 3-0

Parsons Cleaners soccer club took on the pick of the Belleville and District Soccer League and were downed 3-0 by Kingston Italia. For Parsons, the only time the game Parsons kept the Italia team in their own half of the field but could not score.

Italia started with a rush, but Parsons settled down to possess defence in trouble. During this period inside left Ken Macdonald had a good chance shot into the corner of the net.

Parsons roared back to carry the play and Max Valyear hit the ball too high from right in front of the Italia goal mouth. Inside forward Ian Lasenta also blasted wild when he broke through with a good opportunity to score.

At half time the game became rough and ready and swung from end to end, both clubs trying to get on the scoring sheet.

In the final twenty minutes Parsons threw everything into the attack and Italia defended they might get back into the game. At times all eleven were in the Italia half of the field.

However during one of these Italia broke away and caught the Parsons defence on the wrong foot. A long shot was pushed by Vaugeuan right into the Parsons goal. This centre forward who promptly put it

M.L. McKenzie

Canadian New WBA Head

NORFOLK, Va. (AP)—Merv McKenzie, 47, of Kingston, Ontario athletic commissioner, was elected president of the World Boxing Association in the 45th annual convention Saturday.

McKenzie, a WBA vice-president last year, succeeds Ed Lassman of Miami Beach, Fla. McKenzie is also a member of the WBA executive committee and the world's championship committee.

He has been Ontario's athletic commissioner since 1952.

The association threw up another blockade in a move to solidify its ban on the proposed Cassius Clay — Sonny Liston heavyweight championship bout.

The WBA voted unanimously to declare the heavyweight title vacant and expel all principals involved immediately on announcement of any agreement on the date and site of the proposed rematch.

If this happens, Lassman said, the WBA would recognize an elimination series of Ontario Inter - Continental Boxing Federation champion Jimmy Ellis and Jerry Quarry.

The association also left off the association heavyweight ratings and Ernie Terrell of Chicago moved up as No. 1 challenger to Clay.

Anthony Petronella of Rhode Island, chairman of the ratings committee, released the top 10 heavyweights during the convention.

Eddie Machen of Toronto was rated sixth.

Early End For Koufax

LOS ANGELES (AP)—Sandy Koufax of Los Angeles Dodgers, the winningest pitcher in the baseball business in 1964, is not likely to pitch again this season, a doctor said Sunday.

Koufax, who missed half of the 1962 season because of a circulatory ailment, has been made idle again by inflammation around his left elbow.

Dr. Robert Kerlan, the Dodgers' physician, said: "I can't say how long it'll be before he's sound, but it probably won't be before the season is over."

Despite two long layoffs, Koufax has a 19-5 record with a 1.74 earned-run average. He struck out 223 batters in 223 innings. He also pitched a no-hitter this season.

East York Tops Sarnia

SARNIA (CP)—Toronto East York Argonauts scored 13 points in the first quarter and went on to defeat Sarnia Imperials 19-10 in senior Ontario Rugby Football Union action Saturday night.

The visitors had a 19-3 lead after first half, limiting the Imperials to a single touchdown over the last two quarters.

Ian McIntosh's second two-point touchdown for the Argos, one from the six-yard line and the other from the 16. Pete Warren added a single on a long pass from quarterback Gord Rowe. Taggart. Jim Walker kicked two converts.

Gerry Mahoney accounted for the Sarnia touchdown on a pass from pivot Ted Dowland. Pete McPhedran rounded out scoring with a 42-yard field goal and a convert.

However during one of these Italia broke away and caught the Parsons defence on the wrong foot. A long shot was pushed by Vaugeuan right into the Parsons goal. This centre forward who promptly put it into the net making the score 2-0 on the play. Inside forward Joe Welt scored again, heading the ball from between two Parsons defenders, making it 3-0.

Harris scored on a pass from Rich Hawkins after Oakville were penalized for accidently playing the same two plays past regulation time.

Knights had built a 21-0 lead by half-time. Al Schlosser and Bob Stalenhaler recovered fumbles for touchdowns and Glen May scored the third on a keeper play. Gary Tetmanis scored a third touchdown on a pass from Hawkins and Al Schlosser recovered a fumble for the other.

Ten-Age Records Fall

By WALTER KREVENCHUK

WINNIPEG (CP) — Records were almost as plentiful as rain as the Canadian age-class track and field championships got through a rainy program during the weekend.

Faced by a tremendous individual performance by Janet Maddin, 15-year-old Winnipeg sprinter, 460 young athletes 19 and under from seven provinces swept to the championship parade. A new rain soaked athletes participating in the 52nd annual Saturday.

Miss Maddin won three events and anchored a Manitoba mid get women's relay team that established a Canadian record in the 440-yard relay. She won the midget women's 100-yard dash in 10.8 seconds, the 60-yard dash in seven seconds and the 220-yard sprint in 25 seconds. She also ran the Manitoba a relay time of 50.7 seconds—2 seconds better than the old mark set in 1962 by the Mills Track Club of Toronto.

Pat Fil p o h a o of Stettler, Alta., started the second stage by soaring 21 feet, 7¾ inches in the midget women's long jump Friday. He was 2¾ inches better than the Canadian age-class mark established in 1962.

Jana Lundy of Vancouver broke the record of five feet, 2½ inches in the midget women's high jump by clearing the bar at five feet, two inches. YOPS JAVELIN MARK

Cathy Leipert of Burnaby, B.C., followed with a throw of 98 feet, 10 inches in the mid-

Emery Says Bobsleds May Die

By JACK SULLIVAN
Canadian Press Sports Editor

TORONTO (CP) — Canadian bobsledders, who won the country's only gold medal in the winter Olympic Games at Austria last February, wonder what they have to do to get suitable financial recognition from the government.

"It cost a small group of us $50,000 in four years to win that gold medal," Vic Emery of Montreal, driver of the winning four-man crew, said in an interview Saturday. "The fitness council has millions to spend. We asked for $20,000 and got $5,000."

The 30-year-old Emery, who has been in the sport nearly eight years, said the Canadian team's equipment is old and new sleds are needed if Canada hopes to continue on a competitive par with the Europeans if they are "successfully defend our Olympic title."

Four new four-man sleds, at $4,500 each, and a couple of two-man sleds, at $1,700 each, are required. But Emery and the crew crew chief Steve Kirby and Doug Anakin of Montreal, and his brother, Dr. John Emery of Toronto—aren't crying.

NEED EQUIPMENT

"It is simply a fact that we need new equipment and that it costs us a lot in transportation. Before we can hope to compete, we must go to Europe and to the United States. There is no bobsled run in Canada, as everybody knows.

"It cost us $8,000 alone in time and gas to get to the competitive interest in the sport by Canadians will die when we give up the game.

But they aren't ready to give it up yet. Emery and his crew will compete in the world championships at St. Moritz, Switzerland, next January and February.

They'll repair the sled they used at the Olympics. It means the crew will be together a bare minimum of three weeks for practice and for the obligatory post to crew members, none of whom is loaded with money.

Over Oakville Labor Day weekending in Canada has grown since the Winter Games but the only camp open to them is if "someone" doesn't build a sled run in Canada.

"We could use run I'm sure that Canada would be in the top grouping in the world for bobsled," Emery said. "$100,000, no more, to build a run and, if situated in a metropolitan area, I'm sure it would soon pay its way. We could get the world championships for 1967."

The crew members were honored at an Athletic Day Dinner Thursday at the Canadian National Exhibition.

London Lords Win Opener Over Oakville

OAKVILLE (CP)—Bob Harris scored a touchdown on the last play of the game to give London Lords a 25-21 victory over Oakville Knights in the opening game of the OHFU Intermediate League season Saturday night.

Harris scored on a pass from Rich Hawkins after Oakville was penalized for accidently playing the same two plays past regulation time.

Knights had built a 21-0 lead by half-time. Al Schlosser and Bob Stalenhaler recovered fumbles for touchdowns and Glen May scored the third on a keeper play. Gary Tetmanis scored a third touchdown on a pass from Hawkins and Al Schlosser recovered a fumble for the other.

The Trots

TORONTO (CP)—Tie Silk set a track record for a mile and three-sixteenths in registering two consecutive victories over the rival two-year-old pacers in the Maple Leaf Trot before 9,948 fans Saturday night at Greenwood Raceway.

Tie Silk was the 3-5 choice to beat Rosebuster and Glen Arrow and romped to a 2½-length triumph with a winning time of 2:02.4 over the half-mile track by Canadian Intrusion on July 23.

Canadian Intrusion gained second place for Ross and Colin MacKinnon of Owen Sound. A boss back in third place was 3-1 choice Sprite Kid owned by Moe Israel and Eddie Wolox of Montreal.

5,000 Attend Races Held At North Bay Near Consecon

PICTON — International outboard races held on North Bay, near Consecon, Sun. afternoon attracted a crowd estimated at five thousand. After more than a thousand cars had packed the beach, others were forced to park outside. The large field of top racers combined with ideal sunny weather brought out the biggest crowd ever to attend the races there.

A young boy, David Brown of Belleville, luckily escaped injury when one of the outboards, in coming to the shore, came in too fast, and the boy was struck. However, he was saved from serious injury by his father, Robert Brown who caught the end of the boat and pulled the boy away.

Leonard Vigodda of Belleville was thrown from his boat on a curve but not hurt. Another entry overturned after the race.

However, weather was ideal for racing and the sheltered waters, with a slight ripple, ideal. Speeds up to 80 miles an hour thrilled fans and the whine and roar of motors and great rooster tails of spray contributed to an exciting afternoon.

There were so many entries in several classes that elimination heats had to be held. There were numerous disqualifications as drivers beat the gun.

U.S. BOATS WIN

In 'A' stock racing, John Hannon of Ogdensburg was first with Don Smith of Niagara Falls second and Hugh Krock of Kingston third.

In 'C' stock class, John Sibthorpe of Picton was winner with A. J. Garbutt of Picton second and Ray Olger of Burlington third.

In 'B' racing hydro, Jim Hannon of Ogdensburg was winner, followed by John Bell of Ingersoll and Ernie Wilson, second third.

In 'D' hydro Bill Ireland of Trenton was first, followed by Pat David of Rochester, N.Y., and John Webster, Toronto.

The 'C' hydro, Sidney Aldrige of West Hill was followed by Ray Olger of Burlington and Gordon Chapman, Galt.

In 'C' Utility, Chet Poloway of Buffalo N.Y. took first place, John Sibthorpe, Picton second, Norman Boulter of Belleville, third.

In 'B' Stock hydro, John Webster finished first, Robert Hulberg, second and Jim Tooey, of Toronto, third.

Winners in 36 utility class were Charles Puhlow of Picton, Don Pemberton, Waddington, N.Y., George Puhlow, Picton.

The A stock class was won by Jim Tooey, John Webster and John Bain, all of Toronto.

Miller Attacks War Record Of President

BUFFALO, N.Y. (AP)—Representative William E. Miller, Republican vice presidential candidate, says President Johnson "elected to be a congressman instead of a soldier" during the Second World War while "Barry Goldwater stayed in the service for four long years."

Miller also said in a speech here Friday night that a filmed biography of Johnson shows, as the Democratic convention this week, and carried on television, showed Johnson entering the navy but did not show that "six months later he was back home again, before the shooting even started."

Johnson went on active duty as a lieutenant-commander in the navy on Dec. 8, 1941, the day after the Japanese attack on Pearl Harbor. He went on bombing missions in the South Pacific, was awarded the Silver Star and returned to Washington in July, 1942, when President Franklin D. Roosevelt directed congressmen in the service to report for the armed forces.

During the war Goldwater saw duty in the Azores and in Karachi as a ferry pilot. He had a letter of the Army Air Corps despite objections to his age and eyesight. While on active duty from 1941 to 1945, he also served as a flight instructor. He holds the Air Medal and is a major general in the Air Force Reserve. He was elected to the Senate in 1952.

Miller entered the army in July, 1942, and was assigned to the military intelligence branch and later served with the war criminal branch at Washington until August, 1945.

H. O. DAVIS DIES

PALM SPRINGS, Calif. (AP) H. O. Davis, one-time journalist, movie executive and automobile builder, died Friday at 87. Death was attributed to infirmity of age. Davis once built automobiles for R. W Sears, was general manager and vice-president of Universal Pictures and Triangle Studios and in the 1920s served as editor of the Ladies Home Journal and was affiliated with Hearst newspapers in San Francisco and Seattle.
